FIRST INTERIM APPLICATION FOR COMPENSATION AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES OF PACHULSKI STANG ZIEHL & JONES LLP,
AS COUNSEL FOR THE DEBTOR AND DEBTOR IN POSSESSION, FOR THE PERIOD FROM OCTOBER 16, 2019 THROUGH MARCH 31, 2020

TO THE HONORABLE STACEY G. C. JERNIGAN,
UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

Pursuant to sections 330 and 331 of Title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy Code”), Rule 2016 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (collectively, the “Bankruptcy Rules”), Rule 2016-1 of the Local Bankruptcy Rules of the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (collectively, the “L.B.R.”), the Court’s Guidelines for Compensation and Expense Reimbursement of Professionals (the “Guidelines”), and the Order Establishing Procedures for Interim Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Professionals [Docket No. 141] (the “Interim Compensation Procedures Order”), Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones LLP (“PSZ&J” or the “Firm”), as counsel for Highland Capital Management, L.P., the above-captioned debtor and debtor in possession (the “Debtor”), hereby submits its First Interim Application for Compensation and for Reimbursement of Expenses of Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones LLP as Counsel for the Debtor and Debtor in Possession for the Period from October 16, 2019 through March 31, 2020 (the “Application”).

By this Application, PSZ&J seeks entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit C, authorizing an interim allowance of: (a) compensation for professional services rendered by PSZ&J to the Debtor in the amount of $4,834,021.00; and (b) reimbursement of actual and necessary expenses in the amount of $118,198.81 for the period from October 16, 2019 through March 31, 2020 (the “Compensation Period”).

This amount is net of voluntary write-offs of $145,798.50 in fees and $5,092.83 in expenses during the Compensation Period. In support of the Application, PSZ&J respectfully represents as follows:

I. BACKGROUND

1. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2). Venue is proper in this district under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

2. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the “Delaware Court”). The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor in possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

3. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court.

4. On November 14, 2019, the Delaware Court signed the Interim Compensation Procedures Order authorizing certain professionals and members of any official committee (collectively, the “Professionals”) to submit monthly applications for interim compensation and reimbursement for expenses (each, a “Monthly Fee Application”) pursuant to the procedures specified therein. Commencing with the period ending December 31, 2019 and at three-month intervals thereafter, each of the Professionals may file with the Court an interim application for allowance of the amounts sought in its Monthly Fee Applications for that period. All fees and expenses paid are on an interim basis until final allowance by the Court.

5. The retention of PSZ&J as counsel to the Debtor was approved effective as of October 16, 2019 by the Delaware Court's Order Pursuant to Section 327(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Rule 2014 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure and Local Rule 2014-1 Authorizing the Employment and Retention of Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones LLP as Counsel for the Debtor and Debtor in Possession Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date, signed on December 2, 2019 [Docket No. 176] (the "Retention Order"). The Retention Order authorized PSZ&J to be compensated on an hourly basis and to be reimbursed for actual and necessary out-of-pocket expenses.

6. The Debtor filed its Schedules of Assets and Liabilities and Statement of Financial Affairs on December 13, 2019 [Docket Nos. 247 and 248, respectively] (collectively, the "Schedules and SOFAs").

7. Bradley Sharp, of Development Specialists, Inc. ("DSI"), was appointed as the Debtor's Chief Restructuring Officer (the "CRO") on January 10, 2020 [Docket No. 342].

II. SUMMARY OF EVENTS DURING THE CHAPTER 11 CASE AND PRESENT POSTURE

A. Venue Transfer to the Northern District of Texas

8. On November 1, 2019, the Committee filed a Motion of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors for an Order Transferring Venue of this Case to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas [Docket No. 85] (the "Venue Transfer Motion”). Following arguments from the Debtor and the Committee, as well as brief witness testimony from the CRO, the Delaware Bankruptcy Court ruled in favor of the Committee and entered an order transferring venue [Docket No. 1].

B. The Settlement with the Committee and the Debtor’s Restructuring Efforts

9. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed a Motion for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the “Settlement Motion”). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the “Settlement Order”). The settlement (the “Settlement”) came after weeks of negotiations between the Debtor and the Committee. The Settlement (i) created a new independent board of directors (the “Independent Board”) at Strand Advisors, Inc., the Debtor’s general partner and ultimate party in control, and (ii) implemented certain protocols governing the operation of the Debtor’s business in the ordinary course.

10. Since its appointment, the Independent Board has focused on the following activities: (a) defending against the United States Trustee’s motion for appointment of a chapter 11 trustee; (b) familiarizing itself with the Debtor’s assets, liabilities, and operations; and (c) stabilizing the Debtor’s employee base. As explained further below, the Independent Board has also devoted substantial efforts toward analyzing the claims that have been filed in this case, many of which have arisen from exceedingly long, complex, and acrimonious prepetition litigation. Because the Debtor has only minimal funded debt, the resolution of these litigation claims is key to any restructuring.

11. Since the appointment of the Independent Board, the Debtor has worked with the Committee and its creditors to obtain their input on the best way to maximize the Debtor's value and to conclude this case in an efficient manner. As part of that process, the Independent Board has conducted multiple meetings with the full Committee and individual meetings with key creditors. As a result of these meetings, the Independent Board is hopeful that it will be able to formulate a consensual plan in short order.

III. PSZ&J'S APPLICATION FOR COMPENSATION AND FOR REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

A. Compensation Paid and Its Source

12. All services for which PSZ&J requests compensation were performed for or on behalf of the Debtor. PSZ&J has received no payment and no promises for payment from any source other than the Debtor for services rendered or to be rendered in any capacity whatsoever in connection with the matters covered by this Application. There is no agreement or understanding between PSZ&J and any other person other than the partners of PSZ&J for the sharing of compensation to be received for services rendered in this case.

13. PSZ&J has received payments from the Debtor during the year prior to the Petition Date in the amount of $500,000, including the Debtor's filing fee for this case, in connection with the preparation of initial documents and the prepetition representation of the Debtor. PSZ&J is current as of the Petition Date and has completed its final reconciliation of prepetition fees and expenses (subject to any prepetition expenses that have not been received to date). The retainer balance remaining from the prepetition payments to PSZ&J will be credited to the Debtor and utilized as PSZ&J's retainer to apply to postpetition fees and expenses pursuant to the compensation procedures approved by the Delaware Court.

B. Monthly Fee Statements

14. Pursuant to the Interim Compensation Procedures Order, PSZ&J has submitted the following Monthly Fee Applications (the "Monthly Fee Statements") comprising the six months within the Compensation Period, each of which is incorporated herein by reference in its entirety:

- a. For the period October 16, 2019 – October 31, 2019 - fees of $306,867.00 (80% of allowed fees $383,583.75) and reimbursement of expenses of $9,958.84 [Docket No. 235];
- b. For the period November 1, 2019 – November 30, 2019 - fees of $639,014.00 (80% of allowed fees $798,767.50) and reimbursement of expenses of $26,317.71 [Docket No. 286];
- c. For the period December 1, 2019 – December 31, 2019 – fees of $471,874.60 (80% of allowed fees $589,730.75) and reimbursement of expenses of $26,226.80 [Docket No. 392];
- d. For the period January 1, 2020 – January 31, 2020 – fees of $718,475.40 (80% of allowed fees $898,094.25) and reimbursement of expenses of $28,854.75 [Docket No. 464]; and
- e. For the period February 1, 2020 – February 29, 2020 – fees of $752,834.80 (80% of allowed fees of $941,043.50) and reimbursement of expenses of $8,092.94 [Docket No. 535]; and
- f. For the period March 1, 2020 – March 31, 2020 – fees of $978,241.00 (80% of allowed fees of $1,222,801.25) and reimbursement of expenses of $18,747.77 [Docket No. 586].

15. As of the date of this Application, no party has objected to any of PSZ&J's Monthly Fee Statements.

16. PSZ&J's itemized time records for attorneys and paraprofessionals performing services for the Debtor during the Compensation Period and PSZ&J's itemized records detailing expenses incurred on behalf of the Committee during the Compensation Period were attached as Exhibit A to each of the Monthly Fee Statements and are incorporated herein by reference. These statements contain daily time logs describing the time spent by each attorney and paraprofessional during the Compensation Period. To the best of PSZ&J's knowledge, this Application complies with sections 330 and 331 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules, and the Interim Compensation Procedures Order.

C. Actual and Necessary Expenses

17. PSZ&J seeks reimbursement for expenses incurred in rendering services to the Debtor during the Compensation Period in the amount of $118,198.81. Itemized records detailing such expenses were attached as Exhibit A to each of the Monthly Fee Statements and are incorporated herein by reference. A detailed listing of actual and necessary expenses incurred by PSZ&J during the Compensation Period is attached hereto as part of Exhibit B.

18. PSZ&J customarily charges $0.10 per page for photocopying expenses and $0.10 per page for scanning and printing charges. PSZ&J's photocopying machines automatically record the number of copies made when the person that is doing the copying enters the client's account number into a device attached to the photocopier. PSZ&J summarizes each client's photocopying charges on a daily basis.

19. PSZ&J charges $0.25 per page for out-going facsimile transmissions. There is no additional charge for long distance telephone calls on faxes. The charge for outgoing facsimile transmissions reflects PSZ&J's calculation of the actual costs incurred by PSZ&J for the machines, supplies and extra labor expenses associated with sending telecopies and is reasonable in relation to the amount charged by outside vendors who provide similar services. PSZ&J does not charge the Debtor for the receipt of faxes in this case.

20. With respect to providers of on-line legal research services (e.g., LEXIS and Westlaw), PSZ&J charges the standard usage rates these providers charge for computerized legal research. PSZ&J bills its clients the actual amounts charged by such services, with no premium. Any volume discount received by PSZ&J is passed on to the client.

21. PSZ&J believes the foregoing rates are the market rates that the majority of law firms charge clients for such services. In addition, PSZ&J believes that such charges are in accordance with the American Bar Association's ("ABA") guidelines, as set forth in the ABA's Statement of Principles, dated January 12, 1995, regarding billing for disbursements and other charges.

IV. SUMMARY OF SERVICES RENDERED

22. The names of the timekeepers of PSZ&J who have rendered professional services in this case during the Compensation Period are set forth above. These services performed, by categories, are generally described below, with a more detailed identification of the actual services provided set forth on the attached Exhibit B. Exhibit B identifies the attorneys and paraprofessionals who rendered services relating to each category, along with the number of hours for each individual and the total compensation sought for each category.

23. PSZ&J, by and through such persons, has prepared and assisted in the preparation of various motions and orders submitted to the Court for consideration, advised the Debtor on a regular basis with respect to various matters in connection with the Debtor's case, and performed all necessary professional services which are described and narrated in detail below. PSZ&J's efforts have been extensive due to the size and complexity of the Debtor's case.

Summary of Services by Project

24. The services rendered by PSZ&J during the Compensation Period can be grouped into the categories set forth below. PSZ&J attempted to place the services provided in the category that best relates to such services. However, because certain services may relate to one or more categories, services pertaining to one category may in fact be included in another category. These services performed, by categories, are generally described below, with a more detailed identification of the actual services provided set forth in Exhibit A to each of the Monthly Fee Statements. The summary charts above identify the attorneys and paraprofessionals who rendered services relating to each category, along with the number of hours for each individual and the total compensation sought for each category.

A. Asset Analysis/ Recovery

25. The Firm provided services on behalf of the Debtor relating to analysis of assets, including the winddown of certain funds managed by the Debtor. These services addressed a wide array of topics relating to the Debtor's assets, including intercompany transactions relating to funds administered by the Debtor, operating protocol and trading issues, and the potential sale of certain of the Debtor's assets. The Firm also addressed issues in connection with the Debtor's loan receivables analysis and the review and analysis of certain loan and participation agreements.

Fees: $526,305.00 Hours: 566.30

B. Appeals

26. The limited time in this category relates to services provided by the Firm provided with respect to issues concerning the venue transfer of the Debtor's chapter 11 case from the Delaware Court to this Court.

Fees: $10,118.00 Hours: 11.40

C. Bankruptcy Litigation

27. This category includes work related to various contested matters pending before the Court. At the beginning of this case, the Firm addressed numerous issues relating to the then-pending litigation with the Committee and United States Trustee. These issues largely concerned the transfer of venue from the Delaware Court to this Court, the United States Trustee's motion to convert the Debtor's case, the Debtor's request to make certain distributions of non-estate funds to related party affiliates in connection with funds managed by the Debtor, and the attendant discovery related to these matters. Eventually, these issues were ultimately settled and memorialized under the terms of the Settlement Order discussed above. The Settlement also resulted in the negotiation and implementation of the Debtor's operating protocols, the appointment of the Independent Board, and the appointment of the CRO, among other transactions. In addition to these issues, the Firm addressed other litigation issues affecting the Debtor, potential avoidance actions, and the analysis of litigation claims asserted by and against the Debtor with respect to multiple third parties. Services related to the preparation for and pleadings relating to the Debtor's regular omnibus hearings were also billed to this category.

Fees: $1,228,954.50 Hours: 1361.00

D. Case Administration

28. Given the breadth and complexity of the issues confronting the Debtor during this chapter 11 case, time allocated to this category is primarily attributable to the regular status calls conducted by and among Firm professionals, as well as discussion by the Firm and Debtor and with DSI regarding the issues and tasks addressed in order to advance the administration of the chapter 11 case.

Fees: $188,621.00 Hours: 265.70

E. Cayman Bermuda Matters

29. Time billed to this category relates to the related proceedings in Bermuda and the Cayman Islands and the preparation and approval of a motion to appoint the CRO as the Debtor's foreign representative.

Fees: $13,483.50 Hours: 14.80

F. Claims Administration/ Objection

30. This category includes work related to various contested matters pending before the Court. A significant amount of work PSZ&J performed during the Compensation Period involved the Independent Board's request that the Firm conduct an extensive review and analysis of the largest claims asserted against the Debtor's estate by UBS, Acis, and the Redeemer

Committee, which in the aggregate exceed $1 billion. The analysis of these claims involved the review of years of litigation between the Debtor and the claimants to understand the complex factual and legal issues arising in connection therewith. Separately, the Firm also addressed other issues relating to claims analysis and administration, including the preparation of a claims bar date motion.

Fees: $1,182,888.50 Hours: 1263.90

G. Compensation of Professionals

31. During the Compensation Period, the Firm addressed issues relating to the payment and compensation of the Firm, including the preparation of monthly fee statements and related pleadings.

Fees: $27,383.50 Hours: 46.70

H. Compensation of Professionals/ Others

32. The Firm assisted other estate professionals, several of whom who may not be familiar with the applicable rules governing compensation and reimbursement of expenses, with the preparation of their respective monthly and interim fee applications. The Firm also prepared and obtained approval by the Delaware Court of the Interim Compensation Procedures Order for estate professionals.

Fees: $24,720.00 Hours: 31.10

I. Corporate Governance

33. Time billed to this category relates to analyzing and performing research with respect to issues concerning various corporate governance issues.

Fees: $5,602.50 Hours: 8.30

J. Employee Benefits/ Pension

34. The Firm performed services in this category relating to wage, benefit, and compensation issues, severance issues, and the payment of non-insider employee bonuses. The Firm also worked with the Debtor's compensation expert on multiple issues concerning employee compensation.

Fees: $210,393.00 Hours: 218.60

K. Executory Contracts

35. During the Compensation Period, the Firm performed research regarding the purported termination of certain contracts, contract enforcement issues, and prepared a motion to extend time to assume or reject leases.

Fees: $15,047.00 Hours: 17.90

L. First Day

36. This category relates to the various "first day" pleadings filed in the case and the first day hearing conducted by the Delaware Court. During the Compensation Period, the Firm prepared for and addressed numerous issues concerning the first day hearing conducted on October 18, 2019 in the Delaware Court and attendant issues relating to that hearing.

Fees: $58,538.00 Hours: 65.60

M. Financial Filings

37. Time attributable to this category includes preparation for and attendance of the Debtor's initial debtor interview as well as work related to the meeting of creditors pursuant to section 341(a) of the Bankruptcy Code. The Firm also assisted the Debtor with the preparation of its initial operating report and subsequent monthly reports filed with the Court as well as with the Debtor's Schedules and SOFAs filed on December 13, 2019.

Fees: $66,376.00 Hours: 76.80

N. Financing

38. Time billed to this category relates to the Debtor's proposed use of cash collateral and the ultimate withdrawal of the cash collateral motion early in the case. The Firm also addressed issues in connection with the Debtor's cash management system and funding and liquidity issues with respect to certain brokerage accounts following the commencement of the chapter 11 case.

Fees: $12,608.50 Hours: 14.30

O. General Business Advice

39. The Firm prepared for and participated in numerous meetings with the Independent Board to address case issues and receive appropriate direction from the Independent Board. As explained above in connection with the Settlement Motion, the Firm assisted in the negotiation and implementation of the transactions addressed under the Settlement Order, including detailed operating protocols, document preservation, and related matters, and prepared documents memorializing the same. The Firm also addressed insurance coverage issues for the Independent Board.

Fees: $537,175.00 Hours: 550.40

P. General Creditors' Committee

40. During the Compensation Period, the Firm addressed several issues concerning the formation of the Committee, including the negotiation of an acceptable confidentiality agreement with the Committee. The Firm also participated in numerous calls and meetings with the Committee on case issues. The Firm also reviewed, analyzed, and prepared responses to the Committee's initial informal discovery requests and worked with the Committee to address these discovery requests informally.

Fees: $79,092.50 Hours: 80.70

Q. Insurance Coverage

41. During the pendency of this case, the Firm, among other things, reviewed and analyzed the Debtor's insurance policies, including side endorsements from brokers and negotiated revisions thereto and reviewed, analyzed, and addressed insurance coverage issues.

Fees: $40,774.50 Hours: 39.50

R. Litigation (Non-Bankruptcy)

42. During the Compensation Period, the Firm, among other things, reviewed and analyzed litigation issues pending before the Delaware Chancery Court, and conferred with estate professionals regarding ACIS litigation issues.

Fees: $10,787.00 Hours: 14.40

S. Meeting of Creditors

43. Time billed to this category relates to the section 341(a) meeting of creditors, including the preparation of the case commencement and section 341(a) notices, and preparation and attendance at the meeting of creditors.

Fees: $15,801.50 Hours: 17.70

T. Non-Working Travel/ Travel

44. These categories include non-working travel time, which is billed at 50% of the normal rate for the applicable professional.

U. Operations

45. Time billed to this category relates to the daily business operations of the Debtor. During the Compensation Period, the Firm, among other things researched and prepared a motion to approve the operating protocols that were authorized under the Settlement Order. After the approval of the Settlement Order, the Firm continued to assist the Debtor in the review and implementation of the operating protocols and regularly conferred with the Committee with respect to transactions covered by the protocols. The Firm also assisted the Debtor with other operational matters, including issues relating to margin calls and bonding.

Fees: $83,703.00 Hours: 101.20

V. Plan and Disclosure Statement

46. Time billed to this category relates to the formulation of a potential plan and supporting disclosure statement. During the Compensation Period, the Firm prepared a motion to extend the Debtor's plan filing and solicitation exclusivity periods and performed research regarding plan confirmation issues. The Firm also prepared a summary of significant background formation and prior motions and orders for inclusion in a disclosure statement in order to advance the plan process.

Fees: $26,387.50 Hours: 33.30

W. Retention of Professionals

47. Time billed to this category relates to the retention of the Firm. During the Compensation Period, the Firm prepared the Firm's retention application and addressed issues by the U.S. Trustee in connection with the Firm's retention. The Firm also addressed retention issues of estate professionals, including ordinary course professionals and the preparation and filing of their respective disclosure declarations.

Fees: $8,057.50 Hours: 9.30

X. Retention of Professionals/ Other

48. Time billed to this category relates to the retention of estate professionals other than the Firm. During the Compensation Period, the Firm prepared applications to employ ordinary course professionals and assisted multiple firms with their employment applications under section 327 of the Bankruptcy Code. The Firm litigated issues surrounding the Debtor's request to retain special litigation counsel. The Firm also assisted the Debtor in its efforts to retain numerous professionals in the ordinary course pursuant to the Court ordered procedures.

Fees: $261,684.00 Hours: 307.00

Y. Stay Litigation

49. During the Compensation Period, the Firm, among other things, reviewed and analyzed PensionDanmark's stay relief motion and addressed issues in connection therewith that ultimately resulted in a negotiated settlement of the issues raised by that motion. The Firm also reviewed and analyzed Joshua & Jennifer Terry's relief from stay motion, the stay/contempt motion filed by ACIS, and the ACIS plan and disclosure statement.

Fees: $51,250.50 Hours: 50.90

V. STATEMENT OF THE APPLICANT

50. PSZ&J makes the following statements:

- (a) PSZ&J did not agree to any variations from, or alternatives to, its standard or customary billing rates, fees or terms for services that were provided during the Compensation Period.
- (b) None of the hourly rates of PSZ&J's professionals and paraprofessionals included in this Application has been varied based on the geographic location of this case.
- (c) This Application does not include any rate increases since PSZ&J's retention, other than as allowed for pursuant to the Retention Order.

VI. BUDGET

51. The Debtor and the Firm projected that the Firm's fees and expenses during the Compensation Period would be $5,266,000. The Firm is under budget at $4,834,021.00. The budget and staffing plan for the Compensation Period is attached hereto as Exhibit D, and PSZ&J's disclosures of customary and comparable compensation, including blended hourly rates, for the Compensation Period is attached hereto as Exhibit E.

VII. STANDARD FOR ALLOWANCE OF FEES AND EXPENSES

52. Bankruptcy Code § 330 authorizes the Court to award to professional persons who have been employed by the estate pursuant to Bankruptcy Code §§ 1103 or 327 reasonable compensation for actual and necessary services rendered, including reimbursement of actual and necessary expenses incurred by such professional persons.

53. As more fully described below, PSZ&J submits that the elements governing awards of compensation pursuant to Bankruptcy Code § 330 justify the allowance, on an interim basis, of the fees and expenses incurred in its representation of the Debtor during the Compensation Period.

54. The Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit established a set of guidelines for use by lower federal courts when ruling on attorneys' fee requests in Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717-19 (5th Cir. 1974). Under Johnson, courts should consider the following factors: (a) the time and labor required; (b) the novelty and difficulty of the questions presented; (c) the skill requisite to perform the legal services properly; (d) the preclusion of other employment due to the acceptance of the case; (e) the customary fee; (f) whether the fee is fixed or contingent; (g) time limitations imposed by the client with the circumstances of the case; (h) the amount involved and the results obtained; (i) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorney; (j) the undesirability of the case; (k) the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client; and (l) awards in similar cases. Id. at 717-19. In In re First Colonial Corp. of America, 544 F.2d 1291, 1298-99 (5th Cir. 1977), the Fifth Circuit applied the Johnson factors to the analysis of fee awards in bankruptcy cases. In 2005, the Fifth Circuit harmonized the provisions of section 330 and the traditional Johnson factors, explaining:

The Fifth Circuit has traditionally used the lodestar method to calculate "reasonable" attorneys' fees under § 330. In re Fender, 12 F.3d 480, 487 (5th Cir. 1994). A court computes the lodestar by multiplying the number of hours an attorney would reasonably spend for the same type of work by the prevailing hourly rate in the community. Shipes v. Trinity Indus., 987 F.2d 311, 319 (5th Cir. 1993). A court then may adjust the lodestar up or down based on the factors contained in § 330 and its consideration of the twelve factors listed in Johnson, 488 F.2d at 717-19. See Fender, 12 F.3d at 487. While the bankruptcy court has considerable discretion in applying these factors, In re First Colonial Corp. of America, 544 F.2d 1291, 1298 (5th Cir. 1977), it must explain the weight given to each factor that it considers and how each factor affects its award. Fender, 12 F.3d at 487; Evangeline Refining Co., 890 F.2d at 1327-28.

VIII. APPLICATION OF THE JOHNSON FACTORS

55. As set forth in greater detail below, PSZ&J's request for allowance of fees and reimbursement of expenses is reasonable and proper pursuant to section 330, the lodestar, and the relevant Johnson factors. Accordingly, the Court should approve this Application and allow the amounts requested herein.

- (a) Time and Labor Required. PSZ&J has expended over 5,460 hours representing the Debtor during the Compensation Period. All of the time spent was necessary and appropriate for the representation of the Debtor in this case.
- (b) Novelty and Difficulty of Questions Presented. This case has presented several novel and difficult restructuring issues, including, among others, (i) venue issues, (ii) specialized matters relating to the alternative investment sector, (iii) issues with respect to the Debtor's management of funds, and (iv) development and use of various negotiated protocols necessary for the Debtor to continue to operate its business. PSZ&J's efforts were critical with respect to handling these complex and issues.
- (c) Skill Requisite to Perform Services Properly. Each of the PSZ&J attorneys providing services to the Debtor possesses the skills expected of a national and highly ranked restructuring practice.
- (d) Customary Fees. The hourly rates charged by each PSZ&J professional who performed services for the Debtor are PSZ&J's normal rates for services of this kind and are comparable to those being charged by other professionals with similar qualifications and experience.
- (e) Whether the Fee is Fixed or Contingent. The fees requested in this Application represent fixed hourly rates.
- (f) Amounts Involved and Results Obtained. PSZ&J's representation of the Debtor in this case involves restructuring efforts encompassing (a) assets and liabilities of over one billion dollars and (b) the operations of an alternative investment manager. This case also involves complex issues regarding (i) the more than one billion dollars in claims collectively asserted by UBI, Acis, and the Redeemer Committee, and (ii) the Debtor's transition and ability to operate its business within the constraints of chapter 11 and to constructively engage with the Committee and other economic parties to attempt to develop a consensual path to emerge from chapter 11 as expeditiously as possible under the circumstances.

- (g) Experience, Reputation, and Ability of Counsel. PSZ&J attorneys have represented, and are sought after to represent, numerous debtors and official committees in some of the largest and most sophisticated bankruptcy cases in the country.
- (i) Awards in Similar Cases. The fees and expenses for which PSZ&J seeks compensation and reimbursement are not excessive and are substantially similar to those awarded in similar cases in this district for similar services rendered and results obtained.

56. PSZ&J respectfully submits that it has satisfied the requirements for the allowance of the compensation and reimbursement of expenses sought herein. The services described above, at the time they were provided, were necessary and beneficial to the Debtor and its estate. PSZ&J's services were consistently performed in a timely manner commensurate with the complexity of the issues facing the Debtor and the nature and importance of the problems, issues, and tasks. Furthermore, all of the services for which compensation is requested hereunder were rendered at the request of and solely on behalf of the Debtor and not on behalf of any other entity. In accordance with the Guidelines, the Certification of Jeffrey N. Pomerantz is attached hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated herein by reference.

IX. NOTICE

57. PSZ&J will serve this Application in accordance with the Interim Compensation Procedures Order. Any objections to this Application must be in writing and filed with the Court and served upon PSZ&J so as to be received no later than May 19, 2020. PSZ&J respectfully submits that no other or further notice need be provided.

X. NO PRIOR REQUEST

58. No prior request for the relief sought in this Application has been made to this or any other court.

XI. CONCLUSION

WHEREFORE, PSZ&J respectfully requests that, pursuant to the Interim Compensation Procedures Order, the Court (i) allow on an interim basis compensation in the amount of $4,834,021.00 for services rendered by PSZ&J during the Compensation Period; (ii) allow on an interim basis reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $118,198.81 for expenses incurred during the Compensation Period; (iii) authorize payment of these allowed fees and expenses to PSZ&J; and (iv) grant such other and further relief as the Court may deem proper.

BUDGET AND STAFFING PLAN

If the parties consent or the court so directs, a staffing plan approved by the client in advance should generally be attached to each interim and final fee application filed by the applicant. If the fees are sought in the fee application for a greater number of professionals than identified in the staffing plan, the fee application should explain the variance.

	CATEGORY OF TIMEKEEPER 1 (using categories maintained by the firm)	NUMBER OF TIMEKEEPERS EXPECTED TO WORK ON THE MATTER DURING THE BUDGET PERIOD	AVERAGE HOURLY RATE
	Sr./Equity Partner/Shareholder	15	$992.40
	Of Counsel	11	$820.75
	Associate (4-6 years since first admission)	1	$592.93
	Law Library Director	1	$436.57
	Paralegal	3	$406.31
	Case Management Assistants	4	$334.43
1 As an alternative, firms can identify attorney timekeepers by years of experience rather than category of attorney timekeeper: 0-3, 4-7, 8-14, and 15+. Non-attorney timekeepers, such as paralegals, should be identified by category.

EXHIBIT E
CUSTOMARY AND COMPARABLE COMPENSATION DISCLOSURES WITH FEE APPLICATIONS

(See Guidelines C.3. for definitions of terms used in this Exhibit.)

	CATEGORY OF TIMEKEEPER (using categories already maintained by the firm)	BLENDED HOURLY RATE
		BILLED OR COLLECTED Firm or offices for preceding year, excluding bankruptcy*	BILLED In this fee application
	Sr./Equity Partner/Shareholder	$1,012.18	$992.40

	All timekeepers aggregated	$604.22	$885.35

* Represents approximate blended hourly rate. Non-estate work for PSZ&J represents a de minimis amount of the Firm's revenues as the Firm's engagements are primarily on behalf of debtors, official committees, and other estate-billed constituencies. For the fiscal year ending 2018, non-estate work represented approximately 2-3% of the Firm's revenues. In 2019, non-estate work represented approximately 4-5% of the Firm's revenues, and in 2020, it is expected that non-estate work will represent approximately 4-5% of the Firm's revenues.

Represents an estimate for the aggregate blended hourly rate for all timekeepers on non-estate work.

JAMES DONDERO'S LIMITED RESPONSE TO ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC'S MOTION FOR RELIEF FROM THE AUTOMATIC STAY TO ALLOW PURSUIT OF MOTION FOR ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE FOR VIOLATIONS OF THE ACIS PLAN INJUNCTION

COMES NOW, James Dondero ("Dondero") and files this, his Limited Response to Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC's (collectively, the "Movants") Motion for Relief from the Automatic Stay to Allow Pursuit of Motion for Order to Show Cause for [claimed] Violations of the Acis Plan Injunction [Docket No. 593] ("Motion"), and Dondero would respectfully show as follows:

1. Dondero denies each and every allegation or insinuation in paragraphs 1 through 21 of the Motion that he has engaged in or committed any wrongdoing, bad act, or improper act. Dondero also denies each and every allegation or insinuation in paragraphs 1 through 21 of the Motion that he has acted, or caused actions or conduct in violation of the Court's orders in the Acis Capital Management, L.P. et al bankruptcy cases.

2. Attached as Exhibit 1 to the Motion is an alleged draft Show Cause Motion, which the Movants incorporate in to the Motion. Dondero denies each and every allegation or insinuation in the draft Show Cause Motion that he has engaged in or committed any wrongdoing, bad act, or improper action or conduct. Dondero also denies each and every allegation or insinuation in the draft Show Cause Motion that he has acted, or caused, actions or conduct in violation of the Court's orders in the Acis Capital Management, L.P. et al bankruptcy cases.

3. Dondero states that the automatic stay in the above captioned chapter 11 case is not applicable to Dondero in his individual capacity, but to the extent the automatic stay is applicable, Dondero does not oppose relief from stay being granted.

4. Movants' claims and allegations in the Show Cause Motion are without merit. However, the merits of those claims and allegations, including any and all preliminary findings necessary to reach the merits of a show cause or contempt claim, should not be discussed, litigated, debated, ruled upon, or determined by this Court during or through a lift stay proceeding. Such matters should be heard, if at all, via a separate proceeding after all targeted parties are afforded sufficient due process.

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED James Dondero respectfully prays that the merits of any claims or allegations asserted in the Motion or Show Cause Motion regarding any alleged wrongdoing, bad act, or improper action or conduct of Dondero not be discussed, litigated, debated, ruled upon, or determined by this Court during or through a lift stay proceeding, including any and all preliminary findings necessary to reach the merits of a show cause or contempt claim; and for any further relief that James Dondero is entitled.

OBJECTION TO PROOF OF CLAIM OF ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC

Pursuant to sections 502(b)-(d) and 558 of Title 11 of the United States Code (the

“Bankruptcy Code”) and Rule 3007 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the “Bankruptcy Rules”), debtor and debtor in possession Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”) hereby objects to Proof of Claim No. 3 (the “Acis Claim”) filed by claimants Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (together, “Acis”).

The Debtor respectfully submits that there are numerous bases for the summary disposition of all claims for relief asserted in the Acis Claim, and represents as follows:

Preliminary Statement

1. The Acis Claim incorporates the complaint from litigation commenced by the trustee of the former estate in the Acis bankruptcy case (the “Acis Case”) at a time when Acis had unpaid creditors (the “Acis Complaint”).² The trustee sought to avoid and recover certain transfers by Acis that were allegedly intended to prevent its largest creditor, Josh Terry, from collecting his $8.168 million arbitration award (the “Arbitration Award”). The transfers, allegedly orchestrated by James Dondero using his common control and ownership interests in Acis, the Debtor and the other Highland entities, were purportedly intended to “denude” Acis by transferring certain of its management contracts and interests in the managed assets to its affiliates, including the Debtor. Finding a likelihood of success that certain transfers were avoidable, the Court issued a preliminary injunction, which was carried over into a “Temporary Plan Injunction” that allowed Acis to manage those assets to pay creditors. Consistent with that substantive basis, the injunction expires once those creditors are paid in full. That is the operating principle of the Acis Plan: creditors are paid using assets temporarily diverted from the putative transferees that are named as defendants in the Acis Complaint.

² Specifically, the Acis Claim incorporates the Second Amended Complaint (Including Claim Objections and Objections to Administrative Expense Claims) filed in Adversary No. 18-03078 in the Acis Case.

2. The Acis Plan has worked as intended. The income diverted by the temporary injunction will soon have paid Mr. Terry and Acis's other creditors 102% of their claims, plus all of the administrative expenses incurred to achieve that result. There will no longer be an estate or estate claims to administer. Having served its purpose, the injunction dissolves and the creditor remedies asserted in the Acis Complaint become moot. But Acis is doing the opposite. It filed the Acis Claim in the amount of "at least $75 million" and has initiated new lawsuits in federal and state court against employees, advisors and professionals for allegedly breaching duties owed not to creditors but purportedly owed to Acis. The sole beneficiary of these far-flung litigations would be Mr. Terry, whose claim is paid in full under the Acis Plan, except for $1 million with which he chose to purchase Acis's equity.³ Now Mr. Terry seeks a $75 million windfall, which would come not at Dondero's expense but from the pockets of the Debtor's innocent creditors (including unsecured trade creditors, the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund ("Redeemer"), with an arbitration award of $190,824,557, and UBS Securities LLC ("UBS").

3. Attempted windfalls usually have a fallacious premise, and this one is a $75 million whopper. The fallacy is that Reorganized Acis has greater rights than "old Acis," which at the time of the transfers was a member of the Highland related entities that Acis itself alleges were controlled and primarily owned by Dondero. Acis alleges that each was an alter ego of the others, which means that Acis is just as culpable, and just as much an alter ego, as any of the others. Coupled with the fact that Acis's creditors are being paid in full, several things follow that are instantly fatal to the Acis Claim. None are subject to any factual dispute.

a. First, it is undisputed that at the time of the transfers, James Dondero and Mark Okada were Acis's sole owners, and it is hornbook law that sole owners do not owe fiduciary duties to their company. Subject of course to the rights of creditors to claw back transfers that leave a company unable to pay its debts, Dondero and Okada as Acis's sole owners were free to transfer its assets to other entities, and third parties had no duty or right to stop them. "Delaware law is clear that a company's sole owner cannot breach fiduciary duties 'owed to the companies he wholly owned.' ... [Plaintiff] has not cited legal support for the proposition that a nonowner can be liable for conspiring with the sole owner of a partnership for breaching duties that the owner owes himself." Tow v. Amegy Bank N.A., 976 F. Supp. 2d 889, 906-07 (S.D. Tex. 2013) (internal citation omitted). Whatever their motive, if Acis's owners wanted to shut it down, they were free to do so, subject to the rights of creditors, who are being paid in full without any further recovery.⁴ Nor can Acis base its claims on the rights of Acis's former creditors. For one thing, they've been paid, and for another, Delaware law does not permit creditors of a limited partnership to sue third parties for breach of fiduciary duty, nor does *it permit a trustee to sue on their behalf.*⁵ These claims are not and cannot as a matter of law be brought for the benefit of Acis's former creditors.

⁴ Acis relies heavily on the Arbitration Award, but the panel found no violation of any duty to the partnership. The only duty that the panel found was breached was between partners: it was the duty of the majority partners not to exceed the ratio of expenses to revenue while Terry was a 25% limited partner. Even that duty expired with Terry's partnership interest when his employment was terminated. About that there is no dispute: the cash-out of his partnership interest was the primary component of the Arbitration Award. The panel found that Terry was not wrongfully terminated because his employment was "at-will," but that he was entitled to payment for his partnership interest because the termination was not for cause. Most of the rest of his award was his pro rata partnership share of the alleged Overpayments (which he now seeks to recover twice by claiming them through Acis).

b. Second, even if fiduciary duties had been owed, Acis's duty-based claims against the Debtor and other third parties are barred by the in pari delicto defense. It is a paradigmatic application of the doctrine: Acis cannot sue others for participating in a scheme in which it, as one of the entities it alleges was commonly owned and controlled, was equally culpable. This fundamental defect is obscured by the subsequent appointment of a trustee and change of ownership. But while the Fifth Circuit has not decided the issue, it has affirmed that Bankruptcy Code § 541 subjects trustees and successors to whatever defenses existed against the debtor, and most courts of appeal hold that, as a result, the appointment of a trustee does not "cleanse" the in pari delicto defense (much less, as here, where the claims purportedly revested in the reorganized debtor). Even if the equities are applied, as this Court once held they may, there is no equity in permitting a new owner to sue persons for conspiring with the old owner, in order to parlay a $1 million investment into $75 million, at the expense of this Debtor's creditors. These facts are not in dispute, and the issue can and should be decided on the record before the Court.

c. Third, the fraudulent transfer claims fail, and may be summarily resolved, because the Debtor did not receive the benefit of the alleged fraudulent transfers since (with one exception) it was not the transferee of the transferred rights. Bankruptcy Code §

550(a) is not satisfied as to those transfers for which the Debtor was not the initial transferee: it is insufficient as a matter of law simply to allege an amorphous benefit from being part of the same corporate group. This is all that the Acis Claim alleges – the Debtor benefited solely because it was a Highland related entity. Furthermore, if the Debtor did not receive the benefit from a transfer, there are no damages in the first place. That is shown conclusively by the fact that the earnings derived by Acis from the enjoined transfer of the ALF PMA have already paid Acis’s creditors and administrative expenses. That is presumably why the Acis Claim lacks any damage allegations – there are none.

d. Fourth, the fraudulent transfer claims also fail, along with preference claims as well, for another reason that may also be summarily resolved: a debtor cannot recover avoidance claims for its own benefit under section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code. There must be a benefit to the debtor’s estate. Here, there is nothing left of the former Acis estate: creditors were paid, old equity was canceled, and the new equity is held by a purchaser who paid $1 million, no different than if he had done so in an auction. There is no estate to benefit. Authority before and after Mirant holds that avoidance recoveries should be limited based on equitable considerations, which in this case are conclusively in favor of limiting any recovery to the amount required to satisfy creditors’ claims. Unlike Mirant and this Court’s Texas Rangers decision, this is not a case in which a recovery will enable a debtor to satisfy outstanding plan obligations, or one in which creditors were forced to take equity instead of cash and are depending on its value for a recovery on their claims.⁶ There is no estate and no equities to support Mr. Terry's windfall.

e. Fifth, Acis may not assert for its own benefit any claims against prior equity holders or third parties that were not pending when Mr. Terry purchased the company. The Bangor Punta doctrine holds that a purchaser of controlling equity in a company may not then use the control over the corporate machinery to turn around and assert claims against the prior owners if the claims arose prior to the date when the purchaser took control.⁷ The reasons are self-evident and squarely applicable here: the purchaser paid what it considered fair value and has suffered no damage, and to permit such claims would promote the kind of litigation free-for-all in which Mr. Terry is presently engaged. This bars standing as to all claims except those the trustee had already asserted prior to Mr. Terry's purchase (relating to the ALF share transfer, ALF PMA transfer and the note transfer described herein), all of which claims fail for multiple other independent reasons.

f. Sixth, Acis's four claims seeking $7 million in so-called "Overpayments" have no legal basis and should be summarily disallowed. These are payments for services that exceeded, in gross, the expense ratio that was permitted under Acis's limited partnership agreement (the "Acis LPA") without partner consent. The only alleged substantive basis for recovery is the claim that the Overpayments were ultra vires acts, which would be flatly wrong even if it applied in concept (which it does not): (i) Acis was indisputably authorized to pay for services, which is all that matters legally; any excess was not ultra vires but an inter-partner issue already addressed by the Arbitration Award (through which Mr. Terry already recovered his share); (ii) turnover under Bankruptcy Code § 542(a) does not apply to disputed debts as a matter of law; and (iii) and the “money had and received” and conversion claims are equally inapplicable as a matter of law. In any event, most of the time period during which the alleged Overpayments were made is beyond the two year statute of limitations under Texas law.

g. Seventh, Acis’s civil conspiracy claim also fails as a matter of law because the claim is not recognized: section 550 provides the statutory remedies for any fraudulent transfer liabilities, and it may not be circumvented by a conspiracy claim.

h. Eighth, Acis’s tortious interference claim fails as a matter of law because it does not apply to at-will contracts, and the Debtor had the right to compete for the business.

i. Ninth, Acis’s breach of contract claim, like its claim for breach of fiduciary duty, rests on the fallacy that Acis had legal interests that were distinct from those of its sole owners, duties that parties contracting with Acis had a duty to identify and protect even though Acis’s sole owners instructed otherwise. That is not the law.

j. Tenth, alter ego liability is inadequately pled; it is a remedy and not a claim and, moreover, is unavailable on the alleged grounds. What Acis alleges is “single enterprise” liability based on common control by Mr. Dondero, a theory never adopted under Delaware law (which controls) and also rejected by the Texas Supreme Court.

k. Numerous other of the Debtor's defenses are meritorious but cannot be decided summarily, including defenses such as solvency (Acis was manifestly solvent without recovering all of the alleged fraudulent or preferential transfers), preference defenses and punitive damages (to the extent any tort claim is not dismissed; notably, such damages would be subordinated at best).

4. The rights of creditors to be paid were the legal basis of the Acis Plan injunction, which is why the injunction terminates once those creditors are paid in full. Mr. Terry elected to acquire new equity for $1 million; he is not entitled to receive another $75 million by claiming that Acis was damaged by those transfers, much less from the pockets of the Debtor's unpaid creditors. To impose on the former partners and third parties such as the Debtor a duty to "restore" $75 million to the former business, not to pay its creditors but for the sole benefit of a successor owner who bought the diminished entity for $1 million, would be a legally groundbreaking windfall, to say the least. The Acis Claim can and should summarily be disallowed in its entirety on the record before the Court.

Jurisdiction

5. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter under the Bankruptcy Code and pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This matter is a core proceeding within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. §§ 157(b)(2)(A), (B) and (L). Venue is proper in this District under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

6. The statutory predicates for the relief requested herein are 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)-(d), 11 U.S.C. § 558 and Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3007.

Factual Background

7. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the “Delaware Court”).

8. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court.

9. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor’s Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].⁸

10. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the “Settlement Motion”). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the “Settlement Order”).

11. The Settlement Order approved, among other things, certain operating and reporting protocols [Docket Nos. 354, 466].

12. In connection with the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors was appointed on January 9, 2020, at the Debtor’s general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. (the “Independent Board”)

13. The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor-in-possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

Objection

A. Legal Standard

14. The Bankruptcy Code establishes a burden-shifting framework for proving the amount and validity of a claim. “A claim . . . , proof of which is filed under section 501 [of the Bankruptcy Code], is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest . . . objects.” 11 U.S.C. § 502(a). “A proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the [Bankruptcy Rules] shall constitute prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim.” Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f); see also In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). However, the ultimate burden of proof for a claim always lies with the claimant. Armstrong, 347 B.R. at 583 (citing Raleigh v. Ill. Dep’t of Rev., 530 U.S. 15 (2000)).

15. The Acis Claim incorporates and is expressly based upon the claims and causes of action asserted in the Acis Complaint filed in the Acis Case. It purports to assert thirty-four claims for relief, which are described and addressed seriatim below.

B. Claims 1-4 to Recover the Alleged Overpayments Must be Disallowed

16. The first four claims are based on service and expense payments by Acis to the Debtor that allegedly exceeded 20% of revenues, without Mr. Terry’s consent, in violation of section 3.10(a) of the Acis LPA, which provides that “the aggregate annual expenses of the Partnership . . . may not exceed 20% of Revenues without the consent of all of the members of the Founding Partner Group.” The arbitration panel found that Mr. Terry (still a partner at that time) had not consented to these so-called “Overpayments,” which totaled $7,021,924.

17. Acis asserts four claims: (1) the alleged Overpayments were void or voidable ultra vires acts because all of the partners had not consented; (2) the Overpayments are Acis’s estate property subject to turnover under Bankruptcy Code § 542(a); (3) the Debtor is liable to return the Overpayments as “money had and received”; and (4) the Debtor is liable for conversion of the alleged Overpayments.⁹

18. Each of the four claims is frivolous, and all should be summarily disallowed: (1) the Alleged Overpayments were not ultra vires; (2) the turnover statute does not apply when the right to the property is disputed; (3) “money had and received” does not apply as a matter of law; and (4) neither does conversion. (As discussed below, even if these claims were not frivolous, because they are brought for the benefit of Acis’s equity acquirer and not for the benefit of creditors, they are also barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine.)

1. The Alleged Overpayments Were Not Void or Voidable as Ultra Vires

19. Acis obviously had the power to make payments for services. That is all that would matter even if Delaware had not essentially abolished the ultra vires doctrine.¹⁰ If Acis paid more for services than the Acis LPA permitted without the partners’ consent, that is a matter between partners, not an ultra vires act. That is how the arbitration panel treated it for purposes of valuing Mr. Terry's partnership interest: it calculated how much Mr. Terry would have received as a 25% partner had expenses not exceeded the limit, and included it in the Arbitration Award. By necessary extension, the rest of any recovered money should be distributed to the other partners; instead, Mr. Terry seeks to recover it a second time.

20. Regardless, ultra vires is inapplicable. It formerly applied under Delaware law only when "the corporation acted outside the scope of ... its authorized powers" (which was not the case here) but the superseding statute essentially eliminated any utility the ultra vires doctrine had. See Delaware General Corporation Law, § 124 ("No act of a corporation and no conveyance of real or personal property to or by a corporation shall be invalid by reason of the fact that the corporation was without capacity or power to do such act or to make or receive such conveyance or transfer. . . ."); see also Carsanaro v. Bloodhound Techs., Inc., 65 A.3d 618, 648 (Del. Ch. 2013).

21. Furthermore, contrary to Acis's suggestion, even if Delaware had not statutorily eliminated ultra vires as a valid concept in corporate law, the concept of ultra vires acts never applied to partnerships. The Acis Claim blatantly misstates the law and the cited decision in stating that corporate law on ultra vires applies by analogy. In re Mesa Ltd. P'ship Preferred Unitholders Litig., Civil Action No. 12,243, 1991 Del. Ch. LEXIS 214, at *20 (Dec. 10, 1991) did not apply ultra vires to a partnership, by analogy or otherwise. In fact, it had nothing whatsoever to do with ultra vires. It was an unpublished decision involving a ratification issue in a breach of fiduciary duty case. Ultra vires was mentioned as one of several things that can be cured by ratification, after which the court began the next paragraph with:

“Case rulings construing statutory corporation law are not necessarily binding precedents as to issues arising under contractual partnership agreements but they may often be helpful by analogy.” The Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeal has suggested that ultra vires does not apply to partnerships even in concept.¹¹

22. Acis does not claim that the alleged Overpayments are void or voidable on any substantive basis other than ultra vires, and thus has no colorable claim under state law to recover its own payments. Accordingly, claims 1-4 must be disallowed under Bankruptcy Code § 502(b)(1). A claimant may not simply venture forth recovering payments a debtor has made without some substantive basis; whether Mr. Terry was deemed to consent to them under the Acis LPA is completely irrelevant.

2. Turnover Under Bankruptcy Code § 542(a) is Inapplicable

23. It is axiomatic that turnover under Bankruptcy Code § 542(a) applies only to obtain possession of property that is indisputably property of the estate. See, e.g., United States v. Inslaw, Inc., 932 F.2d 1467, 1472 (D.C. Cir. 1991) (“It is settled law that the debtor cannot use the turnover provisions to liquidate contract disputes or otherwise demand assets whose title is in dispute.”); In re Amcast Indus. Corp., 365 B.R. 91, 122 (Bankr. S.D. Ohio 2007) (“Recovery under 11 U.S.C. § 542 is limited to assets that are undisputedly property of the estate.”) (citation omitted). Here, Acis’s purported right to the property at issue is clearly in dispute, and section 542(a) is therefore inapplicable.

3. “Money Had and Received” is Also Inapplicable

24. “The quasi-contractual action for money had and received is a cause of action for a debt not evidenced by a written contract between the parties” (MGA Ins. Co. v. Chesnutt, 358 S.W.3d 808, 815 (Tex. App. 2012)). Here, the alleged Overpayments were made pursuant to valid contracts. Once again, therefore, Acis’s theory of relief is conceptually inapplicable.

25. Even if there were a claim for “money had and received,” a substantial portion of such a claim would be time-barred. The Arbitration Award found that the alleged Overpayments were made from 2014 to May 2016. Texas applies a two-year statute of limitations to claims for money had and received. Merry Homes, Inc. v. Luc Dao, 359 S.W.3d 881, 884 (Tex. App. 2012) (citing “clear precedent”). Accordingly, Acis cannot recover any alleged Overpayments that were made prior to January 31, 2016 (two years prior to the Acis petition date).

4. Conversion is Also Inapplicable

26. Conversion is another inapplicable claim. The Debtor has no identifiable, segregated money subject to recovery through a conversion cause of action, and Acis has not even attempted to identify any such money or property. See, e.g., Lawyers Title Co. v. J.G.

Cooper Dev., Inc., 424 S.W.3d 713, 718 (Tex. App. 2014) (“an action for conversion of money arises only where the money can be identified as a specific chattel, meaning it is (1) defined for safe keeping; (2) intended to be kept segregated; (3) substantially in the form in which it is received or an intact fund; and (4) not the subject of a title claim by the keeper”). As noted above, conversion and similar claims are subject to a two-year statute of limitations (Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code 16.003(a)). Acis cannot meet its burden of proving these requirements.

C. Claims 5-25: All Avoidance Claims Should be Disallowed Because They Seek Recovery Under Section 550(a) of Amounts in Excess of Acis’s Plan Obligations

27. Reorganized Acis will no doubt contend that it may prosecute avoidance claims and recover damages without regard to whether creditors are paid in full, because the company itself was damaged by the transfers. The argument is invalid and is based on a gross oversimplification of the law. Reorganized Acis stands in the shoes of old Acis, and debtors cannot recover transfers for their own benefit, except to the extent the recovery is effectively in payment of a claim. Acis has paid its creditors; in fact, it did so with money effectively recovered from the Debtor on one of the very claims it asserts here, by virtue of the Temporary Plan Injunction! Bankruptcy Code § 550 does not permit a debtor or anyone standing in the shoes of the debtor to recover another $75 million for the benefit of the debtor. This is a summary basis for disallowance of all avoidance claims alleged in Claims 5-25.

28. “Courts have consistently held that an avoidance action can only be pursued if there is some benefit to creditors and may not be pursued if it would only benefit the debtor.” Balaber-Strauss v. Harrison (In re Murphy), 331 B.R. 107, 122 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y.

2005) (citing Wellman v. Wellman, 933 F.2d 215, 218 (4th Cir. 1991) (denying recovery “when the result is to benefit only the debtor rather than the estate”)). Consistent with that principle, the Acis Plan provides that “the Reorganized Debtor shall have exclusive standing . . . to prosecute . . . Estate Claims for the benefit of the Estate” Acis Plan, § 7.03 (emphasis added). But a recovery of “at least $75 million” in damages demanded by Reorganized Acis will benefit only one person or entity, namely Mr. Terry, who bought the equity interests in the new Acis. Acis’s creditors will have been paid in full; none are depending for their recovery on anything more than has already been recovered by means of the Temporary Plan Injunction. Mr. Terry is among those Acis creditors who will have been paid in full. He may claim that he acquired his equity interest in the new Acis in a debt for equity exchange, i.e., by shaving $1 million off his $8.168 million claim, but that is not a recovery on behalf of his claim, but on behalf of the new equity that he bought. There is no substantive difference between discounting a hundred cent claim and a cash purchase. Even if there was, it would not justify such a windfall, much less at the expense of the Debtor’s creditors. These include unsecured trade creditors, Redeemer, which has filed a proof of claim in respect of its arbitration award of $190,824,557 in damages as of the petition date, and UBS.

29. Restoring the pre-transfer equity value of the old Acis, after its creditors have been paid in full, and the equity to be “restored” is newly issued and purchased equity, is not the kind of “benefit to the estate” contemplated by MC Asset Recovery LLC v. Commerzbank A.G. (In re Mirant Corp.), 675 F.3d 530, 534 (5th Cir. 2012), as discussed below. There is no post-confirmation “estate” to benefit within the meaning of section 550(a). Unlike any decision in which a recovery was found to at least indirectly benefit an estate, where, e.g., plan obligations were unfulfilled, or even simply to boost equity value where creditors had received new equity interests on account of their claims (as opposed to purchasing the new equity, as Mr. Terry effectively did), there is no benefit to the estate here. Creditors were paid and Acis's equityholders' interests were canceled under the Acis Plan, and with it their partnership, a relationship that dissolved by operation of law upon the bankruptcy of their general partner, Acis LLC.¹² There is only a new owner, Mr. Terry, who purchased the new equity under the Acis Plan exactly as if it were sold at auction. There is no legal basis for Mr. Terry's attempt to stand in the shoes of the preconfirmation partnership in order to recover more assets than necessary to satisfy its liabilities.

30. In fact, there is a triple irony to Reorganized Acis's demand: (i) first, Mr. Terry is already the only person who was paid for his former equity interest in Acis (the value of which was the main component of the Arbitration Award, for which he has been paid in full in cash); (ii) second, the petition-date Acis equity holders (the persons who might have benefited from Acis recovering its prepetition transfers if their interests had not been canceled) will not ¹² As a Delaware entity, Acis LP was governed by the Delaware Revised Uniform Limited Partnership Act ("DRULPA"). DRULPA specifies six different events that trigger the dissolution of a Delaware limited partnership. Pertinent here, these include a withdrawal of the general partner "upon the happening of events specified in a partnership agreement...." Article 5 of the Acis LP Agreement, captioned "Dissolution and Winding Up," provides that Acis LP "shall be dissolved" upon any of four events, which include the bankruptcy of the general partner (Sec. 5.01(a)). Here, the general partner was co-debtor Acis LLC. State law dissolution may be prevented by an election by the partners to continue the partnership, made within 90 days of the general partner's bankruptcy filing, but that did not occur. "Because these dissolution provisions have been adopted into the partnership law of almost every state, federal bankruptcy courts have generally enforced the UPA and RULPA dissolution provisions as incorporated in state law, and have held partnerships to be dissolved upon the filing of a bankruptcy petition by a general partner." Lawrence J. La Sala, Partner Bankruptcy and Partnership Dissolution: Protecting the Terms of the Contract and Ensuring Predictability, 59 Fordham L. Rev. 619, 621(1991) (citing cases) (available at: <https://ir.lawnet.fordham.edu/flr/vol59/iss4/5>).

only see none of any recovery, they or their affiliates are actually the ones being asked to pay it; and (iii) third, the only recipient of the $75 million would be Mr. Terry himself! Presumably, Mr. Terry purchased Reorganized Acis in anticipation of earning money managing assets while it paid Acis creditors; if he anticipated a $75 million return on his $1 million investment at the expense of the Debtor's creditors, it was a gross miscalculation, inconsistent with the law.

31. Mirant is entirely consistent with the Debtor's position, and is not in derogation of the substantial body of authority holding that section 550 is subject to equitable limitations. In Mirant, the debtor had sued its lenders to avoid a guaranty and recover payments thereunder. Its plan of reorganization provided for the creation of a special litigation entity ("MCAR"). Unsecured creditors received Reorganized Mirant stock and an interest in MCAR's recoveries. The lender moved for summary judgment in part on the basis that creditors would be paid in full and so MCAR lacked standing. The district court found that MCAR had standing (while granting summary judgment on other grounds), ruling in part:

Finally, and most importantly, the fact that the creditors were paid in New Mirant stock confers standing on MCAR to pursue the avoidance action based on the indirect benefit to the creditors from a more financially sound estate.... [S]ee also Acequia, 34 F.3d at 811-12 (discussing broad interpretations of 'benefit the estate' in context of avoidance actions and fact that equity stake to creditors results in benefit to estate)... In the instant case, the creditors were paid in stock; thus, the prospect of a more financially sound estate would provide MCAR with standing.

Mirant, 441 B.R. 791, 803 (N.D. Tex. 2010) (emphases added).

32. The Fifth Circuit agreed with the district court's ruling on standing (while vacating on other grounds):

A bankruptcy trustee may still have standing to avoid a fraudulent transfer after the unsecured creditors are satisfied in full. The fraudulent transfer injured the estate and § 550 ensures that the injury is redressed because a trustee may only avoid a transfer to the extent it benefits the estate. Therefore, to the extent that MCAR's successful avoidance of fraudulent transfers will benefit the bankruptcy estate, MCAR has Article III standing to avoid transfers that injured the estate.

Mirant, 675 F.3d at 534 (emphasis added).

33. This Court followed Mirant in the Texas Rangers case. The former debtor, Texas Rangers Baseball Partners (“TRBP”) had sued its former ultimate parent, HSG Sports Group (“HSG”), to avoid obligations under an aircraft sharing contract signed on the eve of bankruptcy. TRBP had paid its creditors in full under a confirmed plan. HSG argued that TRBP therefore lacked standing as there would be no benefit to the estate from avoiding the contract. This Court observed Mirant’s broad interpretation of “benefit to the estate,” while noting two facts critical here: (1) the case at hand was for avoidance only, and not for recovery under section 550(a), and (2) TRBP still had obligations to lenders that had not been paid their entire prepetition indebtedness under the plan. On these facts, the Court found that TRBP had Constitutional standing to assert the fraudulent transfer claim because it would produce a plausible “benefit to the estate.”

Mirant makes clear that “benefit to the estate” does not hinge on whether a Chapter 5 action will result in a pool of assets being garnered for the benefit of unsecured creditors. Here, it is a matter of public record that the equity holders of TRBP have obligations to certain lenders that TRBP was also liable to. . . .

Thus, to the extent the equities matter here, it would seem that such equities weigh in favor of finding there to be a plausible “benefit to the estate” argument articulated by TRBP. Accordingly, the court finds that here, TRBP does have Constitutional standing to assert a fraudulent transfer claim under section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code, even though unsecured creditors were paid in full under the Plan, and that the Avoidance Complaint should not be dismissed.

Paradigm Air Carriers, Inc. v. Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners (In re Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners), 498 B.R. 679, 709 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2013).

34. The great weight of authority, both pre- and post-Mirant, holds that recovery under section 550(a) is subject to a case-by-case analysis of the facts of the case and the equities. Section 550(a) provides that “the trustee may recover, for the benefit of the estate, the property transferred, or, if the court so orders, the value of such property[.]” 11 U.S.C. § 550(a) (emphasis added).

Under §550, courts have limited the recovery of pre-petition transfers on equitable principles in a manner consistent with the purposes of the Bankruptcy Code and §550, in particular. See, e.g., In re Sawran, 359 B.R. 348, 353 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 2007) (citing cases). For a concise discussion of the rationales for limiting recovery under 11 U.S.C. §550 based on equitable principles, see Robert B. Bruner and Gerard G. Pecht, The Unexplored Limits of Moore v. Bay: Statutory and Equitable Basis for Limiting Money Damage Awards on Fraudulent Transfer Claims, 26 J. Bankr. L. & Prac. NL Art. 2 (June 2017).

Holber v. Nikparvar (In re Incare, LLC), Nos. 13-14926 ELF, 14-0248, 2018 Bankr. LEXIS 1339, at *35-36 (Bankr. E.D. Pa. May 7, 2018) (citing, among others, Crescent Res. Litig. Tr. ex rel. Bensimon v. Duke Energy Corp., 500 B.R. 464, 481-82 (W.D. Tex. 2013)).

35. Duke Energy is an instructive, post-Mirant decision from the district court in the Western District of Texas, noting that the power to avoid a transfer is not the same as the power to recover under section 550(a) and holding that while the full amount of the fraudulent transfer was legally avoidable, as per Mirant, the court could nonetheless consider “the equitable impact of the Trust’s potential recovery” and limit the recovery under section 550. Id. at 481-83.

36. In Duke Energy, the Crescent Resources post-confirmation Trust sued to avoid a 2006 spinoff transaction that allegedly rendered Crescent Resources insolvent while Duke received $1.6 billion. The plan gave the original lenders all of the equity and allowed unsecured claims for the $961 million difference between those claims and the value of their new equity interests. The Plan also formed the Trust and authorized it to pursue claims against third parties. The Trust had two classes of beneficiaries: Class A comprised creditors with $279 million in unrelated claims and Class B included the lenders with their $961 million in allowed claims.

37. Duke Energy defended in part on the basis that the original lenders entered into the 2006 transaction knowing how the loan proceeds would be distributed, and should not benefit from its avoidance. Id. at 478. The district court agreed, referring to Mirant and offering the following section 550(a) analysis:

There is precious little guidance from the Fifth Circuit on the scope of Section 550(a)’s “for the benefit of the estate” language. Other courts generally interpret the language broadly. See In re Acequia, Inc., 34 F.3d 800, 811 (9th Cir. 1994); In re Tronox Inc., 464 B.R. 606, 617 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2012) (citing Acequia, 34 F.3d at 811). Still, there are numerous examples of cases where courts have denied or limited recovery based on the equitable principles underlying the Bankruptcy Code and Section 550(a) in particular. See, e.g., Wellman v. Wellman, 933 F.2d 215, 218 (4th Cir. 1991) (affirming district court’s order holding debtor’s avoidance action was not “for the benefit of” the estate); In re Yellowstone Mountain Club, LLC, 436 B.R. 598, 678 (Bankr. D. Mont. 2010) (refusing to award any recovery to the original lender who was complicit in the fraudulent transfer, as well as syndicate lenders “who have speculated on a monumental award against” the plaintiff); In re Jackson, 318 B.R. 5, 27-28 (Bankr. D.N.H. 2004), aff’d, 459 F.3d 117 (1st Cir. 2006) (because “equity guards against windfalls in general,” amount of recovery through Section 550(a) on a Section 544(b) claim may be equitably adjusted); but see Tronox, 464 B.R. at 614 (collecting cases interpreting Section 550(a) as setting “a minimum floor for recovery in an avoidance action,” but not “any ceiling on the maximum benefits that can be obtained once that floor has been met”).

The one consistent vein traveling through all of these cases is the fact-specific nature of the inquiry. See, e.g., Wellman, 933 F.2d at 218 (“benefit of the estate” question requires “a case-by-case, fact-specific analysis”); In re Murphy, 331 B.R. 107, 121 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2005) (limiting recovery under Section 550 based on the “extremely unusual” facts of the case). It is therefore instructive to consider the factual circumstances of this case, and the equitable impact of the Trust’s potential recovery.

If the Trust is allowed to recover the $961 million of the term loan proceed transfer destined for the Class B creditors—a group of creditors who all derive their interest in the estate from the original lenders—the banks’ high risk investment will pay off in the form of a massive windfall.

Duke Energy, 500 B.R. at 481-82. The district court concluded that there was “no equitable basis” for allowing a recovery to Class B creditors, and granted summary judgment in favor of Duke Energy.

38. Where this Court found the facts and equities in Texas Rangers to favor finding a “benefit to the estate,” the facts and equities here point decisively to the opposite conclusion. By comparison, here: (1) Reorganized Acis is seeking not just to avoid obligations but to recover $75 million under section 550(a), (2) Acis’s creditors will already have been paid in full at 102% (once Mr. Terry actually elects to pay creditors with the cash at Acis), (3) there are no creditors relying on Reorganized Acis's equity or financial condition to recover on their claims, (4) any recovery would come at the expense of the Debtor's unsecured creditors, and (5) the person to receive the asserted $75 million windfall (i.e., Mr. Terry) paid only $1 million to purchase Acis's interests to take a flyer on this and related litigation. As the court stated in Blixseth v. Kirschner (In re Yellowstone Mt. Club, LLC), supra, 436 B.R. at 678 "the Court will not at this time enter an order that would in any way benefit Credit Suisse, the Prepetition Lenders or other parties who have speculated on a monumental award against Blixseth." See also Wellman, supra, 933 F.2d at 219 (Fourth Circuit denied recovery where the plaintiff/debtor "executed the non-recourse promissory notes to the creditors in an attempt to create a claim in the estate so that he could obtain a "massive surplus recovery" for himself in addition to the surplus distributed to him.").

39. The facts here are firmly aligned with cases dealing with recoveries under section 550(a) such as Adelphia Recovery Trust v. Bank of America, N.A., 390 B.R. 80, 97 (S.D.N.Y. 2008), where the court found no benefit to the estate where all creditors were "paid in full with interest under the Plans and no creditors have been issued shares" in the Adelphia Recovery Trust. As noted, Mr. Terry did not receive the ownership interests in Acis in payment of his claim against the Acis estate (for which claim he received or will receive 102% of his claim amount); he purchased the debtor – Acis – for $1 million, and it is only Mr. Terry who would benefit, not Acis's creditors, employees (there are none) or prior equity holders. "Courts have consistently held that an avoidance action can only be pursued if there is some benefit to creditors and may not be pursued if it would only benefit the debtor." Balaber-Strauss v.

Harrison (In re Murphy), 331 B.R. at 122 (citing Wellman, supra, 933 F.2d at 218 (no recovery “when the result is to benefit only the debtor rather than the estate”)).

40. Thus, under sections 548 and 550, “only net amounts diverted from, that is damages consequently suffered by the creditor body of, a debtor may be recovered via a fraudulent conveyance action.” In re Foxmeyer Corp., 296 B.R. 327, 342 (Bankr. D. Del. 2003). To do otherwise is solely to benefit the debtor (or, as here, the debtor’s purchaser). That is inappropriate under either federal or state fraudulent transfer laws, as discussed at length in Murphy, 331 B.R. at 124-25. As a Minnesota bankruptcy court explained:

Whether there is a benefit to the estate depends on a case-by-case, fact-specific analysis. [] This is not the usual case in which an increase in dollars to the estate results in a patent benefit to the estate. In this case, the increase in dollars to the estate which would result from the requested relief would not provide a benefit to the estate. In this case, the trustee has advised that the amount on hand for distribution from the estate already exceeds the total amount of estimated administrative expenses and all claims. Thus, in this case, the only party to benefit from avoiding and recovering the Transfer would be the debtor.

Such a benefit to the debtor would be inappropriate. The provisions of MUFTA “protect creditors rather than transferors of debt.” See Bartholomew v. Avalon Capital Group, Inc., 828 F.Supp.2d 1019, 1025 (D. Minn. 2009). “Only creditors are entitled to remedies under the UFTA.” Id., citing Minn. Stat. §§ 513.47, 513.48(b).

Running v. Dolan (In re Goodspeed), 535 B.R. 302, 315-16 (Bankr. D. Minn. 2015). Noting that trustees are the exception since they sue on behalf of creditors, the court observed that nonetheless there must be a benefit to creditors, citing and extensively quoting Murphy and Wellman, supra.

41. To permit any recovery under section 550(a) beyond the amount needed to pay creditors would create a new duty under state law. Acis's former equity holders, as its sole owners, had no duty under applicable state law to Acis, or anyone else other than creditors, to refrain from making the transfers at issue, nor did the Debtor or any of the other related entities or professionals who are now litigation targets have any right or obligation to stop them. Thus in a trustee's lawsuit against former partners of a debtor partnership, in which the trustee alleged in part that the partners had conspired to "set into motion a series of transactions that crippled [the debtor partnership]," the district court for the Southern District of Texas explained and held in part:

Delaware law is clear that a company's sole owner cannot breach fiduciary duties "owed to the companies he wholly owned." See Midland Food Services, LLC v. Castle Hill Holdings V, LLC, 792 A.2d 920, n. 14 (Del. Ch. 1999) (citing Goodman v. Futrovsky, 42 Del. Ch. 468, 213 A.2d 899, 902 (1965) (the defendants could not defraud company since they "were the sole owners . . . and could do with it as they wished"), cert denied, 383 U.S. 946, 86 S. Ct. 1197, 16 L. Ed. 2d 209 (1966)). Tow has not cited legal support for the proposition that a nonowner can be liable for conspiring with the sole owner of a partnership for breaching duties that the owner owes himself.

Tow v. Amegy Bank N.A., 976 F. Supp. 2d 889, 906-07 (S.D. Tex. 2013) (emphasis added). See also Newman v. Toy, 926 S.W.2d 629, 631 (Tex. App.-Austin 1996, writ denied) ("A sole shareholder or all shareholders acting in agreement, being all the beneficial owners of corporate property, may themselves deal with such property so long as the rights of creditors are not prejudiced ...").

42. Accordingly, any recoveries of the transfers sought to be avoided in the Acis Claim should be limited to any amount needed to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan, that is to say, to pay creditors and administrative claimants in full. No creditors have a stake in restoring Acis to the financial condition it occupied prior to any of the transfers that are the subject matter of the Acis Claim, at least not on account of any unpaid claims. Upon payment of creditors in full under the Acis Plan, therefore, all avoidance claims should be dismissed as moot, and the only thing stopping the avoidance claims from actually being moot is Mr. Terry's unwillingness to pay Acis's creditors with the cash at Acis.

D. Acis is Barred Under the Bangor Punta Doctrine From Asserting For Its Own Benefit All Claims Not Asserted Pre-Acquisition – Claims 1-8 and 21-34 – Excepting Only Claims Related to the ALF PMA Transfer (Claims 9-12), the ALF Share Transfer (Claims 13-16), and the Note Transfer (Claims 17-20)

43. In Bangor Punta Operations, Inc. v. Bangor & A. R. Co., 417 U.S. 703, 94 S. Ct. 2578, 2584-85 (1974); the Supreme Court held that a stockholder who has purchased all or substantially all of the shares of a corporation from a vendor at a fair price may not seek to have the acquired corporation recover against the vendor for prior corporate mismanagement and waste of corporate assets that may have occurred during the prior vendor's ownership. Bangor Punta, 417 U.S. at 710. “What the Bangor Punta Doctrine does prohibit is purchasers . . . from accepting their end of the bargain - - ownership and control of the corporation - - and attempting to sweeten their end of the deal by suing the seller to recover damages to the corporation allegedly caused by the seller before the sale. The Bangor Punta Doctrine properly prohibits as

The nature of the claim does not matter. Id. at 930.

44. The doctrine does not apply to claims brought for the benefit of creditors. Bangor Punta, 417 U.S. at 715 (rejecting argument that plaintiff-corporation should be entitled to recovery since any recovery would benefit the public where the plaintiff-corporation “would be entitled to distribute the recovery in any lawful manner it may choose”); Wieboldt Stores, Inc. v. Schottenstein, 94 B.R. 488, 508 (N.D. Ill. 1988) (permitting debtor in possession to assert breach of fiduciary claim but only to extent of creditor injury – “The creditors cannot receive a “windfall” recovery, but may recover only to the extent of their claims.”). Cf. Meyers v. Moody, 693 F.2d 1196, 1207 (5th Cir. 1982) (Bangor Punta doctrine inapplicable to suit brought by receiver for benefit of creditors); Think3 Litig. Tr. v. Zuccarello (In re Think3, Inc.), 529 B.R. 147, 185 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2015) (doctrine inapplicable where “Plaintiff Trust was created by a confirmed plan of reorganization in the Think3 bankruptcy case for the purpose of bringing suits for the benefit of creditors of insolvent Think3.”).

45. The doctrine also does not apply to claims that were pending when the acquisition occurred. Meyers v. Moody, 693 F.2d at 1208 (“Moody is thus urging us to extinguish a cause of action that both existed and was pursued long before the transfer of Empire's assets took place. Neither law nor equity permits us to do so.”); TNS Media Research, LLC v. TiVo Research & Analytics, Inc., 193 F. Supp. 3d 307, 312 (S.D.N.Y. 2016) (“Once brought, a claim is not released merely and necessarily based on a change in corporate ownership.”).

46. Mr. Terry agreed to purchase Acis’s equity on July 5, 2018 and the Acis Plan was confirmed on January 1, 2019. The only claims pending at either time were those asserted by the Acis trustee in his counterclaim filed on July 2, 2018 (Acis Adversary No. 18-03078, at Docket No. 23). That counterclaim asserted only fraudulent transfer claims for (1) the ALF Share Transfer, (2) the ALF PMA Transfer, and (3) the Note Transfer (all as described below). Acis’s amended complaint, asserting for the first time all other claims asserted in the Acis Claim, all of which relate to other transactions, was filed on June 20, 2019. The Bangor Punta doctrine, therefore, bars all claims other than Claims 9-20.

E. Claims 5-8: Fraudulent Transfer Claims - Sub-Advisory Agreement Modifications

47. Claims 5 through 8 are claims to avoid as fraudulent transfers and recover unspecified damages based on modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement by and between Acis LP and the Debtor dated January 1, 2011. The modifications were made on July 29, 2016, and raised the Debtor’s rates from 5 to 20 basis points. Those claims are: (5) for actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (6) for actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (7) for constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (8) for constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law.

48. There are numerous bases on which Claims 5-8 can and should be disallowed entirely, some on a summary basis and others for which further factual development would be required, as follows:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. The claims are barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, which can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

- (1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the modifications. In fact, Acis clearly was solvent at that time. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.
- (2) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the modifications, in that the rates had been maintained at artificially low levels during Mr. Terry's tenure, and as modified represented reasonably equivalent value for the services rendered thereunder. In fact, the revised rates are similar to what Brigade is currently charging Acis.
- (3) The modifications, which were made prior to the commencement of litigation and which had a legitimate purpose and justification, were not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.
- (4) Acis has not alleged damages. The modifications gave rise to, at most, an avoidable obligation, not a transfer, and the obligation potentially subject to avoidance was rejected by the Acis trustee and approved by an order of the Court. To the extent that Acis alleges that payments made at the modified rates were fraudulent transfers, the Debtor maintains, as alleged above, that the rates as modified constituted reasonably equivalent value for the services rendered.

- (5) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

F. Claims 9-24: Acis Has Not Alleged Facts Sufficient to Show That the Debtor is the Entity for Whose Benefit the Transfers Were Made

49. Acis claims that with respect to each alleged avoidable transfer, the Debtor was either the initial transferee or the entity for whose benefit it was made, from which the property transferred or its value may be recovered under federal or state law.¹³

50. Acis concedes, as it must, that the Debtor was not the initial transferee of the transfers alleged in Claims 9 through 24. As to those claims, Acis has failed to allege facts sufficient to establish, if proven, that the Debtor was “the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made.” This defense can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

¹³ Section 550(a) provides that with respect to a transfer that is avoided under sections 544, 545, 547, 548, 549, 553(b), or 724(a), “the trustee may recover, for the benefit of the estate, the property transferred, or, if the court so orders, the value of such property, from—(1) the initial transferee of such transfer or the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made[.]” 11 U.S.C. § 550(a)(1). Texas law is similar. See Citizens Nat’l Bank of Tex. v. NXS Constr., Inc., 387 S.W.2d 74, 79-80 (Tex. App. 2012) (“the creditor may obtain a monetary judgment against the transferee of the asset, the person for whose benefit the transfer was made, or subsequent transferees.” (citing Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.009(b))). Other than with respect to the sub-advisory agreement modifications, the Debtor is not alleged to have been either an immediate or subsequent transferee of any of the allegedly improper transfers, for purposes of Bankruptcy Code § 550(a) and Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.009(b) (referencing the “first transferee” and “any subsequent transferee”).

51. Specifically, Acis has not identified any specific, direct benefit to the Debtor from the fraudulent transfers alleged in Claims 9-24. It only alleges an indirect benefit to the Debtor from being part of the Highland corporate group. But any transaction by a corporate group member commonly has indirect benefits for other group members, which is why as a matter of law it is insufficient simply to allege an amorphous benefit for the Debtor to be deemed a beneficiary of the putative fraudulent transfers under § 550. See, e.g., Faulkner v. Kornman (In re Heritage Org., LLC), 413 B.R. 438, 495-96 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) (Judge Houser) (“an unquantifiable advantage” is not a “benefit” for purposes of § 550(a); liability will not be imposed upon a party that allegedly benefitted from the fraudulent transfer just because defendant had controlled debtor-transferor and directed the transfer; “There is simply no showing that Kornman [who allegedly benefitted] received any benefit at all from the initial transfers.”); Peterson v. Hofmann (In re Delta Phones, Inc.), 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 2550, *16-*17 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. Dec. 23, 2005) (“That a shareholder holds some ownership interest in a corporation does not somehow mean that all transfers made to the corporation or by it are automatically made for the ‘benefit’ of the shareholder under § 550(a)(1). The ‘entity’ under § 550(a)(1) must benefit from the transfer ‘directly,’ not indirectly.... Taken to its logical conclusion, Peterson’s position would put average investors on the hook for all kinds of corporate transactions any time a public company sought bankruptcy protection.”); see also In re Peregrine Fin. Group, Inc., 589 B.R. 360 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 2018) (“the [defendant] cannot be the transfer beneficiary if it will get the benefit of the funds sometime later”; “[T]he [defendant] received no direct benefit at the time the transfer was made. It had only the right to benefit from the funds in the future after [certain fees were deducted, other requirements were met, and funds were still available].”).

52. Accordingly, Reorganized Acis has not alleged facts sufficient to establish, even if proven, that the Debtor was “the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made” with respect to the transfers alleged in Claims 9-24.

G. Claims 9-12: Fraudulent Transfer Claims - ALF PMA Transfer

53. Acis alleges that its rights to direct and effectuate an optional redemption and otherwise control the assets of Acis Loan Funding Ltd. (“ALF”), pursuant to a Portfolio Services Agreement dated August 10, 2015, and a Portfolio Management Agreement dated December 22, 2016, by and between Acis and ALF (together, the “ALF PMA”), had value and were transferred for no value to Highland HCF Advisor in October 2017. The corresponding claims for relief are: (9) actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (10) actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (11) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (12) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law. Acis seeks to avoid the transfer and recover unspecified damages.

54. Acis fails to address the fact that it has been exercising the rights that it alleges were transferred and has been deriving earnings under the ALF PMA since the preliminary and plan injunctions were issued in the Acis Case, in an amount sufficient to satisfy all claims against it. That is, the alleged transfers had no economic effect as Acis retained all rights under the contracts. Accordingly, the Debtor objects on the following bases to Claims 9-12:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. As set forth above, the Debtor was not the transferee of the ALF PMA Transfer and an insufficient factual basis is alleged to conclude that it was the entity for whose benefit the transfer was made. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

- (1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfer. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.
- (2) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the transfer.
- (3) The transfer had a legitimate purpose and justification, and was not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.
- (4) Acis has not alleged damages. In fact, Acis has continued to exercise rights and derive earnings under the ALF PMA pursuant to injunctive relief granted in the Acis Case.
- (5) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

H. Claims 13-16: Fraudulent Transfer Claims - ALF Share Transfer

55. Acis alleges that on October 24, 2017, Acis and CLO Holdco Ltd. entered into a resolution whereby Acis sold its equity interest in ALF (the "ALF Share Transfer") to Highland Funding for $991,000. The 13th through 16th claims for relief are: (13) actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (14) actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (15) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (16) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law. Acis seeks to avoid the ALF Share Transfer and recover unspecified damages.

56. The Debtor submits that there are numerous bases for disallowance of Claims 13-16 in the entirety:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. As set forth above, the Debtor was not the transferee and an insufficient factual basis is alleged to conclude that it was the entity for whose benefit the transfer was made. The Debtor believes this issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

- (1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfer. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.

- (2) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the transfer, as the repurchase price was at their net asset value.
- (3) The transfer had a legitimate purpose and justification, and was not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.
- (4) Acis has not alleged damages. In fact, Acis has continued to control and derive earnings from these assets by means of the ALF PMA pursuant to injunctive relief granted in the Acis Case.
- (5) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

I. Claims 17-20: Fraudulent Transfer Claims – Note Transfer

57. Acis alleges that on November 3, 2017, Acis LP, the Debtor, and Highland Management (a Debtor affiliate) entered into an Agreement for Assignment and Transfer of Promissory Note (the "Note Transfer Agreement"), by which Acis transferred a $9.5 million promissory note owed by the Debtor to Acis (the "Note") to Highland CLO Management for no material value. Based thereon it pleads the 17th through 20th claims for relief: (17) actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (18) actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (19) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (20) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law. Acis seeks to avoid the transfer and recover unspecified damages.

58. Not only did the Debtor not receive the Note, it remains liable! For this and other reasons, the Debtor objects to Claims 17-20 on the following bases:

a. Since the Debtor did not receive the Note, and indeed remains liable on the Note, it is certainly not the entity for whose benefit it was made. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

- (1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfer. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.
- (2) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the transfer.
- (3) The transfer had a legitimate purpose and justification, and was not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.
- (4) Acis has not alleged damages.
- (5) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

J. Claims 21-24: Fraudulent Transfer Claims – Acis CLO 2017-7 Agreement

59. Acis alleges that on December 19, 2017, it entered into an Agreement for Assignment and Transfer (the "CLO 2017-7 Agreement") by which it transferred its interests in sub-advisory and services agreements relating to Acis CLO 2017-7, by which it derived fees, to Highland CLO Holdings (a Debtor affiliate) for no consideration, and also its indirect equity interests in the underlying CLO (the "2017-7 Equity") in exchange for the forgiveness of $2.8 million payable owed by Acis to the Debtor. Based thereon Acis pleads the 21st through 24th claims for relief: (21) actual fraudulent transfer under section 548; (22) actual fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law; (23) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 548; and (24) constructive fraudulent transfer under section 544(b) and Texas law. Acis seeks to avoid the transfer and recover unspecified damages.

60. The Debtor submits that Claims 21-24 can and should be disallowed on the following bases:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. As set forth above, the Debtor was not the transferee and an insufficient factual basis is alleged for a conclusion that it was the entity for whose benefit the transfer was made. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. The claims are barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, which can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

d. In addition, the Debtor objects to these claims on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

- (1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfer. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.
- (2) The Debtor did not receive any benefit from the transfer and so is not the entity for whose benefit the transfer was made.
- (3) Acis received reasonably equivalent value for the transfer.
- (4) The transfer had a legitimate purpose and justification, and was not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors.
- (5) Acis has not alleged damages.
- (6) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.

K. Claim 25: Preferences

61. Acis alleges that within one year of the Petition Date, the Debtor received payments of totaling $16,113,790.14 from Acis on account of purported debt claims owed by Acis, comprised of approximately $7.3 million pursuant to the Shared Services Agreement and Sub-Advisory Agreement (the “Service Payments”), over $5 million pursuant to an October 2016 Participation Purchase Agreement (the “Participation Payments”), approximately $3.3 million in promissory note repayments (the “Note Payments”), and approximately $118,000 for miscellaneous expense reimbursements (“Expenses”).

62. Acis's 25th claim for relief alleges that if such transfers are not otherwise recoverable, they may be avoided and recovered as preferences under Bankruptcy Code § 547 and Texas Business and Commerce Code §§ 24.006(b) and recovered under Bankruptcy Code § 550. Acis also alleges that the 2017-7 Equity Transfer and the Note Transfer, to the extent they satisfied legitimate obligations, are avoidable as preferences.

63. Setting aside the many statutory defenses to these claims set forth below, the fact that Acis creditors are being paid in full is fatal to the preference claim. Acis tries to sidestep one consequence by asserting that whether a creditor would receive more in liquidation is measured as of the petition date. But there are at least two other consequences. One, as discussed, is that Acis cannot recover damages for its own benefit, once creditors are paid. The other is that the Debtor would receive on account of any preference recovery a general unsecured claim under the Acis Plan under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h), which would offset any liability in full. The Debtor objects to Claim 25 on those bases and others, as follows:

a. As set forth above, Acis is not entitled to any recovery under section 550(a) on the alleged preferences beyond that required to satisfy obligations under the Acis Plan. This issue can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

b. The claims are barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, which can be summarily adjudicated at this time.

c. Acis has not alleged a factual basis for its allegation that it was insolvent at the time of the transfers. This is a pleading requirement.

d. Acis has not alleged the existence of antecedent debts, also a pleading requirement.

e. In addition, the Debtor objects to this claim on the following grounds, which are not subject to summary adjudication at this time:

- (1) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfers. Expert testimony will be required on this issue.
- (2) Acis cannot meet its burden of proving that each transfer enabled the Debtor to receive more than it would have received in a hypothetical chapter 7 liquidation.
- (3) The Debtor will have a claim in the Acis Case under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h) with respect to any property recovered on account of this claim.
- (4) Within the meaning of section 547(c)(1), each alleged transfer was intended by the debtor and the creditor to or for whose benefit such transfer was made to be a contemporaneous exchange for new value given to the debtor; and was in fact a substantially contemporaneous exchange, including without limitation all Service Payments and Expenses.
- (5) Within the meaning of section 547(c)(2), each alleged transfer was made in the ordinary course of business or financial affairs of the debtor and the transferee; or made according to ordinary business terms, including without limitation all Service Payments, all payments under Participation Payments, all Note Payments, and all Expenses.

- (6) Within the meaning of section 547(c)(4), each alleged transfer was made to or for the benefit of a creditor, to the extent that, after each such transfer, such creditor gave new value to or for the benefit of the debtor—(A) not secured by an otherwise unavoidable security interest; and (B) on account of which new value the debtor did not make an otherwise unavoidable transfer to or for the benefit of such creditor, including without limitation all Service Payments, Participation Payments, and Expenses.
- (7) Participation Payments were received as a mere conduit.
- (8) Any recovery on account of the alleged preferences would be offset by a corresponding general unsecured claim under the Acis Plan under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h).

L. Claim 26: Liability Under Section 550(a)

64. Acis alleges that the Debtor is the initial transferee within the meaning of Bankruptcy Code § 550(a) of all transfers sought to be avoided in Counts 5 – 8 and 25, and that it is the entity for whose benefit the transfers were made with respect to the transfers sought to be avoided in Counts 9-24.

a. Claim 26 can and should be disallowed in its entirety, on a summary basis. First, by operation of the statute, there is no liability under section 550 if no transfers are avoided. Second, as discussed in Section E above, Acis concedes the Debtor was not the initial transferee of the transfers alleged in Claims 9 through 24, and it has not alleged facts sufficient to establish, if proven, that the Debtor was “the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made.” Specifically, it has not identified any specific, direct benefit to the Debtor from the fraudulent transfers alleged in Claims 9-24. It only posits an indirect benefit from being part of the Highland corporate group, which is inadequate to establish that an entity is the entity for whose benefit a transfer was made. Finally, all claims other than Claims 9-20 are barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine.

M. Claim 27: Civil Conspiracy to Commit Fraud, Including Fraudulent Transfers

65. Acis alleges that the Debtor, Highland Advisor, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings formed a conspiracy to “engage in a series of fraudulent transfers and other fraudulent schemes, including the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, the 2017-7 Equity transfer, the 2017-7 Agreements transfer and the thwarted Universal/BVK Agreement transfer in order to denude Acis's assets and take over Acis LP's valuable business.” Acis Claim, ¶ 246.

66. This claim fails as a matter of law, and can be adjudicated at this time. It is an impermissible end-around section 550's remedial provisions, and the inconvenient fact that the Debtor did not receive a cognizable benefit thereunder with respect to most of the fraudulent transfer claims. Section 550 provides the exclusive remedy for fraudulent transfers. Partly for that reason, there is simply no substantive legal basis for the sinister allegations of “unlawful, overt acts” to “take over Acis LP's valuable business” upon which the “conspiracy” is predicated. As discussed above, the law is crystal clear that Acis's equity holders had no duty to Acis not to 'take over its valuable business' and nobody had a duty to stop them from doing so, as the Southern District of Texas court discussed thoroughly in Tow v. Amegy Bank N.A., supra, 976 F. Supp. 2d at 906-07. They owned all of it! The only thing they could not do is transfer assets without adequate consideration if Acis were insolvent. For that, there are statutory remedies prescribed by sections 548 and 550.

67. That is why no claim for conspiracy to commit an actual or constructive fraudulent transfer (or for "aiding and abetting") exists under Texas or federal law. Tow v. Bulmahn, No. 15-3141, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 57396, at *91 (E.D. La. Apr. 29, 2016). See Mack v. Newton, 737 F.2d 1343, 1357 (5th Cir. 1984) ("[T]he general rule under the Bankruptcy Act is that one who did not actually receive any of the property fraudulently transferred (or any part of a 'preference') will not be liable for its value, even though he may have participated or conspired in the making of the fraudulent transfer (or preference)."); Schlossberg v. Abell (In re Abell), 549 B.R. 631, 667 (Bankr. D. Md. 2016). A party may not be liable for more than it actually received. D.A.N. Joint Venture III, L.P. v. Touris, No. 18-cv-349, 2020 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 51407, at *25-26 (N.D. Ill. Mar. 25, 2020) ("Numerous courts have held that the bankruptcy court cannot invoke state law remedies to circumvent or undermine the remedy legislated by Congress for the avoidance of a fraudulent transfer [T]he trustee's remedy for an avoided transfer [is] provided for in § 550, and that provision only allows a trustee to recover up to the amount of the transfer.") (citations omitted). Allowing a trustee to recover more than the amount of the transfer would "lead to a result that expands the remedies [for a fraudulent transfer] beyond §550." Sherman v. FSC Realty LLC (In re Brentwood-Lexford Partners, LLC), 292 B.R. 255, 275 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2003).

68. This Court recognized but distinguished Mack in Milbank v. Holmes (In re TOCFHBI, Inc.), 413 B.R. 523, 535 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009):

[W]hile it is perfectly true that "the general rule under [the Bankruptcy Code or the old Act] is that one who did not actually receive any of the property fraudulently transferred (or any part of a 'preference') will not be liable for its value, even though he may have participated or conspired in the making of the fraudulent transfer (or preference)," (Mack v. Newton, 737 F.2d at 1357), the Chapter 7 Trustee, in this case, is not moving under the fraudulent transfer statute and arguing something amazingly similar such as "conversion" and "conspiracy" regarding the same acts--and, in the process, joining Defendants who would not normally have liability under the relevant fraudulent transfer statutes.

Id. at 535-36. "). The Court recognized that "liability [under most states' uniform fraudulent transfer acts] cannot be imposed on non-transferees under aiding and abetting or conspiracy theories[.]" Id. (citation omitted). Accordingly, the claim should be disallowed.

69. Further, this claim is barred by the in pari delicto defense, as discussed below in the discussion of the Thirtieth Claim for Breach of Fiduciary Duty. Acis was by its own allegations an instrumentality of Dondero, who allegedly used it to perpetrate the "scheme" characterized in the Acis Complaint. The trustee was, and Reorganized Acis is, subject to all defenses that existed against Acis. Any claim by Acis against its alleged co-conspirators would be barred by in pari delicto, as Acis was at least equally culpable in all of the conduct it alleges.

70. Finally, the claim is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry, the acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company, and this claim was not asserted in the Acis trustee's counterclaim that was pending when Mr. Terry acquired the company.

N. Claim 28: Tortious Interference with the Universal/BVK Agreement

71. Acis alleges that the Debtor tortiously interfered with its rights by seeking to replace it as manager under the Agreement for the Outsourcing of Asset Management between Acis LP and Universal-Investment-Luxembourg S.A. by which Acis provided sub-advisory services for a German fund (the "Universal/BVK agreement"), before and after the Debtor's sub-advisory services were terminated on August 1, 2018.

72. Claim 28 can and should be summarily disallowed, as there is no factual dispute on several critical issues: (1) this was an at-will contract; (2) the Debtor had no duty not to compete; and (3) no damages were sustained, as the contract was not terminated and all attorneys' fees have been paid, in fact, with money diverted from the Debtor.

73. Under Texas law, a claim for tortious interference with contract has four elements: (1) a contract subject to the alleged interference exists; (2) the alleged act of interference was willful and intentional; (3) the willful and intentional act proximately caused damage; and (4) actual damage or loss occurred. Victoria Bank & Trust Co. v. Brady, 811 S.W.2d 931, 939 (Tex.1991). Those requirements are not met on the undisputed facts.

74. The Universal/BVK agreement was an at-will contract. "Ordinarily, merely inducing a contract obligor to do what it has a right to do is not actionable interference." ACS Investors, Inc. v. McLaughlin, 943 S.W.2d 426, 430 (Tex. 1997). A defendant cannot tortiously interfere with a contract that permits the non-plaintiff contracting party to terminate the agreement, where the defendant's actions constitute justifiable competition. See, e.g., C.E. Servs. Inc. v. Control Data Corp., 759 F.2d 1241, 1248 (5th Cir. 1985); West Tex. Gas v. 297 Gas Co., 864 S.W.2d 681, 686 (Tex. App. 1993) (competitor had legal right to persuade company to exercise its right to terminate at-will natural gas sale/purchase agreement with plaintiff). “[A] legal justification or excuse, which is treated as a type of privilege, is an affirmative defense to a claim of tortious interference.... Interference with a contractual relationship is privileged where it results from the bona fide exercise of a party's own rights.”; “North Texas had the legal right to persuade or attempt to persuade 297 to exercise its right to terminate the 1988 agreement and to contract with it.” Id.

75. Once again, until displaced, Acis's owners had every right to do as they wished with the Universal/BVK Agreement, subject to creditor rights but not subject to any duty to Acis to refrain from doing so, and the Debtor had no duty to say otherwise. After the Debtor was terminated, it had a right as a competitor to attempt to win back its business. The contention that it should have stopped after the Acis bankruptcy petition is the subject of a different claim. Further, “[t]he alleged interference generally must have induced a breach of the contract to be actionable.” Official Brands, Inc. v. Roc Nation Sports, LLC, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 167320, at *7 (N.D. Tex. Dec. 15, 2015). Here, that is not even alleged to have occurred.

76. Further, no damages were sustained. The contract was not terminated, and to the extent the alleged damages are administrative expenses incurred in the Acis case, not only have they been paid, they have been paid by the Debtor by virtue of the earnings derived from the enjoined putative transfer of the ALF PMA.

77. Finally, the claim is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and all acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

78. Accordingly, no claim for tortious interference has been stated, and the claim is barred in any event, and so it should be disallowed.

O. Claim 29: Breach of the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement

79. Acis claims that the Debtor breached these agreements by failing to purchase and attempting only to sell loans for the CLOs, in order to liquidate Acis for the benefit of the Debtor and the detriment of Acis. This claim should be dismissed.

80. The Debtor met its standard of care but, moreover, there is a more fundamental fallacy that is instantly fatal to this claim. As discussed, here and throughout the Acis Claim, Acis sets up a fictional jurisprudential world in which it, by virtue of its existence as a legal entity, had interests that contracting parties or managers or professionals were required to identify and protect, rather than acting as instructed by Acis's owners. It did not and they did not. The Debtor was entitled to take directions from Acis's owners. Put differently, there is no allegation whatsoever that Acis did not want the Debtor to do exactly what it did. Ipso facto, the Debtor did not breach the contract. The claim must be dismissed.

81. Finally, the claim is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and all acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

P. Claim 30: Breach of Fiduciary Duty

82. Acis claims that the Debtor owed it a fiduciary duty pursuant to the Sub-Advisory Agreement as its investment adviser, and that it breached that fiduciary duty by acting in a manner detrimental to Acis by increasing its fees under the Sub-Advisory Agreement, charging over-market rates in excess of the compensation limits of the Acis LPA, and being the “ringleader” and ultimate beneficiary of schemes to render Acis judgment-proof by transferring the ALF PMA, the ALF Shares, the Note, the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements. Acis makes no damage allegations but seeks punitive damages.

83. This claim can and should be summarily disallowed. First, the duty to Acis was contractual, not fiduciary. The Debtor as portfolio manager had fiduciary duties to investors in the CLOs, but its duties to Acis were governed by the Shared Services Agreement which, construed with the Sub-Advisory Agreement, provides that the Debtor was an independent contractor with only a contractual obligation to act with reasonable care and no other obligations or duties.

84. Second, regardless, even if the Debtor had a fiduciary duty to Acis, it could not and did not violate that fiduciary duty by following directions from Acis’s sole owners. As discussed in the authorities and analysis above, such a claim is a legal impossibility. At all relevant times, Acis was by its allegations controlled and principally owned by Dondero and Okada, along with all of the other Highland related entities. It is hornbook law that sole owners do not have a fiduciary duty to their company; they could transfer away its assets without violating any duty to their company. How, then, would advisors and employees and professionals go about protecting the interests of an entity such as Acis against the “ravages” of an owner such as Dondero, who had no such duty? The owners had a right, subject to fraudulent transfer laws, to direct Acis and transfer assets as desired. Acis did not, simply by virtue of its existence alone, have interests distinct from its owners’ interests that its fiduciaries were obligated to somehow identify and protect against the designs of its sole owners. No duty to Acis could be or was breached by following its owners’ directions.

85. Third, any fiduciary duty claim is barred by the in pari delicto defense:

The equitable defense of in pari delicto, which means 'in equal fault,' is based on the common law notion that a plaintiff's recovery may be barred by his own wrongful conduct." Howard v. Fidelity and Deposit Co. of Maryland, (In re Royale Airlines, Inc.), 98 F.3d 852, 855 (5th Cir. 1996). "Two fundamental premises underlie this defense: (1) that courts should not lend their good offices to mediating disputes among wrongdoers; and (2) that denying judicial relief to an admitted wrongdoer is an effective means of deterring illegality." Murray v. Royal Alliance Assocs., 375 B.R. 208, 213 (M.D. La. 2007).

Milbank v. Holmes (In re TOCFHBI, Inc.), 413 B.R. 523, 536-37 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009).

While this Court denied summary judgment on the defense in Milbank (id. at 537), the defense can be applied on the face of the pleadings when it is apparent that it applies. Brickley v.

ScanTech Identification Beams Sys., LLC, 566 B.R. 815, 842-43 (W.D. Tex. 2017) (“In sum, because applicability of the in pari delicto defense to parts of the trustee's breach of fiduciary duty claim is apparent on the face of the Complaint, the Court will dismiss ... the claims that the Stolzar defendants breached their fiduciary duties by assisting Barra and Vitale in their efforts to fraudulently obtain shareholder capital and debt financing, by counseling and providing legal services assisting Barra, Vitale, and Shaw in the usurpation of corporate assets and corporate opportunities, and by aiding in the execution of the fraudulent loan agreement.”).

86. Here, it is apparent from the face of the Acis Claim that to the extent that the “scheme” of which Acis complains was orchestrated by Dondero in violation of fiduciary duties, Acis had every bit as much culpability as the Debtor or any of the other commonly controlled entities; after all, according to Acis, the same person was making the decisions for all of them. Acis is simply assuming the Court will not hold the delicto of “old Acis” against Reorganized Acis.

87. While the assertion of in pari delicto against a trustee or reorganized debtor is not a settled issue in the Fifth Circuit, it is in most others. In Milbank, in 2009, this Court stated: “Some courts have found that the defense may be asserted against a bankruptcy trustee, as he stands in the shoes of a debtor who may have, through its officers and directors, perpetrated bad acts. The Fifth Circuit has not addressed this issue.” The Court determined that it should “consider how the facts and equities of the individual case interact with the policy in in pari delicto was designed to serve,” which it found presented factual issues that could not be resolved on summary judgment. Milbank, 413 B.R. at 537 (internal citations omitted).

88. Subsequently, however, in 2012, in refusing to apply in pari delicto to a receiver, the Fifth Circuit specified that cases under the Bankruptcy Code were distinguishable because of federal law (Bankruptcy Code § 541) subjecting a trustee to whatever defenses existed against the debtor as of the petition date.

These cases, however, are plainly distinguishable because they rely upon Section 541(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, which limits the debtor estate to interests of the debtor "as of the commencement of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 541(a)(1); see, e.g., Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of PSA, Inc. v. Edwards, 437 F.3d 1145, 1150 (11th Cir. 2006) ("If a claim of [debtor] would have been subject to the defense of in pari delicto at the commencement of the bankruptcy, then the same claim, when asserted by the trustee, is subject to the same affirmative defense.") (internal quotation marks and citations omitted); Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of R.F. Lafferty & Co., v. R.F. Lafferty & Co., Inc., 267 F.3d 340, 356 (3d Cir. 2001) ("[T]he application of the in pari delicto doctrine is affected by the rules governing bankruptcies. . . . [T]he explicit language of section 541 directs courts to evaluate defenses as they existed at the commencement of the bankruptcy."); Matter of Pernie Bailey Drilling Co., Inc., 993 F.2d 67, 70 (5th Cir. 1993) (noting that bankruptcy trustee stood in pari delicto); see also In re Hedged-Invs. Assocs., Inc., 84 F.3d 1281, 1285 (10th Cir. 1996) ("Though the Seventh Circuit's reasoning in Scholes enjoys a certain appeal, both from doctrinal and public policy perspectives, we cannot adopt it in this case. Put most simply, Mr. Sender is a bankruptcy trustee acting under 11 U.S.C. § 541, and bankruptcy law, apparently unlike the law of receivership, expressly prohibits [application of Scholes]"). We therefore are not persuaded by Wells Fargo's analogy to bankruptcy trustees.

Jones v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 666 F.3d 955, 967-68 (5th Cir. 2012).

89. So although the Fifth Circuit has not addressed the issue directly, courts have predicted it will follow the majority rule, and ruled accordingly, as in this 2019 Western District of Texas decision:

It is an open question in the Fifth Circuit whether in pari delicto can be asserted as a defense to claims made by a trustee in a bankruptcy case. In re Today's Destiny, Inc., 888 B.R. 737, 747 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2008). The majority of sister Circuits do apply the in pari delicto defense to claims made by trustees, however, and this Court has no reason to believe that the Fifth Circuit would depart from that majority. See, e.g., Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of PSA, Inc. v. Edwards, 437 F.3d 1145, 1151 (11th Cir. 2006) ("If a claim . . . would have been subject to the defense of in pari delicto at the commencement of the bankruptcy, then the same claim, when asserted by the trustee, is subject to the same affirmative defense.") (citing Grassmuck v. Am. Shorthorn Ass'n., 402 F.3d 833, 837 (8th Cir. 2005); Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. R.F. Lafferty & Co., 267 F.3d 340, 356-57 (3rd Cir. 2001); Terlecky v. Hurd (In re Dublin Sec. Inc.), 133 F.3d 377, 381 (6th Cir. 1997); *Sender v. Buchanan (In re Hedged— [17] Inv. Assocs.), 84 F.3d 1281, 1285 (10th Cir. 1996); Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors of Color Tile v. Coopers & Lybrand, LLP, 322 F.3d 147, 158-66 (2nd Cir. 2003)). Accordingly, the Court will consider the in pari delicto defense raised by Broadway.

90. Even if, as in Milbank, the Court were to consider the particular facts and equities of this case, as in Milbank, supra, there should be only one possible conclusion on the facts of this case, and there are no additional facts that could change it: the equities favor the Debtor's creditors over a windfall to Mr. Terry, who paid $1 million presumably on the basis of expected earnings and not tens of millions of dollars of litigation recoveries (or even if the latter, Acis (Mr. Terry) is still not entitled to a speculator's ransom at the expense of innocent creditors). No amount of factual development can or will change that conclusion.

91. Finally, no duty can be bootstrapped from the rights of Acis's (former) creditors, who will not only be paid in full but who had no such right: under Delaware law, creditors of a limited partnership cannot sue third parties for breach of fiduciary duty, even derivatively, nor can a trustee sue for them. "The claim for breach of fiduciary duties owed to the creditors fails because the Trustee does not allege that the creditors are assignees or members of the Debtors' LLCs. The creditors of the Debtors' LLC thus lack standing to sue the LLC or its members and directors for breaches of fiduciary duties. The Trustee does not have standing to sue on behalf of the creditors who themselves have no standing.” Beskrone v. OpenGate Capital Grp. (In re Pennysaver USA Publ'g, LLC), 587 B.R. 445, 467 (Bankr. D. Del. 2018) (emphasis added). The analysis and result is the same for limited partnerships. Gavin/Solmonese LLC v. Citadel Energy Partners, LLC (In re Citadel Watford City Disposal Partners, L.P.), 603 B.R. 897, 905 (Bankr. D. Del. 2019) (“Given the similarity of the relevant statutory language of the Delaware Limited Liability Company Act to that of the Delaware LP Act, the result here should be no different for limited partnerships.”).

92. Finally, the claim is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and all acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry’s acquisition of the company.

Q. Claim 31: Punitive Damages

93. Acis seeks punitive damages to the extent permitted by law. But, to start, there is no right to recover punitive damages under either federal or state fraudulent transfer laws:

Section 550 does not provide for the recovery of exemplary damages. The trustee has recovered under Texas fraudulent conveyance laws. Under Texas law, exemplary damages are available if the plaintiff has in fact sustained actual loss or injury. Mack v. Newton, 737 F.2d 1343, 1367 (5th Cir. 1984). However, as concluded above, the court cannot invoke state law remedies to circumvent or undermine the specific remedy legislated by Congress for the avoidance of a fraudulent transfer.

Sherman v. FSC Realty LLC (In re Brentwood-Lexford Partners, LLC), 292 B.R. 255, 275 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2003). See also Schlossberg v. Abell (In re Abell), 549 B.R. 631, 667 (Bankr.

D. Md. 2016); Hyundai Translead, Inc. v. Jackson Truck & Trailer Repair Inc., 419 B.R. 749, 760 (M.D. Tenn. 2009); In re Lexington Oil and Gas Ltd., Co., 423 B.R. 353, 376 (Bankr. E.D. Okla. 2010); Tronox Inc. v. Anadarko Petroleum Corp. (In re Tronox Inc.), 429 B.R. 73, 111 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2010) (“Persuasive authority holds that § 550 bars punitive damages notwithstanding their possible availability under state law.”).

94. As set forth herein, Acis’s state law claims can and should be summarily disallowed, which ends any issue concerning punitive damages.

95. Texas law permits punitive damages only if the plaintiff has in fact sustained actual loss on its substantive counts. See, e.g., Sherman, 292 B.R. at 255 (plaintiff could not recover exemplary damages since he did not recover any judgment for breach of fiduciary duty or other applicable cause of action).¹⁴ The claimant must prove by clear and convincing evidence that the harm with respect to which the claimant seeks recovery of exemplary damages results from: (1) fraud¹⁵; (2) malice¹⁶; or (3) gross negligence.¹⁷ Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(a). Acis cannot sustain this burden, nor would such an award be supported under the relevant factors.¹⁸

¹⁵ Constructive fraud does not count. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(6).

¹⁶ “Malice” means “a specific intent by the defendant to cause substantial injury or harm to the claimant.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(7).

¹⁸ “The Court weighs the following six factors in determining the reasonableness of an award: (1) the nature of the wrong; (2) the character of the conduct involved; (3) the degree of culpability of the wrongdoer; (4) the situation and sensibilities of the parties concerned; (5) the extent to which such conduct offends a public sense of justice and propriety; and (6) the net worth of the defendant.” In re Galaz, 2015 Bankr. LEXIS 229, at *30 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. Jan. 23, 2015) (citing Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.011(a)).

96. Finally, any claim for punitive damages is barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and was not asserted prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

R. Claim 32: Alter Ego Liability

97. Acis does not adequately allege a claim for alter ego, even if it was a "claim," which it is not; it is only a means of imposing liability for an underlying cause of action. NMRO Holdings, LLC v. Williams, 2017 Tex. App. LEXIS 9939, *6 (Tex. App. Oct. 24, 2017). Its allegations of common control by Mr. Dondero are insufficient as a matter of pleading and substantively.

98. Acis alleges that the Debtor, Highland Funding, Highland Adviser, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings (the "Alter Egos") are all controlled by Mr. Dondero, and "[e]ach of the Alter Egos should be held liable for any damages awarded under any Count in this Second Amended Complaint, as each is the alter ego of the others." It also requests that the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, and the transfer of the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements be "collapsed" and treated as a scheme by which the Debtor would take over Acis's business. Although it is unclear, Acis appears to also assert under this rubric a claim for unjust enrichment, and requests that "[e]ach of the Highlands, and in particular Highland Capital and Highland Funding, benefitted from the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, and the transfer of the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements even if they were not the direct transferee. Each of the Highlands should be held liable for benefits unjustly received and make restitution to the Debtors and their estates for those benefits.” Acis Claim ¶ 280.

99. Texas law applies the alter ego rules of the state of incorporation or formation. See, e.g., In re The Heritage Org., LLC, 413 B.R. 438, 510 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009); The Richards Group, Inc. v. Brock, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 55139 (N.D. Tex. July 18, 2008). The analyses are often similar. See, e.g., Sell v. Universal Surveillance Sys., LLC, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 219898, at *5 (W.D. Tex. July 6, 2017) (observing that the analyses undertaken by Texas courts, federal courts, and Delaware courts are similar and focus on whether the defendant abused the corporate form).

100. What Acis is essentially alleging is “single enterprise” liability based on common control by Mr. Dondero. Delaware has never recognized the “single business enterprise” theory of alter ego liability, and it was rejected under Texas law by the Texas Supreme Court in SSP Partners v. Gladstone Invs. Corp., 275 S.W.3d 444, 452-54 (Tex. 2008).

101. SSP Partners is instructive in rejecting allegations of common control as sufficient to support alter ego liability without the use or abuse of the corporate form to perpetrate a wrong.

We disregard the corporate fiction, even though corporate formalities have been observed and corporate and individual property have been kept separately, when the corporate form has been used as part of a basically unfair device to achieve an inequitable result. Specifically, we disregard the corporate fiction:

(1) when the fiction is used as a means of perpetrating fraud;

(2) where a corporation is organized and operated as a mere tool or business conduit of another corporation;

(3) where the corporate fiction is resorted to as a means of evading an existing legal obligation;

(4) where the corporate fiction is employed to achieve or perpetrate monopoly;

(5) where the corporate fiction is used to circumvent a statute; and

(6) where the corporate fiction is relied upon as a protection of crime or to justify wrong.

Each example involved an element of abuse of the corporate structure. . .

Creation of affiliated corporations to limit liability while pursuing common goals lies firmly within the law and is commonplace. We have never held corporations liable for each other's obligations merely because of centralized control, mutual purposes, and shared finances. There must also be evidence of abuse.

Id. That is not what Acis does or can allege, i.e., even if, arguendo, it could establish that assets were wrongfully transferred, the “wrong” did not involve any abuse of the form of the entities involved. They are simply a family of commonly controlled entities. As the Fifth Circuit explained in Pan Eastern Exploration Co. v. Hufo Oils, 855 F.2d 1106 (5th Cir. 1988):

“The focus of alter ego proper is on the legal adequacy of the corporation's existence, and the relationship between the corporation and its controlling corporation or individual. Many wholly-owned subsidiary and closely-held corporations are not factually distinct from their owners; many are in fact controlled and operated in close concert with the interests of the owners, and do not have a distinct factual existence-- separate employees, separate offices, separate properties, etc. That is perfectly natural and proper. See, e.g., Edwards Co. v. Monogram Industries, 730 F.2d 977 (5th Cir. 1984) (en banc) (‘shell’ subsidiary was formally distinct and creditor was not misled; corporate disregard under Texas law was therefore improper). The problem arises when such a corporation is not treated as legally distinct, when, in other words, the owners neglect to maintain the formal existence of the corporation as required by law.”

Id. at 1131.

102. Indeed, the absence of a wrong by this Debtor involving the corporate form led the Southern District of New York district court to reject alter ego liability in Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. v. Citibank, N.A., 270 F. Supp. 3d 716 (S.D.N.Y. 2017). Citibank had identified three acts that it asserted constituted fraudulent or wrongful conduct, for which it contended the Debtor had alter ego liability: (i) the Debtor stripped cash and assets from Highland CDO Opportunity Master Fund, L.P. (“CDO Fund”) that would have otherwise been available to satisfy the obligations to Citibank; (ii) the Debtor diverted cash distributions on certain notes (the “HFP Notes”) that would otherwise have been available to CDO Fund to meet its obligations to Citibank; and (iii) the Debtor fraudulently misrepresented the value of the HFP Notes that CDO Fund pledged to Citibank as collateral. Id. at 729-33. The district court held that the first prong of New York’s alter ego test – the Debtor’s control and domination of its affiliates – was satisfied, but that Citibank failed to demonstrate the second prong – a “wrong or fraud” for veil piercing purposes – and so dismissed the alter ego claims seeking to hold the Debtor liable for CDO Fund’s obligations. Id. at 729-33.

103. Here, the allegations are insufficient even as a matter of pleading. See Capmark Fin. Grp. Inc. v. Goldman Sachs Credit L.P., 491 B.R. 335, 349 (S.D.N.Y. 2013). The pleading here is particularly inadequate because, absent “single enterprise” liability (which is unavailable), Acis would actually need to pierce the veil of each entity between the Debtor and any entity found to bear liability. Id. (“[Plaintiff] fails to present facts to adequately allege the "double-pierce" required to lump together two "sister" subsidiaries, the Goldman Lenders and the PIA Funds, even under the liberal notice pleading standard.”). See Outokumpu Eng'g Enters., Inc v. Kvaerner Enviropower, Inc., 685 A.2d 724, 729 (Del. Super. 1996) (stating that in order to disregard corporate formalities separating "sister" subsidiaries, a plaintiff must first pierce the veil separating one subsidiary from its corporate parent, and then surmount "another barrier" by piercing the veil separating the corporate parent from the second subsidiary).

104. Any claim for punitive damages is also barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and was not asserted prior to Mr. Terry’s acquisition of the company.

105. Finally, to the extent that Acis is alleging in this action that Dondero is liable as an alter ego for any liability of the Debtor herein (as it does explicitly in its other newly commenced lawsuits), Acis is violating the automatic stay in this case, as any such rights is property of the bankruptcy estate.

S. Claim 33: Willful Violation of the Automatic Stay

106. Acis alleges that the Debtor and Highland Funding violated the Acis automatic stay by sending the Acis trustee Optional Redemption Notices requesting that the trustee effectuate optional redemptions, and by “demanding” that the trustee take actions to effectuate the optional redemption by the next day. Acis seeks damages, attorneys’ fees and costs, and punitive damages.

107. The claim should be disallowed. The Acis trustee declined to effectuate the redemptions. HCLOF, the equity holder of the CLO entities, took the position that the automatic stay was inapplicable, and the Debtor did not believe that it applied. In addition, the claim is untimely and/or has been waived.

108. The claim is also barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and the acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

T. Claim 34: Payment of Attorneys' Fees and Costs, Including all Allowed Professionals' Fees and Expenses in the Bankruptcy Cases

109. Acis requests that the Court award attorneys' fees in the adversary proceeding under Texas Business and Commerce Code § 24.013, Civil Practice and Remedies Code § 38.001, TUFTA, and all fees in the entire Acis Case from the Debtor based on the Debtor's alleged breach of fiduciary duty. There is no basis in fact or law for such an award, and the Debtor reserves all defenses thereto.

110. Furthermore, the Debtor and/or affiliates already bore the fees of which "reimbursement" is sought: as they were paid by income derived from transferred assets that as a result of the injunction were utilized for the benefit of Acis rather than by the transferees.

111. Finally, the claim is also barred by the Bangor Punta doctrine, as the claim is being brought for the benefit of Mr. Terry and the acts occurred prior to Mr. Terry's acquisition of the company.

U. Reservation of Rights

112. The Debtor reserves its right to supplement or modify this Objection and to assert such further objections, defenses or arguments as may later become available or apparent.

WHEREFORE, the Debtor respectfully requests that the Acis Claim be disallowed in its entirety, and such other and further relief as this Court may deem just and proper.

ATTORNEYS FOR JAMES DONDERO

FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

IN RE:	§
HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.,	§	Case No. 19-34054
Debtor.	§	Chapter 11

JAMES DONDERO’S (I) OBJECTION TO PROOF OF CLAIM OF ACIS CAPITAL
MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC; AND (II)
JOINDER IN SUPPORT OF HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.’S
OBJECTION TO PROOF OF CLAIM OF ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT L.P.
AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC
[Relates to Claim No. 3 and Docket No. 771]

James Dondero (“Dondero”), a creditor, indirect equity security holder, and party in interest in the above-captioned bankruptcy case, hereby files this (I) Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC; and (II) Joinder in Support of Highland Capital Management, L.P.’s Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC and hereby objects to Proof of Claim No. 3 (the “Acis Claim”)¹ filed by claimants Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital

Management GP, LLC (collectively, “Acis”) in the above-captioned chapter 11 case of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the “Debtor”). In support thereof, Dondero respectfully represents as follows:

I. BACKGROUND

1. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy Code”) in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware, Case No. 19-12239 (CSS) (the “Delaware Court”).

2. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court.

3. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the Debtor’s Bankruptcy Case to this Court [Docket No. 186].

4. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed that certain Motion of the Debtor for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the “Settlement Motion”). This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the “Settlement Order”).

5. The Settlement Order approved, among other things, certain operating and reporting protocols [Docket Nos. 354, 466].

6. In connection with the Settlement Order, an independent board of directors was appointed on January 9, 2020, at the Debtor’s general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. (the “Independent Board”).

7. The Acis Claim incorporates the complaint from litigation commenced by the trustee of the former estate in the Acis bankruptcy case (the “Acis Case”) at a time when Acis had unpaid creditors (the “Acis Complaint”)².

8. On June 23, 2020, the Debtor filed its Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Docket No. 771] (the “Highland Objection”). The Highland Objection raises many issues that will potentially be litigated in connection with the Acis Complaint. The Highland Objection is set for hearing on August 6, 2020 at 9:30 a.m.

II. RELIEF REQUESTED

9. For the reasons set forth in the Highland Objection, Dondero believes that the Acis Claim should be disallowed in its entirety and therefore files this objection to the Acis Claim and joinder in support of the Highland Objection.

10. Terry, whose claim has been, or soon will be, satisfied in full under Acis’s plan, should not be granted a $75 million (or more) windfall at the expense of this Debtor’s creditors and its estate. As detailed at length in the Highland Objection, the Acis Claim attempts to circumvent established legal principles to obtain a recovery—exponentially larger than Acis’s debt—not for the Acis estate (it no longer exists), not for Acis’s creditors (they have all been paid or will be soon satisfied), but for Terry himself. Each of Acis’s causes of action fails for a variety of independent reasons, many of which stem from the fact that Terry is ultimately seeking a personal recovery. The Court should see the Acis Claim for what it is—a vexatious attempt to obtain an undue personal windfall at the expense of the Debtor, its estate, and its creditors and equity owners. The Court should disallow the Acis Claim in full.

² Specifically, the Acis Claim incorporates the Second Amended Complaint (Including Claim Objections and Objections to Administrative Expense Claims) filed in Adversary No. 18-03078 in the Acis Case.

III. STANDING

11. Dondero, as a creditor, indirect equity security holder, and party in interest, has standing to file this claim objection and joinder pursuant to sections 502(a)-(b) and 1109(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and Rule 3007 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the “Bankruptcy Rules”).

12. Section 502(a) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that “[a] claim or interest, proof of which is filed under section 501 of this title, is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest, including a creditor of a general partner in a partnership that is a debtor in a case under chapter 7 of this title, objects.” 11 U.S.C. § 502(a).

13. In the event an objection is filed by a party in interest, section 502(b) provides that the court, after notice and hearing, shall determine the allowance of such claim. 11 U.S.C. § 502(b).

14. While neither sections 101, 502, 1109 nor any other section in the Bankruptcy Code specifically define the term “party in interest,” section 1109(b) provides a non-exclusive list of constituents that fall within the meaning of “party in interest” for the purposes of a chapter 11 proceeding. See Kipp Flores Architects, L.L.C. v. Mid-Continent Cas. Co., 852 F.3d 405, 413 (5th Cir. 2017) (“The Bankruptcy Code does not provide an exclusive definition of a party in interest, but the Code broadly includes debtors, creditors, trustees, indenture trustees, and equity security holders among the parties entitled, e.g., to notice of proceedings in the case.”).

15. Specifically, section 1109(b) provides that “[a] party in interest, including the debtor, the trustee, a creditors’ committee, an equity security holders’ committee, a creditor, an equity security holder, or any indenture trustee may raise and may appear and be heard on any issue in a case under [Chapter 11].” 11 U.S.C. § 1109(b). This section “has been construed to create a broad right of participation in Chapter 11 cases.” In re Global Industrial Technologies,

Inc., 645 F.3d 201, 210 (3d Cir. 2011) (quoting In re Combustion Engineering, Inc., 391 F.3d 190, 214 n.21 (3d Cir. 2004)).

16. Parties in interest for the purpose of claims objections “include not only the debtor, but anyone who has a legally protected interest that could be affected by a bankruptcy proceeding.” Adair v. Sherman, 230 F.3d 890, 894 n. 3 (7th Cir. 2000). “Any ‘party in interest’ may object to a proof of claim and request the court to determine its correct amount.” Kipp Flores Architects, L.L.C. v. Mid-Continent Cas. Co., 852 F.3d 405, 413 (5th Cir. 2017). See also 4 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY P 502.02 (16th ed. 2020) (“In the context of a chapter 11 case in particular, the term ‘party in interest’ expressly includes the debtor, the trustee, a creditors’ committee, an equity security holders’ committee, a creditor, an equity security holder, or any indenture trustee.”).

17. Here, Dondero has standing to be heard on any issue in this Chapter 11 case, including this claim objection proceeding, because he is (i) a creditor; (ii) an equity security holder; and (iii) a party in interest as those terms are interpreted under the Bankruptcy Code.

18. Dondero is a creditor of the Debtor because he has prepetition claims against the Debtor and its estate, including, without limitation, those asserted through proofs of claim numbers 141, 142, and 145 filed by Dondero on April 8, 2020.

19. Dondero is also an equity security holder through his role as the President and sole shareholder of Debtor’s General Partner, Strand Advisors, Inc. (“Strand”). As the Debtor’s General Partner, Strand maintains a 0.2508% partnership interest in the Debtor.

20. Accordingly, as both a creditor and equity security holder, Dondero qualifies as a “party in interest” under the Bankruptcy Code and has the right to file this claim objection and be heard on any other issue in this Chapter 11 case.

IV. LEGAL STANDARD

21. Section 502 of the Bankruptcy Code provides, in pertinent part, as follows: “[a] claim or interest, proof of which is filed under section 501 of [the Bankruptcy Code], is deemed allowed, unless a party in interest . . . objects.” 11 U.S.C. § 502.

22. The Bankruptcy Code establishes a burden-shifting framework for proving the validity and amount of a claim. “A proof of claim executed and filed in accordance with the [Bankruptcy Rules] shall constitute prima facie evidence of the validity and amount of the claim.” Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f); see also In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). A proof of claim loses the presumption of prima facie validity under Bankruptcy Rule 3001(f) if an objecting party produces evidence sufficient to rebut at least one of the allegations that is essential to the claim’s legal sufficiency. See In re Fidelity Holding Co., Ltd., 837 F.2d 696, 698 (5th Cir. 1988); McGee v. O’Connor (In re O’Connor), 153 F.3d 258, 260 (5th Cir. 1998). Once such allegations are rebutted, the burden shifts back to the claimant to prove its claim by a preponderance of the evidence. In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006). Despite this shifting burden, “the ultimate burden of proof always lies with the claimant.” Id. (citing Raleigh v. Ill. Dep’t of Rev., 530 U.S. 15 (2000)).

V. OBJECTION AND JOINDER

23. For the reasons set forth in the Highland Objection, Dondero hereby objects to the Acis Claim and asserts it should be disallowed as articulated in the Highland Objection.

24. Dondero hereby joins in and adopts in full, and hereby incorporates by reference, the Highland Objection and the objections and supporting legal arguments asserted therein. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, Dondero specifically objects to the Acis Claim on the following grounds:

- a. The Acis Claim for breach of fiduciary duty should be disallowed because sole owners do not owe fiduciary duties to their company.
- b. Even if fiduciary duties had been owed, this part of the Acis Claim should be disallowed because Acis cannot sue others for participating in a scheme in which it, as one of the entities it alleges was commonly owned and controlled, was equally culpable.
- c. The fraudulent transfer claims should be disallowed because a debtor cannot recover avoidance claims for its own benefit under section 550(a) of the Bankruptcy Code.
- d. All claims asserted by Acis on its own behalf against prior equity holders or third parties that were not pending when Mr. Terry purchased the company should be disallowed under the Bangor Punta doctrine.

VI. RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

25. Dondero reserves the right to amend and/or supplement this objection and joinder, including to assert additional claim objections and legal arguments. Dondero further reserves the right to participate in discovery respecting and the hearing on the Highland Objection, including to make argument, present evidence, and examine witnesses.

CONCLUSION

Dondero respectfully requests that the Court enter an order disallowing the Acis Claim and granting him and the Debtor such other and further relief to which they may be justly entitled.

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
DALLAS DIVISION

RESPONSE OF JAMES DONDERO TO THE OFFICIAL COMMITTEE OF UNSECURED CREDITORS' EMERGENCY
MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION BY THE DEBTOR [Relates to Docket No. 808]

James Dondero ("Dondero"), a party in interest, hereby files this Response to the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors' Emergency Motion to Compel Production by the Debtor [Docket No. 808] (the "Motion"). In support thereof, Dondero respectfully represents as follows:

BACKGROUND

1. Through the Motion, the Committee seeks the production by the Debtor of a wide variety of documents, including emails, to aid in its investigation of potential Estate Claims¹ and other potential causes of action against third parties, which includes "any and all estate claims and causes of action against Dondero, [Mark] Okada, other insiders of the Debtor, and each of the

¹ Capitalized terms not otherwise defined herein shall have the meaning ascribed to them in the Motion.

Related Entities,² including promissory notes held by any of the foregoing.” In accordance with the Final Term Sheet, the Committee also seeks “any privileged documents or communications that related to the Estate Claims.”

2. The Final Term Sheet grants the Committee access to privileged documents and communications in the Debtor’s possession, custody, or control specifically related to the investigation and pursuit of the Estate Claims. The term sheet provides that “solely with respect to the investigation and pursuit of Estate Claims, the document production protocol will acknowledge that the Committee will have access to the privileged documents and communications that are within the Debtor’s possession, custody, or control (“Shared Privilege”).”

3. Accordingly, the Proposed Protocol of the Committee seeks, among other things, documents, emails, and other electronically stored information (ESI) exchanged from or between nine different custodians, who include Dondero.³ The Committee has requested all ESI for the nine custodians, including without limitation, email, chat, text, Bloomberg messaging, or any other ESI attributable to the custodians.

4. The Debtor’s document production to the Committee in this case is subject to the terms and conditions of the Agreed Protective Order [Docket No. 382] entered into between the Committee and the Debtor on January 21, 2020. Under this protective order and the Committee’s

² As described in the Motion, “[t]he Final Term Sheet defines “Related Entities,” as, collectively, “(i) any non-publicly traded third party in which Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, or Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis . . . has any direct or indirect economic or ownership interest, including as a beneficiary of a trust; (ii) any entity controlled directly or indirectly by Mr. Dondero, Mr. Okada, Mr. Grant Scott, or Mr. John Honis . . . ; (iii) MGM Holdings, Inc.; (iv) any publicly traded company with respect to which the Debtor or any Related Entity has filed a Form 13D or Form 13G; (v) any relative . . . of Mr. Dondero or Mr. Okada each solely to the extent reasonably knowable by the Debtor; (vi) the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust and Dugaboy Investment Trust; (vii) any entity or person that is an insider of the Debtor under Section 101(31) the Bankruptcy Code, . . . ; and (viii) to the extent not included in [the above], any entity included in the listing of related entities in Schedule B hereto (the “Related Entities Listing”).” (Dkt. 354-1, at 52.) The Related Entities Listing lists thousands of entities related to the Debtor. CLO Holdco i[s] a shareholder and limited partner of various entities on the Related Entities Listing.”

Proposed Protocol, any document not including one of the agreed-upon set of privilege terms (that is, those likely to identify attorney-client privileged communications or attorney work product, but not those related to the Estate Claims) would be produced to the Committee for review, subject to the Agreed Protective Order's provisions on "No Waiver" and "Claw Back of Inadvertently Produced Protected Materials." Thereafter, after review by Debtor's contract attorneys, the Committee's Proposed Protocol suggests that non-privileged documents and "privileged documents related to the Estate Claims would be produced to the Committee on a rolling basis."

5. While the Agreed Protective Order provides these and other protections to the Debtor related to the production of documents and information in this proceeding, the order provides that it does not apply to any third-party beneficiaries. Specifically, the order states that it "precludes non-Debtor affiliates, and their Representatives, including any entity affiliated with, owned by, or controlled in any way, directly or indirectly, by James Dondero and his affiliates (the "Dondero Parties") from seeking to enforce or rely on this Order in any way, unless any of the Dondero Parties is asked (formally or informally) to produce or receive Discovery Materials thereby becoming a "Party" as defined herein."⁴

6. On July 9, 2020, Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor" or "Highland") filed Debtor's Motion for Entry of (I) A Protective Order, or, in the Alternative, (II) an Order Directing the Debtor to Comply with Certain Discovery Demands Tendered by the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, Pursuant to Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure 7026 and 7034 [Docket No. 810].

7. Because the production of certain privileged information is implicated by the Committee's Motion, including as it relates to Dondero, both individually and in connection with his affiliated entities, Dondero is a Party that may seek relief with this Court in connection with the Agreed Protective Order.

RESPONSE

8. While Dondero takes no position as to the relief requested by the Committee in the Motion, he files this Response to ensure his rights are protected in connection with the production of any confidential or privileged documents and other information sought by the Committee.

9. Under the Final Term Sheet, the Committee is entitled to “privileged documents and communications that are within the Debtor’s possession, custody, or control” with respect to its investigation and pursuit of Estate Claims. In turn, members of the Committee will be entitled to access and review such information. Because of the broad scope of access granted to the Committee through the Final Term Sheet and the Shared Privilege, each of the committee members will have access to much more material than in the typical case.

10. One such member, Joshua Terry (“Terry”), along with his wholly-owned or controlled entities, Acis Capital Management GP, LLC, and Acis Capital Management, L.P. (collectively, “Acis”), would enjoy access to this privileged and confidential information. As the Court is aware, Terry and Acis have commenced a number of proceedings against Dondero, Highland, and various related parties, which are not intended to benefit Highland’s creditors generally, but are meant to benefit primarily Terry himself. Because of these pending actions, if the Court grants the Motion, the Court should restrict Terry and Acis’s access to the information sought by the Committee, especially that which is privileged or confidential.

11. While Dondero has found no case law directly on point, there is an analogous situation. Under Rule 2004 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (the “Bankruptcy Rules”), the Court may order the examination of any entity. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 2004. Rule 2004 further provides that the Court may order the examination and the production of documentary evidence concerning any matter that relates “to the acts, conduct, or property or to the liabilities and financial condition of the debtor, or to any matter which may affect the administration of the debtor’s estate, or . . . any matter relevant to the case or the formulation of a plan.” Fed. R. Bankr. P. 2004(b).

12. The scope of discovery under Rule 2004 is very broad. Courts have likened the examination to be in the nature of a “fishing expedition.” In re Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., 384 B.R. 373, 400 (Bankr. W.D. Pa. 2008).

13. Although discovery under Rule 2004 is extremely broad, “once an adversary proceeding or contested matter is commenced, discovery should be pursued under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and not by Rule 2004.” In re SunEdison, Inc., 572 B.R. 482, 490 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2017); In re Enron Corp., 281 B.R. 836, 840 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2002) (citing Snyder v. Soc’y Bank, 181 B.R. 40, 42 (S.D. Tex. 1994), aff’d sub nom. In re Snyder, 52 F.3d 1067 (5th Cir. 1995)); In re Bennett Funding Group, Inc., 203 B.R. 24, 28 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1996) (“The well recognized rule is that once an adversary proceeding or contested matter has been commenced, discovery is made pursuant to the Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7026 et seq., rather than by a [Rule] 2004 examination.”). Because Rule 2004 is designed to provide the examining party with “broad power to investigate the estate, it does not provide the procedural safeguards offered by Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7026.” In re Bennett Funding Grp., Inc., 203 B.R. 24, 28 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1996).

14. In this case, the Committee and the Debtor have, through the Final Term Sheet, agreed to allow the Committee to conduct broad discovery concerning the Debtor’s assets and financial affairs (akin to a 2004 examination) to aid in the Committee’s investigation and pursuit of potential Estate Claims and other causes of action. Thus, to the extent there are pending proceedings to which the Committee or any of its members is a party, they may be affected by this discovery.

15. While the Committee itself has not commenced an adversary proceeding or contested matter against the Debtor, Dondero, or any related entities, Terry has done so. Terry, either on behalf of himself or his wholly-owned and controlled entity, Acis, has commenced a number of adversary proceedings and state court lawsuits against the Debtor, Dondero, a number of Debtor's employees, and certain related entities. These proceedings remain pending and discovery may (for the most part) be taken by the parties.

16. Specifically, the pending proceedings commenced by Terry are (i) by Terry, related to his 401(k), in state court against Dondero and Surgent; (ii) by Acis in state court against former Highland attorneys including in-house counsel; (iii) by Acis in this Court against Highland and its related parties (stayed by Highland's chapter 11 filing); (iv) by Acis against Dondero and certain Highland employees, recently commenced in this Court; and (v) the frivolous motion for contempt by Acis against Dondero, Highland, and certain Highland employees and others, if Acis ever gets around to actually filing it (it has been before the Court as an exhibit to the motion for relief from stay filed in connection with it).

17. If the Committee and each of its members is given access to the confidential and privileged information of Dondero and his affiliates related to the Estate Claims, Terry and by extension his wholly owned and controlled entity, Acis, Highland's competitor and litigation adversary, stand to gain an unfair advantage by accessing proprietary, confidential, or privileged information of Dondero and related parties for the purposes of pending litigation. Allowing Terry to participate in such discovery in Highland's bankruptcy case would circumvent the procedural protections provided by Bankruptcy Rule 7026 and give Terry unprecedented access to sensitive information he may use to gain undue leverage in these various actions.

18. Moreover, with the existence of the multitude of the pending actions commenced by Terry and Acis against Dondero and Highland's employees, there is another significant problem posed by Terry's service on the Committee: now that Terry has sued (sometimes in a different case) not only Dondero but numerous other Highland employees, Terry's access to the Committee's privileged information in the Highland case may create significant problems for Dondero and Highland's employees in fulfilling their duties to Highland.

19. The successful operations of Highland, especially during this critical time, require the close attention and candid disclosures of its employees, including in-house counsel, to the Independent Board and the Committee. Dondero, for example, often exchanges views with the Independent Directors. In doing so he must be cognizant of the possibility that his words may prejudice him in pending litigation.

20. The foregoing concerns were first brought to the Court's attention by Dondero in his filed Comment⁵ to the Motion for Leave to File Redacted Quarterly Operating Reports [Acis Docket No. 1161] (the "QOR Motion") filed by Acis in the Acis case, pursuant to which Acis seeks to conceal critical portions of its quarterly operating report from all creditors and interested parties in the Acis case while at the same time utilizing this Court's time and resources to pursue litigation against Dondero, Highland, its employees, and certain related parties. The QOR Motion remains pending. As discussed in the Comment to the QOR Motion, the advantages to Terry resulting from the Shared Privilege and access to information provided to the Committee are significant.

⁵ See Docket No. 1168 filed in the Acis case.

21. The observations and concerns raised by Dondero in that Comment are even more striking and relevant in this contested matter. If Terry and Acis are allowed access to the privileged and confidential information being sought by the Committee, such information will undoubtedly be utilized by Terry and Acis in their pursuit of Dondero and Highland. Terry, either on behalf of himself or Acis, has litigation pending against (i) Highland; (ii) Highland's founder, Mr. Dondero; (iii) various Highland related entities; (iv) Highland's former attorneys; and (v) Highland's own employees. Given the extraordinary breadth of these actions, there is an existential threat of abuse by Terry of his access to the information available to the Committee, including through the Shared Privilege, to the detriment of Dondero, the Debtor-related parties, Debtor's employees, and the Debtor's estate.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above, in the event the Court grants the Motion, Dondero respectfully requests that the Court bar Terry's access to the information sought by the Committee in the Motion. The information sought may be used by Terry and Acis to circumvent the discovery protections under Bankruptcy Rule 7026 to gain an unfair advantage in the litigation Terry has commenced against Dondero, Highland, Highland's employees, and various related parties.

UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (together, “UBS”), by and through their undersigned counsel, hereby submit this objection (the “Objection and Joinder”) to Proof of Claim No. 23 (the “Acis Claim”)² and joinder in the Debtor’s Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (Dkt. No. 771, the “Debtor Objection”). In support thereof, UBS respectfully states as follows:

BACKGROUND

1. The Debtor in these proceedings is Highland Capital Management, L.P., an investment management firm that manages a variety of hedge funds, structured investment vehicles, and mutual funds.

2. On October 16, 2019, the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for chapter 11 relief in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware. Pursuant to an order dated December 4, 2019, the Debtor’s bankruptcy proceedings were transferred to this Court under the above-captioned case number.

3. On December 31, 2019, Acis filed the Acis Claim against the Debtor for “[a]t least $75,000,000.00.” (Claim No. 23 at 2.) The Acis Claim is predicated upon Acis’s thirty-four count Second Amended Complaint (including Claim Objections and Objections to Administrative Expense Claim) filed on June 20, 2019 as Adversary No. 18-03078 in the Acis Case, which purports to seek unspecified compensatory damages, prejudgment and other interest, attorneys’ fees, and punitive damages against the Debtor and other non-Debtor Highland entities. (Claim No. 23 Addendum at 1.) The Acis Claim also purports to state a claim for “[p]ost-petition interest, attorneys’ fees, costs, and other expenses [that] continue to accrue” (Id.) Finally, Acis reserves rights to recoupment and setoff and states that the Acis Claim is “secured to the extent permitted under Sections 506 and 553 of the Bankruptcy Code.” (Id. at 1-2.)

4. On June 23, 2020, the Debtor filed the Debtor Objection, requesting summary disposition of all claims asserted and for the Acis Claim to be disallowed in its entirety. (See Debtor Obj.). The Debtor Objection is set for hearing on September 17, 2020 (continued from the original August 6, 2020 hearing date).

RELIEF REQUESTED

5. Any party in interest may object to the allowance of a claim in a chapter 11 case. 11 U.S.C. § 502. The Court, after notice and a hearing, shall disallow a claim against the Debtor to the extent “such claim is unenforceable against the debtor and property of the debtor, under any agreement or applicable law . . .” 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)(1). The “ultimate burden” of persuasion with respect to the claim’s validity and amount is on the claimant. See In re Armstrong, 347 B.R. 581, 583 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2006).

6. Pursuant to section 502 of the Bankruptcy Code, Rule 3007 of the Bankruptcy Rules, and Rule 3007-1 of the Local Rules of the United States Bankruptcy Court of the Northern District of Texas, and as a party in interest in this chapter 11 case, UBS objects to the Acis Claim, joins in the Debtor Objection, and asks this Court to disallow the Acis Claim in its entirety.

JOINDER AND OBJECTION

7. UBS joins in the legal arguments and authorities set forth in the Debtor Objection, except as described in Sections Q (punitive damages) and T (attorneys’ fees).

8. The Debtor Objection argues that Acis has no right to recover punitive damages under (i) federal or state fraudulent transfer laws, (ii) other state law, or (iii) the Bangor Punta doctrine. (Debtor Obj. ¶¶ 93-96, 104.) The Debtor Objection further asserts that Acis is not entitled to attorneys' fees because (i) "[t]here is no basis in fact or law for such an award," (ii) "the Debtor and/or affiliates already bore the fees," and (iii) the Bangor Punta doctrine applies to this portion of the Acis Claim. (Id. ¶¶ 109-111.) UBS agrees that Acis should not be entitled to recover punitive damages or attorneys' fees here, but arrives at this conclusion through a different legal analysis.

9. Tronox Inc. v. Anadarko Petroleum Corp. (In re Tronox Inc.) explains that some state fraudulent transfer statutes allow punitive damages, and some do not. 429 B.R. 73, 111, n.24 (S.D.N.Y. 2010) ("Missouri and Ohio allow punitive damages for actual fraudulent transfer claims, but Connecticut does not.") Several courts have previously placed Texas among those states allowing punitive damages for successful actual fraudulent conveyance claims, holding that "TUFTA authorizes an award for punitive damages." Nichols v. YJ USA Corp., 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22450, at *27 (N.D. Tex. – Dallas Div. Mar. 18, 2009); see Mullins v. TestAmerica, Inc., 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53518, at *29 (N.D. Tex. – Dallas Div. Aug. 2, 2006)

10. Cases have also recognized that "[a]ttorneys' fees are specifically provided for in TUFTA." Id. at *30; see also TEX. BUS. & COM. CODE ANN. § 24.013.

11. UBS recognizes these legal bases for a fraudulent conveyance claim, when appropriate, to support an award of punitive damages and/or attorneys' fees. However, because UBS agrees that Acis's state law claims, including those under TUFTA, are subject to summary disallowance and agrees with the Debtor's arguments regarding the Bangor Punta doctrine, UBS concurs on these alternative grounds with the Debtor Objection's conclusion that Acis is not entitled to an award of punitive damages or attorneys' fees.

12. Except as already noted, UBS joins in the remainder of the Debtor Objection's legal arguments.³ Without limiting such arguments, UBS emphasizes the following:

13. By its own admission, Acis was equally culpable in any alleged wrongful conduct now at issue in the Acis Claim. (See Claim No. 23 Addendum at 24 n.15 (“[Acis GP and LLC] were also under Highland Capital and Dondero’s control at this time and were active participants in all of Highland Capital and Dondero’s schemes to denude the Debtors...”)).

14. In addition to its own wrongful conduct, Acis has successfully restructured and, on knowledge and belief, Acis’s creditors have been or are well on their way to being paid in full. These facts help to show why summary disposition of the portion of the Acis Claim predicated on counts 5-25 of the second amended complaint is appropriate, despite the fact that “recovery under section 550(a) is subject to a case-by-case analysis of the facts of the case and the equities” involved. (Debtor Obj. ¶ 34; see also id. ¶¶ 37, 40.) This is a case where the facts (and this Court’s familiarity with them) unquestionably negate the need for section 550(a) recovery without further factual development.

15. Josh Terry was one of only a handful of non-insider Acis creditors, and under the Acis Case restructuring plan, he and the other non-insider creditors expect to recover 102% of their claim amounts. (See Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee’s Third Amended Joint Plan, Acis Case Dkt. No. 827 at 17-18.) Further, Terry negotiated a purchase of 100% of the reorganized Acis equity interests in exchange for a $1 million reduction to his claim amount. (Id.) This means that Terry has already (or will soon have) recovered in full for the events at the center of his claim

(and gained sole ownership of a soon-to-be reorganized entity), and he is not entitled to—nor should he receive—an additional $75 million windfall in his favor.

16. In contrast, claims against the Debtor here are numerous and far exceed the Debtor's assets, meaning creditors are unlikely to recover in full, let alone 102% of the allowed amount of their claims, or additional future profit. (See e.g., Dkt. No. 804.) As a threshold matter, these facts reveal why summary disposition of much of the Acis Claim is appropriate, and why, when coupled with the Debtor Objection's legal arguments, the Acis Claim should be disallowed in its entirety.

RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

17. UBS reserves its right to amend, modify, or supplement this Objection and Joinder and to assert any additional objections to the Acis Claim at any appropriate time, including at any related hearing.

CONCLUSION

18. For the foregoing reasons, UBS respectfully requests the Court enter an order disallowing the Acis Claim in full and award such other relief as may be just and proper.

OMNIBUS RESPONSE TO OBJECTION TO PROOF OF CLAIM OF ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P. AND ACIS CAPITAL MANAGEMENT GP, LLC

Acis Capital Management, L.P ("Acis LP") and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC ("Acis GP," together with Acis LP, "Acis" or "Reorganized Acis") file this Response¹ (the "Response") to the: (i) Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Docket No. 771] (the "Highland Claim Objection"), filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P. (the "Debtor" or "Highland"); (ii) James Dondero's (I) Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management

¹ Acis reserves the right to further respond or brief any issue set forth herein.

GP, LLC; and (II) Joinder in Support of Highland Capital Management, L.P.'s Objection to Proof of Claim of Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Docket No. 827] (the "Dondero Claim Objection," with the Highland Claim Objection, the "Fraudsters' Claim Objection"), filed by James Dondero (individually "Dondero" and together with Highland the "Fraudsters"); and (iii) UBS (I) Objection to Proof of Claim Acis Capital Management L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC and (II) Joinder In the Debtor's Objection [Docket No. 891] (the "UBS Claim Objection," with the Highland Claim Objection and the Dondero Claim Objection, the "Acis Claim Objections"), filed by UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (together "UBS" and with Dondero and Highland, the "Objectors"), and respectfully states as follows:

I. BRIEF OVERVIEW²

1. Acting through the officers and employees it paid handsomely, including its president and in-house counsel, Highland orchestrated a blatant and obvious actual and constructive fraudulent transfer scheme in order to denude Acis, its own client to whom it owed fiduciary duties. Thus, it is altogether fitting to refer to those who perpetrated that fraud by what they are: "Fraudsters." The primary crux of the Fraudsters' objection to Acis's claim is that Mr. Terry, who purchased the equity in the reorganized Acis for value, post-confirmation, will receive a "windfall" if Acis is allowed to recover more than the aggregate amount of unsecured claims in Acis's bankruptcy case. The Fraudsters' argument is nothing short of breathtaking because they argue this Court should reward them for their fraud. At base, Highland argues it can plan and execute a prepetition systematic, actual fraudulent dismantling of a business—veritably picking the business's financial bones clean—solely for the benefit of the Fraudsters themselves, all with impunity. The fact the Fraudsters owed Acis fiduciary, contractual and other duties while the Fraudsters were picking Acis's pockets compounds the injury. The Fraudsters argue that equity favors, nay demands, this result because, after two-plus years of intense, "highly contentious" litigation and through the post-confirmation management and operation of Acis by Mr. Terry, Acis's creditors may be repaid from its ordinary operations.

2. According to the Fraudsters' argument, and despite: (a) the express language of Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code, providing for recovery of, inter alia, fraudulent transfers for the "benefit of the estate," (b) the Fifth Circuit's holding in Mirant, and (c) the fact that Mr. Terry paid $1 million for the new equity under Acis's confirmed plan (which includes Acis's ability to recover on the Acis estate's claims), any recovery by Acis should be limited to the amount of unsecured claims and the innocent new equity holder should be stripped of the benefit of his bargain, i.e. excess recovery on the estate causes of action after payment of Acis's legitimate creditors. Indeed, under the Fraudsters' view of the world, old equity of Acis—Dondero and Okada—or equity of Highland—again, beneficially Dondero and Okada, should reap the rewards of their misdeeds. The Fraudsters argue the estate claims are worthless, Mr. Terry paid $1 million simply for the privilege of laboring to be paid back part of what he was already owed, and Mr. Terry and Acis must simply sit back and wait to get sued again and again by one of the thousands of entities the Fraudsters control. The only party or parties receiving a windfall if the Fraudsters succeed in their argument are the Fraudsters themselves. The Code, and equity, demands a different result.

II. RELEVANT AND FACTUAL BACKGROUND

3. Given the long, detailed history of Acis's bankruptcy and the hundreds of pages of opinions already written by both this Court and the District Court, Acis will endeavor to keep this section of its response brief and will try to avoid repetition. To generally refresh the Court's recollection, to compile certain of the key facts for the benefit of other parties, and because the primary thrust of the Fraudsters' Objection is focused on equity, Acis will recount certain key facts which are provided in greater detail in Acis's live complaint [Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket Nos. 157-159] (the "Complaint") against Highland et al. and pending in this Court under Adv. No. 18-03078 (generally referred to herein as the "Acis Adversary" or "Adversary") and attached hereto as Exhibit "1."³ Terms not defined herein have the meanings ascribed to such terms by the Complaint.

4. This saga began in June 2016 when Highland wrongfully terminated Joshua Terry ("Mr. Terry") and later concocted a false narrative in an attempt to deprive him of the economic benefit of his limited partnership interest in Acis because Mr. Terry "was not a 'yes man' willing to let Dondero have his wrongheaded way." See Final Award dated October 20, 2017 (the "Terry Arbitration Award"); see also In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 584 B.R. 115, 119-20 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018). Highland then sued Mr. Terry, who countersued back and successfully compelled arbitration. Over 13 months later, the arbitration panel entered the Terry Arbitration Award and granted Mr. Terry an approximately $8 million claim.

5. Within days of the Terry Arbitration Award and while Mr. Terry sought to expeditiously convert the Terry Arbitration Award into a judgment, Highland, through its officers and employees, including members of its general counsel's office, began forming Cayman offshore entities that Highland controlled, if not owned, for the sole and exclusive purpose of receiving Acis's pilfered assets. See, e.g., Exhibit "2" (email of J.P. Sevilla forming Highland CLO Management, Ltd.).⁴ On October 24, 2017, a mere two business days after the

Terry Arbitration Award, the post-arbitration heist began in earnest.⁵ Thereafter, the transfers proceeded at breakneck speed. The following is a brief overview of the post-arbitration transfers:

October 24, 2017	Acis Loan Funding Shares	Highland and Highland CLO Funding f/k/a Acis Loan Funding

December 19, 2017	Dugaboy Investment Trust (Dondero's trust) and Okada's limited partnership interests in Acis LP and member interests in Acis GP	Neutra, Ltd. (controlled by Highland and ultimately owned by Dondero and Okada)
November - January 2018	Attempted transfer of Acis portfolio management agreements	Highland, Highland CLO Management, LLC (ultimately owned and controlled by Highland)

6. At all relevant times, Dondero was the President of Acis and of Strand Partners, Inc., Highland's general partner—in other words, Dondero stood at the apex of both companies.⁶

7. This narrative may sound familiar to many of the creditors in this case because it fits with Highland's modus operandi. First, Highland creates an intricate multi-tentacled web of inter-related shell companies that it controls in an attempt to insulate itself liability and, using a tentacle of the web contracts with a third party. The Fraudsters are the ultimate control party, however. Second, it steals assets from the investment in which the third party has an interest and Highland is not entitled. Then, it engages in scorched earth litigation with the victim (all while stiffing its own lawyers) in an effort to abscond with the stolen asset and grind the victim into economic submission. See, e.g., Case No. 19-34054, Docket No.1 (Highland's 30 Largest Creditor List). Finally, as judgment day approaches, it transfers assets away from any entity that would actually have the wherewithal to satisfy any judgment that the hapless victim has toiled for many years and spent significant monetary and non-monetary resources to recover.

8. Back to the saga. In order to thwart the transfer of the Acis PMAs through a purported "reset"—the ultimate step that would complete Highland's audacious plan—Mr. Terry filed involuntary petitions against Acis LP and Acis GP in late January 2018. Shortly after the involuntary filings, this Court held its first hearing on a motion pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 303(f). At that hearing, the Court quickly surmised some of the inherent problems: 1) that Highland and its employees had massive conflicts of interest with Acis, an entity it controlled in every way at the time; 2) that transfers of valuable assets were afoot for little to no consideration; and 3) the reset transactions that would have stripped Acis of its revenue generation should be subjected to Section 363 scrutiny. See Tr. 328:16-335:18, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 28 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Feb. 7, 2018). Tellingly, over the course of Acis's entire bankruptcy case, which spanned almost exactly 365 days, the Fraudsters never sought to have its purported "reset" transactions pass 363 muster.

9. Ultimately, this Court granted orders for relief in Acis's cases in April 2018,⁷ converted the cases to ones under Chapter 11, and appointed a Chapter 11 Trustee, Robin Phelan. Deeply dissatisfied that its plan to purloin with the remainder of Acis's assets via purported resets that were actually thinly disguised fraudulent transfers had been thwarted, the Fraudsters sought a different route by which to abscond with Acis's revenue stream. On April 30, 2018, Highland CLO Funding—an entity "controlled by Highland in every way"—issued the first of what would be two optional redemptions. See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *53 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019). Recall that Highland continued to provide all meaningful services to Acis during this time, both sub-advisory and shared services, including legal services because Acis had no employees and no address other than Highland's corporate office at the Crescent. The purpose of the optional redemption was to liquidate the various CLOs, i.e. convert them to cash (in large part by selling a significant amount of the Acis CLO's loans into a Highland-managed vehicle to facilitate Highland's issuance of CLOs), payoff the tranches of debt, and remove Acis as portfolio manager for no consideration. See Preliminary Injunction Order ¶ 13. [Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 21] ("[T]he Optional Redemption Notices essentially demand the liquidation of property currently under the control of Acis LP, as portfolio manager, and, in effect, the PMAs themselves, which are defined as Assets under the Indentures and are property of the Acis LP estate. Indeed, the main, if not sole, purpose of the redemptions appears to be to remove Acis LP as portfolio manager and terminate its primary asset, the PMAs.").

⁷ Those orders for relief remain on appeal at the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. The sole appellant therein is Neutra, Ltd—an entity controlled by Highland. See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *22 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019); see also Case No. 19-10846 (5th Cir. 2019). Indeed, Highland sought to employ and compensate counsel for Neutra. See Case No. 19-34054, Docket No. 68.

10. When the newly appointed Chapter 11 trustee, now the decision-maker for Acis, objected to the optional redemption pursuant to the terms of the applicable indentures, Highland and Highland CLO Funding commenced the Acis Adversary and proactively sued the Trustee to effectuate the liquidation of the Acis CLOs.⁸ When this Court learned of the redirected attack on Acis's PMAs—property of its estate—it issued the first of three TROs based, in no small part, on the obvious violations of Acis's bankruptcy stay (the "First TRO"). See Temporary Restraining Order [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 256].

11. On the eve of the hearing on a motion to extend the First TRO, Highland CLO Funding (controlled by Highland), through its newly hired separate counsel apprised this Court that the first optional redemption notices were withdrawn, in "an effort to try to bring, as I believe the Court has requested and others have, some sanity to this process."⁹ That sanity didn't last long. That sanity didn't last long. Despite the fact that Highland CLO Funding (controlled by Highland) had just withdrawn the first optional redemption notices roughly 24 hours before, again, in an effort to bring "some sanity to this process,"¹⁰ and all the parties and this Court acted in reliance on this withdrawal in not extending the First TRO, Highland CLO Funding gave notice to the Trustee that it was again demanding another optional redemption seeking the complete liquidation of the CLOs, this time into a warehouse facility to facilitate Highland's issuance of CLOs in its own name.

12. Nonplussed by the automatic stay, its duties to Acis, or this Court's TRO, Highland, through its officers and employees, nevertheless engaged in a stealth liquidation of the Acis CLOs, ultimately selling off approximately $300 million of the approximately $2 billion in collateralized loans and not redeploying those sale proceeds to purchase new collateral for the CLOs. In June 2018, days after the issuance of the second optional redemption notice, Highland brazenly advised the Chapter 11 trustee that it would liquidate the remaining $1.7 billion in CLO assets under management in less than 20 hours into a warehouse facility to facilitate its own CLO issuance. This request resulted in a second TRO, the Ex Parte TRO. See Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 310 & Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 3].

13. Ultimately, all of the Fraudsters' pre- and post-petition fraudulent acts culminated in the decision by the Chapter 11 Trustee to terminate Highland as sub-advisor and shared services provider. See Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 464. In connection with the termination of Highland as sub-advisor and shared services provider, the Trustee stated "I believe that Highland Capital Management is deliberately mismanaging the CLOs to end-run your orders." Tex. Feb. 7, 2018).¹¹ Later, this Court found "it appears that Highland (prior to the Debtor-Acis's rejection of the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement), intentionally liquidated assets of the CLO SPEs and built up cash without reasonable justification." See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. 			and Administrative Claim

15. On June 20, 2019, well prior to Highland's petition date and in compliance with this Court's order to file a consolidated complaint, Acis filed the Complaint.

16. As early as June 12, 2018, this Court suggested an alternative: that some party pay in enough value to the registry of the Court to pay all of Acis's non-Highland creditors (which categorically were either Mr. Terry, potentially the law firms hired to fight Mr. Terry, and a small handful of vendors and numerically were approximately $11 million) pending an appeal of the Terry Arbitration Award, the victor of the appeal would be entitled to the funds in the Court's registry and the Court would dismiss the Acis bankruptcy cases (hereinafter referred to as the "Right Thing"). See Tr. 126:19-20, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 289 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. June 12, 2018) ("I've never understood why someone didn't just put $11 million in escrow."); see also Tr. 49:25-52:6, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 328 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. June 22, 2018) ("Why doesn't someone just put ten or $11 million in escrow, and make this all go away?"); Tr. 286:17-287:7, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 396 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. July 6, 2018) ("So you've lost as much money as you could have put it in escrow in the beginning of the year, right, to just pay everybody in full, or almost . . .").

17. Ostensibly either 1) the Fraudsters, who stood to and actually did lose control of Acis and the assets in its estate, not only including the ultimate handsome economic benefit Highland derived from the PMAs (then, over $8 million annually) but also each and every cause of action set forth in Acis's live complaint to which they are now defendants,²⁵ or 2) Highland ²⁵ Which include, but are not limited to, actual and constructive fraudulent conveyance, breach of fiduciary duty and breach of contract actions.

CLO Funding, again an entity controlled in every way by Highland and allegedly whose ox was purportedly getting most gored by the inability to reset the Acis CLOs, had sufficient incentive during the entire pendency of Acis's bankruptcy cases to choose the Right Thing. Indeed, as the litigation proliferated and the misdeeds continued, the Court repeatedly raised ("dangled" to use the Court's parlance) the prospect of the Right Thing as an option prior to confirmation of Acis's bankruptcy plan, particularly in light of the tremendous cost to the Fraudsters if Acis's plan was confirmed. See Tr. 141:12-142:16, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 556 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Aug. 29, 2018) ("Apparently, putting an escrow of, you know, back then, you know, nine million dollars would have been fine, and I'll lift the stay, you can go forward in state court and try your luck at appealing the arbitration award, for which there are very few ways you can get it overturned on an appeal."); Tr. 49:3-19, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 445 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. July 25, 2018) ("You all can do whatever you want as long as there's a pot of money there that will pay all the creditors in full and then some for administrative expenses. And all of this can be over, you know have a happy summer I think I've said. I'm out of here. But that very, very easy, easy, easy cheesy solution you know no one seemed to give it one bit of thought.").

18. Despite multiple urgings by the Court and multiple mediations, the Fraudsters failed to do the Right Thing prior to the penultimate moment—confirmation of Acis's plan when all parties' rights were inextricably changed.

III. RELEVANT PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND AND BURDEN OF PROOF

19. On December 31, 2019, Acis filed its Proof of Claim at Claim No. 3-1 in this bankruptcy case (the "Proof of Claim"). The Proof of Claim asserts the claims and causes of action contained in the Complaint and incorporates the Complaint by reference. After Acis filed the Proof of Claim, Highland, Dondero, and UBS filed the Claim Objections.

20. The Proof of Claim has prima facie validity and the Objectors must produce evidence sufficient to overcome this presumption. See 11 U.S.C. §§ 501, 502 and Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001; see also In re Fid. Holding Co., 837 F.2d 696, 698 (5th Cir. 1988) ("[A] party correctly filing a proof of claim is deemed to have established a prima facie case against the debtor's assets."). The Objectors "must then produce evidence rebutting the claimant or else the claimant will prevail." Id. at 698.

IV. PROCEDURAL OBJECTIONS

21. First, Highland is barred by equitable principles, i.e. res judica, estoppel, waiver, etc. from now arguing that claims against it are barred in their entirety. Highland argues that permitting Acis to recover on its Proof of Claim would cause Mr. Terry (although the claimant is Acis) to receive a "windfall." However, any recovery on account of the Complaint cannot be a "windfall." Acis's claim is for the value of property wrongfully stripped from Acis and for damages suffered by Acis as a result of Highland's bad acts—for which Highland had abundant notice. Under applicable Fifth Circuit precedent, Acis's claims against Highland and other third parties were required to be (and were) specifically and unequivocally preserved as part of the Plan and Confirmation Order. See Dynasty Oil & Gas, LLC v. Citizens Bank (In re United Operating, LLC), 540 F.3d 351, 355 (5th Cir. 2008); see also In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Nos. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 294, at *167-211 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019). In fact, the Fifth Circuit has stated that express preservation of claims is, in part, a notice provision. Id.; see also Wooley v. Haynes & Boone, L.L.P. (In re SI Restructuring Inc.), 714 F.3d 860, 864 (5th Cir. 2013).

22. Here, there is no question that Highland, a disputed creditor of Acis, received notice of Acis's Plan. While Highland forcefully objected to the Plan on numerous bases, at no point did Highland object to the preserved causes of action. Highland waived or forfeited any argument that Acis's claims are capped pursuant to Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code. See Douglass v. United Services Auto. Ass'n, 79 F.3d 1415, 1420 (5th Cir.1996) (discussing the wavier of issues contained in magistrate judge's findings of fact and conclusions of law that, "[w]aiver is different from forfeiture. Whereas forfeiture is the failure to make the timely assertion of a right, waiver is the intentional relinquishment or abandonment of a known right."); see also 11 U.S.C. § 1141(a) ("[P]rovisions of a confirmed plan bind the debtor, any entity issuing securities under the plan, any entity acquiring property under the plan, and any creditor, equity security holder, or general partner in the debtor, whether or not the claim or interest of such creditor, equity security holder, or general partner is impaired under the plan and whether or not such creditor, equity security holder, or general partner has accepted the plan[.]"); Great Lakes Higher Educ. Corp. v. Pardee (In re Pardee), 193 F.3d 1083, 1086 (9th Cir. 1999) ("If a creditor fails to protect its interests by timely objecting to a plan or appealing the confirmation order, it cannot later complain about a certain provision contained in a confirmed plan[.]") (internal quotations omitted).

23. To the extent that Highland argues that Acis's Plan provides creditors and new equity more than they "deserve," the time to make that objection was in connection with Acis's plan confirmation, rather than a year and a half later.²⁶ "In chapter 11, even if there is a windfall

²⁶ Neutra, Ltd. and Highland argued to both this Court and the District Court that the Plan violated the absolute priority rule. The District Court stated "that Highland and Neutra argue that, without a market test of Acis' value, the bankruptcy court could not have determined whether Terry was overcompensated when he received Acis' equity in exchange for a $1 million reduction in his claim. But there was a market valuation in the present case. In LaSalle the Supreme Court suggested (but did not decide) that the termination of exclusivity—i.e., allowing any interested person to submit a competing reorganization plan—can constitute a sufficient market test of a debtor's value." Neutra, Ltd. v. Terry (In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 604 B.R. 484, 538 (N.D. Tex. 2019) (emphasis added). If Highland, Neutra, or any other party believed under the Plan the equity or Reorganized Acis was receiving a "windfall" such party could have and should have filed a competing plan. See id. at 539 (there was no after the confirmation of the plan, the plan provisions control." Tronox Inc. v. Kerr McGee Corp. (In re Tronox Inc.), 503 B.R. 239, 333 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013).

24. Second, the Objectors do not cite any evidence in support of the Claim Objection. Instead, the Objectors seem to argue under a summary judgment or Rule 12(b)(6) standard that the Court should disallow certain aspects of Acis's claim as a matter of law. However, Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9014 provides that Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 8, 9, and 12 do not apply to this matter, absent order of the Court. Additionally, the Objectors have failed to provide evidence to rebut the Proof of Claim's validity, the conclusory statements about Acis's Proof of Claim should be ignored. See In re Today's Destiny, Inc., No. 05-90080, 2008 Bankr. LEXIS 3577, at *13 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Nov. 26, 2008) ("Conclusory statements are insufficient to rebut the presumption under Fed. R. Bankr. P. 3001(f)"). Nor have the Objectors properly moved for summary judgment under Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7056. Accordingly, the Acis Claim Objection should be overruled.

V. SUBSTANTIVE RESPONSE

A. Acis Can Seek Recovery Under Section 550(a) for Avoidable Transfers to Highland Even if All Creditors are Paid in Full Under the Plan.

25. Contrary to applicable precedent in this Circuit and elsewhere, Highland asserts that all of Acis's avoidance claims should be summarily disallowed because Acis's plan of reorganization provides that all creditors are paid in full, and therefore there can be no "benefit to the estate" from any recovery under Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code.²⁷ In support of its exclusivity during Acis's bankruptcy as a Chapter 11 trustee was appointed contemporaneous with the conversion of Acis's bankruptcy from Chapter 7 to 11); see also 11 U.S.C. § 1121(c). Terry testified that in agreeing to reduce his claim against Acis by $1 million in exchange for the equity in Acis, he valued the litigation. Tr.170:18-171:1, In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 790 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Dec. 11, 2018).

²⁷ Notably, the Debtor asserts that "[t]his is a summary basis for disallowance of all avoidance claims alleged in Claims 5-25," which seek avoidance of numerous fraudulent transfers and preferential transfers under Sections 544, 547, 548(a)(1)(A), and 548(a)(1)(B); however, it is Count 26 of Acis's Complaint that pleads for recovery under Section 550.

argument, Highland makes numerous specious claims, including that because there is no post-confirmation estate, there can be no benefit to the estate. The facts and relevant case law belie Highland's argument.²⁸

26. Highland further contends, ironically, that equitable principles support its position. In order to contort the equities in a light it deems favorable, Highland repeatedly conflates Mr. Terry with Reorganized Acis, claiming that Mr. Terry will somehow receive a windfall—all while turning a blind eye to the prepetition fraudulent scheme perpetrated against Acis by the Fraudsters, which is the basis of Acis's claim against Highland.

27. Acis does not seek a windfall for itself or Mr. Terry; Acis merely seeks to recover its property or the value of its property to make itself whole and (a) reconstitute its CLO "ecosystem" as it was prior to Highland's massive fraudulent transfer scheme to denude Acis after Mr. Terry's wrongful termination and in the months after Mr. Terry's arbitration award and prior to the filing of Acis's involuntary bankruptcy case and (b) remedy the damage wrought by the Fraudsters and their controlled affiliates post-petition.

28. Mr. Terry paid good money for the Acis equity—$1 million—to obtain just that, and Highland itself had the opportunity to purchase the Acis equity, yet again failed to make the economically rational choice.

²⁸ Indeed, Highland's own director Retired Judge Russell Nelms discussed the Mirant case in connection with Highland's decision to continue to prosecute the appeal of Acis's Orders for Relief (through a related entity Neutra, Ltd., but Highland proposed to pay Neutra Ltd.'s legal fees related to the appeal). In sum, Retired Judge Russell Nelms testified that it was in Highland's financial interest for Acis's bankruptcy case to be "undone" (Acis disputes this is a plausible outcome of any pending appeal). Retired Judge Nelms stated "in a bankruptcy setting, as opposed to just a state court setting, that the potential recovery on account of fraudulent transfers is much broader, much more unlimited than it would be in the context of a state court lawsuit." Tr. 114:22-115:1, In re Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P., Case No. 19-34054, Docket No. 479 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Feb. 19, 2020). At no point did Retired Judge Nelms take the position that Mirant precluded recovery, in fact he took the opposite position, that Mirant increased Highland's fraudulent transfer/ litigation exposure.

1. Highland Wholly Misconstrues Fifth Circuit Law and this Court's Rulings, and Ignores Cases That Are Inapposite to Their Position to Argue What It Thinks the Law Should Be, Not What it Is.

29. The primary issue here is whether any recovery resulting from Acis's avoidance actions will be "for the benefit of the estate," within the meaning of Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code, after creditors have been paid in full under its plan of reorganization. Under Fifth Circuit case law, including Mirant, Texas Rangers, and Duke Energy (all cases cited by Highland), as well as case law from the Second, Eighth and Ninth Circuits, recovery of Acis's property, which was fraudulently transferred away by Highland, would not result in a windfall or surplus recovery, but would simply make Acis whole, restoring the ecosystem as it was prior to the filing of its bankruptcy case.

30. Highland claims that Mirant is "entirely consistent with the Debtor's position," but the opposite is true. Even though Mirant's creditors had been paid in full, the Fifth Circuit held that the post-confirmation special litigation entity created under Mirant's plan (MCAR) had standing to pursue an avoidance action under Section 544(b) against Mirant's lender. MC Asset Recovery LLC v. Commerzbank A.G. (In re Mirant Corp.), 675 F.3d 530, 533-34 (5th Cir. 2012). In its decision, the Fifth Circuit expressly rejected the Southern District of New York's district court opinion in Adelphia—upon which Highland heavily relies—"that because the relevant creditors had been paid in full and would receive no benefit from avoiding a transfer, Adelphia Recovery Trust did not have standing under 544(b) to assert an avoidance claim." Id. at 533 (declining to follow Adelphia Recovery Trust v. Bank of Am., N.A., 390 B.R. 80 (S.D.N.Y. 2008)). Rather, taking the approach of the Eighth and Ninth Circuits, the Mirant court held that "a trustee's right to avoid a transfer is tested at the petition date . . . [and] persist[s] until avoidance will no longer benefit the estate under § 550," even when unsecured creditors are paid in full. Mirant, 675 F.3d at 534 (citing Stainaker v. DLC, Ltd., 376 F.3d 819 (8th Cir. 2004); Acequia, Inc. v. Clinton (In re Acequia, Inc.), 34 F.3d 800 (9th Cir. 1994)) (emphasis added).

31. With respect to the meaning of "benefit to the estate," in Acequia, followed by Mirant, the Ninth Circuit stated:

Courts construe the "benefit to the estate" requirement broadly, permitting recovery under section 550(a) even in cases where distribution to unsecured creditors is fixed by a plan of reorganization and in no way varies with recovery of avoidable transfers. In several cases, for example, courts have refused to dismiss avoidance actions even though the unsecured creditors had received full distributions under a plan of reorganization.

Acequia, Inc. v. Clinton (In re Acequia, Inc.), 34 F.3d 800, 811 (9th Cir. 1994.); accord Tronox Inc. v. Anadarko Petroleum Corp. (In re Tronox Inc.), 464 B.R. 606, 613-14 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2012) ("Faithful to the language of the statute, the courts have given a very broad construction to the phrase 'benefit of the estate.' Benefit for purposes of § 550 includes both direct benefits to the estate (e.g., an increased distribution) and indirect ones (e.g., an increase in the probability of a successful reorganization).").

32. Further, in Tronox, also following Acequia, the Southern District of New York bankruptcy court stated:

Once some benefit to the estate is established, the cases do not use the "benefit of the estate" clause in § 550(a) to impose a cap on recovery. In other words, the "for benefit of the estate" clause in § 550 sets a minimum floor for recovery in an avoidance action - at least some benefit to the estate - but does not impose any ceiling on the maximum benefits that can be obtained once that floor has been met. For example, in Acequia, the debtor was permitted to pursue the recovery of fraudulent transfers even though creditors had been paid in full because recovery would benefit the estate by aiding continued performance under the plan. This construction of § 550(a) - virtually universal among courts that have substantively considered the issue - reflects § 550's underlying purpose of restoring the estate to its position prior to the transfer.

Tronox, 464 B.R. at 614 (emphasis added); accord Mt. McKinley Ins. Co. v. Lac D'Amiante Du Quebec Ltee (In re ASARCO LLC), 513 B.R. 499, 506 (S.D. Tex. 2012) (commenting that the Tronox court also "found no statutory support for the position that the concept of 'the estate' is limited to creditors. Instead, it found that the Bankruptcy Code authorized a broad view of what benefitted the estate."). The Tronox court went on to find that "the prospect of recovery in [the] adversary has already benefitted Tronox's estate." 464 B.R. at 615. Similarly, the prospect of recovery in the Acis Adversary benefitted Acis's estate when Mr. Terry agreed to provide value for the new equity issued under the plan.

33. As Highland notes, in Texas Rangers, this Court followed the reasoning in Mirant, holding that the former debtor had standing to bring an avoidance action under Section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code (rather than under Section 544 and without recovery under Section 550), when creditors were paid in full under the plan. See Paradigm Air Carriers, Inc. v. Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners (In re Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners), 498 B.R. 679, 707-09 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2013) (Jernigan, J.). Further, commenting on the implications of Section 550, this Court stated that "Mirant makes clear that 'benefit to the estate' does not hinge on whether a Chapter 5 action will result in a pool of assets being garnered for the benefit of unsecured creditors," and finding that "to the extent equities matter" to a standalone 548 action, even some marginal benefit to the equity holders (not unsecured creditors) of the debtor weighed in favor of finding benefit to the estate. Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners, 498 B.R. at 709.

34. In Duke Energy, a post-confirmation litigation trust sought to recover the distributed proceeds from a leveraged buyout from the ultimate parent company for the benefit of non-lender creditors first and the original lenders second. The original lenders were also the new equity holders under the confirmed plan. Notably, the Duke litigation trust only brought claims pursuant to Sections 544 and 550. Predictably, the parent company defendant objected and argued that the original lenders should not be able to essentially reverse the lending transaction underlying the LBO and also that recoveries should be limited to those amounts necessary to satisfy the claims of the non-lender creditors only, i.e. no return to new equity.

35. After holding that Section 544, in light of the Supreme Court's ruling in Moore v. Bay, 284, U. S. 4 (1931) and the Fifth Circuit's rulings in In re Moore, 608 F.3d 253, 260 (5th Cir. 2010) and Mirant, permitted the Duke Energy litigation trust to avoid the entirety of the fraudulent transfers uncapped by the amount of claims, the Duke Energy court went on to adopt cases allowing application of equitable principles under the guise of Section 550 and prohibit the original lenders, now unsecured claimholders and new equity in the reorganized debtors from "[walking] away with ownership of [debtor] and several hundred million dollars in loan payments" and "[recouping] the bulk of the loan they made with full knowledge of the risk." 500 B.R. at 482. In weighing the harms, the Duke Energy court noted that a balancing of equities is warranted "when the estate is comprised primarily of claims derivative of a wrongdoer with no independent right to recover, particularly when the wrongdoer has been released from liability by the confirmed plan." Id. at n. 11. With this view of the windfall to be received by the original lenders, now new equity, one can perhaps understand why the Duke Energy court departed from Mirant's adoption of Acequia and its reasoned holding.

36. Nevertheless, even assuming Duke Energy was rightly decided, as outlined below, the equities do not favor capping claims in the instant case. Although the Duke Energy court notes "examples of cases where courts have denied or limited recovery based on the equitable principles underlying the Bankruptcy Code and Section 550(a) in particular" and the court emphasized that "[t]he one consistent vein traveling through all of these cases is the fact-specific nature of the inquiry." Crescent Res. Litig. Trust v. Duke Energy Corp., 500 B.R. 464, 481-82 (W.D. Tex. 2013). Thus, this Court should "consider the factual circumstances of this case, and the equitable impact" of Acis's potential recovery. See id. at 482.

37. Indeed, equitably capping Acis's claim would result in the opposite of what Duke Energy stands for. It would reward the wrongdoers—here the Fraudsters—by allowing them to abscond with no liability for their fraudulent conduct and punish the non-Highland creditors and new equity purchaser who had nothing to do with the fraudulent acts and were not parties to the fraudulent transactions.

2. It is Never Equitable To Permit A Wrongdoer To Wholly Escape Liability For A Brazen Fraudulent Transfer Scheme at The Expense of the Estate

38. In its Complaint, Acis alleges in considerable detail the factual circumstances describing the ALF PMA Transfer, ALF Share Transfer, Note Transfer, 2017-7 Equity and 2017-7 Agreement Transfers, and the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement, comprising Highland's massive fraudulent scheme (at Dondero's direction and in coordination with its affiliates) to dismantle and steal Acis's business. See Complaint ¶¶ 70-74, 79-124 (Exhibit "1"). All of these acts were committed by Highland employees while being paid by Highland.

39. In the Highland Claim Objection, Highland completely ignores the underlying facts supporting Acis's avoidance claims. Rather, Highland emphasizes that any perceived benefit of Mr. Terry by Acis's recovery of its property is inequitable and therefore bars avoidance or any recovery by Acis. This is wrong. First, it is the Fraudsters who were the bad actors with unclean hands that perpetuated the fraudulent scheme against Acis. Second, it is not uncommon or untoward for a creditor to accept a reduction of its claim in a chapter 11 plan for equity in the reorganized debtor, as Mr. Terry did here. Highland itself could have bid on Acis's equity, but it chose not to do so. Highland's attempt to conflate Mr. Terry with Acis and complain of a "windfall" is not only meritless, but also misdirection from Highland's own bad acts and poor decision-making in the Acis bankruptcy.

40. Moreover, following Highland's logic, any chapter 11 plan of reorganization that resulted in full payment of creditors' claims would apparently bar any Chapter 5 causes of action by a reorganized debtor, no matter if such cause of action was specifically and expressly preserved in the plan, as was the case here. This is not and cannot be the law.

41. Through its claim, Acis is attempting to recover its property (or the value of such property)—which in large part consists of its valuable rights under the ALF PMA, the ALF Shares, the Note, the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements. In other words, Acis seeks to reconstitute its ecosystem as it existed before the Fraudsters' destructive acts. Even if the Court were to find that Acis's monetary recovery under Section 550 should be limited, any such limitation should not limit Acis's ability to avoid the fraudulent and preferential transfers under 544, 547 or 548—which should result in a return of Acis's rights under such agreements and related documents, i.e. recreation of the Acis ecosystem that Highland sought to destroy. Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners, 498 B.R., at 706-07.

42. Acis's position is aptly summarized by the court in Acequia:

[W]e think recovery of the transfers at issue in Acequia's section 544(b) actions sufficiently "benefits the estate" to enable their continued prosecution. First, recovery would secure performance of Acequia's postconfirmation obligations under the plan of reorganization, including continued payments to Prudential pursuant to a long-term note. And, second, recovery would reimburse the bankruptcy estate for the costs of pursuing fraudulent conveyance litigation against Clinton.

More importantly, a contrary determination would lead to the anomalous conclusion reached by the magistrate judge that Clinton engaged in fraudulent conduct by transferring Acequia's funds with the actual intent to hinder and delay creditors, but that Acequia has no remedy for such conduct because it would not "benefit" from recovery of the funds. The magistrate judge was concerned about preventing a "windfall" to Acequia. We think, however, that requiring Clinton to disgorge wrongfully-transferred funds will merely make the bankruptcy estate whole. Moreover, even if the recovery did constitute a "windfall," Acequia has a greater equitable claim to the transferred funds than does Clinton, the wrongdoer.

Acequia, 34 F.3d at 812 (internal citations omitted) (emphasis added).

43. This is precisely what Acis is doing in asserting its claim against Highland—it is attempting to recover its property from Highland, who is the wrongdoer, and make itself whole. Leaving Acis with no remedy to do so would fail to serve any principles of equity or justice. It would deprive Acis of significant assets it had on the petition date (these claims), but it would leave Acis subject to myriad claims, including Highland's own pre-petition and administrative claims.²⁹ As identified in Tronox, there has already been benefit to Acis's estate because these very causes of action were part of the inducement for Mr. Terry to purchase the equity.

44. One final point on equity: it appears that the Fraudsters are now, post-confirmation of Acis's Plan, attempting to go backwards in time and get the benefit of the bargain they neither wanted nor made, i.e., choosing the Right Thing. Unfortunately for the Fraudsters, the window on doing the Right Thing closed when this Court confirmed Acis's Plan. Further, it is wholly inequitable to allow the Fraudsters to engage in "highly contentious" litigation throughout Acis's case, including appealing three separate matters, delaying the litigation and its comeuppance while Acis shouldered the entirety of the business risk of operating and paying its legitimate creditors from operations, and then flit away with their ill-gotten goods. The Fraudsters should not be permitted, now, to engage in revisionist history.

²⁹ Curiously, Highland later argues in its Objection that it received no benefit from the audacious fraudulent transfer scheme. Plugging one's nose very hard and accepting that fallacious argument as true, for a brief moment, it is impossible to reconcile, then, Highland's position as an unsecured and administrative claimant who could benefit from recoveries in the Acis Adversary with its argument that all recoveries from all defendants therein should be capped. If Highland is correct on both counts, Highland is cutting off its nose to spite its face.

B. Acis Can and Should Recover the Overpayments

1. The Overpayments Were Unauthorized or Ultra Vires Acts, Such Amounts Belong to Acis, and Highland Must Return Such Amounts to Acis.

45. As it has done before, Highland attempts to frame the overpayments of at least $7,021,924.00 to Highland (the "Overpayments"), in violation of Acis's limited partnership agreement (the "LPA"), as a contract dispute. This is not a contract dispute, and Acis did not plead the basis for return of the Overpayments in contract. Rather, Acis pleaded that the Overpayments were made to Highland without authority, or were ultra vires, in violation of Section 3.10(a) of the LPA, to which Highland is not a party. Accordingly, such Overpayments rightfully belong to Acis, and Acis properly asserted its claim against Highland for return of such amounts.

46. The gravamen of Highland's ultra vires objection is that Delaware essentially abolished the ultra vires doctrine pursuant to Delaware General Corporation Law ("DGCL") Section 124, and that the DGCL is not applicable to partnerships (or LLCs) such as Acis. This objection lacks merit because, as explained below, Section 124 of the DGCL, which pertains to ultra vires as defense to contract actions, is inapplicable to Acis's claim that the Overpayments were unauthorized acts, and therefore void or voidable. Further, Acis does not attempt to argue that the DGCL is also the law for partnerships in Delaware—however, Delaware courts do analogize principles from corporate law, such as whether ultra vires acts constitute a breach of fiduciary duty, to partnerships and LLCs. Thus, ultra vires, in the context pleaded by Acis, is applicable to the Overpayments and serves to render such acts as void or voidable.

47. Highland argues that the ultra vires doctrine was essentially eliminated by statute, under DGCL Section 124, and is therefore inapplicable. It is Section 124, however, that is inapplicable to Acis's claim. Section 124 involves the traditional use of ultra vires as a defense to a contract action, which is not what Acis pleads. See Carsanaro v. Bloodhound Techs., Inc., 65 A.3d 618, 653-55 (Del Ch. 2013) ("Put simply, Section 124 only addresses capacity or power. It does not address whether a corporate act was validly authorized"). Moreover, Acis did not plead that it was entitled to return of the Overpayments pursuant to the DGCL. Rather, Acis pleaded that the Overpayments were not authorized or were ultra vires acts under the LPA, and are therefore void or voidable. Complaint ¶ 128. (Exhibit "1").

48. The court in Carsanoro, cited by Highland, further explains:

[J]udicial decisions have long used the Latinism "ultra vires" loosely as a more erudite synonym for "invalid" or "void," rather than confining the term to its traditional role as a defense to contract actions. . . . Delaware corporate decisions (including my own) have deployed the term colloquially by using it to describe a range of situations, such as (i) the failure of corporate action to comply with the requirements of a provision of the DGCL, (ii) the failure of corporate action to comply with the requirements of the charter, (iii) the failure of a board to comply with the terms of a stock option plan, (iv) acts of waste, and (v) acts that could be found to be breaches of fiduciary duty. None of these uses of ultra vires involves the issue addressed by Section 124.

Id. at 653-54 (emphasis added). Here, Acis pleaded that the Overpayments were in violation of the LPA—analogue to the failure of a corporate action to comply with the requirements of the charter. Further, such acts could be found to be breaches of fiduciary duty. It is in this context, not under Section 124, that Acis makes its ultra vires claim in connection with the Overpayments.

49. Again relying on the DGCL, Highland also argues that the ultra vires doctrine does not apply to partnerships, and therefore Acis's claim for return of the Overpayments should be disallowed. But, as Acis pleads, Delaware courts may apply doctrines, including with respect to "illegal or ultra vires action[s]," existing under corporate law to partnerships by analogy. See In re Mesa Ltd. P'ship Preferred Unitholders Litig., Civil Action No. 12,243 (Consolidated), 1991 Del. Ch. LEXIS 214, at *20 (Dec. 10, 1991) (citing Delaware case law covering breach of fiduciary duty under corporate law, whether an "illegal or ultra vires action" constitutes a breach, and commenting that "[c]ase rulings construing statutory corporation law are not necessarily binding precedents as to issues arising under contractual partnership agreements but they may often be helpful by analogy"). Acis is not asking that the Court apply the DGCL to partnerships. Rather, as discussed above, Acis contends that the ultra vires or unauthorized acts resulting in the Overpayments, which were in violation of the LPA, are analogous to the ultra vires acts of a corporation which fail to comply with the corporation's charter.

50. Aside from the issue of whether the ultra vires doctrine applies under Delaware law, as Acis pleaded, the Overpayments were clearly unauthorized under the LPA. Indeed, the arbitration panel expressly found that the Overpayments were "in excess of the contractual limit imposed by Section 3.10(a) of the ACIS LPA" and awarded Terry damages in the amount of $1,755,481.00 for what his profit distributions would have been, had excess expenses not been paid. See Complaint ¶¶ 65-67 (Exhibit "1"). Consistent with the arbitration panel's findings, Acis contends that the Overpayments should now be returned to Acis—the Overpayments belong to Acis, not Highland.

51. Based on the foregoing, Highland's objection to Acis's claim (under Counts 1-4 of its Complaint) that the doctrine of ultra vires is inapplicable to the Overpayments, should be overruled.

2. Acis's claims of Turnover, Money Had and Received, and Conversion in Connection with the Overpayment (Counts 2-4) are Proper and Should be Allowed.

52. With respect to Acis's claim for turnover of the Overpayments, under Section 542(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Highland argues Section 542(a) cannot apply because the issue of whether the Overpayments are property of the estate is in dispute. While Acis acknowledges that the Court must first decide whether the Overpayments resulted from unauthorized or ultra vires acts and are therefore rightfully Acis's property, Acis may still plead turnover and the causes of action upon which a turnover action depends in the same adversary proceeding. Acis need not bring a turnover action only after prevailing in an avoidance action relating to the same property. See, e.g., Olsen v. Reuter (In re Reuter), 499 B.R. 655, 669 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 2013) ("[W]hile . . . a turnover action may not be appropriate if the right is disputed, that principle is not applicable here because the turnover claim is ancillary relief to the declaratory judgment claim. Once this Court resolves the dispute on the latter claim, it can then order turnover as a remedy."). Further, requiring separate adversary proceedings would counter principles of judicial economy. Accordingly, the Court should overrule Highland's objection to turnover of the Overpayments.

53. Second, with respect to Acis's claim for money had and received, Highland argues that because the Overpayments were made pursuant to valid contracts, money had and received is inapplicable. Highland fails to recognize, however, that Acis's claim that the Overpayments were improper and rightfully belong to Acis is not based on contracts between Acis and Highland (the Sub-Agreements), but is based on the LPA, which is not a contract between Acis and Highland. As Acis pleaded, even though Highland had knowledge of the LPA, it still invoiced and accepted the Overpayments from Acis. Thus, Acis properly pleaded money had and received because Highland "obtained money which in equity and good conscience belongs to" Acis. See Amoco Prod. Co. v. Smith, 946 S.W.2d 162, 164 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1997, no pet.).

54. Moreover, even if the Court did entertain Highland's "express contract" defense, Texas courts have specifically found that overpayments under an express contract may be recovered under equitable theories. See Norhill Energy LLC v. McDaniel, 517 S.W.3d. 910, 919

(Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2017, pet. denied). Accordingly, Acis's claim for money had and received (based in equity) is proper, and Highland's objection should be overruled.

55. Third, with respect to conversion, Acis specifically pleaded that Highland wrongfully exercised dominion and control over Acis's property—the Overpayments—which was inconsistent with Acis's rights. See Complaint ¶ 142. Further, Acis pleaded facts supporting the elements of conversion: (i) Acis had the right to possession of the Overpayments; (ii) that the Overpayments are personal property; (iii) Highland wrongfully exercised dominion and control over the Overpayments; and (iv) Acis suffered damages in the amount of at least $7,021,924.00. See id. ¶¶ 140-42; see also Lawyers Title Co. v. J.G. Cooper Dev., Inc., 424 S.W.3d 713, 718 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2014, pet. denied) (outlining the elements for conversion).

56. Although Acis agrees that it would need to show that such funds were segregated for purposes of conversion, and Acis does not currently have evidence showing segregation of the Overpayments, discovery has not yet commenced in the Acis Adversary. Accordingly, Acis reserves all rights with respect to its conversion claim and the ability to show, following discovery or otherwise, that such funds were segregated. And, to the extent we cannot show segregation of the Overpayments, Acis would withdraw its claim of conversion.

57. Additionally, to the extent Highland's objections to money had and received and conversion are in essence pleading objections, such as for failure to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6), Bankruptcy Rule 9014 provides that Rules 8, 9, and 12 do not apply to contested matters, such as this. The Court may therefore also overrule Highland's objections on this basis.

58. Finally, Acis disputes Highland's argument that application of the two-year statute of limitations to its claims for money had and received and conversion precludes any recovery by Acis of damages due to Overpayments occurring prior to January 31, 2016. In the two years prior to Acis's petition date, Acis was incapable of bringing these actions against Highland because both parties were controlled by Dondero. Indeed, Dondero, in various capacities and in coordination with other Highland employees, directed these acts against Acis. Accordingly, the limitations period should be equitably tolled from the time of the payments until the Acis's petition date—the period during which Dondero controlled Acis. In order to show that equitable tolling is warranted, Acis must show that its "failure to satisfy the statute of limitations [] result[s] from external factors beyond [its] control; delays of [its] own making do not qualify." See Hardy v. Quarterman, 577 F.3d 596, 598 (5th Cir. 2009) (quoting In re Wilson, 442 F.3d 872, 875 (5th Cir. 2006)). Acis's failure to pursue these claims is not a result of Acis sleeping on its rights—it is a result of the Fraudsters (to which Acis subcontracted its legal services) impeding Acis from exercising its rights. Accordingly, equitable tolling should apply to the statute of limitations for Acis's claims of money had and received and conversion.

C. Equitable Doctrines Are Wholly Inapplicable

59. Highland argues that certain equitable doctrines, including in pari delicto and the so-called Bangor Punta doctrine, "summarily" resolve Acis's claims in favor of Highland. However, a further examination of the facts underlying the Complaint, the Adversary and the equitable doctrines themselves demonstrate these doctrines do not act as a bar to Acis's claims, and in any event, those issues cannot be resolved "summarily" without affording Acis the opportunity to conduct discovery into Highland's manifest wrongdoing.

1. The so-called Bangor Punta doctrine does not apply the Complaint.

60. Highland acknowledges that under controlling Fifth Circuit precedent the so-called Bangor Punta doctrine does not apply to claims that were pending when Terry acquired Acis's equity. See Meyers v. Moody, 693 F.2d 1196, 1208 (5th Cir. 1982); see also TNS Media Research, LLC v. TiVo Research & Analytics, Inc., 193 F. Supp. 3d 307, 312 (S.D.N.Y. 2016)

("It is absolutely clear that the Bangor Punta Doctrine does not, and could not, extinguish claims (such as those at issue here) asserted in an action pre-acquisition."). Highland mistakenly believes that the version of the Complaint pending prior to Acis's plan confirmation did not contain "a multi-faceted fraudulent transfer action." See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *24-25 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019). As Highland is simply mistaken—a thirty-plus count complaint was pending in the Adversary prior to Acis's plan confirmation, see Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 83—the Bangor Punta doctrine thus does not act as bar to the Complaint under controlling Fifth Circuit precedent.

61. Setting that aside, the Supreme Court in Bangor Punta Operations, Inc. v. Bangor & A. R. Co., 417 U.S. 703, 710 (1974), ruled that shareholders who bought into a corporation, at what they conceded was a fair price, did not have standing to later bring an action for corporate waste against the former shareholders from whom they had acquired their shares. But "[n]o authority provides direct support for the proposition that the Bangor Punta principle, which relates to shareholder standing to sue for corporate waste, limits damages in a fraudulent conveyance action." Tronox Inc. v. Kerr McGee Corp. (In re Tronox Inc.), 503 B.R. 239, 333 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2013); see also KSC Recovery v. First Bos. Corp. (In re Kaiser Merger Litig.), 168 B.R. 991, 1004 (D. Colo. 1994); Brandt v. Hicks, Muse & Co. (In re Healthco Int'l, Inc.), 195 B.R. 971, 986 (Bankr. D. Mass. 1996); Think3 Litig. Tr. v. Zuccarello (In re Think3, Inc.), 529 B.R. 147, 185 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2015). In fact, Highland does not cite a case where the doctrine has been used to estop a debtor-in-possession, reorganized debtor, post-confirmation trustee, trustee, or similar party operating under Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code or otherwise from recovering fraudulent transfers.

62. Highland argues that Mr. Terry "agreed to purchase Acis's equity on July 5, 2018." This is simply not true.³⁰ In any event, such purchase was solicited through the approved disclosure statement in Acis's bankruptcy case [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 661] (the "Disclosure Statement") and effectuated through the Plan. Exhibit A to the Disclosure Statement disclosed a multitude of causes of action against Highland, including, but certainly not limited to, the complained of causes of action (the "Retained Causes of Action") (which incidentally were already on file by the time Mr. Terry voted on the Plan)³¹ and Mr. Terry would have agreed to purchase the equity at a price that included the Retained Causes of Action as an asset of Reorganized Acis. See Tr. 170:18-171:1, In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 790 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Dec. 11, 2018) (Mr. Terry's testimony that in agreeing to reduce his claim against Acis by $1 million in exchange for the equity in Acis, he valued the litigation).

63. In Bangor Punta, the Supreme Court prohibited a purchaser from "accepting their end of the bargain—ownership and control of the corporation—and attempting to sweeten their end of the deal by suing the seller to recover damages to the corporation allegedly caused by the seller before the sale." Highland Claim Objection ¶ 43 (citing Midland Food Servs., LLC v. Castle Hill Holdings V, L.L.C., 792 A.2d 920, 933-34 (Del. Ch. 1999)). But Acis is not suing the seller of the Acis equity; Acis is pursuing litigation claims—its property rights—that Acis owned on the petition date and on the date that Mr. Terry purchased the Acis equity for $1 million. Under Highland's view of the world, Bangor Punta should prevent Mr. Terry from receiving the benefit of his bargain, i.e. the Retained Causes of Action which constituted Reorganized Acis's

³¹ The prior version of the Complaint was filed on November 13, 2018. See Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 84.

2. In Pari Delicto Does Not Bar Acis's Claims.

64. "The equitable defense of in pari delicto, which means 'in equal fault,' is based on the common law notion that a plaintiff's recovery may be barred by his own wrongful conduct." In re Royale Airlines, 98 F.3d 852, 855 (5th Cir. 1996). Generally, courts are reluctant to allow the debtor's pre-petition conduct to hinder the trustee's ability to recover on behalf of creditors. See Kane v. Nat'l Union Fire Ins. Co., 535 F.3d 380, 387 (5th Cir. 2008) ("[A] bankruptcy trustee should be able to pursue a claim on behalf of the creditors that the debtor himself would be judicially estopped from pursuing[.]"). Certain courts have found that "in pari delicto does not apply to avoidance actions brought pursuant to § 544." See PM Denver, Inc. v. Porter (In re Porter McLeod, Inc.), 231 B.R. 786, 794 (D. Colo. 1999). This Court has noted that "courts in this district have not allowed an in pari delicto defense (i.e., an equitable affirmative defense, that a defendant may assert against a plaintiff, if the plaintiff has acted equally or more wrongly than the defendant, through conduct relating to the plaintiff's claim) to Section 548 claims with respect to prepetition conduct." Paradigm Air Carriers, Inc. v. Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners (In re Tex. Rangers Baseball Partners), 521 B.R. 134, 169 n. 185 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2014) (citing Horton v. O'Cheskey (In re Am. Hous. Found.), No. 09-20232-RLJ-11, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 190483, at *19-20 (N.D. Tex. Sept. 14, 2012)). Even courts that believe that in pari delicto may be applied to fraudulent transfer claims acknowledge that it is not necessarily an absolute bar to recovery. Floyd v. CIBC World Mkts., Inc., 426 B.R. 622, 642 (S.D. Tex. 2009) ("[E]ven in situations where the parties are found to be in pari delicto, under Texas law, 'relief will sometimes be granted if public policy demands it.'").

65. At the time of the fraudulent transfers and other claims at issue, Highland controlled Acis, or at least was controlled by the same parties as Acis. To permit Highland to escape liability because it successfully controlled Acis and forced Acis to transfer most of its assets to Highland or other Highland-affiliates, would render Chapter 5 of the Bankruptcy Code meaningless and would countenance Highland's many obvious bad acts. The Supreme Court has ruled that when analyzing an in pari delicto defense, a court must consider whether allowing the defense destroys the statute's purpose. Perma Life Mufflers v. Int'l Parts Corp., 392 U.S. 134, 138-140 (1968). Here, Highland's request to apply in pari delicto renders Chapter 5 meaningless. The Court should reject Highland's invitation to render meaningless one of the most fundamental remedies in the Bankruptcy Code.

66. Even if the in pari delicto defense was generally applicable to bankruptcy proceedings, it is inapplicable to the cause at bar due to the Fraudsters control over Acis. See Brickley v. ScanTech Identification Beams Sys., LLC, 566 B.R. 815, 840-41 (W.D. Tex. 2017) (applying New York law, which unlike the law in the Fifth Circuit regularly bars debtors from suing third parties for fraud in which the debtor participated, but discussing the exception to the same under New York law, including the adverse interest exception and corporate insider exception) (internal citations omitted); see also Asarco LLC v. Ams. Mining Corp., 396 B.R. 278, 430 (S.D. Tex. 2008) ("Because AMC/Grupo dominated and controlled ASARCO during the relevant time and dictated the terms of the SPCC transaction, the Court finds that ASARCO (and its creditors) were not at equal fault. Thus, AMC's in pari delicto defense fails.").

67. Here, there is no question that the Fraudsters acted for their own interest rather than Acis's interest, as further described by the Complaint, and this Court has determined that they were insiders of Acis. Brickley, 566 B.R. at 841 ("General partners, sole shareholders, and sole decision makers clearly qualify as such insiders . . . even a third-party professional, . . . may surrender an in pari delicto defense where it exerts sufficient domination and control over the guilty corporation to render itself an insider."); see also See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *17 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019) (finding Highland to be an insider).

68. Reorganized Acis should not be hindered by pre-petition conduct orchestrated by the Fraudsters. To this end, it is worth remembering, in the context of in pari delicto, an equitable and intensely factual defense, that this Court determined:

[t]he Reorganized Debtor is, in the Court's view, nothing like the old Debtors that entered bankruptcy. The Reorganized Debtor is under completely new ownership and management, and is utilizing a new submanager as well. The Reorganized Debtor is tantamount to a successor to the Debtors, rather than the original Debtors. Furthermore, the Reorganized Debtor is not an ordinary successor — while it was formerly owned by one of Highland entities, it is now owned 100% by Joshua Terry ("Terry"), who is the largest creditor in these cases.

3. Inequitableness is Factual.

69. Even if the so-called Bangor Punta doctrine and in pari delicto defense were applicable to the Complaint, these equitable doctrines cannot be applied without considering the facts and equities of the case. This type of factual inquiry is not appropriate for Highland's so-called "summary adjudication."³² The Adversary has not moved beyond the initial pleading stage, and there has been no discovery taken in connection with the vast majority of Acis's claim against Highland. Therefore, any contention that Acis's recovery is barred by specific equitable doctrines—which are fact-based inquiries—is premature at best.

D. Highland Benefited From The Fraudulent Transfers Asserted In The Complaint

70. Highland was the ultimate beneficiary of the fraudulent transfers asserted in the Complaint.³³ An overview diagram depicting Highland at the fulcrum in the ruinous web that is the relevant Highland corporate structure is attached hereto as Exhibit "4."

71. This Court has previously described the network of agreements subject to the fraudulent transfer claims "as an 'eco-system' that allowed the Acis CLOs to be effectively and efficiently managed by the Debtor-Acis." See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., No. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *7 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019). This ecosystem included the ALF PMA (by which Acis managed the equity of the Acis CLOs and which allowed Acis to control its own destiny with respect to the Acis CLOs), the ALF shares (an asset by which Acis indirectly owned a portion of the controlling equity in the Acis CLOs, which allowed Acis to comply with risk-retention requirements, which was necessary for Acis to manage additional CLOs), the Note (which entitled Acis to $9.5 million), the 2017-7 Equity (which allowed Acis to own the controlling equity in Acis CLO 2017-7) and the 2017-7 Agreement (which permitted Acis to manage Acis CLO 2017-17 and entitled Acis to the associated fee stream). All of these items were transferred away from Acis to other Highland-affiliates, ultimately for the benefit of Highland, after the Terry Arbitration Award. The Fraudsters dismantled the Acis ecosystem and rebuilt it in offshore-affiliates. There is no doubt the Fraudsters are the ultimate beneficiaries of this scheme. This catch-me-if-you-can shell game attempted to keep assets away from Acis to

Highland (either directly, through fee streams, or through entities ultimately controlled by the Fraudsters). For Highland to argue now that it received no benefit defies common sense.

72. By its plain language, Section 550(a)(1) provides for liability against "the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made." At a high level, Highland either was the ultimate adviser (and beneficiary of any transferred fee stream) or ultimate equity of various entities that were the direct beneficiaries of the fraudulent transfers. Additionally, Highland's conclusory statements that it was not beneficiary of the fraudulent transfers asserted in the Complaint are insufficient to rebut the presumption of the Proof of Claim's validity. See In re Today's Destiny, Inc., No. 05-90080, 2008 Bankr. LEXIS 3577, at *13 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Nov. 26, 2008) ("Conclusory statements are insufficient to rebut [Fed. R. Bankr. P.] 3001(f)'s presumption.").

73. With respect to the ALF PMA Transfer, Highland benefited as the sub-advisor to (and controlling equity voteholder of) Highland Advisor. While Highland Advisor nominally received the ALF PMA Transfer, Highland Advisor was merely a shell company set up by Highland employees that contracted out all of its operations to Highland and is owned by Highland. Hunter Covitz, a Highland employee, testified, "[b]ut HCF Advisor is Highland. . . . That's the distinction between Highland HCF Advisor could be well capitalized, the substance of Highland, its office space, employees, balance sheet, back office, legal, what [have] you, would all be incorporated with HCF Advisor, where Acis with no employees is not looked at that way." Tr. 61:5 & 11-15, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 804 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Dec. 18, 2018). Finally, Hunter Covitz testified, "there's really no differentiation between HCF Advisor and Highland." Id. at 62:21-23. Highland Advisor is ultimately owned and controlled by Highland. As the ALF PMA Transfer transferred control of ALF (now Highland CLO Funding) from Acis to Highland Advisor/Highland, Highland directly benefited from the ALF PMA Transfer.

74. Similarly, Highland benefited from the ALF Share Transfer. Again, Highland is the sub-advisor to both Highland Funding and the majority of the equity holders in Highland Funding. See Portfolio Management Agreement by and between Highland and Highland Advisor, dated October 27, 2017 [Docket No. 859-1] & Second Amended and Restated Service Agreement by and between Highland and Charitable DAF Fund, L.P.³⁴ dated January 1, 2017 [Docket No. 846-1]; see also In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Nos. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *19 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31 2019) ("The equity owner HCLOF Guernsey, in turn, has three equity owners: (i) a 49% equity owner that is a charitable fund (i.e., a donor advised fund or "DAF") that was seeded with contributions from Highland, is managed/advised by Highland, and whose independent trustee is a long-time friend of Highland's chief executive officer, Mr. Dondero; (ii) 2% is owned by Highland employees; and (iii) a 49% equity owner that is a third-party institutional investor[.]").

75. Additionally, Highland itself is a shareholder of Highland Funding. The ALF Share Transfer allowed Highland Funding³⁵ to complete a private placement of its equity (including, upon information and belief, the equity acquired in the ALF Share Transfer) to third-party investors. Through the ALF PMA Transfer and the ALF Share Transfer, Highland (as sub-advisor to Highland Advisor) retained effective possession and control of the property transferred after the ALF Share Transfer. Stated another way, Highland maintained control over the Acis CLO ecosystem, and the fees and other benefits that came with it.

³⁴ Upon information and belief, Charitable DAF Fund, L.P. owns a majority of CLO Holdco, Ltd. "CLO Holdco, Ltd. (the donor advised fund, seeded with Highland contributions and managed by Highland that owns 49% of HCLOF Guernsey)." In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Nos. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *30 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019).

³⁵ Upon information and belief, Highland also owns an interest in Highland Funding.

76. Although, Highland is obligor under the Note, Highland benefitted from the Note Transfer. Upon information and belief, Highland directed the Note to be transferred from Acis (which was the beneficiary under the Note) to a friendly party (controlled by Highland) Highland Management. Effectively, Highland only needs to pay the Note, if it decides to make demand on itself. Unsurprisingly, Highland has not made timely note payments to Highland Management since the fraudulent transfer of the Note. Prior to the Note Transfer, Acis (and its judgment creditors) would not have provided Highland such optionality.

77. Highland benefited from the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity. Again, contemporaneous with these transfers Highland entered into an agreement with Highland Holdings that allowed Highland to sub-advise and manage CLO 2017-7 and get paid the management fees that otherwise would have flowed to Acis LP.

78. In summary, it is perhaps easiest to consider this issue as a question: why would Highland, solely through its employees and controlled parties, engage in a pervasive fraudulent transfer scheme other than to ultimately benefit itself? The only logical answer is that it wouldn't.

E. Acis Sufficiently Pleaded Preferential Transfers to Highland Under Section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and Section 24.006(b) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code.

79. Acis pleads in Count 25 of the Complaint:

Within one year of the Petition Date, Highland received the Prepetition Payments in the amount $16,113,790.14 from Acis on account of purported debt claims owed by Acis. To the extent that the Prepetition Payments satisfied legitimate debt claims not avoided by any of the causes of action asserted herein, these transfers are avoidable under section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.006(b).

Complaint ¶ 236 (Exhibit "1").

80. In the Highland Claim Objection, in addition to repeating its arguments (addressed elsewhere herein) that full payment of creditors and the Bangor Punta doctrine bar any preference claim, the primary substance of Highland's objection is that Acis did not allege the elements necessary for a preferential transfer, including that Acis was insolvent at the time of the transfers and that the transfers were on account of antecedent debts. This again sounds like an argument that Acis failed to state a claim, but Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7012 does not apply to contested matters absent a court ruling otherwise. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 9014(c).

81. Even if Rule 7012 applied, simply reading Acis's Complaint reveals it most certainly stated a claim upon which relief can be granted. Like Acis's factual description in the Complaint of Highland's fraudulent transfer scheme, Acis also appropriately described the basis for alleging the Prepetition Payments, in the amount of $16,113,790.14, as preferences. See Complaint ¶¶ 122-24 (Exhibit "1").

82. Indeed, Acis pleaded:

The Prepetition Payments were made for the benefit of Highland for or on account of an antecedent debt owed by the Debtors before the Prepetition Payments were made. Acis was insolvent at all times when the Prepetition Payments were made. Based on Terry's pending—or already decided—claims, as well as Highland's absolute operational and financial control of Acis, Highland was aware that Acis was insolvent or reasonably should have been aware Acis was insolvent at all times when the Prepetition Payments were made. The Prepetition Payments were made within one year of the Petition Date. At the time the Prepetition Payments were made Highland was an insider of the Debtors. The Prepetition Payments enabled Highland to receive more than Highland would have received if the cases were a case under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code and if the Prepetition Payments had not been made. Highland received the Prepetition Payments.

Complaint ¶ 123 (Exhibit "1").

83. In a conclusory fashion, Highland also pleads that Acis "cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency at the time of the transfers" or "that each transfer enabled Highland to receive more than it would have received in a hypothetical chapter 7 liquidation." Highland Claim Objection at 41. Highland further pleads in a conclusory fashion, with no underlying data or analysis, that it is entitled to defenses under Section 547(c)(1), (c)(2), (c)(4), that Highland was "a mere conduit," and that it is entitled to offset under Section 502(h). Id. at 41-42. In addition to the fact that Highland's argument under Section 502(h) also undercuts its separate argument that Acis's claim under Section 550 is barred, to the extent such objections are conclusory, such objections should be denied or reserved for trial on Acis's claim. Acis will show at trial all necessary elements to prove that Highland is liable for receiving preferential transfers.

84. Accordingly, Highland's objection to preference lacks merit.

F. Acis Has Adequately Pleaded the Elements of Fraudulent Transfers under Bankruptcy Law and State Law

85. Highland and the other objectors object to Counts 5-8 (related to the Sub-Advisory Agreement modifications), Counts 9-12 (related to the ALF PMA Transfer), Counts 13-16 (related to the ALF Share Transfer), Counts 17-20 (related to the Note Transfer), and Counts 21-24 (related to the 2017-7 Equity and 2017-7 Agreement Transfers) (collectively, the "Transfer Claims") on certain bases that are "not subject to summary adjudication at this time." Highland states, in a conclusory fashion, that certain elements of the Transfer Claims were not met. Mere conclusory statements by Highland related to the factual basis of the Transfer Claims are insufficient to overcome the Proof of Claim's prima facie validity. See In re Today's Destiny, Inc., No. 05-90080, 2008 Bankr. LEXIS 3577, at *13 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Nov. 26, 2008) ("Conclusory statements are insufficient to rebut [Fed. R. Bankr. P.] 3001(f)'s presumption."). Nor does Rule 7012 apply to contested matters. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 9014(c).

86. Nevertheless, Acis addresses these "objections" below and reserves all rights to respond more fully after Highland has answered and sufficiently briefed the issues.

1. Acis was Insolvent at the Time of the Transfers Subject to the Transfer Claims

87. Highland argues in conclusory fashion that "Acis cannot meet its burden of proving insolvency" with respect to the Transfer Claims. As Highland acknowledges, insolvency is not ripe for "summary adjudication" and subject to further discovery and potentially expert testimony. As such: Acis highlights the following statement from the Complaint:³⁶

In fact, the General Counsel of Highland [], Scott Ellington, admitted that as of February 7, 2018—one week after the Petition Date—Acis was insolvent or close to insolvent.

Complaint ¶ 317 (Exhibit "1").

Acis was insolvent at all times when the Prepetition Payments were made. Based on Terry's pending—or already decided—claims, as well as Highland[]'s absolute operational and financial control of Acis, Highland [] was aware that Acis was insolvent or reasonably should have been aware Acis was insolvent at all times when the Prepetition Payments were made.

Complaint ¶ 123 (Exhibit "1").

Acis was insolvent or became insolvent by the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments made thereunder.

Complaint ¶ 159 (Exhibit "1").

88. Additionally, in connection with Acis's involuntary petition this Court determined the following:

In summary, the evidence reflects that the creditors of the Alleged Debtors are generally not being paid timely (except for perhaps four that are relatively insignificant and which may also be able to look to Highland for payment).

In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 584 B.R. 115, 140 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018).

Mr. Leventon (Highland's in-house Assistant General Counsel) testified that 96% of bills submitted get paid more than 90 days after they are submitted, that approximately 70% of bills are later than 120 days after they are submitted, and some are even later than 150 days.

Id at 141.

89. As this Court has noted in a section of its involuntary opinion titled "Transfers and Transactions Involving the Alleged Debtors Since the Litigation with Mr. Terry Commenced—and Especially After the Arbitration Award," many of the transfers subject to the Transfer Claims took place after the Arbitration Award. In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 584 B.R. 115, 127 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018). As set forth above, Acis alleged facts to support that Acis was insolvent at the time of the transfers alleged by the Transfer Claims.

2. Acis Did Not Receive Reasonably Equivalent Value for the Transfers Subject to the Transfer Claims

90. Highland argues (again, without citing evidence) that Acis received "reasonably equivalent value" for the transfers subject to the Transfer Claims. As set forth by the Complaint, this is incorrect and as this Court knows firsthand, straight from the mouths of Highland's president and general counsel, among others, Highland's proffered "reasonably equivalent value" excuses were specious.

91. In connection with the same, Acis notes the following:

Acis LP did not earn a specific fee pursuant to the Equity/ALF PMA, but the Chapter 11 Trustee and others credibly testified during the Bankruptcy Cases that Acis LP considered the agreement valuable and very important, because it essentially gave Acis LP the ability to control the whole Acis CLO ecosystem—in other words, it gave Acis LP the ability to make substantial decisions on behalf of the CLO SPEs' equity—distinct from making decisions for the CLO SPEs themselves pursuant to the PMAs.

Acis Capital Mgmt., GP, LLC v. Highland Capital Mgmt., L.P. (In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P.), 600 B.R. 541, 548 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2019) (with respect to the ALF PMA Transfer); see also In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Nos. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *9-11 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31. 2019).

The Second ALF PMA granted Acis LP, as the portfolio manager of ALF, extensive rights and discretion to control and manage ALF's assets, including its interests in the Acis CLOs.

Complaint ¶ 84 (Exhibit "1").

The Note Transfer was also of great benefit to Highland [] because it transferred Highland []'s liability under the Note away from Acis LP (and its legal woes with Terry) and allowed Highland []'s liability under the Note, and any payments made thereunder, to stay well within the control of the Highlands. Just as importantly to Highland [] and Dondero, and in furtherance to their ongoing feud with Terry, the Note Transfer took away the Note as an asset from which Terry could collect his judgment and allowed Highland [] to argue (as repeatedly argued in the Bankruptcy Cases) that Terry got his judgment against the "wrong" entities and that Highland [] has no liability related to Terry's claim.

Complaint ¶ 96 (Exhibit "1").

Highland [] entered into an agreement with Highland Holdings that allowed Highland[] to sub-advise and manage CLO 2017-7 and get paid the management fees that otherwise would have flowed to Acis LP. So, like the numerous transfers before it, Highland [] effectuated the transfer of the 2017-7 Agreements and 2017-7 Equity to cut out Acis LP, while Highland [] stayed in complete control of CLO 2017-7 and its stream of management fees.

Complaint ¶ 100 (Exhibit "1"); see also In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., 584 B.R. 115, 129 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2018).

92. Highland argues that the rates under the Sub-Advisory Agreement before June 2016 (under the Original Sub-Advisory Agreement) were "artificially low" and the rates charged by Highland under the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement are "similar to what Brigade is currently charging Acis." First, Highland's argument runs counter to the arbitration panel's findings in the Terry Arbitration Award that Acis was overcharged under the terms of its LPA. Further, after a market test, the Trustee located Brigade "to provide the sub-advisory and shared services going forward, for a minimum two-year term [], at a much cheaper cost than Highland." In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Nos. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *24 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019). Additionally, Brigade is currently charging Acis far less than the rate charged by Highland.

93. Most dramatically, moments before the Court approved the termination of Highland as subadvisor to Acis in July 2018, one of Highland's in-house counsel, J.P. Sevilla, who is still to this day employed by Highland, testified that Highland would provide the exact same services it had been providing (albeit rife with mismanagement, conflicts of interest and breaches of duties) at rates competitive with Oaktree (who was later replaced by Brigade). The Court need nothing further than Highland's own actions before the Court to appreciate that Highland was grossly overcharging Acis.

94. Acis disputes the value of the value provided to Acis as part of the ALF Share Transfer was adequate.

3. Transfers Subject to the Transfer Claims Were Made to Hinder or Defraud Creditors

95. In a conclusory statement Highland states "[t]he transfer had a legitimate purpose and justification, and was not undertaken to hinder or defraud creditors." Not only has Highland failed to present any evidence in support of this conclusion or illustrate it in any way, Acis details in its 100-plus page Complaint Highland's intentional transfer scheme to keep assets away from creditors. This Court found that "[t]he evidence established overwhelmingly that there is a substantial likelihood that the transfers were part of an intentional scheme to keep assets away from Mr. Terry as a creditor." In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Nos. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *36 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019). For further details on how the transfers subject to the Transfer Claims were made to hinder or defraud creditors, Acis points to

Section G of the Complaint (Complaint ¶¶ 79-121 (Exhibit "1")) titled "The Highlands' Fraudulent Scheme to Take Over Acis's Business and Dismantle Acis's Assets."

4. Acis was Damaged by the Transfers Subject to the Transfer Claims.

96. The Proof of Claim states that Acis's claim is at least $75,000,000.00. Clearly, Acis has alleged damages related to the transfers subject to the Transfer Claims. Highland seems to argue that because the Complaint does not allege the dollar amount of damages for each specific claim, the claim should be disallowed. However, this is not a basis to disallow the Proof of Claim. See Ebert v. Gustin, Civil Action No. 4:15-cv-00225-O, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 198345, at *23 (N.D. Tex. May 18, 2016) (even if the Proof of Claim was subject to the higher Federal Rule of Civil Procedural 12 standard "the amount of hypothetical damages is not properly raised in a 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss"). There will be fact and expert testimony, no doubt, with respect to the quantum of damages. The fact that such damages are not facially on the Proof of Claim, does not defeat the claim. Nevertheless, to the extent a 12(b)(6) standard is applicable and met, which it is not, Acis is entitled to amend its claim to aver damages. See Life Partners Creditors' Tr. v. Cowley (In re Life Partners Holdings, Inc.), 926 F.3d 103, 125 (5th Cir. 2019).

G. The Modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement Are Obligations Fraudulently Incurred

97. Highland argues that the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement (Counts 5-9) are obligations rather than transfers. Acis agrees with Highland's position; in fact, the Complaint states:

Plaintiffs . . . seek to avoid the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement . . . , any obligations incurred by Acis in connection with these modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement, and any payments made (including increase in payments made) by Acis to Highland in connection with these modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement Complaint ¶ 144; see also Complaint ¶ 149; 152, 152, & 160 (Exhibit "1").

98. Under both Section 548 of the Bankruptcy Code and TUFTA, obligations fraudulently incurred are avoidable. See 11 U.S.C. § 548(a) ("The trustee may avoid any transfer . . . of an interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation . . . incurred by the debtor[.]"); see also Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.005 ("A transfer made or obligation incurred by a debtor is fraudulent as to a creditor, whether the creditor's claim arose before or within a reasonable time after the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred, if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation." (emphasis added)). As such, Acis has adequately alleged that the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement are obligations fraudulently incurred.

H. Highland's Objection to Acis's Claim Pursuant to Section 502(h) is Frivolous.

99. Astonishingly, the Debtor also objects to Acis's claim on the theory that "any recovery on preference or constructive fraudulent transfer claims would be offset by Highland's resulting claims under Bankruptcy Code § 502(h), which would be entitled to full payment under the Acis Plan." Highland Claim Objection at n.6. Highland makes this objection based on Acis's claims in its Complaint for the fraudulent transfers of the ALF PMA, the ALF Shares, the Note, the CLO 2017-7 Agreement, modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement, and preferential transfers (Counts 5-25). It is breathtaking that Highland believes that it can actually fraudulently transfer Acis's assets to itself or its affiliates, and then turn around and make a claim against Acis for the value of those same fraudulently transferred assets.

100. Section 502(h) of the Bankruptcy Code provides:

A claim arising from the recovery of property under section 522, 550, or 553 of this title shall be determined, and shall be allowed under subsection (a), (b), or (c) of this section, or disallowed under subsection (d) or (e) of this section, the same as if such claim had arisen before the date of the filing of the petition.

11 U.S.C. § 502(h). Accordingly:

Section 502(h) does not create an independent claim. Rather, § 502(h) provides that the recipient of a fraudulent transfer is entitled to an allowed claim that arises from the recovery of property under § 550. The underlying principle is the equitable notion that the parties should be returned to the status quo just prior to the fraudulent transfer.

In re Solidarity Contracting, LLC, No. 17-31640, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 3572, at *7 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Nov. 19, 2019) (emphasis in original).

101. First, there has been no recovery yet of property Highland fraudulently transferred away from Acis pre-bankruptcy. Both avoidance and recovery of Acis's property are subject of the adversary proceeding against Highland and its affiliates in Acis's bankruptcy case. Thus, at a minimum, any claim or objection by Highland under Section 502(h) is not ripe. See also 11 U.S.C. § 502(d) (disallowing any claim under Section 550 "unless such entity . . . has paid the amount, or turned over any such property for which such entity . . . is liable under section . . . 550[.]"). Further, and more importantly, even if Acis were to recover its property, Acis contends that any claim under Section 502(h) would be disallowed under Section 502(b)(1) because the claim, arising from Highland's intentional fraudulent acts, would be unenforceable under state law. See Southmark Corp. v. Schulte Roth & Zabel, (In re Southmark Corp.), No. 99-11401, 2000 U.S. App. LEXIS 41279, at *14-15 (5th Cir. Nov. 7, 2000) ("Having a claim . . . does not of itself entitle the [creditor] to share in the distribution of the assets of [the] estate; the claim must also be allowed. If the debtor objects to the claim, such claim is "allowable" only to the extent that it is enforceable against the debtor."). Indeed, in its Complaint (and thereby in its Proof of Claim), Acis already has extensively objected to Highland's proof of claim, pursuant to Section 502(b)(1), (b)(4), and (d) of the Bankruptcy Code, based on its ultra vires acts and its many fraudulent transfers, among other things, against Acis. This fact apparently escaped Highland in its Objection to Acis's Proof of Claim.

102. Second, by pursuing recovery of its property, Acis seeks to return itself to the status quo just prior to the fraudulent transfers, which were intentionally perpetrated on Acis by Highland, at Dondero's direction, in coordination with its affiliates, many times for little to no consideration. Allowing Highland to then have a 502(h) claim would be tantamount to rewarding them for stealing Acis's property in the first place—in contravention of any equitable notion underlying the purpose of Section 502(h). As the court in Solidarity Contracting further stated:

In this case . . . 'there is nothing to reinstate, and the return of the fraudulently transferred . . . [property] does not give rise to an allowable claim.' Such a result is logical. Otherwise, a thief would be rewarded for thievery and a dishonest debtor could obtain a discharge while enjoying the value of its property through enterprising pre-bankruptcy transfers to friends and family members. [The creditor] is not entitled to a claim under 11 U.S.C. § 502(h).

Solidarity Contracting, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 3572, at *8-9 (internal citations omitted). This Court should not reward a thief for its thievery. Indeed, Highland would only get a claim, at best, equal to the value of the consideration it paid for the fraudulently transferred asset(s). Recall, again, that many, most or all of the transfers were for little or no real consideration, particularly after application of all defenses, including equitable defenses, of Acis.

103. Finally, the confirmation order in Acis's bankruptcy case likely precludes any claim against Acis under Section 502(h), because such claim was discharged:

Except for the obligations expressly set forth in the Plan or this Order, on the Effective Date, the Debtors, the Reorganized Debtor and their successors in interest and assigns shall be deemed and they each are discharged and released to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, including pursuant to section 1141(d)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code, from any and all Claims, Interests, demands, debts and liabilities that arose before the Effective Date. Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the discharge shall apply to and cover both known and unknown Claims although the Court makes no determination in this Order as to which Creditors may constitute holders of unknown Claims.

Acis Confirmation Order ¶ 18; see also Vanguard Operating, LLC v. Sublette Cty. Treasurer (In re Vanguard Nat. Res., LLC), Adv. Nos. 18-03244, 18-03245, 18-03246, 18-03247, 18-03248, 18-03249, 18-03250, 2020 Bankr. LEXIS 83, at *81 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Jan. 14, 2020) (finding that, "even if [the claim were] 'revived' and allowed under § 502(h), [the debtor's] liability as to the claim was extinguished upon plan confirmation"). Under the language of the statute, any purported 502(h) claim Highland could have would be treated "the same as if such claim had arisen before the date of the filing of the petition." 11 U.S.C. § 502(h). Thus, any such claim would be treated as a pre-petition claim that was discharged under Acis's confirmation order.

104. Contrary to Highland's position, 502(h) is not a fait accompli. Determination of Acis's Proof of Claim (and of Highland's proof of claim in Acis's bankruptcy case) remains, and the Court has great discretion in such determinations. Accordingly, any objection to Acis's claim based on Section 502(h) of the Bankruptcy Code is frivolous and should be overruled.

I. The Injunctions Do Not "Fix" the ALF PMA Transfer

105. Highland argues that because this Court (through the Plan through the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan) and the Preliminarily Injunction Order [Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 21] (collectively, the "Injunctions") prohibits (for a finite period of time)) the Highlands from using the fraudulently transferred ALF PMA to liquidate the Acis CLOs, Acis was not damaged by the ALF PMA Transfer. As a threshold matter, the magnitude of the damages suffered by Acis does not dictate whether Acis has claims against Highland related to the ALF PMA Transfer. See Ebert v. Gustin, Civil Action No. 4:15-cv-00225-O, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 198345, at *23 (N.D. Tex. May 18, 2016) ("The amount of hypothetical damages is not properly raised in a 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss.").

106. Additionally, the ALF PMA Transfer transferred rights of Acis under the Second ALF PMA that are not addressed by the Injunctions, as set forth below:

Certain Acis Right Under the Second ALF PMA	Acis Right Under the Second ALF PMA Addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).
Appointment of Acis LP as investment manager of ALF/Highland Funding. See Second ALF PMA § 2.	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).
Power to assist ALF/Highland funding with developing its Investment Policy (as defined by the Second ALF PMA) and identify investments. See Second ALF PMA § 3.	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).
The authority to invest in all types of securities and financial instruments on behalf of ALF/Highland Funding. See Second ALF PMA § 5(a).	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).
The authority to engage in Financial Instrument (as defined by the Second ALF PMA) transactions on behalf of ALF/Highland Funding as Acis LP may determine. See Second ALF PMA § 5(b).	The Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan) limits the Enjoined Parties (as defined by the Plan), including Highland, from liquidating certain (but not all) Financial Instrument (as defined by the Second ALF PMA) for a finite period of time.
Provide research in connection with investments and management of ALF/Highland Funding and direct the formulation of investment policies and strategies for ALF/Highland Funding. See Second ALF PMA § 5(c).	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).

The authority to purchase and invest Financial Instruments (as defined by the Second ALF PMA), enter into contracts in connection with Financial Instruments (as defined by the Second ALF PMA), invest in other investment vehicles on behalf of ALF/Highland Funding as Acis LP may determine. See Second ALF PMA § 5(d)-(f).	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).
Exercise all rights, powers, privileges and other incidents of ownership or possession with respect to the Financial Instruments (as defined by the Second ALF PMA) and other property and funds held or owned by ALF/Highland Funding and its subsidiaries. See Second ALF PMA § 5(g).	The Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan) limits the Enjoined Parties (as defined by the Plan), including Highland, from liquidating certain (but not all) Financial Instrument (as defined by the Second ALF PMA) for a finite period of time.
Lend the Financial Instruments (as defined by the Second ALF PMA) and other property of ALF/Highland Funding. See Second ALF PMA § 5(h).	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).
Maintain accounts, combine purchase and sale orders, and enter into arrangement with brokers on behalf of ALF/Highland Funding. See Second ALF PMA § 5(l)-(n).	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).
Provide ALF/Highland Funding with personnel, support, and assistance. See Second ALF PMA § 5(o)-(p).	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).

Vote Financial Instruments (as defined by the Second ALF PMA), participate in arrangement with creditors, and compromise suits and administrative proceeds on behalf of ALF/Highland Funding. See Second ALF PMA § 5(o)-(q).	The Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan) limits the Enjoined Parties (as defined by the Plan), including Highland, from liquidating certain (but not all) Financial Instrument (as defined by the Second ALF PMA) for a finite period of time.
Appointment of Acis LP as ALF/Highland Funding's attorney in fact. See Second ALF PMA § 6.	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).
Engage third party professionals on behalf of ALF/Highland Funding. See Second ALF PMA § 8.	Not addressed by the Temporary Plan Injunction (as defined by the Plan).

107. The Injunctions merely prevent the Fraudsters from taking limited and specific actions. As demonstrated above, the ALF PMA provided Acis rights far beyond anything provided by the Injunctions.

J. Highland is Liable for Civil Conspiracy to Commit the Fraudulent Transfers.

108. Highland contends that Acis cannot bring a claim for civil conspiracy to commit a fraudulent transfer and that Acis's argument of civil conspiracy is just an end-run around Section 550. This is not the case, and if this was not a conspiracy to commit fraudulent transfers, then nothing is.

109. As alleged in detail in the Complaint, Highland and its affiliates had a meeting of the minds on the object or course of action related to the fraudulent transfer scheme, including the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, the 2017-7 Equity transfer, the 2017-7 Agreements transfer and the thwarted Universal/BVK Agreement transfer in order to denude Acis's assets and take over Acis's valuable business. As pleaded, Acis suffered damages as a proximate result of the fraudulent transfer scheme. Accordingly, Highland is liable with its co-conspirators for committing such fraudulent transfers.

110. Although Highland asserts that no claim for civil conspiracy to commit a fraudulent transfer exists under Texas or federal law, on numerous occasions, courts in the Fifth Circuit have allowed civil conspiracy claims to be brought by a bankruptcy trustee. See, e.g., West v. WRH Energy Partners LLC (In re Noram Res., Inc.), Adv. No. 10-3703, 2011 Bankr. LEXIS 5183, at *41-42 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Dec. 30, 2011); Brown v. Adams (In re Fort Worth Osteopathic Hosp., Inc.), Adv. No. 07-04015, 2008 Bankr. LEXIS 2104, at *24-25 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. July 29, 2008); Lexus Int'l, Inc. v. Loghry, 512 F. Supp. 2d 647, 670-71 (N.D. Tex. 2007); Mims v. Kennedy Capital Mgmt., Inc. (In re Performance Nutrition), 239 B.R. 93, 113-14 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1999); cf. Tow v. Bulmahn, No. 15-3141 Section: R, 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 57396, at *91 (E.D. La. Apr. 29, 2016) (holding that a trustee's conspiracy to commit fraudulent transfer claims failed "because constructive fraud requires no intent to deceive, [and thus] a defendant cannot conspire to commit a constructive fraudulent transfer" (emphasis added)).

111. Highland also cites Milbank v. Holmes (In re TOCFHBI, Inc.), 413 B.R. 523, 535 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2009) and Mack v. Newton, 737 F.2d 1343, 1357-58 (5th Cir. 1984) (analyzing under the Bankruptcy Act) for the proposition that Acis cannot bring a civil conspiracy claim against Highland in connection with its role in orchestrating and executing the numerous fraudulent transfers. A closer reading of these cases reveals that such a claim fails only when the alleged conspirator did not receive property or a benefit from the fraudulent transfer. See TOCFHBI, 413 B.R. at 535-36, 538; Mack, 737 F.2d at 1357. Acis plainly pleads that Highland actively participated (with its other Highland affiliates) in the slew of fraudulent transfers—for its benefit and to the detriment of Acis. See Complaint at ¶¶ 70-74, 79-124

(Exhibit "1"). Just like Highland's argument that it cannot be liable for fraudulent transfers because it was not a transferee, this argument just continues Highland's obfuscation of its role as the ringmaster (and primary beneficiary) of the efforts to strip Acis of its assets.

112. Accordingly, Highland's argument that Acis cannot bring a claim for civil conspiracy to commit fraudulent transfers is specious; Acis specifically alleged facts to support the elements of both the conspiracy and Highland's benefit from the fraudulent transfers.

113. Further, and more remarkable, is Highland's claim that "Acis's equity holders had no duty to Acis not to 'take over its valuable business' and nobody had a duty to stop them from doing so." Acis addresses the issue of Highland's fiduciary duties to Acis separately herein, but apparently, Highland argues as long as there is some connection in ownership of Highland and Acis, Highland was free to fraudulently transfer any property it wished from Acis to itself and its affiliates irrespective of the harm to its creditors. While this may explain in part Highland's brazen acts, this is not the law.

114. Highland also objects based on the in pari delicto defense and the Bangor Punta doctrine. As explained separately herein, such objections are meritless.

115. Accordingly, the Court should be overrule Highland's objection to Acis's claim for civil conspiracy to commit fraud, including the fraudulent transfers.

K. Highland Tortiously Interfered with the Universal/BVK Agreement.

116. Highland objects to Acis's claim that Highland tortuously interfered with the Universal/BVK Agreement because it claims that: (i) the agreement was an at-will contract, (ii) Highland was only competing (and was under no duty not to compete), and (iii) Acis suffered no damages as a result of Highland's tortious interference. Highland's arguments are unavailing.

117. Although Highland objects to Acis's claim for tortious interference because the Universal/BVK Agreement is an at-will contract, the Texas Supreme Court has expressly acknowledged that an at-will contract is subject to tortious interference, like any other contract. Sterner v. Marathon Oil Co., 767 S.W.2d 686 (Tex. 1989). Judge Boyle of the Northern District recognized the Sterner ruling and denied a motion to dismiss a tortious interference claim for an at-will contract based on facts that are very similar to the facts in this case. Official Brands, Inc. v. Roc Nation Sports, LLC, 2015 U.S. Dist. Lexis 167320 (N.D. Tex. Dec. 15, 2015). It simply does not matter for purposes of a tortious interference claim that it is an at-will contract.

118. Second, as pleaded in the Complaint, Highland was not simply competing for Universal/BVK's business. Rather, as the Fraudsters had planned and executed the other fraudulent transfers, Highland's plan (as outlined in an email in early February 2018 from Isaac Leventon to Mike Warner) was "to transfer the BVK investment management agreement from Acis LP to another Highland-affiliated manager." Then, in its first email with Highland after Acis's bankruptcy filing, BVK acknowledged that Highland's plan was to replace Acis. Furthermore, after the filing of Acis's bankruptcy case, in Highland's communication with BVK, among other things, Highland volunteered to pay Universal and BVK's legal costs incurred in terminating Acis LP and making Highland the new sub-advisor for Universal and BVK, Highland repeatedly criticized the Chapter 11 Trustee for his management of Acis, and Highland repeatedly expressed its desire to negotiate with Universal and to "onboard" Highland as Universal's new sub-advisor. While Acis disputes Highland's contention that it did not have a duty not to compete with Acis, as Highland owed Acis fiduciary duties, including a duty of loyalty (addressed separately herein), this was not "competing"—it was tortious interference. There is nothing that allows Highland to steal an existing Acis client and solicit termination of an existing Acis contract—this amounts to an intentional tort against Acis and its assets that occurred brazenly post-petition and during this Court's administration of Acis's chapter 11 case.

119. Third, in the Complaint, Acis specifically pleads that it has suffered proximate damages as a result of Highland's tortious interference. Contrary to Highland's assertion otherwise, the Universal/BVK Agreement was terminated shortly after the Court entered its agreed order lifting the stay so that Universal/BVK could terminate its agreement with Acis. See Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 726. But for Highland's interference, Acis contends that it would have continued receiving revenue pursuant to its agreement with Universal/BVK. Projecting three years out, Acis estimates that it lost approximately $8,229,652 in revenue as a result of Highland's tortious interference and the ultimate termination of the Universal/BVK Agreement.³⁷ Accordingly, in addition to the fact that Highland misstates the facts, its objection to tortious interference is meritless.

L. Highland Breached the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement

120. Highland argues that Highland did not breach the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement because "there is no allegation whatsoever that Acis did not want Highland to do exactly what it did." Highland Claim Objection ¶ 80.³⁸ Highland ignores that Acis complains of Highland's conduct after the appointment of the Trustee.³⁹ After the Trustee was appointed, Highland reported solely to the Trustee, as the representative of Acis's estate. What Acis, Dondero, Okada, or Highland wanted no longer mattered.⁴⁰ It is undisputed that Highland failed to follow the Trustee's directions.

⁴⁰ Acis disputes the whims of Dondero or Okada dictate the terms of Highland and Acis's contractual relationship.

121. The Complaint states "[s]ince at least the time the Trustee was appointed in these Bankruptcy Cases, while acting as sub-advisor, Highland failed to purchase a single loan for the CLOs, and only provided for the sale of loans, in an attempt to complete a stealth liquidation of the CLOs for the Highlands' benefit, and to the detriment of Acis LP." Complaint ¶ 261 (Exhibit "1"). In fact, in connection with ruling on another matter this Court stated that the claims related to breaches of the Shared Services and Sub-Advisory Agreements are postpetition counts. See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Nos. 18-30264-SGJ, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 1833, at *22-23 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. May 2, 2019) ("The other postpetition count, count 30, is a postpetition breach of contract claim against Highland under the Sub-Advisory Agreement."). As Count 29, concerns postpetition conduct, Highland was not "entitled to take direction from Acis's owners."

122. After the appointment of a Chapter 11 trustee, the "a trustee [] acts essentially as new management." 7 Collier on Bankruptcy P 1104.02 [4] (16th 2020); see also In re Swann Land LLC, Nos. 07-33181, 07-33182, 2007 Bankr. LEXIS 3978, at *10 (Bankr. E.D. Tenn. 2007) ("The key point in the appointment of a trustee is that by doing so, the court, in essence, 'replaces' a debtor's management."). In fact, on May 7, 2018, James Dondero and Frank Waterhouse, Acis's sole officers gave their resignation to Diane Reed, the Chapter 7 Trustee and Neutra, Ltd. (the owner of Acis LP and Acis GP). After the appointment of the Trustee and highlighted by the resignation of its management, Highland was not "entitled to take direction from Acis's owners."

M. Highland Breached its Fiduciary Duties to Acis under State and Federal Law.

123. Highland argues that, while acting as Acis's subadvisor under the Sub-Advisory Agreement, its duties to Acis were only contractual, not fiduciary, and that any fiduciary duties Highland did owe were only to the investors in the CLOs. Highland fails to recognize, however, that under state law (Delaware and Texas) and federal law, fiduciary duties are imposed on investment advisers. The actions taken by Highland against Acis, while acting as Acis's investment adviser, before and after the filing of Acis's bankruptcy case, constitute significant and substantial breaches of Highland's fiduciary duties to Acis.

124. As pleaded in the Complaint, a principal-agent relationship existed between Acis and Highland, and Highland was Acis's investment adviser—thus Highland owed fiduciary duties to Acis. Rather than contesting these relationships, Highland instead contends that it only had contractual obligations to Acis—and by construing the Sub-Advisory Agreement and the Shared Services Agreement together, Highland claims it was just an independent contractor with minimal duties to Acis. Further, because the Sub-Advisory Agreement and the Shared Services Agreement were not executed for the same purpose or relating to the same subject matter, they cannot be construed together. As the Texas appeals court in Lee held:

The general rule is that separate instruments or contracts executed at the same time, for the same purpose, and in the course of the same transaction are to be considered as one instrument, and are to be read and construed together. Jones v. Kelley, 614 S.W.2d 95, 98 (Tex.1981); see also Harris v. Rowe, 593 S.W.2d 303, 306 (Tex.1979) ('Separate instruments contemporaneously executed as a part of the same transaction and relating to the same subject matter may be construed together as a single instrument.') (emphasis added).

Houston Prog. Radiology Assocs. v. Lee, 474 S.W.3d 435, 443-44 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2015, no pet.); see also Narayanan v. Sutherland Glob. Holdings, Inc., No. 11757-VCMR, 2016 Del. Ch. LEXIS 100, at *33 n.77 (Ch. July 5, 2016) (noting that "'instruments executed at the same time, by the same contracting parties, for the same purpose, and in the course of the same transaction'" may be construed together) (quoting 11 WILLISTON ON CONTRACTS § 30:26 (4th ed. 1999)).

125. The Sub-Advisory Agreement does not even reference the Shared Services Agreement. In fact, Section 20 of the Sub-Advisory Agreement has a merger clause that states that it and certain other defined documents (clearly not including the Shared Services Agreement) "constitute the entire agreement of the parties with respect to subject matter hereof." This underscores that these agreements do not "have the same purpose," do not relate "to the same subject matter," and are not part of "the same transaction."

126. Importantly, even in the unlikely situation that the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement could be construed together, the fiduciary relationship applicable to investment advisers cannot be waived. The SEC has stated the investment adviser "relationship in all cases remains that of a fiduciary to the client. In other words, an adviser's federal fiduciary duty may not be waived" see Commission Interpretation Regarding Standard of Conduct for Investment Advisers, Release No. IA-5248, 17 C.F.R. Part 276 (June 5, 2019) (available at <https://www.sec.gov/rules/interp/2019/ia-5248.pdf>) ("Because an adviser's federal fiduciary obligations are enforceable through section 206 of the Advisers Act, [the SEC] would view a waiver of enforcement of section 206 as implicating section 215(a) of the Advisers Act, which provides that 'any condition, stipulation or provision binding any person to waive compliance with any provision of this title . . . shall be void.'").

127. It is indisputable that both state-law and federal-law impose a fiduciary duty on Highland as a result of its position as Acis's investment adviser. In Capital Gains Research Bureau, the Supreme Court described the "fundamental purpose" of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940:

The broad proscription against "any . . . practice . . . which operates . . . as a fraud or deceit upon any client or prospective client" remained in the bill from beginning to end. . . . The Investment Advisers Act of 1940 thus reflects a congressional recognition "of the delicate fiduciary nature of an investment advisory relationship," as well as a congressional intent to eliminate, or at least to expose, all conflicts of interest which might incline an investment adviser -- consciously or unconsciously -- to render advice which was not disinterested. It would defeat the manifest purpose of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 for us to hold, therefore, that Congress, in empowering the courts to enjoin any practice which operates "as a fraud or deceit," intended to require proof of intent to injure and actual injury to clients.

SEC v. Capital Gains Research Bureau, Inc., 375 U.S. 180, 191-92 (1963) (emphasis added); see also Commission Interpretation Regarding Standard of Conduct for Investment Advisers, Release No. IA-5248.

128. The fiduciary standard associated with investment advisers is the very foundation upon which investment advisory services—giving investment advice—are built. The standard applicable to investment advisers is most effectively, and commonly, summarized as "the duty to act in the client's best interests." SEC v. Tambone, 550 F.3d 106, 146 (1st Cir. 2008) ("Section 206 [of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940] imposes a fiduciary duty on investment advisers to act at all times in the best interest of the [client]"); SEC v. Moran, 944 F. Supp. 286, 297 (S.D.N.Y. 1996) ("Investment advisers are entrusted with the responsibility and duty to act in the best interest of their clients."); Commission Interpretation Regarding Standard of Conduct for Investment Advisers, Release No. IA-5248, at 23, n.59 ("[A]n investment adviser's obligation to act in the best interest of its client is an overarching principle that encompasses both the duty of care and the duty of loyalty." (emphasis added)).

129. Highland acted against Acis's interests, much less in its best interests. Highland cannot deny the facts. So, Highland now shifts to claiming it was not advising Acis, but instead that it was the "portfolio manager" for the investors and thus owed the investment advisory fiduciary duties only to the investors. Unfortunately for Highland, the facts along with fundamental fiduciary principles and applicable securities laws belie any such contention.

130. First, Highland's claim that its relationship with Acis was merely contractual is plainly inconsistent with the fact that it agreed to serve as Acis's "sub-adviser."⁴¹ In a sub-advisory arrangement, such as here, the adviser is entrusting the sub-advisor to provide investment advice and recommendations to the adviser, which would then take the trusted guidance from the sub-adviser to finalize its recommendation to its clients.

131. The Sub-Advisory Agreement terms clearly show that Highland took on the role of being an investment adviser to Acis. In exchange for the fees it would receive, among other services, Highland committed to (i) making investment recommendations to Acis and (ii) placing orders with respect to investments upon receiving instruction from Acis. Sub-Advisory Agreement, Exhibit B, at B-2.

132. Further, Highland—in a pattern that is all too familiar—wanted to avoid ultimate responsibility for management of the investors' portfolios. Thus, the Sub-Advisory Agreement makes clear that "all investment decisions will ultimately be the responsibility of, and will be made by and at the sole discretion of, [Acis]." Sub-Advisory Agreement, Exhibit B, at B-2 to 3. Either Highland was the "portfolio manager" for the investors or it was not. This provision of their agreement supports only one conclusion: Highland was only serving as Acis's investment adviser and it owed Acis the fiduciary duties borne out of the advisory relationship.

133. Moreover, in the Sub-Advisory Agreement, Acis is specifically referred to as a "client" of Highland: ". . . [Acis] and/or such Account's investments may be constrained as a consequence of [Highland]'s inability to use [certain] information for advisory purposes or otherwise to effect transactions that otherwise may have been initiated on behalf of its clients, including [Acis] and/or such Account." Sub-Advisory Agreement, Exhibit B, at B-2.

⁴¹ Notably, a common arrangement in the industry is the provision of "third-party asset management." Third-party asset management services are similar to sub-advisory services in that both involve an investment adviser utilizing a third-party to support the adviser's management of its clients' assets. But, under a third-party asset management arrangement, the third-party enters into an agreement directly with the adviser's clients in addition to a contractual relationship with the adviser. As a result, the adviser's clients form an independent relationship of trust with the third-party. Highland could have limited its fiduciary duties to the investors and not Acis. It did not.

134. Delaware courts also recognize that a fiduciary duty is established by a "special relationship of trust" between the parties. See Reybold Venture Grp. XI-A, LLC v. Atl. Meridian Crossing, LLC, No. 08C-02-481 RRC, 2009 Del. Super. LEXIS 16, at *9 (Super. Ct. Jan. 20, 2009); see also Grace v. Morgan, No. 03C-05-260-JEB, 2004 Del. Super. LEXIS 2, at *7 (Super. Ct. Jan. 6, 2004) (explaining when a special relationship of trust establishes a fiduciary duty). Moreover, Texas and Delaware courts recognize a fiduciary duty on investment advisers based on a special relationship of trust and confidence. West. Reserve Life Assur. Co. of Ohio v. Graben, 233 S.W.3d 360, 373-74 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2007, no pet.) (citing Romano v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, 834 D.2d 523, 530 (5th Cir. 1987)); Goodrich v. E. F. Hutton Grp., Inc., Civil Action No. 8279 - New Castle County, 1991 Del. Ch. LEXIS 93, at *3-4 (Ch. June 4, 1991).

135. In its Complaint, Acis specifically pleads that, while acting as sub-advisor to Acis, Highland's actions in connection with (i) overcharging for services provided under the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement in violation of the LPA, (ii) orchestrating the series of fraudulent schemes that terminated or transferred away Acis's rights in various investment management assets such as the ALF PMA, the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements, as well as (iii) interference with, and ultimately termination of, the Universal/BVK Agreement, constituted a breach of its fiduciary duties to Acis. Further, in the preceding Count 29 of the Complaint (for breach of contract), Acis details Highland's attempted stealth liquidation of the CLOs for its benefit, and to the detriment of Acis. This final attempt by Highland while acting as sub-adviser, which continued while this Court presided over the Acis bankruptcy case, was yet another piece of Highland's grand fraudulent transfer scheme, as detailed in the Factual Background of the Complaint. See Complaint ¶¶ 75-121 (Exhibit "1").

136. All of the actions complained of above relate to Highland's position as investment adviser to Acis. In fact, Highland was in a position to take these actions because it was Acis's investment adviser. The breadth of an investment adviser's fiduciary duty undoubtedly applies to Highland's actions noted above. Timbervest, LLC, et al., Advisers Act Release No. 4197 (Sept. 17, 2015) (Commission Opinion) ("[O]nce an investment advisory relationship is formed, the Advisers Act does not permit an adviser to exploit that fiduciary relationship by defrauding his client in any investment transaction connected to the advisory relationship."); SEC v. Lauer, 2008 WL 4372896, at 24 (S.D. Fla. Sept. 24, 2008) ("Unlike the antifraud provisions of the Securities Act and the Exchange Act, Section 206 of the Advisers Act does not require that the activity be 'in the offer or sale of any' security"). As well as violating the Investment Advisers Act, these actions by Highland, while acting as Acis's investment adviser, violated the special relationship of trust between Highland and Acis, and therefore constitute breaches of Highland's fiduciary duties to Acis.

137. Additionally, Highland contends that while it acted as Acis's investment adviser, it could not breach any fiduciary duty owed to Acis by causing it to fraudulently transfer its portfolio management assets to Highland's affiliates and engage in a stealth liquidation because Highland was simply "following directions from Acis's sole owners." Again, relying on Tow v. Amegy Bank N.A., 976 F. Supp. 2d 889 (S.D. Tex. 2013), Highland argues that because there is common ownership, under Delaware law, Highland is immune from liability for breaching any fiduciary duties it may have had.

138. Notwithstanding that Acis pleaded Highland breached its fiduciary duties to Acis under federal law as well as state law, the ownership structure here is clearly distinguishable from that in Tow. Here, Neutra Ltd. is the sole member of Acis GP. Neutra Ltd., The Dugaboy Investment Trust, and Okada are the limited partners, and Acis GP is the general partner, of Acis LP. Highland's limited partners are The Dugaboy Investment Trust, Okada, Mark and Pamela Okada Family Trust, Mark and Pamela Family Trust - #2, and Hunter Mountain Investment Trust. Highland's general partner is Strand Advisors, Inc., which is wholly owned by Dondero. Highland is not an owner of Acis LP or Acis GP. Neither are Dondero or Okada directly. Accordingly, while Dondero may have certain ownership interests in the corporate structures of both Acis and Highland, this is not a case where Acis is pleading that "the sole owner of a partnership [is liable] for breaching duties that the owner owes himself." Tow, 9766 F. Supp. 2d at 906. Accordingly, any comparison to Tow is inapplicable.

139. Highland also objects based on the in pari delicto defense and the Bangor Punta doctrine. As explained separately herein, such objections lack merit.

140. The Court should therefore overrule Highland's objection to Acis's claim for breach of fiduciary duty.

N. Acis Adequately Pleaded Alter Ego.

141. In essence, the basis of Highland's objection to Acis's alter ego claim is that while Dondero may have exercised common control over Highland and its affiliates, there was no abuse of the corporate form to perpetrate a wrong. Acis considers the massive fraudulent transfer scheme perpetrated by the Fraudsters and their affiliates to be an extraordinary wrong. And contrary to Highland's assertion, Acis pleaded in detail the extraordinary and brazen nature of the wrong perpetrated by Highland and its affiliates. Acis's Complaint is replete with allegations supporting a claim for alter ego—particularly with respect to how Highland and Dondero used the other Highland entities and abused the corporate structure to perpetrate the sweeping fraudulent scheme to denude Acis and steal its business. See Complaint ¶¶ 74, 79-121 (Exhibit "1").

142. In SSP Partners (cited by Highland), the Texas Supreme Court explained the basis for piercing the corporate veil under an alter ego theory (and thus the reason Acis cited the case). See SSP Partners v. Gladstrong Inv. (USA) Corp., 275 S.W.3d 444, 451-52 (Tex. 2008). Specifically, the court in SSP stated:

We have held that the limitation on liability afforded by the corporate structure can be ignored only 'when the corporate form has been used as part of a basically unfair device to achieve an inequitable result.' Examples are when the corporate structure has been abused to perpetrate a fraud, evade an existing obligation, achieve or perpetrate a monopoly, circumvent a statute, protect a crime, or justify wrong. In some instances, the imposition of liability is limited by statute to situations involving actual fraud.

Id. (citing Castleberry v. Branscum, 721 S.W.2d 270, 271-72 (Tex. 1986)) (emphasis added).

143. Accordingly, Acis has more than adequately pleaded how Highland Funding's "corporate structure has been abused to perpetrate a fraud . . . or justify a wrong." See SSP Partners, 275 S.W.3d at 451. Such facts as pleaded more than adequately support alter ego among Highland and its affiliates.

144. Highland contends that even if Highland and its affiliates were under common control, and even if they committed the fraudulent transfers, such actions did not involve abuse of the corporate form. To show an abuse of the corporate form, "[t]he degree of control required is 'exclusive domination and control . . . to the point that [the subsidiary] no longer has legal or independent significance of [its] own.'" Outokumpu Eng'g Enters. v. Kvaerner Enviropower, 685 A.2d 724, 729 n.2 (Del. Super. Ct. 1996) (citing Hart Holding Co. v. Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc., C.A. No. 11514, 1992 Del. Ch. LEXIS 112, at *14 (Ch. May 28, 1992)). Acis contends that the legal and independent significance of Highland and its affiliates disappeared under Dondero's dominion and control—this was demonstrated by, among other things, Dondero's execution of the many documents, on behalf of parties on both sides of the transactions, to effectuate the fraudulent transfers.

145. Further, bankruptcy courts have recognized the use of the collapsing doctrine, as pleaded by Acis, as "an equitable tool whereby a court can collapse multiple transactions and consider the overall financial consequences of the transactions [, but typically require] a showing of the transferee's knowledge of the fraudulent scheme." See SB Liquidation Trust v. Preferred Bank (In re Syntax-Brilliant Corp.), 2016 Bankr. LEXIS 988, at *4 (Bankr. D. Del. Feb. 8, 2016). The facts as pleaded clearly reflect that all of the transactions following the Arbitration Award, which constituted the concerted scheme to fraudulently transfer the assets of Acis to other Highland entities, including offshore entities, was known by Highland and its affiliates, while under the control of Dondero.

146. Accordingly, the Court should overrule Highland's objection to Acis's claim of alter ego.

O. The Fraudsters Would Have This Court Ignore Their Blatant Violations of the Automatic Stay Despite Numerous Contemporaneous Admonishments By This Court

147. Highland argues that Acis's claims of willful violation of the automatic stay (Count 33) should be disallowed because the Trustee declined to effectuate optional redemptions.⁴² Shockingly, Highland essentially argues because this Court stepped in on three different occasions to stop the Highlands from liquidating the Acis CLOs, Highland should not be liable for the harm it caused Acis (including hundreds of thousands of dollars in attorneys' fees seeking multiple injunctions).⁴³

148. Highland ignores the factual background related to the multiple optional redemptions, the fact that this Court was required to intervene on three separate occasions (by the First TRO,⁴⁴ an Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 310 & Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 3] and the Preliminarily Injunction Order [Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 21]) during the case to stop Highland from liquidating the Acis CLOs. Highland ignores that this Court found that "the Chapter 11 Trustee credibly represented that . . . he also had begun to believe that Highland was engaging in stealth efforts to liquidate the Acis CLOs, to the detriment of the Debtor-Acis's creditors." See In re Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Nos. 18-30264-SGJ-11, 2019 Bankr. LEXIS 292, at *9 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 31, 2019).

149. This Court's findings in the Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 310 & Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 3] and the Preliminarily Injunction Order [Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 21] demonstrate the absurdity of Highland's "no-harm, no-foul" argument. The Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 310 & Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 3] states the following:

Highland, on less than 24-hours' notice, seeks to liquidate hundreds of millions of dollars of CLO collateral, arguably in violation of the PMAs and the Indentures, and also in likely violation of Sections 362 and 363 of the Bankruptcy Code.

⁴³ There is no question that Highland knew of Acis's bankruptcy and the automatic stay. In fact, this Court asked the General Counsel of Highland, Scott Ellington, in reference to his comments that if Acis remained in bankruptcy, the equity of the Acis CLOs would "pull[] everything," "Have you looked at -- would the automatic stay preclude that?" Tr. 223:12-15, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 28 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Feb. 7, 2018).

Ex Parte Temporary Restraining Order ¶ 2.

150. The Preliminarily Injunction Order [Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 21] states the following:

[A]bsent affirmative relief from the automatic stay, any action to effectuate an Optional Redemption by way of any Optional Redemption notices violates the automatic stay of the Acis LP bankruptcy case because it represents an act to obtain possession of property of the estate or of property from the estate or to exercise control over property of the estate.

Preliminarily Injunction Order ¶ 10.

151. Additionally, Highland cannot claim that because Highland and Highland Funding took the position the automatic stay was inapplicable, the stay was, in fact, inapplicable.⁴⁵ In connection with the May 31, 2018 hearing and the First Optional Redemption Notices, which resulted in this Court's sua sponte First TRO, the Court stated "I'm worried about stay violations." Tr. 54:2-3, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 251 (May 31, 2018). The Trustee stated "by demanding a liquidation of the CLOs, Highland is effectively extinguishing the portfolio management agreement between the CLOs and Acis, thus exercising control over property of the estate in violation of the automatic stay." Tr. 12:19-22, In re Acis Capital Mgmt, L.P., Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 251 (May 31, 2018).

⁴⁵ This argument also ignores the Fifth Circuit law on willful violations of the automatic stay. "A willful violation does not require a specific intent to violate the automatic stay. Rather, the statute provides for damages upon a finding that the defendant knew of the automatic stay and that the defendant's actions which violated the stay were intentional. Whether the party believes in good faith that it had a right to the property is not relevant to whether the act was 'willful' or whether compensation must be awarded." Brown v. Chesnut (In re Chesnut), 422 F.3d 298, 302 (5th Cir. 2005) (quoting In re Taylor, 884 F.2d 478, 482 (9th Cir. 1989)). Here, there is no question that the Highlands knew of the Acis bankruptcy and the automatic stay and intentionally sent Optional Redemption Notices (this is particularly clear with respect to the First Optional Redemption Notices, which were issued after the Court's sua sponte First TRO). To the extent the Highlands argue that the Optional Redemptions arguably do not violate the automatic stay, the Fifth Circuit states "in the face of uncertainty or ambiguity, courts should presume protection of arguable property." Brown v. Chesnut (In re Chesnut), 422 F.3d 298, 303 (5th Cir. 2005). In Chesnut, the Fifth Circuit endorses the idea that for property that is "arguably" subject to the stay, creditors should ask for permission (from the bankruptcy court), rather than forgiveness. See id. at 304("[B]ankruptcy law demands some process prior to the seizure of arguable property[.]").

152. It strains credulity for Highland to make this argument as the Second Optional Redemption Notices were issued after the First TRO. The First TRO states, "[t]he Trustee has a substantial case on the merits on a serious legal question—to wit: that the threatened actions described herein, if not enjoined, will violate the automatic stay in this matter, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(3)." First TRO ¶ 10. Clearly, this Court believed that the automatic stay was applicable to the optional redemptions and in connection with the Preliminary Injunction Order determined "by extinguishing the PMAs, a purported Optional Redemption in this context should be deemed prohibited because it would represent an 'act to obtain possession of property of the estate or of property from the estate or to exercise control over property of the estate' in violation of 11 U.S.C. § 362(a)(3)." Preliminary Injunction Order ¶ 13.

153. Finally, Highland argues that Acis's claims of willful violation of the automatic stay are untimely and/or have been waived. Highland does not provide any further detail on these theories. Acis notes that Acis's claims of willful violation of the automatic stay were originally filed on June 21, 2018 and on March 11, 2019, the Court entered its Order Consolidating Adversary Case Nos. 18-03078 & 18-03212 [Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 127; Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 63], under which the Court ordered that Adversary Nos. 18-03078 and 18-03212 are consolidated under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 42(a), incorporated by Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7042. See Verified Original Complaint and Application for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction [Adversary Case No. 18-03212, Docket No. 1].

P. Acis Properly Pleads for Attorney's Fees.

154. Highland claims there is no basis in law or fact for Acis to recover attorney's fees and costs incurred in bringing the adversary proceeding against Highland and its affiliates in bringing this adversary proceeding. Yet the provisions of TUFTA explicitly afford a prevailing claimant the right to recover the claimant's reasonable and necessary attorney's fees. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.013. Given the fact that Acis adequately pleaded claims for relief pursuant to TUFTA, Acis's request for attorney's fees is proper.

155. Likewise, recovery of all allowed professionals' fees and expenses in Acis's bankruptcy case, which were losses to Acis resulting from Highland's breach of fiduciary duties is supported by applicable law. See Meyers v. Moody, 693 F.2d 1196, 1214 (5th Cir. 1982).

156. As explained separately herein, Highland's objection to Acis's claim based on the Bangor Punta doctrine lacks merit.

157. Accordingly, Highland's objection to Acis's claim for attorney's fees and costs should be overruled.

Q. Punitive Damages and Attorneys' Fees

158. As acknowledged by UBS, exemplary damages and attorneys' fees are available to Acis under applicable law. See Rodriguez v. Ramirez (In re Ramirez), Nos. 09-70051, 09-7004, 2011 Bankr. LEXIS 72, at *36-45 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Jan. 5, 2011) (awarding exemplary damages for an intentional fraudulent transfer scheme pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003 and Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.013); see also Clapper v. Am. Realty Inv'rs, Inc., Civil Action No. 3:14-CV-2970-D, 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 136739, at*36 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 14, 2018) (Fitzwater, J.) ("The court thus declines to grant summary judgment to defendants on the basis that plaintiffs are not entitled to damages or injunctive relief under TUFTA."); Nichols v. YJ USA Corp., Civil Action No. 3:06-CV-02366-L, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22450, at *26 (N.D. Tex. March 18, 2009) (concluding that punitive damages are allowable under TUFTA) (citing Mullins v. Testamerica, Inc., No. 3:02-CV-0106-K, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 53518, at *29 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 2, 2006) (Kinkeade, J.)); Tronox Inc. v. Anadarko Petroleum Corp. (In re Tronox Inc.), 429 B.R. 73, 111 n.4 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2010) (explaining that some state fraudulent transfer statutes allow punitive damages, and some do not).

159. Likewise, Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 38.001 clearly permits Acis to recover attorneys' fees related to any contractual claim asserted in the Complaint. See In re Nalle Plastics Family Ltd. P'ship, 406 S.W.3d 168, 172 (Tex. 2013) ("Civil Practice and Remedies Code chapter 38, the primary statute governing such fees, allows a prevailing party to 'recover reasonable attorney's fees . . . in addition to the amount of a valid claim and costs, if the claim is for . . . an oral or written contract.' Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 38.001"). The District Courts in this District and the Texas Supreme Court clearly allow exemplary damages and attorneys' fees.

VI. PRAYER

160. Acis requests: (i) this Court deny and overrule the Acis Claim Objections; (ii) sustain and allow Acis's Proof of Claim; and (iii) grant Acis such other and further relief to which it may be justly entitled, both at law and in equity.

SECOND AMENDED COMPLAINT (INCLUDING CLAIM OBJECTIONS AND OBJECTIONS TO ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSE CLAIM)

ANSWER AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSES

1. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 41(a), incorporated by Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7041, all claims asserted in the Original Complaint and Request for Preliminary Injunction of Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. and Highland Capital Management Against Chapter 11 Trustee of Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Docket No. 1] (the "Original Complaint") by Highland Capital and Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. ("Highland Funding") have been dismissed without prejudice. See Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 79. Accordingly, such dismissal of Highland Capital's and Highland Funding's claims obviates the Trustee's, now Acis's, answer and affirmative defenses thereto; however, Acis reserves all rights with respect to answering or asserting affirmative defenses to any future-filed claims by any parties in this Adversary Proceeding.

¹ On February 15, 2019, the date upon which the Plan (defined below) became effective, Acis was substituted for Robin Phelan, the Chapter 11 Trustee, in the above-referenced consolidated adversary cases. See Case No. 18-30264, Docket Nos. 829, 830, & 863. Prior to the date upon which the Plan (defined below) became effective, Acis may be referred to as the "Debtors."

² As more fully described below in the Procedural Background, this Second Amended Complaint consolidates: (i) claims, counterclaims, third-party claims, and objections to Highland Capital's proofs of claim brought by the Chapter 11 Trustee, now Acis, in this Adversary No. 18-03078; (ii) claims brought by the Chapter 11 Trustee, now Acis, in Adversary No. 18-03212, which has been consolidated under this Adversary Proceeding; and (iii) objections of the Chapter 11 Trustee, now Acis, against Highland Capital's request for an administrative expense claim, which was converted to Adversary No. 19-03103 and was ordered consolidated under this Adversary Proceeding.

2. Additionally, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 41(a)(2), such dismissal of Highland Capital's and Highland Funding's claims is without prejudice to any counterclaims asserted by the Trustee, now Acis, in the Defendant's Answer, Affirmative Defenses, Counterclaims, and Third Party Claims [Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 23] (the "Original Answer"), as may be amended, and such counterclaims remain pending for independent adjudication.

CLAIMS AND COUNTERCLAIMS

3. Acis hereby asserts the following claims for affirmative recovery against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd. ("Highland Advisor"), Highland CLO Management Ltd. ("Highland Management"), and Highland CLO Holdings, Ltd. ("Highland Holdings"). Additionally, Acis asserts the following claims and counterclaims against Highland Capital and such claims and counterclaims shall also constitute recoupment or offset to any claim Highland Capital has against Acis.

I. JURISDICTION, VENUE, AND STATUTORY PREDICATE

4. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction over the Bankruptcy Cases and this adversary proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. Venue of the Adversary Proceeding in this district is proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1409.

5. This matter arises under the laws of the United States of America and state common law. The statutory predicates for the relief sought herein are pursuant to sections 362, 502, 503, 541, 542, 544, 547, 548, 550, and 558 of 11 U.S.C. § 101 et seq. (the "Bankruptcy Code"), Texas Business & Commerce Code § 24.001 et seq. ("TUFTA"), and Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure 3007(b) and 7001.

6. This Adversary Proceeding constitutes a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2). Acis hereby consents to the Court's entry of a final judgment resolving this Adversary Proceeding. This Adversary Proceeding includes an objection to Highland Capital's proofs of claim pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 3007(b), and the claims and counterclaims asserted herein shall constitute recoupment and/or offset to such proofs of claim, to the extent such claims are otherwise allowed. This Adversary Proceeding also includes an objection to Highland Capital's administrative expense claim, and the claims and counterclaims asserted herein shall constitute recoupment and/or offset to such administrative expense claim, to the extent such claims are otherwise allowed.

II. PARTIES

7. Acis LP is limited partnership and Acis GP is a limited liability company, both of which were organized under the laws of the State of Delaware, and both of which may be served with pleadings and process in this Adversary Proceeding through the undersigned counsel.

III. JURISDICTIONAL BACKGROUND³

A. Highland Advisor Jurisdictional Background

13. Upon information and belief, on October 26, 2017, Jean Paul Sevilla ("Sevilla"), a Highland employee and associate general counsel, requested Maples and Calder create Highland Advisor. On information and belief, on October 27, 2017, Mr. Sevilla requested that Highland Advisor be established such that Highland is the 100% owner of the "high" share class of Highland Advisor.

14. Highland Advisor's principal place of business is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201, Highland Capital's office and headquarters. See Exhibit T at 88. Highland Advisor is ultimately, directly or indirectly, owned or controlled by James Dondero

("Dondero") and Mark Okada ("Okada"), who ultimately, directly or indirectly, own or control Highland Capital. See id. at 89 and Opinion at 8.

15. Upon information and belief, the principals of Highland Capital, Dondero and Okada, serve as the president and executive vice president, respectively, of Highland Advisor. See Opinion at 8 and Exhibit T at 89. Other Highland Capital employees serve as officers of Highland Advisor including Scott Ellington, Lee "Trey" Parker, Thomas Surgent, and Frank Waterhouse. See Exhibit T at 89.

16. Dondero signed the November 15, 2017 Portfolio Management Agreement by and between Highland Advisor and Highland Funding (the "November 2017 PMA") on behalf of Highland Advisor. A true and correct copy of the November 2017 PMA is attached hereto as Exhibit P.

17. Attached hereto as Exhibit Q is the December 13, 2018 (A.M.) hearing transcript from In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., et al. At the December 13, 2018 hearing, Hunter Covitz, a Highland Capital employee, testified: "As I understand HCF Advisor is a relying advisor of Highland." See Exhibit Q at 78, ll. 15-16. Hunter Covitz further testified, "[b]ut HCF Advisor is Highland. . . . That's the distinction between Highland HCF Advisor could be well capitalized, the substance of Highland Capital, its office space, employees, balance sheet, back office, legal, what [have] you, would all be incorporated with HCF Advisor, where Acis with no employees is not looked at that way." Id. at 61, ll. 5 & 11-15. Finally, Hunter Covitz testified, "there's really no differentiation between HCF Advisor and Highland." Id. at 62, ll. 21-23.

18. Attached hereto as Exhibit R are meeting minutes of Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. and Highland Funding, which contain a Highland Funding Bates label and were produced in connection with the Bankruptcy Cases or related adversary case. These meeting minutes reflect that various Highland Capital employees, including Sevilla, Hunter Covtiz, Tim Cournoyer, 20. Attached hereto as Exhibit T is Highland Capital's 2019 Form ADV, which states that Highland Advisor's principal place of business is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201—Highland Capital's office and headquarters. Highland Capital's 2019 Form ADV also states that Highland Capital is a shareholder of Highland Advisor and that Highland Advisor is another business name of Highland Capital.

B. Highland Management Jurisdictional Background

23. Upon information and belief, Highland Management is ultimately, directly or indirectly, owned or controlled by Dondero and Okada, who ultimately, directly or indirectly, own or control Highland Capital.

24. Additionally, in connection with the hearing on the involuntary petitions, Dondero testified at great length regarding the Note Transfer to Highland Management on behalf of Highland Management.⁴ Dondero testified upon direct examination by Acis's (at the time, a putative debtor) counsel about the Note Transfer, stating:

Q: Now, if there came a time with litigation costs and other expenses where Acis was unable to pay its expenses when they became due, what was your intent in signing this as to whether or not HCLOM [Highland Management] would honor this and make the payment?

A: We would -- we would honor it and -- and pay as appropriate.

See Exhibit U (March 23, 2018 Hr'g Tr., In re Acis Capital Management, L.P., et al. 146:7-12) (emphasis added). When Dondero says "we," Acis contends that he is speaking on behalf of Highland Capital and Highland Management. Additionally, Dondero testified that the Note Transfer was an "economic wash" for him as "it doesn't matter which pocket it goes into." Id. at 152:20-24.

25. The Opinion states that, "Highland Management was registered in the Cayman Islands on October 27, 2017, roughly a week before the Note Transfer... it appears Highland Management was an entity that was created specifically to hold the Note and eventually take possession of the CLO PMAs in an international forum that would be difficult for Mr. Terry to reach." Opinion at 20-21, n. 37 (emphasis added).

26. Upon information and belief, Dondero is the managing or general agent of Highland Management.

27. The Confirmation Opinion states that Highland Management is "an entity registered in the Cayman Islands on October 27, 2017—seven days after Mr. Terry's Arbitration Award)." Confirmation Opinion at 19. The Confirmation Opinion further states that "it appears Highland Management was an entity that was created specifically to hold the Note and eventually take possession of the CLO PMAs in an international forum that would be difficult for Mr. Terry to reach." Opinion at 20-21, n.37. Finally, the Confirmation Opinion states that "Highland Management (the Highland-created entity that entered into a portfolio management agreement with a new Acis-CLO that was established in 2017)." Confirmation Opinion at 24.

C. Highland Holdings Jurisdictional Background

28. The Confirmation Opinion states that Highland Holdings is "(yet another entity incorporated in the Cayman Island on October 27, 2017)." Confirmation Opinion at 19.

29. Attached hereto as Exhibit T is Highland Capital's 2019 Form ADV, which states that Highland Holding's principal place of business is 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201, Highland Capital's office and headquarters. Exhibit T at 103. Highland Capital's 2019 Form ADV also states that Highland Holdings is another business name of Highland Capital. Highland Capital's 2019 Form ADV further states Highland Capital, Dondero, and other Highland affiliates are "control persons" of Highland Holdings.

IV. PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

30. On January 30, 2018 (the "Petition Date"), Joshua N. Terry ("Terry"), as petitioning creditor, filed involuntary petitions under section 303 of the Bankruptcy Code against both Acis LP and Acis GP, thereby initiating the Bankruptcy Cases. See Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 1 & Case No. 18-30265, Docket No. 1.

31. On April 13, 2018, this Court entered its Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law in Support of Orders for Relief Issued After Trial on Involuntary Bankruptcy Petition [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 118 & Case No. 18-30265, Docket No. 113] (the "Opinion") and Order for Relief in an Involuntary Case in each of the Bankruptcy Cases [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 119 & Case No. 18-30265, Docket No. 114] (the "Orders for Relief"). The Opinion is hereby incorporated by reference as if fully set forth herein.

32. On May 14, 2018, Robin Phelan (the "Trustee") was appointed chapter 11 trustee of the Debtors' bankruptcy estates in the Bankruptcy Cases. See Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 213.

33. On May 30, 2018, Highland Capital and Highland Funding filed their Original Complaint, initiating this Adversary Proceeding, in which Highland Capital and Highland Funding asserted various claims for breach of contract, declaratory relief, and injunctive relief against the Trustee. See Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 1.

34. On June 21, 2018, the Trustee filed his Verified Original Complaint and Application for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction [Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 1] ("Complaint and Application for TRO"), initiating Adversary No. 18-03212, in which the Trustee sought, inter alia, injunctive relief to prevent Highland Capital, Highland Funding, and their affiliates from taking any action to effectuate an optional redemption (which would result in liquidation of the Acis CLOs (defined below)), as well as relief pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 362(k) for willful violations of the automatic stay for actions taken by Highland Capital and its affiliates, including Highland Funding, in attempting to effectuate an optional redemption.⁵ Highland Capital and Highland Funding subsequently filed their answers to the Trustee's Complaint and Application for TRO. See Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket Nos. 32 & 33.

35. On July 2, 2018, the Trustee filed his Original Answer in this Adversary Proceeding, in which the Trustee asserted certain counterclaims and third-party claims against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, Highland Advisor, and Highland Management (collectively and along with Highland Holdings, the "Highlands") in connection with the Highlands' scheme, described more fully below, to fraudulently transfer Acis LP's assets to the Highlands and otherwise appropriate the business of Acis LP. See Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 23.

36. On July 23, 2018, Highland Capital filed Highland Capital Management, L.P.'s Motion to Dismiss Counterclaims or, Alternatively, for a More Definite Statement [Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 42] ("Highland's Motion to Dismiss"), in which Highland Capital sought, inter alia, to dismiss the Trustee's counterclaims pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6).

37. Also on July 23, 2018, Highland Funding filed Highland CLO Funding Ltd.'s Motion to Dismiss [Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 43] ("Highland Funding's Motion to Dismiss") and Highland CLO Funding Ltd.'s Brief in Support of its Motion to Dismiss [Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 44], in which Highland Funding sought, inter alia, to dismiss the Trustee's counterclaims pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 12(b)(2) and 12(b)(6).

38. On August 1, 2018, Highland Capital filed Proof of Claim No. 27 in the claims register for Case No. 18-30264 (the "Highland Acis LP Claim"), in the amount of $4,672,140.38, with the basis of the claim listed as "Sub-Advisory Services and Shared Services."

⁵ Certain portions of the Complaint and Application for TRO were subsequently dismissed, ultimately leaving only: Count 1 for Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction (which injunctive relief expired with confirmation of the Plan (defined below)); and Count 2 for Willful Violation of the Automatic Stay against Highland Capital and Highland Funding. See Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket Nos. 49 & 56.

39. Also on August 1, 2018, Highland Capital filed Proof of Claim No. 13 in the claims register for Case No. 18-30265 (the "Highland Acis GP Claim," together with the Highland Acis LP Claim, the "Highland Capital Claims"), in the amount of $4,672,140.38, with the basis of the claim listed as "Sub-Advisory Services and Shared Services." The Highland Acis GP Claim is identical to the Highland Acis LP Claim.

40. On August 10, 2018, Highland Capital and Highland Funding filed Highland Capital Management, L.P. and Highland CLO Funding Ltd.'s Motion for Leave to Amend Adversary Complaint and Brief in Support [Docket No. 51] (the "Motion to Amend"), in which Highland Capital and Highland Funding sought to amend their Original Complaint to remove all claims against the Trustee, except for one claim by Highland Funding for a declaratory judgment that the Trustee cannot "sell or transfer Highland Funding's property without Highland Funding's consent."

41. On October 9, 2018, the Court heard Highland Capital's Motion to Dismiss, Highland Funding's Motion to Dismiss, and the Motion to Amend. Considering that the Trustee expressed his intent to amend his Original Answer, the parties agreed that all arguments made by Highland Capital and Highland Funding to dismiss the Trustee's counterclaims pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) were moot. With respect to Highland Funding's argument to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction under Rule 12(b)(2), the Court ruled that Highland Funding has minimum contacts with the United States, and that the Court, has personal jurisdiction over Highland Funding in this Adversary Proceeding, and exercising personal jurisdiction over Highland Funding would not violate any traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice. Further, the Court ruled that, even if sufficient minimum contacts did not exist, Highland Funding has waived personal jurisdiction in this Adversary Proceeding.

42. With respect to the Motion to Amend, due to the change in circumstances in the Bankruptcy Cases, Highland Capital and Highland Funding agreed to voluntarily dismiss all claims asserted in the Original Complaint, without prejudice.

43. On November 13, 2018, the Trustee filed his Defendant's Amended Answer, Counterclaims (Including Claim Objections) and Third-Party Claims [Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 84] (the "Amended Counterclaims") in this Adversary Proceeding, in which the Trustee asserted numerous counterclaims and third-party claims against Highland Capital and various of its affiliates in connection with, inter alia, their scheme to fraudulently transfer Acis LP's assets to the Highlands and otherwise appropriate the business of Acis LP. Additionally, with the Amended Counterclaims, the Trustee included his objections to the Highland Claims pursuant to section 502(b)(1), (b)(4), and (d) of the Bankruptcy Code (the "Objections to Claim"), and further asserted that, to the extent allowed, the Highland Claims should be equitably subordinated pursuant to section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code.

44. On December 11, 2018, Highland Capital filed Highland Capital Management, L.P.'s Application for Administrative Expense Claim Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 503(b) [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 772] (the "Application") for approval of an administrative expense claim pursuant to section 503(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code, in the amount of $3,554,224.29 (the "Administrative Claim"), for purportedly providing postpetition services to the Debtors in connection with the Sub Agreements (defined below) and the Universal/BVK Agreement (defined below), which Highland Capital contends were actual, necessary costs and expenses of preserving the estate.

45. On January 10, 2019, the Trustee timely filed his Objection to Highland Capital Management, L.P.'s Application for Administrative Expense Claim Pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 503(b) [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 772].

46. On January 31, 2019, this Court entered its Findings of Fact, Conclusions of Law, and Order Granting Final Approval of Disclosure Statement and Confirming the Third Amended Joint Plan for Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC, as Modified (the "Confirmation Order") [Case No. 18-30264, Docket Nos. 829 & 830], which approves the Third Amended Joint Plan for Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (the "Plan") and is supplemented by the Court's Bench Ruling and Memorandum of Law in Support of: (A) Final Approval of Disclosure Statement; and (B) Confirmation of Chapter 11 Trustee's Third Amended Joint Plan (the "Confirmation Opinion") [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 827]. The Confirmation Opinion is hereby incorporated by reference as if fully set forth herein.

47. On February 15, 2019 (the "Effective Date"), the Trustee filed the Notice of February 15, 2019 Effective Date for the Third Amended Joint Plan for Acis Capital Management, LP and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 863]. On the Effective Date, Acis (as the Reorganized Debtors) became substituted for the Trustee in the above-referenced consolidated adversary cases pursuant to the Plan, which provides:

Upon the Effective Date, the Reorganized Debtor (a) shall automatically be substituted in place of the Chapter 11 Trustee as the party representing the Estate in respect of any pending lawsuit, motion or other pleading pending before the Bankruptcy Court or any other tribunal, and (b) is authorized to file a notice on the docket of each adversary proceeding or the Chapter 11 Cases regarding such substitution. The Reorganized Debtor shall have exclusive standing and authority to prosecute, settle or compromise Estate Claims for the benefit of the Estate in the manner set forth in this Plan.

Plan § 7.03.

48. On March 11, 2019, the Court entered its Order Consolidating Adversary Case Nos. 18-03078 & 18-03212 [Adv. No. 18-03078, Docket No. 127; Adv. No. 18-03212, Docket No. 63], under which the Court ordered that Adversary Nos. 18-03078 and 18-03212 are consolidated under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 42(a), incorporated by Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7042. The Court further directed the Clerk to caption the case as Robin Phelan, Chapter 11 Trustee v. Highland Capital Management, L.P., et al., resulting in the designation of the Trustee, now Acis, as the Plaintiff(s) and Highland Capital and its affiliates as Defendants in this Adversary Proceeding.

49. On May 1, 2019, the Court entered its Order Addressing DE #825 and Directing that: (A) Highland Capital Management, L.P.'s Administrative Expense Request [DE #722] Be Converted from a Contested Matter to Adversary Proceeding; and (B) Counts 27-31 Be Transferred in Adversary Proceeding No. 18-03078 into a New Adversary Proceeding [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 919], whereby the Court converted Highland Capital's Application into a new adversary proceeding, and thereby initiating Adversary No. 19-03103.

50. On June 10, 2019, the Court held a status conference and directed: (i) that Adversary No. 19-03103 should be consolidated under this Adversary No. 18-03078; and (ii) that Acis will file an amended complaint, consolidating all claims, counterclaims, third-party claims against Highland Capital and its affiliates, as well as any objections to the Highland Capital Claims and Administrative Claim, by June 20, 2019.

V. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A. The Debtors' Business

51. Dondero, Okada, and Terry formed Acis LP in 2011 as a registered investment advisor to raise money from third-party investors to invest in certain collateralized loan obligation funds (the "CLOs").⁶ The CLOs are governed by certain indentures (the

⁶ The Acis CLOs include: (i) Acis CLO 2013-1 Ltd. ("CLO-1"), (ii) Acis CLO 2014-3 Ltd. ("CLO-3"), (iii) Acis CLO 2014-4 Ltd. ("CLO-4"), (iv) Acis CLO 2014-5 Ltd. ("CLO-5"), and (v) Acis CLO 2015-6 Ltd. ("CLO-6").

"Indentures").⁷ Acis LP is the portfolio manager for the CLOs and generates revenue primarily through the management of the CLOs via certain portfolio management agreements ("PMAs").⁸ See Opinion ¶¶ 22-28. While Dondero made and approved the higher-level financial strategies and decisions of Acis, Terry was responsible for the day-to-day management of Acis.

52. Acis LP's business as portfolio manager for the CLOs has been incredibly successful. Between 2011 and 2017, Acis LP distributed profits of $11,037,445.00 to Dondero, $4,598,935.00 to Terry, and $2,759,361.00 to Okada, its partners. Further, on August 31, 2017, right before Highland Capital began its campaign to denude Acis LP and take over its business, Acis LP also boasted millions of dollars in investment assets and total shareholder equity of roughly $3.4 million. Without question, Acis LP's business as portfolio manager for the CLOs and others has been very valuable and lucrative.

53. As is common with the numerous Highland Capital affiliates, Acis LP contracted out certain of its administrative functions and portfolio management responsibilities to Highland Capital pursuant to that certain Sub-Advisory Agreement, originally dated January 1, 2011 (as amended, the "Sub-Advisory Agreement") and that certain Shared Services Agreement, originally dated January 1, 2011 (as amended, the "Shared Services Agreement," and together with the "Sub Agreements"). The Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement have each been amended multiple times.

⁷ The Indentures include: (i) that certain Indenture, dated as of March 18, 2013, issued by CLO-1, as issuer, Acis CLO 2013-1 LLC, as co-issuer, and U.S. Bank, as trustee (the "CLO-1 Indenture"); (ii) that certain Indenture, dated as of February 25, 2014, issued by CLO-3, as issuer, Acis CLO 2014-3 LLC, as co-issuer, and U.S. Bank, as trustee (the "CLO-3 Indenture"); (iii) that certain Indenture, dated as of June 5, 2014, issued by CLO-4, as issuer, Acis CLO 2014-4 LLC, as co-issuer, and U.S. Bank, as trustee (the "CLO-4 Indenture"); (iv) that certain Indenture, dated as of November 18, 2014, issued by CLO-5, as issuer, Acis CLO 2014-5 LLC, as co-issuer, and U.S. Bank, as trustee (the "CLO-5 Indenture"); and (v) that certain Indenture, dated as of April 16, 2015, issued by CLO-6, as issuer, Acis CLO 2015-6 LLC, as co-issuer and U.S. Bank, as trustee (the "CLO-6 Indenture").

54. As the Court explained in its Opinion:

Acis LP and Acis GP/LLC have never had any employees. Rather, all employees that work for any of the Highland family of companies (including Mr. Terry) have, almost without exception, been employees of Highland itself. Highland has approximately 150 employees in the United States. Highland provides employees to entities in the organizational structure, such as Acis LP and Acis GP/LLC, through both the mechanism of: (a) a Shared Services Agreement (herein so called), which provides "back office" personnel—such as human resources, accounting, legal and information technology to the Highland family of companies; and (b) a Sub-Advisory Agreement (herein so called), which provides "front office" personnel to entities—such as the managers of investments like Mr. Terry. The evidence indicated that this is typical in the CLO industry to have such agreements.

Opinion at 14 (footnotes omitted).

55. Prior to entry of the Orders for Relief, Dondero directed, either himself or through Highland Capital employees, all actions taken by Acis. See Opinion ¶ 30.

Mr. Dondero [the Chief Executive of Highland] testified that he has decision making authority for the Alleged Debtors but usually delegates that authority to Highland's in-house lawyers, Scott Ellington (General Counsel, Chief Legal Officer, and Partner of Highland) and Isaac Leventon (Assistant General Counsel of Highland) . . . Mr. Leventon is designated to be the representative for the Alleged Debtors (and testified as a Rule 30(b)(6) witness during pre-trial discovery)—he explained that this representative-authority derives from the Shared Services Agreement. Mr. Leventon testified that he takes his instructions generally through his direct supervisor, Mr. Ellington.

56. Highland Funding, formerly known as Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("ALF"),⁹ holds the subordinated notes issued by the CLOs and receives the "very last cash flow from the CLOs." Opinion at pp. 12-13. "It, in certain ways, controls the CLO vehicle . . . [and] was essentially the equity owner in the CLO special purpose entities." Id. Until the ALF PMA Transfer in the Fall of

⁹ On October 30, 2017, Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. changed its name to Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. The defined term "ALF" used herein denotes Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. f/k/a Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. before October 30, 2017.

2017 (described below), Acis LP had complete control of Highland Funding and its valuable subordinated note rights to further enhance its successful portfolio management business.

B. Section 3.10(a) of the Limited Partnership Agreement

57. In order to form Acis LP, Acis GP, the general partner, and limited partners The Dugaboy Investment Trust¹⁰ (the "Trust"), Okada, and Terry entered into that certain Amended and Restated Agreement of Limited Partnership of Acis Capital Management, L.P. (the "LPA"), dated to be effective as of January 21, 2011.¹¹ The LPA is attached hereto as Exhibit A. The LPA is governed by Delaware Law. LPA § 6.11. At all relevant times herein, the officers of Acis GP are Dondero, as President, and Frank Waterhouse ("Waterhouse")¹², as Treasurer. Further, at least between October 14, 2015, and December 19, 2017, Dondero was the sole member of Acis GP. See Case No. 18-30265, Docket No. 152.

58. Pursuant to the Sub Agreements, Highland Capital received compensation for providing services to Acis LP, but amounts of compensation were subject to certain terms of the LPA. Section 3.10 of the LPA directs compensation and reimbursement of the General Partner and contains subpart (a), which limits compensation and reimbursement of expenses payable to the General Partner and any Affiliate of the General Partner without proper consent:

Compensation. The General Partner and any Affiliate of the General Partner shall receive no compensation from the Partnership for services rendered pursuant to this Agreement or any other agreements unless approved by a Majority Interest; provided, however, that the aggregate annual expenses of the Partnership, inclusive of such compensation, may not exceed 20% of Revenues without the consent of all of the members of the Founding Partner Group.

LPA § 3.10(a) (emphasis added).

¹⁰ Dondero was the trustee and owned 100% of the Trust, and he was President of Acis GP.

¹¹ The partnership interests of Acis LP were as follows: Acis GP owned .1%; the Trust owned 59.9%; Okada owned 15%; and Terry owned 25%.

¹² Waterhouse is a partner in Highland Capital and serves as Highland Capital's Chief Financial Officer.

59. An Affiliate under the LPA is defined as:

[A]ny [entity] that directly or indirectly controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with the [entity] in question. As used in this definition, the term "control" means the possession, directly or indirectly, of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of [an entity], whether through ownership of voting Securities, by contract, or otherwise.

Id. § 2.01.

60. Highland Capital was at all times relevant to this Second Amended Complaint, an Affiliate of Acis GP and Acis LP. Further, Highland Capital was at all times relevant to this Second Amended Complaint, an insider of Acis GP and Acis LP.

C. State Court Litigation and Arbitration

61. In June 2016, Highland Capital advised Terry that he had been terminated.

62. In September 2016, Highland Capital sued Terry in the 162nd Judicial District Court of Dallas County, Texas (the "State Court") under a variety of legal theories and causes of action, including breach of fiduciary duty/self-dealing, disparagement, and breach of contract. Terry asserted his own claims against Highland Capital, as well as claims against the Debtors, Dondero, and others, and demanded arbitration. Opinion ¶ 8.

63. On September 28, 2016, the State Court stayed the litigation and ordered the parties to arbitrate. Id. The parties then participated in a ten-day arbitration proceeding before JAMS, styled as Terry v. Highland, JAMS Arbitration No. 1310022713.

D. The Arbitration Award

64. On October 20, 2017, Terry obtained an arbitration award (the "Arbitration Award") jointly and severally against the Debtors in the amount of $7,949,749.15, plus post-award interest at the legal rate. The Arbitration Award was based on theories of breach of contract and breach of fiduciary duties. The Arbitration Award is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

65. Under the Arbitration Award, the arbitration panel found that Terry's termination by Dondero/Highland Capital was without cause and that, among other things, Acis breached the LPA and breached fiduciary duties owed to Terry as Acis's limited partner. Importantly, the arbitration panel found that Highland Capital had been paid more than 20% of Revenues (as such term is understood under the LPA), without Terry's consent, in violation of Section 3.10(a) of the LPA:

It is undisputed that ACIS habitually paid more than 20% of Revenues to Highland for providing ACIS with overhead and administration. Respondents' evidence and arguments that Terry waived or consented to ACIS's payment of excess expenses is not persuasive. At most, Terry accepted his ACIS distributions without regard to the expenses paid to Highland. This is not consent contemplated by the ACIS LPA.

The evidence establishes that Terry did not consent to ACIS payments of expenses in excess of 20% of Revenue and Terry has not waived his right to claim damages directly resulting from ACIS's and ACIS GP's breach of contract and breach of fiduciary duty. Clearly, ACIS and ACIS GP ignored Terry's contractual rights and ACIS GP as a general partner has a fiduciary duty not to benefit itself or another at the expense of its limited partner, as they ignore and breach the terms of the partnership agreement and diminish Terry's distributions.

Arbitration Award at pp. 15-16.

66. Additionally, in the analysis of Terry's damages, the arbitration panel stated:

The evidence establishes that ACIS and ACIS GP paid excess expenses to Highland during the years of 2013, 2014, 2015 and January through May 2016. These expenses paid exceeded the 20% of Revenues cap stated in Section 3.10(a) of the ACIS LPA. The payment of these excess expenses reduced Terry's ACIS partnership distributions during this period. Had excess expenses not been paid and only the contractually capped expenses had been paid, Terry would have received additional ACIS profits distributions of $1,755,481.00 for his 25% partnership interest in ACIS.

Arbitration Award at 20.

67. Finally, in its findings and conclusions, the arbitration panel stated: "ACIS [LP] and ACIS GP paid Highland Capital expenses in excess of the contractual limit imposed by Section 3.10(a) of the ACIS LPA." Arbitration Award at 22, ¶ 7.

68. On December 18, 2017, the 44th Judicial District Court of Dallas County, Texas, entered a final judgment confirming the Arbitration Award. Opinion ¶ 10. The judgment was abstracted in the Official Public Records of Dallas County, Texas, as Instrument No. 201800008611, and writs of garnishment were issued and served pursuant to the judgment.

69. Pursuant to the Arbitration Award, Highland Capital wrongly received at least $7,021,924.00 (collectively, the "Expense Overpayments") in excess of the clear cap under Section 3.10(a) of the LPA.¹³ On information and belief, Highland Capital wrongfully received other overpayments of expenses for many years in excess of the express limitations contained in the LPA. The Expense Overpayments for which the Plaintiffs seek relief herein include all overpayments by Acis LP to Highland Capital in violation of the expense cap pursuant to the LPA whether or not addressed in the Arbitration Award. The Plaintiffs seek a declaratory judgment that such Expense Overpayments to Highland Capital and any agreements supporting such overpayments were ultra vires and, thus, void or voidable. The Plaintiffs also seek to recover from Highland Capital all such Expense Overpayments, which rightfully belong to Acis LP, as set forth below.

E. Modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement

70. The Sub-Advisory Agreement has been amended from time to time. The first iteration the Sub-Advisory Agreement by and between Acis LP and Highland Capital dated January 1, 2011 (the "Original Sub-Advisory Agreement") provided that Acis LP was to pay Highland Capital certain amounts for assisting Acis LP with the advisory services required by the PMAs. Under the Original Sub-Advisory Agreement, Acis LP paid Highland Capital 5 bps of the management fees received by Acis LP pursuant to the various PMAs for the sub-advisory services provided to Acis LP by Highland Capital.

71. On July 29, 2016, the Sub-Advisory Agreement was modified to increase the sub-advisory fee from 5 basis points to 20 basis points (the "Second Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement"). The effective date of the Second Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement was also back-dated to January 1, 2016. The fourfold increase in the sub-advisory fees via the Second Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement siphons off the funds of Acis LP and effectively gifts the additional amounts to Highland Capital. Highland Capital was already contractually obligated to provide the sub-advisory services for the lower 5 basis points fee and no legitimate justification for this fourfold increase was ever presented. Notably, Terry was unjustifiably terminated from Acis in June 2016, roughly one month before Acis and Highland Capital amended the Sub-Advisory Agreement to increase the fee paid fourfold. Further, Dondero consented to the increased sub-advisory fee on behalf of both Acis LP and Highland Capital. Dondero signed the Second Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement as president of Highland Capital's general partner, Strand Advisors, Inc., and as president of Acis GP, the general partner of Acis LP.¹⁴

72. The Shared Services Agreement has also been amended from time to time. The first iteration of the shared services agreement, the Shared Services Agreement by and between Acis LP and Highland Capital, dated January 1, 2011 (the "Original Shared Services Agreement"), provided that Acis LP was to pay Highland Capital certain amounts for providing Acis LP with the back-office services such as book keeping, compliance, human resources and marketing. Under the Original Shared Services Agreement, Acis LP reimbursed Highland Capital for amounts directly attributable to Acis LP for these services. The Shared Services

Agreement was later amended to provide compensation to Highland Capital of 15 to 20 basis points, depending on the nature of the fund for which services were provided. Thus, shortly after Terry was terminated by Acis in June 2016, Acis was paying Highland Capital a total of 35 to 40 basis points for the sub-advisory and shared services it provided.

73. Due to the retroactive nature of the amendments to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement, Highland, at all times relevant to this proceeding, held an antecedent debt related to Acis.

74. Finally, as the Court has already found and as described in more detail below, Highland Capital, Dondero, and various of their affiliates and insiders (including Highland Funding, Highland Advisor and Highland Holdings) entered into numerous other transactions through the Fall of 2017 in an attempt to take control of Acis's assets and effectively take over Acis's business. The combination of all of these actions evidence a clear pattern of behavior by Highland Capital, Dondero, and various of their affiliates and insiders (including Highland Funding, Highland Advisor, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings)¹⁵ to hinder, delay or defraud Terry as a creditor and appropriate the going-concern business of Acis LP for the Highlands. Opinion, Section 1.C. (pp. 16-23).

F. Highland Capital's Mismanagement of the CLOs and the Trustee's Engagement of Brigade Capital Management, L.P.

75. During the pendency of these Bankruptcy Cases, while acting as sub-advisor, Highland Capital grossly mismanaged the CLOs. Following the Trustee's appointment in these Bankruptcy Cases, in disregard of its duties under the Sub-Advisory Agreement, Highland ¹⁵ The Debtors were also under Highland Capital and Dondero's control at this time and were active participants in all of Highland Capital and Dondero's schemes to denude the Debtors and make them "judgment proof" as the Debtors' own counsel, Jamie Welton, later boasted. In fact, Highland Funding has admitted that the Debtors were "no more than shell entities" in pleadings recently filed with the Court. Highland Funding's Motion to Dissolve Preliminary Injunction and Lift the Automatic Stay at page 21, Docket # 639 in Case No. 18-30264.

Capital failed to purchase a single loan for the CLOs. Yet, at the same time, in an apparent tactical move to accumulate cash in the CLOs (prior to an attempted liquidation), Highland Capital ordered that the Trustee sell numerous loans. Indeed, during this time, Highland Capital's own analysis showed that 19.7% to 32.4% of available loans were eligible for consideration for purchase in the CLOs. Although the Trustee expressed his concerns to Highland Capital about the accumulation of cash in the CLOs and Highland Capital's failure to recommend purchases of eligible collateral in the CLOs, Highland Capital failed to make any change or correction in its sub-advisor role, in abrogation of its duties.

76. In July 2018, considering Highland Capital's mismanagement of the CLOs and the exorbitant amounts attempted to be charged to Acis for its services under the Sub Agreements, the Trustee solicited potential third parties to provide shared services and sub-advisory services to the Debtors. After contacting over 40 parties, the Trustee received bids from nine parties to perform the services provided by Highland Capital under the Sub Agreements. Through this process, the Trustee was able to locate Brigade Capital Management, LP ("Brigade") and Cortland Capital Markets Services LLC ("Cortland") to provide such services to the Debtors at a rate far less than that charged by Highland Capital. As set forth more fully in the Emergency Motion to Approve Replacement Sub-Advisory and Shared Services Providers, Brigade Capital Management, LP and Cortland Capital Markets Services LLC [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 448] (the "Brigade Motion"), Brigade agreed to sub-advise the CLOs for 15 basis points. As further described by the Brigade Motion, Cortland agreed to provide middle and back office CLO outsourcing (previously provided by Highland Capital under the Shared Services Agreement) for $30,000 per month, $250-$350 per trade, and a one-time fee of $75,000. Cortland's fee equates to roughly 3 basis points per month.¹⁶

77. On August 1, 2018, the Court granted the Brigade Motion, and Brigade and Cortland began performing the services previously provided by Highland Capital under the Sub Agreements. See Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 464. Notably, on the record at the hearing on July 6, 2018, Highland offered to provide the same services it was providing Acis for 17.5 basis points less than it previously charged, a tacit acknowledgement that Highland had grossly overcharged Acis. See Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 369 at 243-44.

78. From approximately August 2, 2018 through December 11, 2018, Brigade directed the purchase of approximately $300 million in conforming loans for the CLOs. See Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 790 at 100-01 & 134.

G. The Highlands' Fraudulent Scheme to Take Over Acis's Business and Dismantle Acis's Assets.

79. After Terry received the Arbitration Award on October 20, 2017, the Highlands immediately began work to systematically transfer the assets of Acis LP to other Highlands. This was done to denude Acis LP of value and make the Debtors "judgment proof." This was also done to ensure that Acis LP's very valuable business as portfolio manager was taken over by other Highlands and remained under Highland Capital and Dondero's control.

80. Prior to the filing of the Bankruptcy Cases, the Highlands' scheme was accomplished through, inter alia, the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, and the transfer of the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements (as each is defined below), which all occurred in the three months between October 23 and December 19, 2017. Each of these transfers followed the same pattern: Highland Capital caused Acis LP to fraudulently convey valuable economic rights away from Acis LP to offshore (often newly created) Highland Capital affiliates that were not subject to Terry's Arbitration Award and judgment, thus, safely remaining under the control of Highland Capital and Dondero. Further, the only alleged consideration for these transfers, to the extent there was any, was the satisfaction of purported debts owed to other Highlands or their representatives.

81. Reference to Acis LP's balance sheets right before and right after the Highlands began their campaign of fraud against Terry and Acis demonstrate just how effective their scheme was. On August 31, 2017—roughly 45 days before the Arbitration Award—Acis LP boasted $15,441,551 in total assets (including nearly $4 million in valuable portfolio management investments and the $9.5 million note) as well as $3,372,851 in total equity value.¹⁷ After the Arbitration Award and the judgment enforcing it, Acis presented the affidavit of David Klos, Highland Capital's Controller, to the State Court in furtherance of Highland Capital's efforts to get a pathetically small bond for Terry's judgment. The Klos affidavit and attached balance sheet demonstrate that as of February 1, 2018 (the day after the Involuntary Petitions were filed) Acis LP had only $2,855,050 in total assets, no investment assets or notes, and a paltry $35,709 in total equity value.¹⁸ Thus, the amount of value destruction and asset concealment caused by the Highlands' brazen fraud in just the few months immediately after the Arbitration Award is staggering.

82. Even the filing of the Bankruptcy Cases did not deter the Highlands from attempting to complete their goal of denuding Acis. During the Bankruptcy Cases, in disregard of the automatic stay, on multiple occasions, the Highlands directed the Trustee to effectuate optional redemptions, which would result in the liquidation of the CLOs and render Acis incapable of reorganizing and paying its creditors.

1. The ALF PMA Transfer and the ALF Share Transfer

83. Prior to October 27, 2017, Acis LP—not ALF (or Highland Funding as it is currently named)—had authority to direct and effectuate an optional redemption and otherwise pervasively control ALF's assets. Acis LP had this authority pursuant to that certain Portfolio Services Agreement by and between Acis LP and ALF, dated August 10, 2015 (the "First ALF PMA") and that certain Portfolio Management Agreement by and between Acis LP and ALF, dated December 22, 2016 (the "Second ALF PMA"). A true and correct copy of the First ALF PMA is attached hereto as Exhibit E. A true and correct copy of the Second ALF PMA is attached hereto as Exhibit F.

84. The Second ALF PMA granted Acis LP, as the portfolio manager of ALF, extensive rights and discretion to control and manage ALF's assets, including its interests in the Acis CLOs. Section 5 of the Second ALF PMA set out Acis LP's authority, which included authority for and in the name of ALF to:

(a) invest, directly or indirectly . . . in all types of securities and other financial instruments of United States and non-U.S. entities . . . including without limitation . . . notes representing tranches of debt ('CLO Notes') issued by a special purpose vehicle which issues notes backed by a pool of collateral consisting primarily of loans (which may be represented by a debt or equity security) (a 'CLO') . . . (each of such items, 'Financial Instruments'), (c) provide credit and market research and analysis in connection with the investments and ongoing management of [ALF] and direct the formulation of investment policies and strategies for [ALF] . . . ; (g) possess, transfer, mortgage, pledge or otherwise deal in, and exercise all rights, powers, privileges and other incidents of ownership or possession with respect to Financial Instruments and other property and funds held or owned by [ALF] ...; (n) cause [ALF] to engage in . . . agency, agency cross, related party principal transactions with affiliates of [Acis LP] . . . ; and (q) vote Financial Instruments, participate in arrangements with creditors, the institution and settlement or compromise of suits and administrative proceedings and other like or similar matters.

Second ALF PMA § 5(a)-(q) (emphasis added).¹⁹

85. While ALF did not have authority to terminate the Second ALF PMA, Acis LP could terminate the Second ALF PMA without cause upon at least ninety (90) days' notice. See Second ALF PMA § 13(a)-(c). The Second ALF PMA provided that Acis LP could be removed as portfolio manager only "for cause." See ALF PMA § 14(a)-(e).

86. On October 27, 2017, just seven days after Terry's Arbitration Award, Acis LP ostensibly terminated its own portfolio management rights under the Second ALF PMA and transferred its authority and its valuable portfolio management rights—for no value—to Highland Advisor, an affiliate of Highland Capital.²⁰

87. This transfer of Acis LP's portfolio management rights to Highland Advisor was accomplished by way of a new Portfolio Management Agreement entered into by ALF and Highland Advisor on October 27, 2017 (the "October 2017 PMA"), which empowered Highland Advisor with the same broad authority to direct the management of ALF as was previously held by Acis LP under the ALF PMA (the "ALF PMA Transfer"). See October 2017 PMA §§ 1 & 5(a)-(q). A true and correct copy of the October 2017 PMA is attached hereto as Exhibit G.

88. As the Court explained:

On October 27, 2017 (seven days after the Arbitration Award), ALF—having purchased back the ownership interest that Acis LP had in it, just three days earlier—decided that it would no longer use Acis LP as its portfolio manager and ¹⁹ The Highlands contend that the reference to "control" in Section 6 of the Second ALF PMA negates the broad language of Section 5 of the Second ALF PMA. The Plaintiffs disagree.

entered into a new portfolio management agreement to supersede and replace the ALF Portfolio Management Agreement. Specifically, on October 27, 2017, ALF entered into a new Portfolio Management Agreement with a Cayman Island entity called Highland HCF Advisor, Ltd., replacing Acis LP in its role with ALF. This agreement appears to have been further solidified in a second portfolio management agreement dated November 15, 2017.

Opinion at 19 (footnotes omitted).

89. Under the prior ALF PMA, Acis LP's consent to the termination of the ALF PMA was required in order to effectuate the ALF PMA Transfer. So, Dondero, on behalf of Acis LP, simply signed the October 2017 PMA, consenting and agreeing to its removal and replacement, and transferring all authority and management rights as portfolio manager of ALF to Highland Advisor under the October 2017 PMA. Acis received no consideration for this transfer.

90. Without this ALF PMA Transfer, which transferred Acis LP's valuable rights under the ALF PMA to Highland Advisor, Highland Funding could not have attempted to liquidate the CLOs, by directing optional redemptions, and further deplete Acis's assets.²¹

91. On October 24, 2017, a mere four days after the Arbitration Award was entered, Waterhouse, on behalf of Acis LP, and Grant Scott, for CLO Holdco Ltd., entered into that certain special resolution whereby Highland Funding, then known as ALF, acquired back Acis's equity interest in ALF (the "ALF Share Transfer"). A true and correct copy of the special resolution is attached hereto as Exhibit H. Pursuant the ALF Share Transfer, ALF paid Acis LP $991,180.13 for all of its shares of ALF.

92. Thus, by virtue of the ALF PMA Transfer and the ALF Share Transfer, by October 31, 2017, Acis LP had given up all of its shares of ALF and all of its control of ALF.

²¹ After the ALF PMA Transfer, Highland Funding and Highland Advisor have issued at least three different optional redemption notices, in an attempt to terminate the PMAs and cut off the Debtors' primary source of cash. All three notices have been withdrawn and/or enjoined by this Court.

93. On November 15, 2017 – only days after the ALF Share Transfer and ALF PMA Transfer were completed – Highland Funding,²² Highland Advisor and CLO Holdco, Ltd. (another Highland Capital affiliate) entered into a subscription agreement whereby Highland Funding completed a private placement of its equity (including, upon information and belief, the equity acquired in the ALF Share Transfer) to third-party investors. The Plaintiffs believe both the ALF PMA Transfer and the ALF Share Transfer were concocted by Highland Capital and Highland Funding to complete this private placement, which was of great value to Highland Funding (then known as Acis Loan Funding, Ltd.) and Highland Capital, but after the transfers, of no value to Acis.²³ Without the ALF PMA Transfer and the ALF Share Transfer, control of Highland Funding's assets, and the Highland Funding stock held by Acis, would be vested in an entity (Acis LP) that was subject to a looming judgment based on Terry's recently acquired Arbitration Award. That would compromise the Highlands' control of Highland Funding.

2. The Note Transfer

94. On November 3, 2017, Acis LP, Highland Capital, and Highland Management (a newly created, offshore Highland Capital affiliate) entered into that certain Agreement for Assignment and Transfer of Promissory Note (the "Note Assignment and Transfer Agreement"). A true and correct copy of the Note Assignment and Transfer Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit I. The Note Assignment and Transfer Agreement, among other things, transferred the ²² ALF had changed its name to Highland Funding at this point.

²³ Highland Funding's (then Acis Loan Funding Ltd.) board of director minutes from October 6, 2017, disclose that the private placement investment would bring $150 million in new investment in Highland Funding and that they were "confident that they could develop further interest and ... bring the total capital to up to around $325 million." The Arbitration Award was issued against Acis LP exactly two weeks later, throwing a huge monkey wrench in Highland Funding's plans to raise hundreds of millions of dollars for Highland Capital and its cronies. Testimony in the bankruptcy case as well as the subscription agreement demonstrate that numerous Highland Capital executives, as well as Highland Capital itself, received Highland Funding stock in connection with this private placement. Thus, they were highly motivated to close this transaction and also deprive the Acis LP of any value in this transaction.

$9.5 million promissory note executed by Highland Capital and payable to Acis LP (the "Note") from Acis LP to Highland Management (the "Note Transfer"). As noted in the Opinion:

The Assignment and Transfer Agreement memorializing this transaction is signed by Mr. Dondero for Acis LP and Mr. Dondero for Highland and some undecipherable name for Highland CLO Management Ltd.

The document recites that (i) Highland is no longer willing to continue providing support services to Acis LP, (ii) Acis LP, therefore, can no longer fulfill its duties as a collateral manager, and (iii) Highland CLO Management Ltd. agrees to step into the collateral manager role if Acis LP will assign to it the Acis LP Note Receivable from Highland. One more thing: since Acis LP was expected to potentially incur future legal and accounting/administrative fees, and might not have the ability to pay them when due, Highland CLO Management Ltd. agreed to reimburse Acis LP (or pays its vendors directly) up to $2 million of future legal expenses and up to $1 million of future accounting/administrative expenses.

95. Acis LP received no or insufficient consideration for the Note Transfer.

96. The Note Transfer was also of great benefit to Highland Capital because it transferred Highland Capital's liability under the Note away from Acis LP (and its legal woes with Terry) and allowed Highland Capital's liability under the Note, and any payments made thereunder, to stay well within the control of the Highlands. Just as importantly to Highland Capital and Dondero, and in furtherance to their ongoing feud with Terry, the Note Transfer took away the Note as an asset from which Terry could collect his judgment and allowed Highland Capital to argue (as repeatedly argued in the Bankruptcy Cases) that Terry got his judgment against the "wrong" entities and that Highland Capital has no liability related to Terry's claim.

97. Additionally, the Note Assignment and Transfer Agreement also purports to initiate the transfer of the PMAs between Acis and the CLOs to Highland Management.²⁴ Again,

²⁴ Highland Management was registered in the Cayman Islands on October 27, 2017, roughly a week before the Note Transfer (and on the exact day of the ALF PMA Transfer). Thus, Highland Management had no portfolio or collateral management experience whatsoever when it entered the Assignment and Transfer Agreement. To the contrary, it appears Highland Management was an entity that was created specifically to hold the Note and eventually take possession of the PMAs in an international forum that would be difficult for Terry to reach, similar Acis LP was to receive no consideration for transferring its most significant assets, the PMAs. As the Court is aware, Acis LP did not in fact transfer the PMAs pursuant to the Note Assignment and Transfer Agreement, but it was clearly the plan as outlined in that agreement and further evidence of Highland Capital's intent to steal Acis LP's valuable going-concern business.

3. The Acis CLO 2017-7 Transfers

98. On December 19, 2017, Acis LP and Highland Holdings (another newly created, offshore Highland Capital affiliate)²⁵ entered into that certain Agreement for Assignment and Transfer (the "2017-7 Assignment and Transfer Agreement"). A true and correct copy of the 2017-7 Assignment and Transfer Agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit J. The 2017-7 Assignment and Transfer Agreement focused on Acis CLO Management, LLC ("Acis CLO Management"), which is an entity that had been formed to enter into a portfolio management agreement with Acis CLO 2017-7, Ltd. ("CLO 2017-7"). CLO 2017-7 is the last CLO the Highlands formed. Acis CLO Management was indirectly owned by Acis LP, and Acis LP and Acis CLO Management had entered into a Master Sub-Advisory Agreement and a Staff and Services Agreement (the "2017-7 Agreements") that allowed Acis LP to manage the CLO 2017-7 portfolio and collect management fees for CLO 2017-7.

99. The 2017-7 Assignment and Transfer Agreement, among other things, transferred to Highland Holdings all of Acis LP's interest in the 2017-7 Agreements. The 2017-7 Assignment and Transfer Agreement also transferred to Highland Holdings all of Acis LP's to the transferees for the ALF PMA Transfer (Highland Advisor, a Cayman Island entity) the ALF Share Transfer (Highland Funding, a Guernsey entity) and the 2017-1 Assignment and Transfer Agreement (Highland Holdings, a Cayman Island entity). Thus, not only did Highland Capital and Dondero scheme to transfer Acis LP's assets away from it, but they also slyly chose entities in offshore jurisdictions that would be hard for a judgment creditor to reach.

²⁵ Like Highland Management, Highland Holdings was registered in the Cayman Islands on October 27, 2017.

equity interests in various entities that constituted Acis LP's indirect equity interests in Acis CLO Management (the "2017-7 Equity"). Thus, similar to the ALF PMA Transfer and the ALF Share Transfer that occurred roughly two months before, Acis LP was divested of both its ownership in Acis CLO Management and its control of Acis CLO Management (and related management fee stream) in one fell swoop on December 19, 2017, which is the day after Terry received his judgment based on the Arbitration Award. Also, importantly, the 2017-7 Assignment and Transfer Agreement rendered Acis non-compliant with relevant U.S. and European risk retention requirements.

100. Significantly, also on December 19, 2017, Highland Capital entered into an agreement with Highland Holdings that allowed Highland Capital to sub-advise and manage CLO 2017-7 and get paid the management fees that otherwise would have flowed to Acis LP. So, like the numerous transfers before it, Highland Capital effectuated the transfer of the 2017-7 Agreements and 2017-7 Equity to cut out Acis LP, while Highland Capital stayed in complete control of CLO 2017-7 and its stream of management fees.

101. As the Court noted in the Opinion:

On December 19, 2017—just one day after the Arbitration Award was confirmed with the entry of the Final Judgment—the vehicle that can most easily be described as the Acis LP "risk retention structure" (necessitated by federal Dodd Frank law) was transferred away from Acis LP and into the ownership of Highland CLO Holdings, Ltd. (yet another Cayman Island entity, incorporated on October 27, 2017).

In addition to transferring Acis LP's interest in the Acis LP risk retention structure on December 19, 2017, Acis LP also transferred its contractual right to receive management fees for Acis CLO 2017-7, Ltd. (which had just closed April 10, 2017), which Mr. Terry credibly testified had a combined value of $5 million, to Highland CLO Holdings, Ltd., another Cayman entity, purportedly in exchange for forgiveness of a $2.8 million receivable that was owed to Highland under the most recent iteration of the Shared Services Agreement and Sub-Advisory Agreement for CLO-7. In conjunction with this transfer, Highland CLO Holdings, Ltd. then entered into new Shared Services and Sub-Advisory Agreements with Highland.

102. The purported consideration for the 2017-7 Equity transferred in the 2017-7 Assignment and Transfer Agreement was the forgiveness of a $2,804,870 payable allegedly owed by Acis LP to Highland Capital and transferred to Highland Funding sometime before the agreement was entered. According to Acis LP's financial statements, this payable to Highland Capital entirely comprises amounts due under the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement. Thus, the "consideration" provided in exchange for the 2017-7 Assignment and Transfer Agreement would suffer from the same defects as outlined throughout this Second Amended Complaint related to the Sub Agreements; i.e., Acis only "owed" Highland Capital these amounts because Highland Capital grossly overcharged Acis. Finally, like the Note Transfer, the 2017-7 Equity transfer allowed Highland Capital to effectively collect all of the $2.8 million owed by Acis LP (assuming it is even a valid debt) through the use of an offshore intermediary.

103. Further, the 2017-7 Assignment and Transfer Agreement itself discloses that no consideration was provided for the transfer of the 2017-7 Agreements. Rather, the justification for the transfer of the 2017-7 Agreements is Highland Capital's self-serving refusal to continue to do business with Acis LP after the Arbitration Award and related judgment.

4. Thwarted Attempts to Transfer the Universal/BVK Agreement and Force an Optional Redemption

104. Highland Capital and the other Highlands did not stop with the transfers in the Fall of 2017. Immediately after the Involuntary Petitions were filed on January 30, 2018, Highland Capital conspired with Acis LP's own bankruptcy counsel in an effort to appropriate Acis LP's valuable sub-advisor rights under the Agreement for the Outsourcing of Asset Management (the "Universal/BVK Agreement") between Acis LP and Universal-Investment-

Luxembourg S.A. ("Universal"), which provided sub-advisory services for a German fund called BayVK R2 Lux S.A., SICAV-FIS ("BVK").²⁶ Like the many transfers before it, Highland Capital's plan (as clearly outlined in an email from Isaac Leventon to Mike Warner) was "to transfer the BVK investment management agreement from Acis LP to another Highland-affiliated manager."²⁷ Immediately after Highland Capital sought (and presumably received) advice from Acis's own counsel, Highland Capital reached out to Universal and BVK to solicit their participation in Highland Capital's scheme. In fact, BVK acknowledged in its very first email with Highland Capital after Acis LP's bankruptcy filing that Highland Capital's plan was to replace Acis LP.

105. Over the several weeks leading up to this Court's ruling on the Orders for Relief, Highland Capital and Universal/BVK did, in fact, frequently discuss replacing Acis LP, conducted extensive due diligence in order to replace Acis LP and even negotiated and prepared a new asset management agreement between Highland Capital and Universal that was to take effect once Acis LP and its bankruptcy were out of the way. But even after the Orders for Relief were entered and the Debtors were under the control of a trustee, the communications did not stop. Among other things, Highland Capital volunteered to pay Universal and BVK's legal costs incurred in terminating Acis LP and making Highland Capital the new sub-advisor for Universal and BVK, Highland Capital repeatedly criticized the Trustee for his management of Acis, and Highland Capital repeatedly expressed its desire to negotiate with Universal and to "onboard" Highland Capital as Universal's new sub-advisor. And even after Highland Capital was fired by the Trustee as Acis LP's sub-advisor and replaced with Brigade and Cortland, the communications did not stop. Highland Capital's scheme to transfer the Universal/BVK Agreement to Highland Capital or its affiliate was apparently only prevented by this Court imposing 11 U.S.C. § 363, effectively taking away Acis LP's right to operate outside the ordinary course of business without Court authority under 11 U.S.C. § 303(f) and then later not immediately lifting the automatic stay as to the Universal/BVK Agreement.

106. Finally, Highland Advisor and its sub-manager Highland Capital, used its newly acquired management rights (by way of the ALF PMA Transfer) to attempt to destroy the Debtor, as further described below.

5. The First Optional Redemption Notices

107. On April 30, 2018, without requesting relief from the automatic stay, Highland Funding sent five notices purportedly requesting optional redemption pursuant to Section 9.2 of each of the Indentures (the "First Optional Redemption Notices").²⁸ True and correct copies of the First Optional Redemption Notices are attached hereto as Exhibit L.

108. The First Optional Redemption Notices directed Acis LP to effectuate an Optional Redemption (as defined under each Indenture). Under Section 9.2 of each Indenture, upon the receipt of a notice of redemption, Acis, in its discretion, is to direct the sale of the Collateral Obligations (as defined by each Indenture) and other Assets. See CLO-1 Indenture, § 9.2; CLO-3 Indenture, § 9.2(b); CLO-4 Indenture, § 9.2; CLO-5 Indenture, § 9.2; & CLO-6 Indenture, § 9.2. In the Indentures, "Assets" is defined to include the PMAs. See CLO-1 Indenture, p. 8; CLO-3 Indenture, p. 10; CLO-4 Indenture, p. 10; CLO-5 Indenture, p. 10; & CLO-6 Indenture p. 10. Consequently, an Optional Redemption directs Acis LP to liquidate assets of the CLOs over which Acis has certain property rights, including, effectively, the PMAs.

²⁸ Nexpoint Strategic Opportunities Fund (f/k/a NexPoint Credit Strategies Fund) ("Nexpoint") and Drexel Limited ("Drexel") joined in one of the Optional Redemption Notices. Like HCLOF, Nexpoint is an affiliate of Highland.

109. The Trustee analyzed the First Optional Redemption Notices and determined there were various defects which rendered them ineffective. Therefore, on May 22, 2018, the Trustee sent his responses to the five First Optional Redemption Notices (the "Redemption Responses"). True and correct copies of the Redemption Responses are attached hereto as Exhibit M.

6. The Temporary Restraining Order Against the Highlands

110. On May 30, 2018, Highland Capital and Highland Funding initiated this Adversary Proceeding and alleged, among other things, that the Trustee breached the PMAs by failing to effectuate an Optional Redemption pursuant to the First Optional Redemption Notices.

111. The next day, on May 31, 2018, upon the request of the Trustee, the Court held a status conference in the Bankruptcy Cases, and the Trustee explained that, almost immediately after his appointment, he began exploring plan options regarding a potential transaction that would transfer rights under the PMAs, the Sub-Advisory Agreement, the Shared Services Agreement, and the subordinated notes, with respect to CLO-3, CLO-4, CLO-5, and CLO-6, with the goal of maximizing value for all parties. The Trustee informed the Court that he was in the process of negotiating a transaction with a party that would potentially provide enough value to pay all parties, including potentially all of Acis's creditors in full.

112. On May 31, 2018, at the conclusion of the status conference, the Court, sua sponte, issued a temporary restraining order, which prevented all parties from taking any action in furtherance of the Optional Redemption for fourteen (14) days.

113. On June 6, 2018 the Court entered its Temporary Restraining Order (the "TRO"), whereby the Restrained Parties (as defined in the TRO) were enjoined until 12:01 a.m. on June 15, 2018, from:

- a) proceeding with, effectuating, or otherwise taking any action in furtherance of the Optional Redemption, call, or other liquidation of the Acis CLOs; and
- b) sending, mailing, or otherwise distributing any notice to the holders of the Acis CLOs in connection with the Optional Redemption, call, or other liquidation of the Acis CLOs.

114. On June 11, 2018, the Trustee filed his Motion to Extend the Temporary Restraining Order (the "Motion to Extend the TRO"), in which the Trustee sought to extend the TRO for an additional 14 days. See Docket No. 275.

115. Also on June 11, 2018, Highland Funding filed its Memorandum of Law in Opposition to the Continuance of the Temporary Restraining Order (the "Brief in Opposition to Extending the TRO"). See Case No. 18-3264, Docket. No. 271. This pleading did not mention that Highland Capital apparently violated the TRO by initiating approximately $23 million of sales of CLO assets pursuant to the Optional Redemption after the Court issued its sua sponte TRO on May 31.

7. The Second Optional Redemption Notices

116. On June 13, 2018, the day before the hearing on the Motion to Extend the TRO, Highland Funding advised the Trustee that Highland Funding would withdraw the First Optional Redemption Notices. Highland Funding's correspondence with the Trustee indicating its intent to withdraw the First Optional Redemption Notices is attached hereto as Exhibit N and incorporated herein for all purposes. Thereafter, the Trustee advised the Court that Highland Funding was withdrawing the First Optional Redemption Notices, and the Trustee therefore did not intend to go forward with the Motion to Extend the TRO on June 14.

117. On June 14, 2018, counsel for Highland Funding advised the Court that Highland Funding had withdrawn the First Optional Redemption Notices. Counsel for Highland Funding further advised the Court that the First Optional Redemption Notices were withdrawn to bring "some sanity to this process":

That was done obviously for multiple reasons. My client doesn't believe that this is the appropriate time to be effectuating such a redemption for its own economic reasons, setting aside the complications it's obviously caused for others in this room. But needless to say, that, too, is an effort to try to bring, as I believe the Court has requested, and others have, some sanity to this process.²⁹

118. On June 15, 2018, at 12:01 a.m., the TRO expired.

119. Later on June 15, 2018, despite the fact that Highland Funding had just withdrawn the First Optional Redemption Notices, had advised the Court of the same, and the Trustee and the Court acted in reliance on same, (again, without requesting relief from the automatic stay) Highland Funding gave notice to the Trustee that it was again requesting an Optional Redemption pursuant to the Section 9.2 of each of the Indentures (the "Second Optional Redemption Notices," and together with the First Optional Redemption Notices, the "Optional Redemption Notices"). The Second Optional Redemption Notices are attached hereto as Exhibit Q and are incorporated herein for all purposes.

120. By the Second Optional Redemption Notices, Highland Funding directed the Issuers:

to effect an Optional Redemption of all Secured Notes and the Subordinated Notes in full on July 30, 2018 for the express purpose of placement of a portion of the portfolio of assets held by the Co-Issuers into a warehouse arrangement or a total return swap or other derivative arrangement with Highland Capital Management, L.P. acting as the Sub-Advisor pursuant to a Sub-Advisory Agreement.

121. On June 20, 2018, Highland Capital presented to the Trustee hundreds of millions of dollars of "proposed trades" pursuant to this second Optional Redemption. In its correspondence to the Trustee regarding such proposed trades, Highland Capital further stated:

²⁹ See Docket No. 298 at 7, ll. 16-22 (June 14, 2018 Hr'g Tr.).

In order to effectuate the Transaction and obtain best execution, Highland requests your consent by no later than 2pm tomorrow, Thursday June 21, 2018 (the "Deadline"). The Acis Accounts may incur losses as a result of your failure to respond by the Deadline.
Highland believes it has an independent fiduciary obligation to the CLOs. If you instruct Highland not to proceed to undertake the Optional Redemption, Highland reserves its rights to seek appropriate protection and redress at law or in equity.³⁰

H. Preferential Transfers Made within One Year of the Petition Date

122. Acis's Statement of Financial Affairs [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 165] (the "SOFA")³¹ and its general ledger disclose more than two dozen payments totaling $16,113,790.14 made to Highland Capital within one year of the Petition Date based on four categories (the "Prepetition Payments"):

- (i) Contractual Payments: $5,011,836.72
- (ii) Services: $7,672,145.25³²
- (iii) Unsecured Loan Repayments Including Interest: $3,311,497.65
- (iv) Expense Reimbursement: $118,311.32

123. The Prepetition Payments were made for the benefit of Highland Capital for or on account of an antecedent debt owed by the Debtors before the Prepetition Payments were made. Acis was insolvent at all times when the Prepetition Payments were made. Based on Terry's pending—or already decided—claims, as well as Highland Capital's absolute operational and financial control of Acis, Highland Capital was aware that Acis was insolvent or reasonably should have been aware Acis was insolvent at all times when the Prepetition Payments were made. The Prepetition Payments were made within one year of the Petition Date. At the time the

³¹ The SOFA is sworn under penalty of perjury and signed by Issac Leventon, a Highland employee and associate general counsel.

³² The Statement of Financial Affairs, filed in the bankruptcy cases by Acis while under Highland Capital control, fails to list an additional $1,868,203.44 in transfers to Highland Capital for "Services" that were made shortly before the Petition Date.

Prepetition Payments were made Highland Capital was an insider of the Debtors. The Prepetition Payments enabled Highland Capital to receive more than Highland Capital would have received if the cases were a case under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code and if the Prepetition Payments had not been made. Highland Capital received the Prepetition Payments. See Williams v. McKesson Corp. (In re Quality Infusion Care, Inc.), Nos. 10-36675, 13-3056, 2013 Bankr. LEXIS 5044 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. Nov. 25, 2013) (citing Palmer Clay Prods. Co. v. Brown, 297 U.S. 227, 229 (1936) and stating the 547(b)(5) is to be analyzed as of the Petition Date).

124. Further, to the extent that the Acis LP payables that served as the consideration for the Note Transfer and the 2017-7 Equity transfer were valid, these transfers would also constitute preferential payments to Highland Capital, Highland Management and Highland Holdings. The SOFA discloses that Highland Management is an "affiliate" of the Debtors and the Note Transfer is included on the list of "payments, distributions, withdrawals credited, or given to insiders" within one year before filing the Bankruptcy Cases. See SOFA p. 12.

VI. CAUSES OF ACTION³³

Count 1: Declaratory Judgment that Expense Overpayments to Highland Capital Were Ultra Vires in Violation of the LPA [Against Highland Capital]

125. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

126. Under Delaware law, ultra vires corporate acts are either void or voidable. See Klaassen v. Allegro Dev. Corp., C.A. No. 8626-VCL, 2013 Del. Ch. LEXIS 247, at *48-50 (Oct. 11, 2013); see also Stephen A. Solomon v. Armstrong, 747 A.2d 1098, 1114 n.45 (1999) (explaining the difference between void and voidable acts). Delaware courts apply the doctrine of ultra vires to partnerships by analogy. See, e.g., In re Mesa Ltd. P'ship Preferred Unitholders Litig., Civil Action No. 12,243, 1991 Del. Ch. LEXIS 214, at *20 (Dec. 10, 1991).

127. Highland Capital invoiced Acis for, and received payments for, at least $7,021,924.00 in excess of 20% of Revenues, in violation of the LPA. Highland Capital, an Affiliate of Acis GP, accepted such funds in violation of Section 3.10(a) of the LPA.

128. Such Expense Overpayments, and any agreements supporting such Expense Overpayments, were economically irrational, not in the interest of Acis LP, and are therefore void; however, if not void, such actions are voidable because they were done without the consent or ratification of all members of the Founding Partner Group. The payments to Highland Capital of the Expense Overpayments in the amount of at least $7,021,924.00 and any agreements supporting such overpayments were unauthorized or ultra vires acts of the partnership in violation of the LPA, and are therefore void or voidable.

Count 2: Turnover of Property of the Estate under 11 U.S.C. § 542(a) for Unauthorized Overpayments
[Against Highland Capital]

129. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

130. Under section 542(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, "an entity, other than a custodian, in possession, custody, or control, during the case, of property that the trustee may use, sell, or lease under section 363 . . . shall deliver to the trustee, and account for, such property or the value of such property, unless such property is of inconsequential value or benefit to the estate." 11 U.S.C. § 542(a).

131. Under section 541(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, property of the estate includes "all legal or equitable interests of the debtor in property as of the commencement of the case." 11 U.S.C. § 541(a). Further, the "estate is comprised of [such] property, wherever located and by whomever held." Id.

132. Highland Capital wrongfully received Expense Overpayments of at least $7,021,924.00 in excess of 20% of Revenues in violation of the LPA.

133. The property, or value of such property, from the overpayment of funds wrongfully transferred to Highland Capital totaling at least $7,021,924.00, in Highland Capital's possession, custody, or control is property of the estate, and the value of such property is not of inconsequential value or benefit to the estate.

134. Pursuant to section 542(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Highland Capital must deliver to the Trustee the property or value of such property, totaling at least $7,021,924.00, wrongfully transferred to Highland Capital.

135. Therefore, the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek turnover of the funds, totaling at least $7,021,924.00, transferred to Highland Capital, to the extent allowed pursuant to section 542 of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 3: Money Had and Received for Overcharges and Unauthorized Overpayments
[Against Highland Capital]

136. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

137. "An action for money had and received arises when the defendant obtains money which in equity and good conscience belongs to the plaintiff. This action . . . looks only to the justice of the case and inquires whether the defendant has received money which rightfully belongs to another." Amoco Prod. Co. v. Smith, 946 S.W.2d 162, 164 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1997, no pet.) (internal citations omitted).

138. Highland Capital invoiced Acis for, and received Expense Overpayments for, at least $7,021,924.00 in excess of 20% of Revenues in violation of the LPA. Highland Capital, an Affiliate of Acis GP, accepted such funds in violation of Section 3.10(a) of the LPA. Highland Capital was therefore unjustly enriched in the amount of the Expense Overpayments of at least $7,021,924.00.

139. Highland Capital invoiced Acis and accepted such Expense Overpayments from Acis despite Highland Capital's knowledge of the LPA. This money rightfully belongs to Acis, and the overpayment creates a debt in favor of Acis. Therefore, the Plaintiffs are entitled to damages on behalf of Acis in the amount of at least $7,021,924.00. In addition, Highland Capital charged Acis more than a market rate under the Second Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement and the Third Amended Sub-Services Agreement and is liable to Acis in the amount of these overcharges.

Count 4: Conversion for Unauthorized Overpayments
[Against Highland Capital]

140. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

141. "Conversion is defined as the wrongful exercise of dominion and control over another's property in denial of or inconsistent with his rights." Green Int'l v. Solis, 951 S.W.2d 384, 391 (Tex. 1997).

142. Highland Capital wrongfully exercised dominion and control over at least $7,021,924.00 in excess of 20% of Revenues in violation of the LPA. Highland Capital, through the common control of Dondero, was aware that it was prohibited from receiving payment in excess of 20% of Revenues without the consent of all members of the Founding Partner Group. Highland Capital also had actual notice of the Arbitration Award through Dondero (who was represented at the arbitration proceeding) that Highland Capital was wrongfully in possession of such money. Despite Highland Capital's actual knowledge that the money does not rightfully belong to Highland Capital, Highland Capital continues to improperly retain the overpaid funds. Therefore, the Plaintiffs are entitled to damages in the amount of at least $7,021,924.00. In addition, Highland Capital charged Acis more than a market rate under the Second Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement and the Third Amended Shared Services Agreement and is liable to Acis in the amount of these overcharges.

Count 5: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(A) related to the Sub-Advisory Agreement [Against Highland Capital]

143. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

144. Section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of an interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor made such transfer or incurred such obligation with actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any entity to which the debtor was or became, on or after the date that such transfer was made or such obligation was incurred, indebted.

145. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek to avoid the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement made in the Second Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement and Third Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement, any obligations incurred by Acis in connection with these modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement, and any payments made (including increase in payments made) by Acis to Highland Capital in connection with these modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement because such modifications and payments were made with an actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud Terry, a creditor of Acis, demonstrated by, among other things, that:

- (i) The modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement were made shortly after Terry's termination and just prior to litigation with Terry;
- (ii) The modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement—entered into by Dondero on behalf of Acis and Highland Capital—and payments thereunder were made with the actual intent to divert assets to and for the benefit of Highland Capital, in fraud upon Acis's creditors, namely Terry.

- (iii) Acis was or became insolvent as a result of the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments thereunder;
- (iv) The modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments thereunder occurred both before and after substantial debts were incurred by Acis;
- (v) The consideration received by Acis for the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments thereunder were not reasonably equivalent in value; and
- (vi) the transfer/obligation incurred was to an insider.

146. Therefore, such modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreements and payments to Highland Capital pursuant to such modifications should be avoided to the extent avoidable under section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 6: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.005(a)(1) related to the Sub-Advisory Agreement
[Against Highland Capital]

147. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

148. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(1) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation with an actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud any creditor of the debtor. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Trustee may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis, or obligations incurred by Acis, pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(1).

- SECOND AMENDED COMPLAINT (INCLUDING CLAIM OBJECTIONS AND OBJECTIONS TO ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSE CLAIM)

150. Therefore, Acis's creditors have the right to avoid the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments thereunder under section 24.005(a)(1) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code, and the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, can seek to enforce that right under section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 7: Constructive Fraudulent Transfer under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(B) related to the Sub-Advisory Agreement
[Against Highland Capital]

151. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

152. Section 548(a)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of any interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was insolvent on the date the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred, or became insolvent as the result of the transfer or obligation; (B) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction for which any remaining property was unreasonably small capital; or (C) intended to incur, or believed the debtor would incur, debts that would be beyond the debtors' ability to pay such debts.

153. As described above, among other things, Acis LP:

- (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments made thereunder;
- (ii) was or became insolvent as the result of the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments made thereunder; and
- (iii) intended to incur, or believed Acis would incur, debts that would be beyond Acis's ability to pay such debts.

154. Therefore, the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement made in the Second Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement and the Third Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement, any obligations incurred by Acis in connection with these modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and any payments made (including increase in payments made) by Acis to Highland Capital in connection with these modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement are avoidable by the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, under section 548(a)(1)(B).

Count 8: Constructive Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a) related to the Sub-Advisory Agreement
[Against Highland Capital]

155. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

156. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(2) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was engaged or about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets were unreasonably small in relation to the business or transaction, or (B) intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed, that the debtor would incur debts beyond the debtor's ability to pay as they became due. Similarly, Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.006(a) provides that a current creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) the debtor was insolvent or rendered insolvent by the transfer or obligation sought to be avoided. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis, or obligations incurred by Acis, pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

157. As described above, Acis LP did not receive reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments made thereunder to Highland Capital, and creditors at the time of such modifications and payments could have avoided such modifications and payments under section 24.005(a)(2) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code.

158. At the time of the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments made thereunder to Highland Capital, Acis intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed that Acis would incur, debts beyond its ability to pay as they became due, and/or was engaged, or was about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets of Acis were unreasonably small in relation to such business or transaction.

159. Moreover, as described above, Acis was insolvent or became insolvent by the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and payments made thereunder.

160. Therefore, the modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement made in the Second Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement and the Third Amended Sub-Advisory Agreement, any obligations incurred by Acis in connection with these modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and any payments made (including increase in payments made) by Acis to Highland Capital in connection with these modifications to the Sub-Advisory Agreement are avoidable under Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

Count 9: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(A)
for the ALF PMA Transfer [Against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, and Highland Advisor]

161. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

162. Section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of an interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor made such transfer or incurred such obligation with actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any entity to which the debtor was or became, on or after the date that such transfer was made or such obligation was incurred, indebted.

163. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek to avoid the ALF PMA Transfer because such transfer was made with an actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud Terry, a creditor of Acis, demonstrated by, among other things, that:

- (i) The ALF PMA Transfer was made just seven days after Terry's Arbitration Award against Acis;
- (ii) The ALF PMA Transfer was made with the actual intent to divert Acis LP's contractual rights under the ALF PMA to and for the benefit of Highland Advisor, in fraud upon Acis LP's creditors, namely Terry.
- (iii) Acis LP was insolvent at the time of the ALF PMA Transfer or became insolvent as a result of the ALF PMA Transfer;
- (iv) The ALF PMA Transfer occurred both before and after substantial debts were incurred by Acis LP;
- (v) Acis LP received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the ALF PMA Transfer;
- (vi) The transfer was made to an insider (Highland Advisor) and for the benefit of insiders (Highland Funding and Highland Capital); and
- (vii) Highland Capital (as sub-advisor to Highland Advisor) retained effective possession and control of the property transferred after the transfer.

164. Therefore, the ALF PMA Transfer should be avoided to the extent avoidable under section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 10: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.005(a)(1)
for the ALF PMA Transfer
[Against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, and Highland Advisor]

165. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

166. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(1) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation with an actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud any creditor of the debtor. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Trustee may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis, or obligations incurred by Acis, pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(1).

167. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek to avoid the ALF PMA Transfer because such transfer was made with an actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud Terry, a creditor of Acis, demonstrated by, among other things, that:

- (i) The ALF PMA Transfer was made just seven days after Terry's Arbitration Award against Acis;
- (ii) The ALF PMA Transfer was made with the actual intent to divert Acis LP's contractual rights under the ALF PMA to and for the benefit of Highland Advisor, in fraud upon Acis LP's creditors, namely Terry.
- (iii) Acis LP was insolvent at the time of the ALF PMA Transfer or became insolvent as a result of the ALF PMA Transfer;
- (iv) The ALF PMA Transfer occurred both before and after substantial debts were incurred by Acis LP; and
- (v) Acis LP received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the ALF PMA Transfer;

- (vi) The transfer was made to an insider (Highland Advisor) and for the benefit of insiders (Highland Funding and Highland Capital); and
- (vii) Highland Capital (as sub-advisor to Highland Advisor) retained effective possession and control of the property transferred after the transfer.

168. Therefore, Acis's creditors have the right to avoid the ALF PMA Transfer under section 24.005(a)(1) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code, and the Plaintiffs can seek to enforce that right under section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 11: Constructive Fraudulent Transfers under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(B)
for the ALF PMA Transfer
[Against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, and Highland Advisor]

169. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

170. Section 548(a)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of any interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was insolvent on the date the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred, or became insolvent as the result of the transfer or obligation: (B) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction for which any remaining property was unreasonably small capital; or (C) intended to incur, or believed the debtor would incur, debts that would be beyond the debtors' ability to pay such debts.

171. As described above, among other things, Acis LP:

- (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the ALF PMA Transfer;
- (ii) was insolvent on the date the ALF PMA Transfer was made or became insolvent as the result of the ALF PMA Transfer;

- (iii) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction for which any remaining property was unreasonably small capital; and
- (iii) intended to incur, or believed Acis would incur, debts that would be beyond Acis's ability to pay such debts.

172. Therefore, ALF PMA Transfer is avoidable under section 548(a)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 12: Constructive Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a) for the ALF PMA Transfer [Against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, and Highland Advisor]

173. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

174. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(2) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was engaged or about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets were unreasonably small in relation to the business or transaction, or (B) intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed, that the debtor would incur debts beyond the debtor's ability to pay as they became due. Similarly, Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.006(a) provides that a current creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) the debtor was insolvent or rendered insolvent by the transfer or obligation sought to be avoided. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis, or obligations incurred by Acis, pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

175. As described above, Acis LP did not receive reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the ALF PMA Transfer, and creditors at the time of the ALF PMA Transfer could have avoided such transfer under section 24.005(a)(2) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code.

176. At the time of the ALF PMA Transfer, Acis intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed that Acis would incur, debts beyond its ability to pay as they became due, and/or was engaged, or was about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets of Acis were unreasonably small in relation to such business or transaction.

177. Moreover, as described above, Acis was insolvent or was rendered insolvent by the ALF PMA Transfer.

178. The ALF PMA Transfer is therefore avoidable under Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

Count 13: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(A)
for the ALF Share Transfer [Against Highland Capital and Highland Funding]

179. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

180. Section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of an interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor made such transfer or incurred such obligation with actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any entity to which the debtor was or became, on or after the date that such transfer was made or such obligation was incurred, indebted.

181. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek to avoid the ALF Share Transfer because such transfer was made with an actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud Terry, a creditor of Acis, demonstrated by, among other things, that:

- (i) The ALF Share Transfer was made just four days after Terry's Arbitration Award against Acis;
- (ii) The ALF Share Transfer was made with the actual intent to divert Acis LP's interest and control in ALF to and for the benefit of Highland Funding, in fraud upon Acis LP's creditors, namely Terry.
- (iii) Acis LP was insolvent at the time of the ALF Share Transfer or became insolvent as a result of the ALF Share Transfer;
- (iv) The ALF Share Transfer occurred both before and after substantial debts were incurred by Acis LP; and
- (v) Acis LP received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the ALF Share Transfer;
- (vi) The transfer was made to an insider (Highland Funding) and for the benefit of an insider (Highland Capital); and
- (vii) Highland Capital (as sub-advisor to Highland Advisor) retained effective possession and control of the property transferred after the transfer.

182. Therefore, the ALF Share Transfer should be avoided to the extent avoidable under section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 14: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.005(a)(1)
for the ALF Share Transfer
[Against Highland Capital and Highland Funding]

183. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

184. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(1) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation with an actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud any creditor of the debtor. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Trustee may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis, or obligations incurred by Acis, pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(1).

185. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek to avoid the ALF Share Transfer because such transfer was made with an actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud Terry, a creditor of Acis, demonstrated by, among other things, that:

- (i) The ALF Share Transfer was made just four days after Terry's Arbitration Award against Acis;
- (ii) The ALF Share Transfer was made with the actual intent to divert Acis LP's interest and control in ALF to and for the benefit of Highland Funding, in fraud upon Acis LP's creditors, namely Terry.
- (iii) Acis LP was insolvent at the time of the ALF Share Transfer or became insolvent as a result of the ALF Share Transfer;
- (iv) The ALF Share Transfer occurred both before and after substantial debts were incurred by Acis LP; and
- (v) Acis LP received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the ALF Share Transfer;
- (vi) The transfer was made to an insider (Highland Funding) and for the benefit of an insider (Highland Capital); and

- (vii) Highland Capital (as sub-advisor to Highland Advisor) retained effective possession and control of the property transferred after the transfer.

186. Therefore, Acis's creditors have the right to avoid the ALF Share Transfer under section 24.005(a)(1) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code, and the Plaintiffs can seek to enforce that right under section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 15: Constructive Fraudulent Transfers under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(B)
for the ALF Share Transfer
[Against Highland Capital and Highland Funding]

187. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

188. Section 548(a)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of any interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was insolvent on the date the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred, or became insolvent as the result of the transfer or obligation: (B) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction for which any remaining property was unreasonably small capital; or (C) intended to incur, or believed the debtor would incur, debts that would be beyond the debtors' ability to pay such debts.

189. As described above, among other things, Acis LP:

- (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the ALF Share Transfer;
- (ii) was insolvent on the date the ALF Share Transfer was made or became insolvent as the result of the ALF Share Transfer;
- (iii) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction for which any remaining property was unreasonably small capital; and

(iii) intended to incur, or believed Acis would incur, debts that would be beyond Acis's ability to pay such debts.

190. Therefore, ALF Share Transfer is avoidable by the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, under section 548(a)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 16: Constructive Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a) for the ALF Share Transfer [Against Highland Capital and Highland Funding]

191. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

192. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(2) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was engaged or about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets were unreasonably small in relation to the business or transaction, or (B) intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed, that the debtor would incur debts beyond the debtor's ability to pay as they became due. Similarly, Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.006(a) provides that a current creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) the debtor was insolvent or rendered insolvent by the transfer or obligation sought to be avoided. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis, or obligations incurred by Acis, pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

193. As described above, Acis LP did not receive reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the ALF Share Transfer, and creditors at the time of the ALF Share Transfer could have avoided such transfer under section 24.005(a)(2) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code.

194. At the time of the ALF Share Transfer, Acis intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed that Acis would incur, debts beyond its ability to pay as they became due, and/or was engaged, or was about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets of Acis were unreasonably small in relation to such business or transaction.

195. Moreover, as described above, Acis was insolvent or rendered insolvent by the ALF Share Transfer.

196. The ALF Share Transfer is therefore avoidable under Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

Count 17: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(A)
for the Note Transfer
[Against Highland Capital and Highland Management]

197. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

198. Section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of an interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor made such transfer or incurred such obligation with actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any entity to which the debtor was or became, on or after the date that such transfer was made or such obligation was incurred, indebted.

199. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek to avoid the Note Transfer because such transfer was made with an actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud Terry, a creditor of Acis, demonstrated by, among other things, that:

- (i) The Note Transfer was made shortly after Terry's Arbitration Award against Acis;

- (ii) The Note Transfer was made with the actual intent to divert the $9.5 million promissory note by Highland Capital in favor of Acis LP to and for the benefit of Highland Management, in fraud upon Acis LP's creditors, namely Terry.
- (iii) Acis LP was insolvent at the time of the Note Transfer or became insolvent as a result of the Note Transfer;
- (iv) The Note Transfer occurred both before and after substantial debts were incurred by Acis LP; and
- (v) Acis LP received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the Note Transfer;
- (vi) The transfer was made to an insider (Highland Management) and for the benefit of an insider (Highland Capital); and
- (vii) Highland Capital retained effective possession and control of the property transferred after the transfer.

200. Therefore, the Note Transfer should be avoided to the extent avoidable under section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 18: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.005(a)(1)
for the Note Transfer
[Against Highland Capital and Highland Management]

201. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

202. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(1) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation with an actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud any creditor of the debtor. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy

Code, the Trustee may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis, or obligations incurred by Acis, pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(1).

203. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek to avoid the Note Transfer because such transfer was made with an actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud Terry, a creditor of Acis, demonstrated by, among other things, that:

- (i) The Note Transfer was made shortly after Terry's Arbitration Award against Acis;
- (ii) The Note Transfer was made with the actual intent to divert the $9.5 million promissory note by Highland Capital in favor of Acis LP to and for the benefit of Highland Management, in fraud upon Acis LP's creditors, namely Terry.
- (iii) Acis LP was insolvent at the time of the Note Transfer or became insolvent as a result of the Note Transfer;
- (iv) The Note Transfer occurred both before and after substantial debts were incurred by Acis LP; and
- (v) Acis LP received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the Note Transfer;
- (vi) The transfer was made to an insider (Highland Management) and for the benefit of an insider (Highland Capital); and
- (vii) Highland Capital retained effective possession and control of the property transferred after the transfer.

204. Therefore, Acis's creditors have the right to avoid the ALF Share Transfer under section 24.005(a)(1) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code, and the Plaintiffs can seek to enforce that right under section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code..

Count 19: Constructive Fraudulent Transfers under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(B)
for the Note Transfer
[Against Highland Capital and Highland Management]

205. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

206. Section 548(a)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of any interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was insolvent on the date the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred, or became insolvent as the result of the transfer or obligation: (B) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction for which any remaining property was unreasonably small capital; or (C) intended to incur, or believed the debtor would incur, debts that would be beyond the debtors' ability to pay such debts.

207. As described above, among other things, Acis LP:

- (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the Note Transfer;
- (ii) was insolvent on the date the Note Transfer was made or became insolvent as the result of the Note Transfer;
- (iii) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction for which any remaining property was unreasonably small capital; and
- (iii) intended to incur, or believed Acis would incur, debts that would be beyond Acis's ability to pay such debts.

208. Therefore, Note Transfer is avoidable by the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, under section 548(a)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 20: Constructive Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a) for the Note Transfer [Against Highland Capital and Highland Management]

209. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

210. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(2) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was engaged or about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets were unreasonably small in relation to the business or transaction, or (B) intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed, that the debtor would incur debts beyond the debtor's ability to pay as they became due. Similarly, Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.006(a) provides that a current creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) the debtor was insolvent or rendered insolvent by the transfer or obligation sought to be avoided. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis, or obligations incurred by Acis, pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

211. As described above, Acis LP did not receive reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the Note Transfer, and creditors at the time of the Note Transfer could have avoided such transfer under section 24.005(a)(2) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code.

212. At the time of the Note Transfer, Acis intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed that Acis would incur, debts beyond its ability to pay as they became due, and/or was engaged, or was about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets of Acis were unreasonably small in relation to such business or transaction.

213. Moreover, as described above, Acis was insolvent or rendered insolvent by the Note Transfer.

214. The Note Transfer is therefore avoidable under Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

Count 21: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under 11 U.S.C. § 548(a)(1)(A)
for the 2017-7 Equity and 2017-7 Agreement Transfers
[Against Highland Capital and Highland Holdings]

215. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

216. Section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of an interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor made such transfer or incurred such obligation with actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud any entity to which the debtor was or became, on or after the date that such transfer was made or such obligation was incurred, indebted.

217. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek to avoid the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity because such transfers were made with an actual intent to hinder, delay, or defraud Terry, a creditor of Acis, demonstrated by, among other things, that:

- (i) The transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity were made shortly after Terry's Arbitration Award against Acis and immediately after Terry's judgment against Acis;
- (ii) The transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity were made with the actual intent to divert the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7

Equity from Acis LP to Highland Holdings, in fraud upon Acis LP's creditors, namely Terry;

- (iii) Acis LP was insolvent at the time of the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity or became insolvent as a result of the transfers;
- (iv) The transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity occurred shortly after substantial debts were incurred by Acis LP; and
- (v) Acis LP received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity;
- (vi) The transfers were made to an insider (Highland Holdings) and for the benefit of an insider (Highland Capital); and
- (vii) Highland Capital retained effective possession and control of the property transferred after the transfer.

218. Therefore, the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity should be avoided under section 548(a)(1)(A) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 22: Actual Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 24.005(a)(1) for the 2017-7 Equity and 2017-7 Agreement Transfers [Against Highland Capital and Highland Holdings]

219. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

220. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(1) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation with an actual intent to hinder, delay or defraud any creditor of the debtor. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy

- (i) The transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity were made shortly after Terry's Arbitration Award against Acis and immediately after Terry's judgment against Acis;
- (ii) The transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity were made with the actual intent to divert the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity from Acis LP to Highland Holdings, in fraud upon Acis LP's creditors, namely Terry;
- (iii) Acis LP was insolvent at the time of the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity or became insolvent as a result of the transfers;
- (iv) The transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity occurred shortly after substantial debts were incurred by Acis LP; and
- (v) Acis LP received less than a reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity;
- (vi) The transfers were made to an insider (Highland Management) and for the benefit of an insider (Highland Capital); and
- (vii) Highland Capital retained effective possession and control of the property transferred after the transfers.

222. Therefore, Acis's creditors have the right to avoid the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity under section 24.005(a)(1) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code, and the Plaintiffs can seek to enforce that right under section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code.

for the 2017-7 Equity and 2017-7 Agreement Transfers
[Against Highland Capital and Highland Holdings]

223. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

224. Section 548(a)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of any interest of the debtor in property, or any obligation incurred by the debtor, if the debtor (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was insolvent on the date the transfer was made or the obligation was incurred, or became insolvent as the result of the transfer or obligation: (B) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction for which any remaining property was unreasonably small capital; or (C) intended to incur, or believed the debtor would incur, debts that would be beyond the debtors' ability to pay such debts.

225. As described above, among other things, Acis LP:

- (i) received less than reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity;
- (ii) was insolvent on the date the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity were made or became insolvent as the result of the transfers;
- (iii) was engaged in business or a transaction, or was about to engage in business or a transaction for which any remaining property was unreasonably small capital; and

- (iii) intended to incur, or believed Acis would incur, debts that would be beyond Acis's ability to pay such debts.

226. Therefore, the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity are avoidable by the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, under section 548(a)(1)(B) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 24: Constructive Fraudulent Transfer under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a) for the 2017-7 Equity and 2017-7 Agreement Transfers
[Against Highland Capital and Highland Holdings]

227. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

228. Section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers or obligations that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.005(a)(2) provides that a current or future creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) (A) was engaged or about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets were unreasonably small in relation to the business or transaction, or (B) intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed, that the debtor would incur debts beyond the debtor's ability to pay as they became due. Similarly, Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.006(a) provides that a current creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer or incurred the obligation (i) without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfer or obligation; and (ii) the debtor was insolvent or rendered insolvent by the transfer or obligation sought to be avoided. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis, or obligations incurred by Acis, pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

229. As described above, Acis LP did not receive reasonably equivalent value in exchange for the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity, and creditors at the time of the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity could have avoided such transfer under section 24.005(a)(2) of the Texas Business and Commerce Code.

230. At the time of the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity, Acis intended to incur, or believed or reasonably should have believed that Acis would incur, debts beyond its ability to pay as they became due, and/or was engaged, or was about to engage in a business or transaction for which the remaining assets of Acis were unreasonably small in relation to such business or transaction.

231. Moreover, as described above, Acis was insolvent or rendered insolvent by the transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity.

232. The transfers of the 2017-7 Agreements and the 2017-7 Equity are therefore avoidable under Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.005(a)(2) and 24.006(a).

Count 25: Preferential Transfers to Highland Capital, Highland Holdings and Highland Management under 11 U.S.C. § 547(b) and Texas Business and Commerce Code § 24.006(b) [Against Highland Capital, Highland Holdings, and Highland Management]

233. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

234. Section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that a trustee may avoid any transfer of any interest of the debtor in property (i) to or for the benefit of a creditor; (ii) for or on account of an antecedent debt; (iii) made while the debtor was insolvent; (iv) made within one year to an insider; and (v) that enables such creditor to receive more than such creditor would receive in a hypothetical chapter 7 liquidation.

235. Likewise, section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code provides the Trustee with the ability to avoid transfers that would be avoidable by certain prepetition creditors of Acis. Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.006(b) provides that a current creditor may avoid a transfer if the debtor made the transfer to an insider for an antecedent debt, the debtor was insolvent, and the insider had reasonable cause to believe that the debtor was insolvent. Pursuant to section 544 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may seek to avoid transfers made by Acis pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.006(b).

236. Within one year of the Petition Date, Highland Capital received the Prepetition Payments in the amount $16,113,790.14 from Acis on account of purported debt claims owed by Acis. To the extent that the Prepetition Payments satisfied legitimate debt claims not avoided by any of the causes of action asserted herein, these transfers are avoidable under section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.006(b).

237. Similarly, the 2017-7 Equity transfer and the Note Transfer are purportedly in satisfaction of payables owed by Acis LP to Highland Capital (later conveyed to Highland Holdings and Highland Management). To the extent that these transfers satisfied legitimate debt claims not avoided by any of the causes of action asserted herein, these transfers are avoidable under section 547(b) of the Bankruptcy Code and Texas Business and Commerce Code sections 24.006(b).

Count 26: Liability for Avoided Transfers under 11 U.S.C. § 550 [Against All Defendants]

238. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

239. Section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code provides that, if a transfer is avoided under section 544, 547 or 548, the trustee may recover the property transferred or the value of the property transferred from (i) the initial transferee of such transfer or (ii) the entity for whose benefit such transfer was made.

240. Highland Capital is an initial transferee of all transfers sought to be avoided in Counts 5 – 8 and 25 above. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may recover all avoided transfers from Highland Capital pursuant to section 550, specifically including any transfers made in connection with any obligations avoided through Counts 5 – 8 above.

241. Highland Advisor is an initial transferee of all transfers sought to be avoided in Counts 9 – 12 above, and Highland Capital are entities for whose benefit such transfers were made. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may recover all avoided transfers from Highland Advisor, Highland Funding, and Highland Capital pursuant to section 550.

242. Highland Funding is an initial transferee of all transfers sought to be avoided in Counts 13 – 16 above, and Highland Capital is an entity for whose benefit such transfers were made. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may recover all avoided transfers from Highland Funding and Highland Capital pursuant to section 550.

243. Highland Management is an initial transferee of all transfers sought to be avoided in Counts 17 – 20 and 25 above, and Highland Capital is an entity for whose benefit such transfers were made. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may recover all avoided transfers from Highland Management and Highland Capital pursuant to section 550.

244. Highland Holdings is an initial transferee of all transfers sought to be avoided in Counts 21 – 25 above, and Highland Capital is an entity for whose benefit such transfers were made. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, may recover all avoided transfers from Highland Holdings and Highland Capital pursuant to section 550.

Count 27: Civil Conspiracy to Commit Fraud, Including Fraudulent Transfers [Against Highland Capital, Highland Advisor, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings]

245. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

246. Highland Capital, Highland Advisor, Highland Management, Highland Holdings, Dondero, and Waterhouse (collectively, the "Highland Enterprise")³⁴ sought to engage in a series of fraudulent transfers and other fraudulent schemes, including the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, the 2017-7 Equity transfer, the 2017-7 Agreements transfer and the thwarted Universal/BVK Agreement transfer in order to denude Acis's assets and take over Acis LP's valuable business.

247. The Highland Enterprise, which is comprised of two or more business entities and individuals, had a meeting of the minds on the object or course of action related to the foregoing fraudulent transfers and schemes, including the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer the 2017-7 Equity transfer, the 2017-7 Agreements transfer and the thwarted Universal/BVK Agreement transfer.

248. The fraudulent transfers and schemes, including the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, the 2017-7 Equity transfer, the 2017-7 Agreements transfer and the thwarted Universal/BVK Agreement transfer, constitute one or more unlawful, overt acts.

249. The Debtors and the Debtors' estates suffered damages as a proximate result of the fraudulent transfers and schemes, including the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, the 2017-7 Equity transfer, the 2017-7 Agreements transfer and the thwarted Universal/BVK Agreement transfer.

250. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek actual and exemplary damages for the Highland Enterprise's conspiracy.

³⁴ This is without limitation to other entities or individuals that may ultimately be shown to be part of Highland Enterprise.

Count 28: Tortious Interference with the Universal/BVK Agreement
[Against Highland Capital]

251. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

252. Under Texas law, a claim for tortious interference with contract requires: "(1) an existing contract subject to interference, (2) a willful and intentional act of interference with the contract, (3) that proximately caused the plaintiff's injury, and (4) caused actual damages or loss." Official Brands, Inc. v. Roc Nation Sports, LLC, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 167320 *7 (N.D. Tex.) (J. Boyle) (quoting Prudential Ins. Co. of Am. v. Fin. Review Servs., Inc., 29 S.W.3d 74, 77 (Tex. 2000)). The fact that a contract is an at-will agreement is no defense to a tortious interference claim. Id.

253. The Universal/BVK Agreement is an existing contract to which Acis LP is a party. The Universal/BVK Agreement is an existing contract that is subject to interference.

254. From nearly day one of these Bankruptcy Cases, Highland Capital has sought to terminate Acis LP as the manager under the Universal/BVK Agreement, and replace Acis LP with Highland Capital or one of its affiliates. Highland Capital's actions involve communications over many months with Universal and BVK, including numerous communications after Highland Capital was terminated as sub-advisor on August 1, 2018 and no longer had any legitimate reason to communicate with Universal or BVK. Highland Capital even prepared and sent to Universal and BVK a new outsourcing agreement, which would be entered once Acis LP and its bankruptcy were out of the way.

255. Acis LP and its estate have suffered and will suffer actual damages as a proximate result of the interference of Highland Capital.

256. The Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, seek actual and exemplary damages for Highland Capital's tortious interference with the Universal/BVK Agreement.

Count 29: Breach of Contract by Highland Capital under the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement
[Against Highland Capital]

257. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

258. Under Texas law, to prevail on a breach of contract claim, a party must show: "(1) the existence of a valid contract; (2) the plaintiff performed or tendered performance as the contract required; (3) the defendant breached the contract by failing to perform or tender performance as the contract required; and (4) the plaintiff sustained damages as a result of the breach." USAA Tex. Lloyds Co. v. Menchaca, 545 S.W.3d 479, 501 n.21 (Tex. 2018).

259. The Sub-Advisory Agreement is a valid contract between Acis LP and Highland Capital, under which Highland Capital was obligated to, inter alia:³⁵

- (i) make recommendations to Acis LP for the purchase, retention, or sale of specific loans or assets in the CLOs;
- (ii) place orders with respect to the purchase or sale of specific loans or assets for the CLOs, upon instruction from Acis LP;
- (iii) identify, evaluate, recommend to Acis LP, and, if applicable, negotiate the structure or terms of investment opportunities for the CLOs;
- (iv) assist Acis LP in performing its due diligence on prospective investments for the CLOs; and

³⁵ Although the Plaintiffs plead herein that certain provisions of the Sub-Advisory Agreement, which are in violation of the LPA, are unauthorized and ultra vires, section 15 of the Sub-Advisory Agreement provides that any such invalid provision does not affect or render "invalid or unenforceable by virtue of the fact that for any reason any other or others of them may be invalid or unenforceable in whole or in part."

(v) provide information to Acis LP regarding any investments in the CLOs, and, if requested by Acis LP, provide information to assist in monitoring and servicing investments by the CLOs.

See Sub-Advisory Agreement § 1(b). Further, "[n]otwithstanding the foregoing, all investment decisions will ultimately be the responsibility of, and will be made by and at the sole discretion of, [Acis LP]." Id.

260. Section 4(a) of the Sub-Advisory Agreement specifically provides:

[T]he Sub-Advisor will perform its obligations [under the Sub-Advisory Agreement] in good faith with reasonable care using a degree of skill and attention no less than that which the Sub-Advisor uses with respect to comparable assets that it manages for others and, without limiting the foregoing, in a manner which the Sub-Advisor reasonably believes to be consistent with the practices and procedures followed by institutional managers of national standing relating to assets of the nature and character of the Portfolios[.]

261. Since at least the time the Trustee was appointed in these Bankruptcy Cases, while acting as sub-advisor, Highland Capital failed to purchase a single loan for the CLOs, and only provided for the sale of loans, in an attempt to complete a stealth liquidation of the CLOs for the Highlands' benefit, and to the detriment of Acis LP. Such practice is inconsistent with the practices and procedures followed by institutional managers of national standing, such as Brigade, relating to assets of the nature and character of the CLOs. Highland Capital's activities are, however, completely consistent with the Highlands' ultimate goal to take away Acis LP's valuable assets and take over Acis LP's valuable business as portfolio manager of the CLOs.

262. Highland Capital grossly mismanaged the CLOs, in abrogation of its duties and disregard of the standard of care under the Sub-Advisory Agreement. Accordingly, Highland Capital has breached its obligations under the Sub-Advisory Agreement, and such breach caused economic damages to Acis LP. Acis LP is therefore entitled to recover, to the fullest extent under applicable law, the amount of such damages from Highland Capital.

excess of the compensation limits of the LPA. Highland Capital was also the ringleader, and ultimate beneficiary, for the series of fraudulent schemes executed in the Fall of 2017 that terminated or transferred away Acis LP's valuable rights in the ALF PMA, the ALF Shares, the Note, the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements. This was done with the very specific intent to make Acis "judgment proof," as Acis's own counsel later boasted, and in order to ensure that Terry would never receive payment on his judgment, as Dondero has threatened. These transfers, while very damaging to Acis LP, also furthered Highland Capital's plan to take over Acis LP's very lucrative portfolio management business and keep it under the control of Highland Capital and Dondero. Finally, Highland Capital sought to transfer the Universal/BVK Agreement away from Acis LP and to itself or an affiliate, including while Highland Capital was serving as sub-advisor (and as a fiduciary) for such agreement.

267. By its actions, Highland Capital specifically intended to cause harm to Acis LP by denuding it of its assets and enriching Highland Capital. In doing so, Highland Capital breached its fiduciary duties to Acis LP.

268. As a consequence, the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, are entitled to an award of punitive damages against Highland Capital in an amount to be determined by the Court.

Count 31: Punitive Damages
[Against All Defendants]

269. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

270. The Highlands, led by Highland Capital and Dondero, engaged in fraud against Acis and its creditors, acted with malice toward Acis and its creditors, and were, at best, grossly negligent in their dealings with Acis.

271. Further, Plaintiffs are entitled to punitive damages in connection with Highland Capital's: (i) breach of fiduciary duties to Acis due to its fraudulent conduct, (ii) tortious interference, and (iii) violations of TUFTA. See Bombardier Aerospace Corp. v. SPEP Aircraft Holdings, LLC, 572 S.W. 3d 213, 232 (Tex. 2019) (fiduciary duties); Texas Beef Cattle Co. v. Green, 921 S.W.2d 203, 210 (Tex. 1996) (tortious interference); Mullins v. Testamerica, Inc., CIV.A. 3:02-CV-0106-, 2006 WL 2167401, at *10 (N.D. Tex. Aug. 2, 2006) (TUFTA).

272. Thus, the Plaintiffs, now vested with all claims of the Trustee, are entitled to punitive damages, and the Plaintiffs plead for such damages in connection with each Count pleaded herein that will support a claim for punitive damages.

Count 32: Disregarding the Corporate Form/Alter Ego/Collapsing Doctrine/Unjust Enrichment [Against All Defendants]

273. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

274. Under Texas law, ignoring the separateness of business entities and holding affiliated entities liable for all debts of the fraudulent enterprise is appropriate "when the corporate form has been used as part of a basically unfair device to achieve and inequitable result. Examples are when the corporate structure has been abused to perpetrate a fraud, evade an existing obligation . . . or justify a wrong." SSP Partners v. Gladstrong Inv. (USA) Corp., 275 S.W.3d 444, 451 (Tex. 2008); see also Flores v. Bodden, 488 Fed. App'x 770, 775-76 (5th Cir. 2012) (listing "six situations in which a court may disregard the corporate form"); Bridas S.A.P.I.C. v. Gov't of Turkmenistan, 447 F.3d 411, 416 (5th Cir. 2006) (finding alter ego present).³⁶

³⁶ To the extent Delaware law applies to any of the alter ego claims, Delaware also recognizes alter ego on similar grounds. "Delaware does, however, recognize the traditional alter ego doctrine as grounds to pierce the corporate veil in cases involving the members of a corporate group. To state an alter ego claim under Delaware law, the [plaintiff] must plead (1) that [the] defendants 'operated as a single economic entity' and (2) that an 'overall element

275. Highland Capital, Highland Funding, Highland Adviser, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings (the "Alter Egos") are all controlled by the CEO and ultimate majority owner of Highland Capital, Dondero. Each of the Alter Egos should be held liable for any damages awarded under any Count in this Second Amended Complaint, as each is the alter ego of the others. Further, each of the Alter Egos should be held liable for any debts of the Debtors, as they are also the alter ego of the Debtors.

276. In this case, the Alter Egos unquestionably used the corporate form as a means of perpetuating the fraudulent scheme set forth above. For example, creating shell corporations in the Cayman Islands days after the Arbitration Award in order to avoid payment of Acis's creditors is precisely the type fraud or injustice that warrants disregarding the corporate form. Such actions satisfy, at a minimum, the first three situations in which a court may disregard the corporate form.

277. Further, "multistep transactions can be collapsed when the steps of the transaction are `part of one integrated transaction.'" In re Yazoo Pipeline Co., L.P., 448 B.R. 163, 187 (Bankr. S.D. Tex. 2011) (J. Isgur) (internal citations omitted). The Supreme Court likewise has held that a bankruptcy court, as a court of equity, may look through form to substance when determining the true nature of a transaction as it relates to the rights of parties against a bankrupt's estate. Pepper v. Litton, 308 U.S. 295, 304-05 (1939).

278. The ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, and the transfer of the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements should be collapsed and recognized for what they are: Highland Capital using offshore entities to take over Acis LP's assets and business while Highland Capital maintains absolute control over such assets and business, and even using alleged debt owed to Highland Capital as the purported consideration for these transactions in order to mask Highland Capital's otherwise clear liability for avoidable transfers.

279. Finally, unjust enrichment is an equitable theory of recovery holding that one who receives benefits unjustly should make restitution for those benefits. Bransom v. Standard Hardware, Inc., 874 S.W.2d 919, 927 (Tex. App.--Fort Worth 1994). A party is unjustly enriched when it obtains a "benefit from another by fraud, duress, or the taking of an undue advantage." Heldenfels Bros., Inc. v. City of Corpus Christi, 832 S.W.2d 39, 41 (Tex. 1992).

280. Each of the Highlands, and in particular Highland Capital and Highland Funding, benefitted from the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, and the transfer of the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements even if they were not the direct transferee. Each of the Highlands should be held liable for benefits unjustly received and make restitution to the Debtors and their estates for those benefits.

Count 33: Willful Violation of the Automatic Stay [Against Highland Capital and Highland Funding]

281. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

282. A willful violation of the automatic stay does not require a specific intent.

Rather, the statute provides for damages upon a finding that the defendant knew of the automatic stay and the defendant's actions which violated the stay were intentional. Whether the party believes in good faith that it had a right to the property is not relevant to whether the act was 'willful' or whether compensation must be awarded.

Campbell v. Countrywide Home Loan, Inc., 545 F.3d 348, 355 (5th Cir. 2008) (quoting In re Chestnut, 422 F.3d.298, 302 (5th Cir. 2005).

283. "It is not up to a party exercising a self-help remedy to determine, to the preclusion of this court, what is or is not property of the estate." Chesnut v. Brown (In re Chesnut), 300 B.R. 880, 887 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2003).

284. Section 362(k)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code provides that "an individual injured by any willful violation of a stay provided by this section shall recover actual damages, including costs and attorneys' fees, and, in appropriate circumstances, may recover punitive damages." The Fifth Circuit has indicated that remedies under 362(k)(1) are available to trustees. St Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Labuzan, 579 F.3d 533, 539-540 (5th Cir. 2009). The term "individual" is not defined by the Bankruptcy Code, but it is used throughout the Code to refer to debtors and non-debtors. See Homer Nat'l Bank v. Namie, 96 B.R. 652, 654 (W.D. La. 1989) (citing, inter alia, 11 U.S.C. §§ 522(b) (individual as debtor), 321(a)(1) (individual as trustee)).

285. Further, pursuant to section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, "[t]he Court may issue any order, process, or judgment that is necessary or appropriate to carry out the provisions of this title." 11 U.S.C. § 105(a). The purpose of section 105(a) is "to assure the bankruptcy courts power to take whatever action is appropriate or necessary in aid of the exercise of their jurisdiction." 2 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY ¶ 105.01 (collecting cases). This is consistent with the broad equitable authority of the bankruptcy courts. See United States v. Energy Resources Co., Inc., 495 U.S. 545, 549 (1990).

286. Highland Capital knew the automatic stay was in effect when it intentionally acted, without Court approval, to force the Trustee to effectuate the optional redemptions, including when it demanded on June 20, 2018, that the Trustee take actions to effectuate the optional redemption by June 21, 2018.

287. Highland Funding knew the automatic stay was in effect when it intentionally acted, without Court approval, to force the Trustee to effectuate the optional redemptions, including each occasion described herein when it sent the Trustee the Optional Redemption Notices.

288. Pursuant to section 362(k)(1), the Plaintiffs seek recovery of damages commensurate with its injury, due to Highland Capital's and Highland Funding's violations of the automatic stay. Further, given Highland Capital's and Highland Funding's blatant and willful violation of the automatic stay (as well as the TRO), the Plaintiffs seek attorneys' fees, punitive damages, and sanctions, as the Court finds appropriate, pursuant to section 105(a) of the Bankruptcy Code.

Count 34: Attorneys' Fees and Costs, Including all Allowed Professionals' Fees and Expenses in the Bankruptcy Cases [Against All Defendants]

289. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

290. Pursuant to Texas Business and Commerce Code section 24.013, Civil Practice and Remedies Code section 38.001, TUFTA, and any other applicable law, the Plaintiffs may recovery attorneys' fees and costs incurred in bringing this Adversary Proceeding.

291. Plaintiffs further seek recovery from Highland Capital of all allowed professionals' fees and expenses in the Bankruptcy Cases, which were losses to Acis resulting from Highland Capital's breach of fiduciary duties to Acis. See Meyers v. Moody, 693 F.2d 1196, 1214 (5th Cir. 1982).

VII. REQUEST FOR DISGORGEMENT

292. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

293. "Under the equitable remedy of disgorgement or fee forfeiture, a person who renders service to another in a relationship of trust may be denied compensation for his service if he breaches that trust." McCullough v. Scarbrough, Medlin & Assocs., 435 S.W.3d 871, 904-05 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2014) (citing Burrow v. Arce, 997 S.W.2d 229, 237 (Tex. 1999)). "The remedy essentially returns to the principal the value of what it paid for because it did not receive the trust or loyalty." McCullough, 435 S.W.3d at 905 (citing Burrow, 997 S.W.2d at 237-38).

"The amount of disgorgement is within the trial court's discretion; the court may 'deny him all compensation or allow him a reduced compensation or allow him full compensation.'" McCullough, 435 S.W.3d at 905 (citing Burrow, 997 S.W.2d at 237 (quoting RESTATEMENT (SECOND) OF TORTS § 243 (1959))).

294. "Equitable disgorgement is distinct from an award of actual damages in that the disgorgement award 'serves a separate function of protecting fiduciary relationships.'" McCullough, 435 S.W.3d at 905 (quoting Saden v. Smith, 415 S.W.3d 450, 469 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st] Dist. 2013, pet. denied)); see also Burrow, 997 S.W.2d at 238 ("[T]he central purpose of the equitable remedy of [disgorgement] is to protect relationships of trust by discouraging agent's disloyalty.").

295. The basis for the disgorgement award against Highland Capital stems from its liability in connection with its breach of fiduciary duty, as pleaded herein, and should be "phrased in terms of the salary, profits or other income [Highland Capital] received during the time [it] committed the tortious conduct." McCullough, 435 S.W.3d at 905 (internal quotation marks omitted).

296. Accordingly, Plaintiffs request disgorgement of all funds received by Highland Capital, who breached its fiduciary duties to Acis.

VIII. REQUEST FOR IMPOSITION OF CONSTRUCTIVE TRUST

297. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

298. "A constructive trust is not a cause of action under Texas law." In re Moore, 608 F.3d 253, 263 (5th Cir. 2010). Rather, "[a] constructive trust is an equitable remedy used to prevent unjust enrichment." Baxter v. PNC Bank Nat'l Ass'n, 541 Fed. App'x 395, 398 (5th Cir. 2013) (citing Everett v. TK-Taito, LLC, 178 S.W.3d 844, 859 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2005, no pet.)); see also Messier v. Messier, 458 S.W.3d 155, 164 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2015, no pet.) ("A constructive trust is imposed when one party holds property that legally belongs to the other.")). "In order to establish a constructive trust, the proponent must prove: (1) breach of a special trust, fiduciary relationship, or actual fraud; (2) unjust enrichment of the wrongdoer; and, (3) tracing to an identifiable res." Baxter, 541 Fed. App'x at 398; accord Clapper v. Am. Realty Inv'rs, Inc., 3:14-CV-2970-D, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 71543, at *26 (N.D. Tex. June 3, 2015).

299. As described herein, Highland Capital breached its fiduciary duties to Acis, and the Highlands acted in concert to perpetrate the series of fraudulent transfers in order to strip Acis of its assets for the benefit of Highlands.

300. The Highlands were unjustly enriched because they benefitted from the "fraud [and] the taking of an undue advantage" against Acis. See Heldenfels Bros., 832 S.W.2d at 41. Each of the Highlands, and in particular Highland Capital and Highland Funding, benefitted from the property transferred, which is traceable and identified herein, as a result of the ALF PMA Transfer, the ALF Share Transfer, the Note Transfer, and the transfer of the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements even if they were not the direct transferee.

301. Further, Highland Capital, who breached its fiduciary duties to Acis, was unjustly enriched in connection with the Expense Overpayments as well as by the payments received as a result of the modifications to the Sub Agreements, and such benefits may be traced and identified by the payments from Acis LP to Highland Capital under the modified Sub Agreements.

302. Accordingly, the Plaintiffs requests that a constructive trust is established for those benefits unjustly received by the Highlands.

IX. OBJECTIONS TO HIGHLAND CAPITAL PROOFS OF CLAIM

303. The Plaintiffs incorporate the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

304. The Highland Capital Claims are allegedly based on claims arising from the Sub-Advisory Agreement and the Shared Services Agreement. The Highland Capital Claims³⁷ are summarized as follows:

Alleged Pre-Petition Claim³⁸	Alleged Claim Amount
Sub-Advisory Agreement	$1,605,362.41
Shared Services Agreement	$1,017,213.62
Total alleged Pre-Petition Claim	$2,622,576.03
Alleged 502(f) Claim³⁹	Alleged 502(f) Claim Amount
Sub-Advisory Agreement	$1,170,147.06
Shared Services Agreement	$ 879,417.29
Total alleged 502(f) Claim	$2,049,564.35
Total Claim Amount	$4,672,140.38

³⁷ Highland Capital filed identical claims against both Acis LP and Acis GP. Acis GP is not a party to the Sub-Advisory Agreement or the Shared Services Agreement. Presumably, Highland Capital is relying on Delaware partnership law to argue that Acis GP is also liable under the Sub-Advisory Agreement and Shared Services Agreement. See 6 Del. C. § 17-403(b) ("Except as provided in this chapter, a general partner of a limited partnership has the liabilities of a partner in a partnership that is governed by the Delaware Uniform Partnership Law in effect on July 11, 1999 (6 Del. C. § 1501 et seq.) to persons other than the partnership and the other partners. Except as provided in this chapter or in the partnership agreement, a general partner of a limited partnership has the liabilities of a partner in a partnership that is governed by the Delaware Uniform Partnership Law in effect on July 11, 1999 (6 Del. C. § 1501 et seq.) to the partnership and to the other partners."); see also 6 Del. C. § 15-306(a) ("(a) Except as otherwise provided in subsections (b) and (c) of this section, all partners are liable jointly and severally for all obligations of the partnership unless otherwise agreed by the claimant or provided by law"). If this is the case, Acis does not dispute this basic tenet of partnership law; however, Acis disputes the Highland Capital Claims for the reasons set forth herein. Accordingly, all arguments set forth herein are applicable to both Highland Capital Claims.

³⁸ The Alleged Pre-Petition Claim relates to Highland Capital's alleged claim arising prior to the Petition Date.

³⁹ The Alleged 502(f) Claim relates to Highland Capital's alleged claim arising after the Petition Date and prior to April 13, 2018, the date the Court entered the Orders for Relief.

The Highland Capital Claims also include contingent indemnity claims arising under the Sub Agreements.

305. The Highland Capital Claims should be disallowed under (i) section 502(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code; (ii) section 502(b)(4) of the Bankruptcy Code; (iii) and section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code. The Highland Capital Claims are unenforceable against the Debtors under the LPA and applicable law. The Highland Capital Claims are for services of an insider of the Debtors and exceed the reasonable value of the services. As set forth above, Plaintiffs have asserted avoidance actions against Highland Capital such that the Highland Capital Claims should be disallowed. Finally, to the extent allowed at all, the Highland Capital Claims should be equitably subordinated under section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code.

306. Pursuant to section 502(b) and (d) of the Bankruptcy Code and Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 3007, the Plaintiffs seek entry of an order disallowing and expunging the Highland Capital Claims from the Debtors' claims registers.

A. The Highland Capital Claims Should be Disallowed under 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)(1).

307. "Section 502(b)(1) provides that a claim is allowed except to the extent it is unenforceable under applicable law." In re White, No. 06-50247-RLJ-13, 2008 Bankr. LEXIS 167, at *17-18 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 28, 2008). "[T]he the validity of a creditor's claims against the debtor at the time the bankruptcy petition is filed 'is to be determined by reference to state law.'" Carrieri v. Jobs.com, Inc., 393 F.3d 508, 529 (5th Cir. 2004) (quoting Kellogg v. United States (In re W. Tex. Mktg. Co.), 54 F.3d 1194, 1196 (5th Cir. 1995)).

308. As set forth more fully above, the Highland Capital Claims are based entirely on amounts alleged to be due pursuant to the Sub Agreements. As outlined in the causes of action above, there are significant amounts due to Acis LP by Highland Capital under or in connection with the Sub Agreements, which constitute a right of recoupment and/or offset to the entirety of the Highland Capital Claims. Further, any portion of the Highland Capital Claims that are based on ultra vires acts, as alleged in Count 1 above, are void or voidable. Accordingly, the Highland Capital Claims are not enforceable under applicable law, and the Highland Capital Claims should therefore be disallowed.

B. The Highland Capital Claims Should be Disallowed under 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)(4).

309. The Highland Capital Claims are claims for services by an insider, Highland Capital, and the Highland Capital Claims exceed the reasonable value of the services provided by Highland Capital. Section 502(b)(4) of the Bankruptcy Code provides, in relevant part, that a claim for services of an insider or attorney of a debtor shall not be allowed to the extent that "such claim exceeds the reasonable value of such services."

310. The purpose of section 502(b)(4) is: "(1) to prevent insiders of a debtor from extracting inflated compensation from the debtor at the expense of the debtor's creditors; and (2) to prevent over-generosity of a debtor prior to a bankruptcy filing." Faulkner v. Canada (In re Heritage Org., L.L.C.), Case No. 04-35574-BJH-11, Adv. No. 04-3338, 2006 Bankr. LEXIS 4662, at *22-23 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. Jan. 5, 2006); see also In re Allegheny Int'l, 158 B.R. 332, 339 (Bankr. W.D. Pa. 1992) ("The purpose underlying 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)(4) is to prevent officers and directors (insiders) of a debtor from extracting inflated amounts for their services at the expense of the creditors.").

1. Highland Capital is an Insider of the Debtors.

311. Under section 101(31) of the Bankruptcy Code, an insider includes certain enumerated parties, such as an officer of the debtor, affiliate, etc. Further, the list of enumerated "insiders" is not exclusive or exhaustive. See In re Missionary Baptist Foundation of Am., Inc., 712 F.2d 206, 210 (5th Cir. 1983). Recently, the United States Supreme Court stated: "Courts have additionally recognized as insiders some persons not on that [101(31)] list—commonly known as 'nonstatutory insiders.' The conferral of that status often turns on whether the person's transactions with the debtor (or another of its insiders) were at arm's length." U.S. Bank N.A. v. Vill. at Lakeridge, LLC, 138 S. Ct. 960, 963 (2018).

312. The Fifth Circuit has noted that "cases which have considered whether insider status exists generally have focused on two factors in making that determination: (1) the closeness of the relationship between the parties and (2) whether the transaction . . . [was] conducted at arm's length." In re Holloway, 955 F.2d 1008, 1011 (5th Cir. 1992).

313. Highland Capital is a statutory insider, a non-statutory insider, an admitted insider, and an adjudicated insider. The statutory definition of "insider" includes an "affiliate" of the debtor. 11 U.S.C § 101(31)(E). Prior to the entry of the Orders for Relief, Highland Capital met the statutory definition of "affiliate" because Highland Capital "operate[d] the business or substantially all of the property of the [D]ebtor under a[n] . . . operating agreement." See 11 U.S.C § 101(2)(D). Under the Sub Agreements, Acis LP effectively ceded control over its operations to Highland Capital.⁴⁰

314. Highland Capital is a non-statutory insider because Dondero controlled both Acis and Highland Capital prior to the date the Court entered the Orders for Relief. The closeness of the Highland Capital-Acis relationship is demonstrated by the fact that both companies are under Dondero's common control, Acis had no employees and Acis was operated exclusively by Highland Capital employees. Transactions were not conducted at arm's length. Indeed, Dondero signed both the Sub-Advisory Agreement and the Shared Services Agreement for Highland Capital and Acis.

⁴⁰ For purposes of section 502(b)(4), courts examine whether a party is an "insider" on the date the operative document was executed. Here, it is indisputable that Highland Capital was an insider when the Sub-Advisory Agreement and the Shared Services Agreement were executed, and Highland Capital was an insider on the Petition Date. See Faulkner, 2006 Bankr. LEXIS 4662, at *17 ("The determination of insider status is made as of the time the claimant provided services to the debtor."); In re Allegheny Int'l, 158 B.R. 332, 339 (Bankr. W.D. Pa. 1992) ("[T]he relevant time for determining one's status as an insider, under 11 U.S.C. § 502(b)(4), is the time services were rendered and when the compensation contracts for such services were formed[.]").

315. Highland Capital is an admitted insider and an adjudicated insider. During the trial on the involuntary petitions, the Debtors, controlled by Highland Capital, admitted that Highland Capital is an insider of the Debtors.⁴¹ Acis LP's SOFA lists payments to Highland Capital in the section titled "Payments or transfers of property made within 1 year before the filing of this case that benefited any insider." The SOFA is signed by Isaac Leventon, an employee of Highland Capital (who, on information and belief, had no official title or position with the Debtors). Additionally, this Court has found that Highland Capital is an insider of the Debtors, stating: "the court believes it necessary to remove certain insider creditor claims, which are required not to be counted pursuant to section 303(b)(2) of the Bankruptcy Code. This would clearly include Highland Capital (the Alleged Debtors do not dispute this)." Opinion ¶ 38 (footnotes omitted) (emphasis added).

2. The Highland Capital Claims Exceed the Reasonable Value of the Services Provided.

316. "In analyzing the reasonableness of a claim for services under § 502(b)(4), a court should consider the totality of the circumstances involved at the time that the services were rendered." Faulkner, 2006 Bankr. LEXIS 4662, at *23 (citing In re Gutierrez, 309 B.R. 488, 493 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2004)). "Reasonable value" under Section 502(b)(4) is "synonymous with 'market value.'" In re Delta Air Lines, Inc., No. 05-17923 (cgm), 2010 Bankr. LEXIS 233, at *22 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Feb. 3, 2010). "The burden of proof on reasonableness under ⁴¹ Transcript of Hearing on Emergency Motion to Abrogate or Modify 11 U.S.C Section 303(f), Prohibit Transfer of Assets, and Impose, Inter Alia, 11 U.S.C Section 363 Filed by Petitioning Creditor Joshua Terry (3); Emergency Motion to Set Hearing (related to Document (8) Motion to Dismiss Case Filed by Alleged Debtor Acis Capital Management, LP (9) (Case Nos. 18-30264-SGJ7 & 18-30264-SGJ7) (the "2-7-18 Transcript"), at 246: 8-9 ("[T]here are no insiders other than Highland on the list of eighteen[.]").

§ 502(b)(4) ultimately lies with the insider." Id. at 24. Thus, Highland Capital has the burden to establish the reasonableness of its claims. Further, when the validity of an insider's contract with a corporation is at issue, the burden is on the insider "not only to prove the good faith of the transaction but also to show its inherent fairness from the viewpoint of the corporation and those interested therein." In re Marquam Inv. Corp., 942 F.2d 1462, 1465 (9th Cir. 1991) (quoting Pepper v. Litton, 308 U.S. 295, 306 (1939)).

317. Together, the Sub Agreements (as amended) charge Acis LP fees far exceeding the market value of the services provided under such agreements. First, the Trustee's professionals engaged in a marketing process in connection with the Brigade Motion. After conducting a diligent search of the market, the Trustee located a replacement for Highland Capital that provided the services Highland Capital previously provided the Debtor for roughly half the cost Highland Capital charged Acis LP. The Sub Agreements also significantly contributed to rendering Acis insolvent. In fact, the General Counsel of Highland Capital, Scott Ellington, admitted that as of February 7, 2018—one week after the Petition Date—Acis was insolvent or close to insolvent.⁴²

318. Highland Capital cannot show that the exorbitant fees charged under the Sub Agreements are reasonable or that entry into such agreements was in good faith and demonstrates inherent fairness. Therefore, pursuant to section 502(b)(4), the Highland Capital Claims should be disallowed in their entirety.

C. Highland Capital Received Voidable Transfers and Holds Property of the Estate, and the Trustee is Entitled to Setoff under Section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code.

319. As set out more fully in the causes of action above, the Plaintiffs seek: (i) avoidance of actual and constructively fraudulent transfers and obligations pursuant to sections

⁴² 2-7-18 Transcript at 219: 22-25 (THE COURT: Do you think Acis is in the zone of insolvency? THE WITNESS: I don't know the answer to that, but I would -- I would assume that it was -- that it's close.)

544 and 548 of the Bankruptcy Code, (ii) avoidance of preferential transfers pursuant to section 547 of the Bankruptcy Code; (iii) turnover of property the estate pursuant to section 542 of the Bankruptcy Code; and (iv) liability for the foregoing under section 550 of the Bankruptcy Code.

320. "Under section 502(d), 'the court shall disallow any claim of any entity . . . that is a transferee of a transfer avoidable under section . . . 544 [or 548] of this title, unless such . . . transferee has paid the amount, or turned over any such property.'" In re Consol. Capital Equities Corp., 143 B.R. 80, 84 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1992) (quoting 11 U.S.C. § 502(d)) (emphasis in original).⁴³ Application of section 502(d) is not restricted to cases where a fraudulent transfer has already been avoided, but rather applies to pending fraudulent transfer claims as well. In other words, the statute does not require that the transfer actually be avoided, only that it be "avoidable." Id. As a result, once a fraudulent transfer claim has been asserted, the mandatory language of section 502(d) requires bankruptcy courts to consider the fraudulent transfer issue as a component of the claims allowance process. U.S. Bank N.A. v. Verizon Communs., Inc., 761 F.3d 409, 419 (5th Cir. 2014) (finding mandatory language of section 502(d) precluded the court from resolving claims where the trustee alleged the claimant was the transferee of a fraudulent transfer). Moreover, the Court may disallow the Highland Capital Claims before adjudicating the causes of action set forth herein. See In re Heritage Org., L.L.C., 375 B.R. 230, 288-289 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2007) (finding a court order avoiding a transfer is not a prerequisite to disallowance of a claim).

321. Thus, pursuant to section 502(d) of the Bankruptcy Code, the Court should disallow the Highland Capital Claims.

⁴³ "Notwithstanding subsections (a) and (b) of this section, the court shall disallow any claim of any entity from which property is recoverable under section 542, 543, 550, or 553 of this title [11 USCS § 542, 543, 550, or 553] or that is a transferee of a transfer avoidable under section 522(f), 522(h), 544, 545, 547, 548, 549, or 724(a) of this title, unless such entity or transferee has paid the amount, or turned over any such property, for which such entity or transferee is liable under section 522(i), 542, 543, 550, or 553 of this title." 11 U.S.C. § 502(d)

D. The Highland Capital Claims Should be Equitably Subordinated.

322. Section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code expressly authorizes subordination of the allowed claim of one creditor to the allowed claims of other creditors "under principles of equitable subordination."

323. In In re Mobile Steel Co., 563 F.2d 692 (5th Cir. 1977), the Fifth Circuit articulated what has become the most commonly accepted standard for equitable subordination of a claim. Under the Mobile Steel standard, a claim can be subordinated if the claimant engaged in some type of inequitable conduct that resulted in injury to creditors (or conferred an unfair advantage on the claimant) and if equitable subordination of the claim is consistent with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code.

324. During the time it completely dominated control of Acis, Highland Capital clearly engaged in abundant inequitable conduct related to Acis, as well as conferring numerous unfair advantages to itself, which resulted in injury to Acis's creditors. As outlined in detail above, Highland Capital increased the amount due to Highland Capital under the Sub-Advisory Agreement, including charging amounts far in excess of appropriate market rates. This has resulted in a grossly inflated claim for Highland Capital as well as significant overpayments to Highland Capital for whatever services and value it did provide to Acis under these agreements.

325. Highland Capital was also the ringleader, and ultimate beneficiary, for the series of fraudulent schemes executed in the fall of 2017 that terminated or transferred away Acis LP's valuable rights in the ALF PMA, the ALF Shares, the Note, the 2017-7 Equity and the 2017-7 Agreements. This was done with the very specific intent to make Acis "judgment proof," as Acis's own counsel later boasted,⁴⁴ and in order to ensure that Terry and other creditors would never receive payment on his judgment, as Dondero has threatened.⁴⁵ These transfers, while very damaging to Acis LP and its creditors, also furthered Highland Capital's plan to take over Acis LP's very lucrative portfolio management business and keep it under the control of Highland Capital and Dondero. Finally, even during the Bankruptcy Cases, Highland Capital has attempted to transfer and take over Acis LP's very lucrative Universal/BVK Agreement.

326. To the extent the Highland Capital Claims are allowed in any amount, they are subject to equitable subordination and should be subordinated below all other allowed unsecured claims in the bankruptcy case.

X. OBJECTIONS TO HIGHLAND CAPITAL'S ADMINISTRATIVE CLAIM

A. Highland Capital's Administrative Claim is Subject to Disallowance for the Same Reasons the Highland Capital Claims Should be Disallowed.

1. Prevailing on the Causes of Action Set Forth Herein Mandates the Disallowance of Highland Capital's Administrative Claim.

327. In its Application, without specifically citing the causes of actions or making any reference whatsoever to the objections to the Highland Capital Claims contained herein (as they were previously asserted in the Amended Counterclaims), Highland Capital asserts that the Trustee "apparently has furthered a theory that Highland overcharged the Debtors," but must "provide evidence, not simply allegations, to rebut the prima facie case that Highland is entitled to an administrative claim." Application ¶ 33. Highland Capital then rashly contends that the Trustee "has provided no such evidence" and that "the Contracts speak for themselves and are the best evidence of the validity of the claim asserted by Highland." Id. A simple review of the causes of action herein (as well as evidence presented in connection with the involuntary hearings, confirmation hearings, and other hearings during these Bankruptcy Cases) belies its position and demonstrates otherwise.

⁴⁴ See Plaintiff's Motion for Expedited Discovery, Ex. 1 (Declaration of Rogge Dunn) ¶ 4, Terry v. Acis Capital Mgmt., L.P., Cause No. DC-17-15244, 44th District Court of Dallas County, Texas ("On October 31, 2017, counsel for Acis, Jamie Welton, called me on the telephone. In that call, Mr. Welton stated that Acis is 'judgment proof.'").

⁴⁵ See June 28, 2017 Dondero Dep. Tr. 262:2-8 (Ex. 101 from the involuntary trial) ("Nobody's going to let a dime go out of the firm that we don't have to pay ever to – to Josh, period. I mean, it's . . . I think it's personal[.]").

328. As is discussed below, Highland Capital must demonstrate that the services provided conferred a direct and substantial benefit on the Debtors' estates. And before Highland Capital can ask the Court to assess whether its services provided the required direct and substantial benefit, it must first demonstrate that it had the right to even charge the Debtors the amount set forth in the agreements. The causes of action asserted against Highland Capital herein, which dispute the amounts charged by Highland Capital, directly implicate the validity of, and support the disallowance of, the Administrative Claim (just as they refute Highland Capital's purported prepetition claims). The Plaintiffs therefore expressly incorporate Counts 1, 5 – 8, and 27 – 30 herein and specifically raises such Counts as objections to the Administrative Claim asserted by Highland Capital in its Application.

329. If the Plaintiffs prevail on the causes of action against Highland Capital as set forth herein, the basis for allowance of the Administrative Claim would also be invalidated. Moreover, as discussed below, based on such causes of action, the Plaintiffs are entitled to recover millions of dollars in damages, all of which may be offset against the Administrative Claim.

2. Highland Capital's Administrative Claim is Also Subject to Disallowance under Section 502(d).

330. Because Highland Capital is alleged to have received fraudulent transfers, its Administrative Claim is also subject to disallowance under section 502(d) until the property or its value has been returned to the Debtors.

331. Although Highland Capital's Application involves an administrative claim, nothing in section 502(d) limits its application to prepetition claims. MicroAge, Inc. v. Viewsonic Corp. (In re MicroAge, Inc.), 291 B.R. 503, 508 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 2002). Section 502(d) by its terms applies to "any claim" and the definition of a "claim" in section 101(5) is sufficiently broad to include requests for payment of expenses of administration. Id. Because the objective of section 502(d) is to encourage transferees to return avoidable transfers to the estate, a number of courts have held that section 502(d) applies to administrative claims. See, e.g., id. at 508-12; In re Georgia Steel, 38 B.R. 829, 839-40 (Bankr. M.D. Ga. 1984) (applying section 502(d) and stating, "[t]he fact that [the] claim is for an administrative expense has no bearing").

332. The Plaintiffs acknowledge that courts are split on the issue of whether section 502(d) applies to administrative expenses. Compare MicroAge, Inc., 291 B.R. at 508-512 (considering split of authority and finding that "the better analysis is that § 502(d) may be raised in response to the allowance of an administrative claim"), and Georgia Steel, 38 B.R. at 839-40 (finding the fact that the claim "is for an administrative expense has no bearing" for purposes of section 502(d)), with In re Plastech Engineered Prods., 394 B.R. 147, 164 (Bankr. E.D. Mich. 2008) (concluding that "§ 502(d) does not apply to the allowance and payment of administrative expenses under § 503(b)"). Although not binding on this Court, the Plaintiffs also note that one bankruptcy court in this district has found that section 502(d) does not apply to administrative claims. Rand Energy Co. v. Del Mar Drilling Co. (In re Rand Energy Co.), 256 B.R. 712, 719 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2000) (Felsenthal, J.).

333. As described above, Highland Capital is the recipient of certain preferential payments and/or fraudulent transfers. Thus, while acknowledging the split of authority on the issue, the Plaintiffs assert that the plain language of section 502(d), as well as the policy underlying section 502(d), requires that Highland Capital's Administrative Claim be disallowed in its entirety.

3. The Indemnity Provisions Relied on by Highland Capital Are Invalid and, in Any Event, Do Not Apply to Highland Capital's Intentional Torts.

334. In the Application, Highland Capital also asserts defenses against the causes of action brought herein pursuant to its purported indemnity rights against the Debtors under section 6.03 of the Shared Services Agreement and section 4(c) of the Sub-Advisory Agreement. Application ¶ 34. Any contention by Highland Capital that it is immune from liability arising from the causes of action brought against it herein due to the indemnity provisions of the Sub Agreements lacks merit. First, the indemnity provisions cited by Highland Capital were included only in the last iteration of the Sub Agreements, in March 2017. Thus, even if valid and applicable (which they are not), such provisions do not cover actions of Highland Capital prior to March 2017. Second, to the extent that the indemnity provisions in the Sub Agreements were included in an attempt to shield Highland Capital from liability in connection with its fraudulent scheme to denude Acis (and were added for no consideration), such provisions were themselves fraudulently incurred and should be avoided pursuant to section 548 of the Bankruptcy Code and sections 24.005 and 24.006 of TUFTA.⁴⁶ Further, the protection Highland Capital seeks is outside the scope of the indemnity provisions, which indemnify Highland Capital in connection with its actions taken as sub-advisor under the Sub Agreements—not in connection with torts and other wrongful conduct intentionally committed against Acis as part of Highland Capital's calculated scheme to denude the estate. Finally, it is against public policy for indemnity provisions in contract to shield a party from intentional tortious conduct. See, e.g., Hamblin v.

⁴⁶ Notably, all versions prior to the last iteration of the Sub-Advisory Agreement (before March 2017) contained no indemnity provision; also, it is telling that the indemnity provisions were added to the Sub-Advisory Agreement and significantly amended in the Shared Services Agreement only after arbitration had been ordered in state court.

Lamont, 433 S.W.3d 51, 55 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2013, pet. denied); In re Oil Spill by the Oil Rig, 841 F. Supp. 2d 988, 1001-02 (E.D. La. 2012). Accordingly, such provisions are inapplicable as a defense to the causes of action asserted herein against Highland Capital.

B. Highland Capital Cannot Satisfy Its Burden of Proving Its Services Directly and Substantially Benefitted the Debtors' Estates.

1. Administrative Priority Status is Narrowly Construed and Only Awarded Upon a Showing of a Direct and Substantial Benefit to the Estate.

335. Under section 503(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code, an administrative expense claim shall be allowed for "the actual, necessary costs and expenses of preserving the estate." 11 U.S.C. § 503(b)(1)(A). The ultimate burden of proof is on Highland Capital to establish it is entitled to an administrative priority claim pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 503(b). See In re Transamerican Natural Gas Corp., 978 F.2d 1409, 1416 (5th Cir. 1992). Further, because section 503 administrative claims are priority claims, which are entitled to special treatment, section 503 must be narrowly construed. See In re Templeton, 154 B.R. 930, 934 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2009); see also In re Federated Dep't Stores, Inc., 270 F.3d 994, 1000 (6th Cir. 2001) ("Claims for administrative expenses under § 503(b) are strictly construed because priority claims reduce the funds available for creditors and other claimants.").

336. At a minimum, Highland Capital must establish that "(1) the claim arises from a transaction with the [debtor]; and (2) the goods or services supplied enhanced the ability of the [debtor's] business to function." See Total Minatome Corp. v. Jack/Wade Drilling, Inc. (In re Jack/Wade Drilling, Inc.), 258 F.3d 385, 387 (5th Cir. 2001) (citing Transamerican, 978 F.2d at 1416); see also ASARCO, Inc. v. Elliott Mgmt. (In re ASARCO, LLC), 650 F.3d 593, 601 (5th Cir. 2011) ("Claim under this section 'generally stem from voluntary transactions with third parties who lend goods or services necessary to the successful reorganization of the debtor's estate.'" (quoting Jack/Wade Drilling, 258 F.3d at 387)).

337. Moreover, the benefit is measured from the point of view of the bankruptcy estate, not that of the applicant. In re Premium Well Drilling, Inc., 2012 Bankr. LEXIS 1554, at *9 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. Apr. 10, 2012). "The focus on allowance of administrative claims which enjoy priority over other creditors is to prevent unjust enrichment of the estate. It is not to compensate the creditor . . . for his or her loss." In re Am. Plumbing & Mech., Inc., 323 B.R. 442, 462 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2005) (emphasis in original).

2. Highland Capital Cannot Demonstrate It Conferred a Direct and Substantial Benefit on the Debtors' Estates.

338. As set forth herein, as it had done prior to these Bankruptcy Cases, following entry of the Orders for Relief, Highland Capital continued perpetrating its scheme to steal, and otherwise attempted to damage, Acis's business—in order to minimize value for creditors and ensure that Acis could not successfully reorganize—and to line its own pockets. Aside from Highland Capital's actions in sending notices of optional redemption to liquidate the CLOs (without Court approval and in violation of the automatic stay), following entry of the Orders for Relief, Highland Capital also actively mismanaged the Acis CLOs to undermine the business of the Debtors, as evidenced by, inter alia, the vast disparity between the trades made in CLOs 3, 4 5, and 6, as opposed to CLO 7, in 2018, as testified to by Terry at the second confirmation hearing. See Dec. 12, 2018 Hr'g Tr. (AM) at pp. 19-35.

339. Additionally, while mismanaging CLOs 3, 4 5, and 6, Highland Capital sought to carry out its plan "to transfer the BVK investment management agreement from Acis LP to another Highland-affiliated manager."⁴⁷ As explained herein, Highland Capital's attempt to steal BVK's business from Acis began from nearly day one of these Bankruptcy Cases and continued even after Highland Capital was terminated as sub-advisor on August 1, 2018—when Highland Capital no longer had any legitimate reason to communicate with Universal or BVK.

340. Highland Capital's actions during the pendency of these Bankruptcy Cases demonstrate that Highland Capital did not service the Acis CLOs in a way that "enhanced the ability of the [debtor's] business to function." Transamerican, 978 F.2d at 1416. Indeed, Highland Capital acted to destroy the Debtors' business—therefore, Highland Capital's request for allowance of its Administrative Claim must be denied.

341. In its Application, Highland Capital essentially asserts that it provided services to the Debtors on a postpetition basis pursuant to various prepetition agreements and, therefore, the expenses are entitled to administrative priority. In order to qualify as an administrative expense, however, Highland Capital must show that its claim arose postpetition "as a result of actions by the trustee that benefitted the estate." Id. Further, although the terms of the Debtors' prepetition contracts may be probative of the reasonable value of postpetition services, they are not dispositive. In re Am. Plumbing & Mech., Inc., 323 B.R. at 462. Indeed, "all that the estate is required to pay is the reasonable value of those services which were rendered." Id. (emphasis in original) (citing NLRB v. Bildisco & Bildisco, 465 U.S. 513, 531, 104 S. Ct. 1188, 79 L. Ed. 2d 482 (1984)). Consequently, the provisions of the prepetition contracts do not automatically and dispositively translate into an allowed administrative claim. Highland Capital must still demonstrate a quantifiable benefit to the estate.

342. Highland Capital's assertion that its costs were incurred postpetition fails to satisfy its burden of proving entitlement to administrative priority. Specifically, aside from merely referencing the Sub-Agreements and the Universal/BVK Agreement, and contending that monies owed to it under such agreements are an administrative expense, Highland Capital fails to show that (i) such costs were necessary for the preservation of the Debtors' estate, and (ii) the Debtors received any benefit, let alone a direct and substantial benefit, as a result of such services and expenses.

3. The Amount Charged by Highland Capital Was Inflated and Unnecessary.

343. Further, even if Highland Capital could show that, rather than undermining Acis's business, it provided postpetition services that enhanced the ability of Acis to function, to the extent the rates Highland Capital charged Acis were inflated or above market, the amounts charged to Acis under the Sub Agreements did not benefit the estates or its creditors, and such inflated amounts were therefore not necessary. See NL Indus., Inc. v. GHR Energy Corp., 940 F.2d 957, 966 (5th Cir. 1991) ("Courts have construed the words 'actual' and 'necessary' narrowly: the debt must benefit the estate and its creditors."). Indeed, at the July 6, 2018 hearing, regarding approval of the break-up fee and replacement of Highland Capital as sub-servicer with Oaktree, J.P. Sevilla, assistant general counsel for Highland Capital, testified that Highland Capital would reduce its rates charged to Acis LP for sub-servicing from 35 basis points to 17.5 basis points, in order to match competing offers:

Q Okay. Would Highland be willing to reduce its fee during the pendency of the bankruptcy, maybe without its rights to assert the validity of the contract, but would Highland otherwise be willing to assert -- to reduce its fees during the pendency of the bankruptcy?

A I think at the very least Highland would match Saratoga or whatever the 17.5 bps offer is. Again, reserving all rights, but in order to stay in the deal and to establish Highland's commitment to this deal, we would do it for 17-1/2 basis points, no question.

July 6, 2018 Hr'g Tr. at pp. 243-44. Moreover, the effective rate for such services charged by Brigade and Cortland also approached 17.5 basis points.⁴⁸ Accordingly, notwithstanding the objections otherwise raised herein, and assuming the services provided to Acis LP enhanced, rather than undermined, the ability of Acis's business to function, such amounts should be reduced to reflect a rate of at most 17.5 basis points.

4. The Plaintiffs Dispute Highland Capital's Calculation of its Administrative Claim.

344. The Plaintiffs further object to Highland Capital's calculation of the amount of the Administrative Claim. Subject to the objections raised herein, in the Amended Disclosure Statement Pursuant to Section 1125 of the United States Bankruptcy Code with Respect to the Second Amended Joint Plan for Acis Capital Management, L.P. and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC [Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 621] (the "Disclosure Statement"), the Trustee estimated that under the terms of the Sub Agreements, Highland Capital's alleged Administrative Claim would be approximately $2,612,574.00, rather than $3,007,678.41. Highland Capital fails to explain or substantiate this discrepancy. The Administrative Claim also includes $543,545.88 for expenses. Highland Capital fails to show that these alleged expenses were incurred or payable under the Sub Agreements. See In re Packard Props., Ltd., 118 B.R. 61, 63 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1990) ("Since this claim is a request for payment of administrative expenses, the [creditor] carries the burden of proof throughout the entire proceeding."). Therefore, in addition to the objections herein, the Plaintiffs also object to Highland Capital's calculation of its purported Administrative Claim.

C. Highland Capital Is Not Entitled to Payment of Any Allowed Administrative Claim Because Acis's Right of Offset and Recoupment May Reduce or Eliminate Its Administrative Claim.

345. Even if the Court were to determine that Highland Capital is entitled to an allowed Administrative Claim, it should not be entitled to payment because Acis has rights of offset and recoupment that may be applied under section 558 of the Bankruptcy Code to reduce or eliminate any allowed Administrative Claim.⁴⁹ As set forth above, Highland Capital charged Acis excessive and unreasonable fees for its services, and Acis has asserted a number of causes of action against Highland Capital for such overcharges, including for recovery of overcharges resulting from ultra vires actions, turnover of unauthorized payments, money had and received, conversion, fraudulent transfer, civil conspiracy, breach of contract, and breach of fiduciary duty. As a result of these overcharges, the Debtors' estates suffered many millions of dollars in damages which should be offset against any valid administrative claim awarded to Highland Capital. Indeed, the causes of action against Highland Capital may offset, or eliminate altogether, any right of recovery Highland Capital may have against the Debtors' estates on account of any Administrative Claim.

D. To the Extent Allowed, Highland Capital's Administrative Claim Should Also Be Equitably Subordinated.

346. In addition to applying equitable subordination to prepetition claims, courts have equitably subordinated administrative claims when the claimant acted in ways to harm the estate. See, e.g., Principal Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Langhorne (In re 848 Brickell Ltd.), 243 B.R.142, 149 (S.D. Fla. 1998) (holding that while "pursuit of one's legal rights may not be grounds for equitable subordination, the lower court's findings that [the claimant's] protracted and abusive litigation tactics harmed the estate by causing it to incur about $400,000 in fees" justified equitable subordination of its administrative claim).

347. For the same reasons described above with respect to Highland Capital's prepetition claims, Highland Capital's Administrative Claim should also be equitably subordinated to the extent allowed. Further, during these Bankruptcy Cases, the Debtors' estates and the Reorganized Debtors have incurred substantial administrative fees in responding to the protracted and abusive litigation tactics of Highland Capital, including arguing for (and against) injunctive relief to prevent the liquidation of the CLOs and litigating the numerous appeals initiated by Highland Capital against the Trustee. Such litigation tactics by Highland Capital were attempts to thwart the reorganization of the Debtors, damage the estate, and harm its creditors. Accordingly, the Court should equitably subordinate Highland Capital's Administrative Claim. See Principal Mut. Life Ins. Co., 243 B.R. at 149.

⁴⁹ The Plan provided for the payment of allowed administrative claims on (i) the later of the effective date or the tenth business day after the administrative expense is allowed, or (ii) as otherwise agreed in writing between the Reorganized Debtor, or as otherwise ordered by the Bankruptcy Court. See Case No. 18-30264, Docket No. 660 at 11, § 3.01(b).

348. Thus, to the extent the Highland Capital's Administrative Claim is allowed in any amount, it should be subordinated below all other allowed claims in these Bankruptcy Cases.

VI. PRAYER

Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court:

(i) enter judgment declaring that Expense Overpayments made to Highland Capital in excess of 20% of Revenue and any agreements supporting such overpayments were ultra vires and, thus, void or voidable;

(ii) enter judgment against Highland Capital for the recovery of any ultra vires payments made to Highland Capital;

(iii) enter judgment against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, Highland Advisor, Highland Holdings, and Highland Management for the avoidance and recovery of transfers fraudulently made and obligations fraudulently incurred and for civil conspiracy in connection with such fraudulent transfers and schemes;

(iv) enter judgment against Highland Capital, Highland Holdings, and Highland Management for avoidance and recovery of preferential transfers received;

(v) enter judgment against Highland Capital for tortious interference with contract;

(vi) enter judgment against Highland Capital for breach of contract;

(vii) enter judgment against Highland Capital for breach of its fiduciary duties and order disgorgement of all funds received by Highland Capital as a result of such breach;

(viii) enter judgment against Highland Capital and Highland Funding for willful violation of the automatic stay, pursuant to section 362(k) of the Bankruptcy Code;

(ix) enter judgment against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, Highland Advisor, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings for punitive damages;

(x) enter judgment against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, Highland Advisor, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings for pre- and post-judgment interest at the greatest amount permitted by law;

(xi) enter judgment against Highland Capital, Highland Funding, Highland Advisor, Highland Management, and Highland Holdings for all attorneys' fees and costs incurred in connection with the prosecution of this Adversary Proceeding and for all allowed professionals' fees and expenses incurred by the estates in the Bankruptcy Cases;

(xii) establish a constructive trust for all benefits unjustly received by that Highland Capital, Highland Funding, Highland Advisor, Highland Management and Highland Holdings;

(xiii) declare that Highland Capital, Highland Funding, Highland Advisor, Highland Management and Highland Holdings are alter egos of each other, or that the corporate for should otherwise be disregarded, and each is fully liable for any judgment entered for the Plaintiffs in this Adversary Proceeding;

(xiv) disallow, expunge and/or subordinate the Highland Capital Claims;

(xv) deny, disallow, and/or subordinate Highland Capital's Administrative Claim; and

(xvi) grant any other such relief that the Plaintiffs may show themselves to be justly entitled in law or in equity.

1 THE COURT: Quickly. Thirty seconds.

2 MR. SHAW: Yes, Judge. Highland offered to settle
3 for us for two million dollars.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MR. SHAW: But the point of that settlement offer --

6 THE COURT: I just want know if the litigation is 7 still alive or not because he --

8 MR. SHAW: It is still alive.

9 THE COURT: -- because I understood yesterday it was 10 done, and then I understood from something today it was still 11 going on.

12 MR. SHAW: Yeah. I mean, effectively, the 13 arbitration said that Highland was not before the arbitration
14 panel, and so that's what happened. And so there are live 15 claims left.

16 THE COURT: All right. First, on the 303(f) motion, 17 the one thing that is clear is that the legal standard is not 18 absolutely certain. I mean, again, there's nothing in the 19 Bankruptcy Code that articulates when may, the Court, in its 20 discretion, order otherwise -- that is, there's language in 21 303(f) that 363 doesn't apply unless the court orders
22 otherwise. No standard in Bankruptcy Code.

23 We look at the legislative history; Ms. Patel pointed 24 out fear. When there's fear, the debtor may intend to abscond 25 with assets. While I tend to agree with Acis' counsel that

1 fear is not really a normally recognized legal standard, on 2 the other hand, cause -- the same standard as cause for a 3 trustee that the Eastern District of New York judge apparently 4 thought was appropriate, well, he's kind of plucking that,
5 perhaps, out of thin air. But even if "cause" is the current 6 standard, there's Fifth Circuit authority, the Cajun Electric 7 case. It wasn't in the context of an involuntary; it was in 8 the context of a motion for a Chapter 11 trustee, and hopeless
9 conflicts of interest were cited by the Fifth Circuit as being 10 one cause for appointment of a trustee.

11 So if Mr. Cipriani (sic) is right and that's the 12 appropriate legal standard, then I find the legal standard has 13 been met here. I have heard plenty of evidence the past two 14 days to suggest we have hopeless conflicts of interest and I
15 thus, don't understand. I'm not going to be Monday morning 16 quarterbacking decisions that were made and were not made, but 17 I cannot imagine why we didn't have an independent officer, 18 director, manager-type person put in place at Acis, again,
19 someone independent of Highland.

20 So if the cause standard under -- what is it, 1104
21 for a Chapter 11 trustee is the standard under 303(f), then 22 it's met here with abundant conflicts of interest.

23 I've always thought the appropriate standard -- and I 24 may be out there in the wilderness alone on this -- but under 25 303(f) or any kind of interim gap relief should be something

1 akin to a preliminary injunction or a temporary injunction or 2 restraining order standard. That is the whole four-prong test
3 of likelihood of success on the merits; it's necessary to 4 avoid immediate and irreparable harm; it's in the public
5 interest; and when you balance the harm the harm to the 6 alleged debtor is less than the harm to the petitioning
7 creditor if I don't grant it.

8 So assuming that four-prong test is the appropriate
9 test to use here, I find that that four-prong test is met 10 here.

11 I think there is a showing of potential immediate and 12 irreparable harm if the transaction happens February 13th and 13 Acis is thereby deprived of its management fees under CLO 3 14 without what it appears to be reasonable consideration in 15 return.

16 Two, I think it's in the public interest to preserve
17 assets for legitimate creditors, and 303(f) relief would serve 18 that public interest.

19 Balance of harms, again, I listened closely, I 20 thought hard, but I'm just not understanding why this has to 21 happen February 13 or there's going to be an immediate 22 cascading loss of value as has been described here from the 23 immediate redemption calls that are going to happen.

24 I may be wrong, and I hate to be put in a place of 25 playing a game of chicken, and that's kind of how I kind of

1 feel on this, but I just don't think I've been convinced that
2 it's going to be a terrible disaster if the February 13th
3 transaction doesn't happen on February 13.

4 Last but not least, the substantial likelihood of 5 success on the merits, I mean, I'm putting myself in the place
6 of really looking at is there going to be a substantial legal 7 question on whether this belongs in an involuntary, and I
8 think they're -- I don't know how it's going to come out, but 9 I think there is a substantial legal question here, I think.

10 The evidence has shown there is some substantial 11 possibility that maybe we don't have more than twelve, or 12 twelve or more creditors whose claims are not the subject of a 13 bona fide dispute as to liability and amount when you excise 14 insiders and people who may have gotten preferences.

15 So I don't know. I mean, I may be wrong, but there's 16 at least some substantial question, I think, on that.

17 So I am granting the 303(f) motion. 363 will apply
18 during the gap period. The debtors -- the debtors plural, may 19 not use, acquire, lease, dispose of property of the estate
20 without permission of the Court.

21 I think we have tough questions here about what is 22 ordinary course of business and what is not. And I don't 23 think, based on what I've heard, that a reissuance, a refi, a 24 termination or assignment of a portfolio-management agreement 25 would be in the ordinary course of business, okay.

1 So I'm saying no use of property -- or acquisition,
2 lease, transfer, disposal of property of the estate without
3 permission of the Court.

4 I'm not requiring a bond right now under 303(e) to 5 potentially indemnify Acis for amounts that I could allow 6 under 303(i) one day, and I think most of us know what I mean.
7 But if we have a trial on the involuntary and I decide, nope,
8 this was not appropriate after all, then I get to then have a 9 bifurcated subsequent hearing on whether Acis is entitled to 10 damages from the petitioning creditor.

11 In some circumstances, bankruptcy courts will make a 12 petitioning creditor post a bond right now in case there's 13 going to be damages down the road. I'm not going to require 14 that right now. I don't think a need has been shown.

15 And next, with regard to the motion for an expedited 16 hearing, I don't think there has been a showing that this has 17 to happen on an expedited basis from a farther out time frame
18 than the Bankruptcy Rules contemplate.

19 And Ms. Patel reminded me today of another provision 20 that's applicable here besides just the normal twenty-one days 21 to answer and then, if there's a dispute, we set it for trial.

22 The last sentence, "If it appears that there are 23 twelve or more creditors ... the Court shall afford a 24 reasonable opportunity for other creditors to join in the 25 petition before a hearing is held thereon." I mean, again, if

1 we have all of these -- if there are seventeen noninsider
2 creditors other than Mr. Terry with claims against Acis not 3 the subject of a bona fide dispute, how do I know that they 4 would not want to join in, some of them, especially if their 5 invoices are so old, as some of them seem to be. So I have to 6 stick to the due process that I think the Bankruptcy Rules
7 require in this situation.

8 I am inclined -- it's late; I don't have my courtroom 9 deputy here to know when I can give you time. I'm inclined to 10 set this, not forever out, like the middle of March. Okay?
11 So unless --

12 What? Oh, she may still be here. One moment.

13 (Clerk to Court)

14 THE COURT: Okay. So Ms. Ellison, my courtroom
15 deputy, is going to start emailing you in the morning for 16 post-trial dates. But what I'm inclined to do is set it
17 middle of February -- I mean, I'm sorry, middle of March. So 18 forty-ish days out, and if you all don't otherwise agree, I'm 19 going to say that the deadline for written discovery, instead 20 of being the usual thirty days, we'd shorten it to fifteen 21 days. And then depositions, reasonable notice, if you can't 22 otherwise agree, will be ten days.

23 I'm thinking through this; as I say this, I am 24 worried about if petitioning creditor needs discovery from 25 some of these law firms and others, that forty days might be

1 kind of tight, but we're just going to have to make it work,
2 okay.

3 So I'm going to -- again, middle of March. I'm going
4 to have my courtroom deputy email you all tomorrow. And then,
5 Ms. Patel, I'm going to look for you to do forms of order on 6 my ruling, and you'll insert the date if the hearing and the 7 ten days for written discovery -- no, what did I say -- twelve 8 and ten.

9 MS. PATEL: Ten days and fifteen for written.

10 THE COURT: You can put that in the order as well.

11 MS. PATEL: Will do, Your Honor. And we'll endeavor 12 to work with Mr. Warner on, again, a reasonable schedule, and 13 to the extent that there's any issue, we'll reach out to Your 14 Honor if there's something that we're not thinking about, for 15 example, that we may need in terms of prep. That's all.

16 THE COURT: Okay. It's been a hard two days, but I
17 want to compliment the lawyers. I mean, I think the lawyers
18 did a superb job, were well prepared. I am going to say, Mr.
19 Ellington, you ever testified in federal court before?

20 MR. ELLINGTON: I have not.

21 THE COURT: Okay. Next time, wear a tie, okay?

22 MR. ELLINGTON: Okay, I will. Thank you.

23 THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

24 MS. PATEL: Thank you, Your Honor.

25 MR. WARNER: Your Honor, before the Court leaves, I'm

1 sorry, but I think -- I just really would like to make sure
2 the record is clear on an issue.

3 The Court has granted the 303 imposing 363 on --

4 THE COURT: Yep. Um-hum.

5 MR. WARNER: -- on the alleged debtors. I'm going to 6 assume, based upon the record before the Court, that if I
7 filed a motion for 363 and asked that it be expedited and 8 heard so that we can undertake the transaction, but based upon 9 the record, this Court's not going to grant that transaction.

10 THE COURT: You mean to go forward with the February 11 13th transaction?

12 MR. WARNER: Whether it's February 13th or February 13 14th or February whenever, it's the transaction that we would 14 like to have done --

15 THE COURT: Unless you plan on putting up a big 16 adequate-protection-like escrow in connection with this, no.
17 Okay?

18 All right. Thank you.

19 MR. WARNER: Thank you, Judge.

20 MS. PATEL: Thank you, Your Honor.

21 THE CLERK: All rise.

1 that those transfers are avoidable as fraudulent transfers, and
2 probably avoidable under other theories.

3 The optional redemption called for by Highland is 4 just another step in Highland's plan to strip Acis of its 5 assets so that Acis can't pay its legitimate allowable claims.
6 If Highland doesn't behave in an economically rational fashion,
7 and cooperate to get everybody paid, several issues will need
8 to be resolved by this Court:

9 First, Highland doesn't have the right to call an 10 optional redemption using the sub-debt and other rights 11 fraudulently transferred from Acis. If Highland doesn't have 12 that right, then Acis can't liquidate the portfolio; Highland 13 obviously disagrees.

14 Second, we don't believe that Highland has complied 15 with the technical requirements of the indenture and the 16 portfolio management agreement regarding the optional
17 redemption. Again, if Highland hasn't done it right, I 18 shouldn't be liquidating that portfolio; Highland disagrees.

19 Fourth, by demanding a liquidation of the CLOs,
20 Highland is effectively extinguishing the portfolio management
21 agreement between the CLOs and Acis, thus exercising control 22 over property of the estate in violation of the automatic stay.
23 Liquidation of the portfolio, in light of a stay violation,
24 would potentially nullify the transactions; again, I believe 25 that Highland disagrees.

1 But at the same time, I've made my at least initial
2 thoughts. You know, I put them out there that I'm worried
3 about stay violations. And while we're at it, you know, I was 4 told before about Mr. Kotwick's client being told to hold onto 5 money, and they're holding $4 million, or something like that.

6 While it may be complicated on the redemption call,
7 I'm not sure it's very complicated about that being an 8 interference of property of the estate. I'm still trying to 9 figure out why people feel like that's okay to do. I mean, 10 again, we're in a status conference, but I am just stunned that 11 -- I mean I don't know. Where is the thinking coming from, 12 that you can tell the indenture trustee don't pay Acis the 13 money it's owed.

14 MS. O'NEIL: Well, Your Honor, that is not what the 15 letter said, and I didn't bring a copy of the letter, but I'm 16 sure we could bring it up. It was the indenture trustee is in 17 the possession of the funds, the indenture trustee is the party
18 that actually pays the portfolio manager and the expenses 19 associated with this.

20 THE COURT: Okay.

21 MS. O'NEIL: The letter basically said, "Indenture
22 Trustee, the equity may have claims, we're putting you on 23 notice to protect our rights and seek Bankruptcy Court approval
24 because there may be offset and other rights for the portfolio
25 manager not basically fulfilling its contractual rights."

2 Before we turn to that, I guess some housekeeping
3 matters, for lack of a better term, might be addressed on the 4 record. As was alluded to, I think by Mr. Webster, I got word
5 through my Courtroom Deputy late yesterday that the optional
6 redemption has been revoked, or is no longer being pursued by 7 Highland CLO Fund. Do we want to get confirmation of that on 8 the record, and that, therefore, the Trustee does not desire to 9 go forward with his application to extend the TRO?

10 MR. MALONEY: Yes, Your Honor, if I may. Mark
11 Maloney on behalf of HCLOF.

12 I can confirm that the optional redemption notices
13 have been revoked -- withdrawn.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MR. MALONEY: That process has, in fact, concluded.
16 That was done obviously for multiple reasons. My client
17 doesn't believe that this is the appropriate time to be 18 effectuating such a redemption for its own economic reasons, 19 setting aside the complications it's obviously caused for 20 others in this room. But needless to say, that, too, is an 21 effort to try to bring, as I believe the Court has requested, 22 and others have, some sanity to this process.

23 Needless to say, there was also some concerns brought 24 to the Court's attention by the indenture trustee. We believe 25 that this takes care of that.

1 MS. O'NEIL: Okay.
2 THE COURT: All right?
3 MS. O'NEIL: That's fine; thank you, Your Honor.

1 million in escrow, and make this all go away?" I don't know if 2 people heard that, if people understood that, but stating what
3 I think was obvious, I meant that the debtor -- the debtor out

8 That's the rule many of you know dealing with supersedeas
9 bonds. To stay execution of a money judgment, a judgment
10 debtor can post the amount of the monetary judgment plus 20 11 percent, plus $250 for cost. So, you know, they automatically 12 get a stay of everything if they post that amount.

13 So I guess what I was thinking -- maybe I'm just too 14 simple-minded -- was, gosh, if this were me, and I'm not the 15 billionaire investor, but, gosh, if this was me, wouldn't it
16 make more economic -- rational economic sense to just do 17 something like 62.1 contemplates, you know, post the amount of 18 -- an amount of money equal to all the claims, okay? I said 19 ten or 11 million, but God knows we have administrative 20 expenses ratcheting up astronomically every day. So pick the 21 amount. Here's the universe of possible claims between Mr.
22 Terry, and the, you know, ten or so other creditors out there,
23 and the Trustee, and professional fees, here's an amount, plus 24 20 percent, plus $250 so let us, Bankruptcy Court, post this 25 amount, let Mr. Phelan hold it in escrow, and ask me to lift

1 the stay so that Acis, the debtor out of possession, could
2 pursue its State Court options with regard to the arbitration
3 award, appealing it or whatever motions. I could give the 4 debtor out possession standing to do that. I could -- you
5 could ask me to grant relief from the stay to allow redemption
6 notices to go out, or terminate the PMAs, you know, so that you
7 could do a reset maybe, instead of a redemption, or a re-fi.
8 Then just stay the bankruptcy case, let Mr. Phelan hold the 9 escrow pending State Court resolution of all the arbitration.
10 You know, again, I don't know what type of legal arguments can 11 be made at this juncture in conjunction with the arbitration 12 award, but go for it.

13 And then if Acis is successful and wipes out Mr.
14 Terry's claim, or reduces it, then Mr. Phelan pays out the 15 money accordingly, or if he continues to prevail, Mr. Phelan
16 pays out the money accordingly, but meanwhile HCLOF doesn't 17 have to feel like it's being held hostage by Mr. Phelan.
18 Highland doesn't have to feel like it's being hung out there,
19 or whatever the phrase was that was used.

20 So I say that, and I don't know, you know? Mr.
21 Phelan may think, well, that's -- that's stupid, that's 22 terrible, there may be reasons why that isn't a good exercise 23 of business judgment.

24 But, again, I'm hearing this is costing the subnote 25 holders $60,000 a day, and that's just the alleged amount of

1 staying in these existing CLOs, the legal fees probably are,
2 you know, higher than that a day, it looks like, the rate this 3 is going.

4 So anyway, I just -- I don't understand -- over this
5 amount of claims unless -- unless, it's like Mr. Phelan
6 alleges, and egos and vendettas are really what's behind every 7 legal position or business position taken.

8 I will say that if anyone considers what I'm saying,
9 you know, for a half a second, you know, at some point, it
10 would seem the window for this kind of solution closes, right?
11 You know, it -- not only is the amount that you would have to 12 put in escrow escalating each day with administrative expense
13 claims, but, you know, Oaktree is out there, presumably doing 14 their due diligence, someone else may be out there doing due 15 diligence. At some point, frankly, that's just going to be a 16 preferable solution perhaps if it can legally all be done, 17 which, again, that's the Trustee's legal risk in all of this.

18 So why wouldn't a rational person agree to this 19 approach, I don't know. But it just feels like this is really 20 getting out of control, and people involved don't care about 21 the legal cost of all of this, the out-of-whack expenditure of 22 resources versus what's at stake, and they don't care about the 23 risk. I mean, again, obviously Highland and HCLOF, they are 24 either extremely confident that they're not violating the stay, 25 extremely confident because they've got mounds of case law that

1 they think is undeniably the way I would go, and the fifth
2 circuit would go, or they just don't care. They're just so
3 arrogant, they don't care; I don't know.

4 But, again, the window is closing on when I would 5 consider such an escrow approach. Am I crazy, Mr. Phelan?
6 You'll tell me if I'm crazy. Am I crazy?

7 MR. PHELAN: Not about that.

8 THE COURT: Not about that? Okay.

9 (Laughter)

10 THE COURT: Am I crazy, Mr. Maloney? Ms. O'Neil? Am
11 I crazy about thinking -- is there a way to let everyone go do
12 what they want and not have this Bankruptcy Court process
13 getting in the way? Acis, it's not a great fit for Chapter 11.
14 So fine, I am perfectly happy to go away. Put an escrow in 15 place, let people terminate the PMAs, do a redemption. Go
16 pursue every last possible legal argument you have with regard 17 to that Terry arbitration award.

18 MR. MALONEY: Your Honor, I think from my client's
19 perspective, whether that's crazy or not is for someone other 20 than the equity noteholder to determine. I certainly 21 understand where you're coming from, and I certainly understand 22 that in a different world, or maybe in this world, that might 23 be a workable solution. But that's not a decision that my 24 clients, who are in the middle of this, are -- have a current 25 appetite to try -- that's not a problem that my clients feel

1 wasn't real clear who was paying who. Everybody comes back to 2 my client and says put $11 million in escrow. My client
3 doesn't owe anybody $11 million. Somebody owes my client if 4 they want to buy their property. So we're not even on the same
5 page in that respect, and that's why that fell apart. That's 6 why that fell apart. And we're still there, because they 7 believe that this is the price that they can push down on us
8 and they're just moving forward. There was -- I don't know
9 that there was every much of -- I don't know. I don't know,
10 but I do know that we were on very different planes that day
11 and -- nevertheless, Your Honor, again --

12 THE COURT: There's no point in getting even the same
13 room, is there? I mean, I'm just trying to understand.
14 Mr. Saah said that you are losing 15 something -- $15.3 million 15 a year, 299,000 per week.

16 MR. MALONEY: 295,000, yes, Your Honor.

17 THE COURT: 299,000 per week. This has already been 18 going on almost six months. So you've lost as much money as 19 you could have put it in escrow in the beginning of the year, 20 right, to just pay everybody in full, or almost.

21 MR. MALONEY: Your Honor --

22 THE COURT: Do you understand what I'm saying?

23 MR. MALONEY: I understand what you're saying, but 24 the point is that is value that we're losing, yes, but what 25 they're asking us to do will exacerbate, not fix that problem.

1 And, yes, okay, we can always look back and say, well, you know
2 what, if I'd just been willing to foot the bill for all this,
3 it might have been worth it to me, but at any point in time my 4 client's conclusion is why am I paying to fill the Acis estate?
5 Why am I doing this?

6 THE COURT: To avoid fraudulent transfer litigation
7 for the next two, three, four years, which you might lose on.

8 MR. MALONEY: Your Honor, if we're settling 9 fraudulent transfer litigation -- and, by the way, it's just 10 now been filed, you know -- but that's not what's going on.
11 They're holding -- that's not what's going on. What they're 12 holding over us is the ability -- we're going to take your 13 property, and so they're -- that's the leverage they're using.
14 They're not saying we're going to sue you. If they want to 15 drop this business and go file lawsuits, then we'll talk about 16 settling the lawsuits. That's not what they're doing. They 17 want to take our property and they want to pay us an amount 18 that we never would have accepted if we had brought a claim for 19 damages, because that wouldn't do it, and that's why we didn't 20 file a claim for damages. We filed a claim for specific 21 performance, Your Honor.

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 MR. MALONEY: I'll yield to -- 24 THE COURT: Okay. Ms. O'Neil.

25 MS. O'NEIL: Your Honor, I only have a couple of

1 Monday morning, though. All right. Dates, we'll talk about 2 that depending on how I rule Monday morning, okay?

3 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Thank you.

4 THE COURT: Thank you.

5 THE CLERK: All rise.

1 case expertise. Leif Clark has been a wonderful mediator in a 2 lot of cases for me. I just don't know his availability.

3 But I'm cynical. I'm cynical because weeks ago, I 4 said, you know I can see something being done here where we 5 cobble together a pot of money, Highland puts up some money.
6 You know I knew there was money in some bank account of this 7 debtor. And if it was a high enough number to pay everybody in 8 full, including anticipating administrative expenses, if 9 someone would put that up and put the money in escrow, I would 10 lift the stay for every conceivable purpose in this case to 11 allow redemptions to happen, to allow PMAs to be terminated, 12 to allow an appeal in the Joshua Terry arbitration award 13 scenario. You all can do whatever you want as long as there's 14 a pot of money there that will pay all the creditors in full 15 and then some for administrative expenses. And all of this can 16 be over, you know have a happy summer I think I've said. I'm 17 out of here.

18 But that very, very easy, easy, easy cheesy solution
19 you know no one seemed to give it one bit of thought. But now 20 you want to mediate when the stakes have gotten much, much 21 higher.

22 Again, if you all want to talk and you can find Leif
23 Clark or some other private mediator who's willing to do this, 24 drop his life for a week sometime in August, I would be 25 thrilled but I'm not going to slow down the time table because

DECISION	154

2 In my estimation Highland Capital Management was 3 effectively partially liquidating the CLOs. Their excuse is 4 that there are no appropriate loans to buy. I believe that's 5 incorrect. I have a list of almost 200 loans that have been 6 available, many of them already owned by the CLOs.

7 In my estimation every day that Highland Capital
8 Management is the sub-servicer is one more day that the 9 portfolios are degraded. You don't earn enough holding piles 10 of cash. Brigade and Cortland can start tomorrow. There's 11 absolutely no reason in my estimation for Highland Capital
12 Management to continue for another week of doing nothing while 13 the portfolios get worse. We're ready to present our evidence.

14 THE COURT: All right. Before we get to that, does 15 anyone wish to make an opening statement? I want to clarify, 16 do we have objectors? This was done on short notice. I didn't 17 see any written objections, but do we have any objections?

18 MS. O'NEIL: Your Honor, I guess we had voiced on 19 Monday that we did -- we don't object -- let me be real clear.
20 We don't object to the -- instead of Oaktree, Brigade being the 21 party. What we do object to is the timing, and also,
22 obviously, the -- when I say we, Highland Capital Management -- 23 obviously, the suggestion and allegation that there has been 24 mismanagement we feel compelled to address, but the -- that -- 25 that's the issue that we have, is on the timing, not whether

1 THE COURT: It'll be signed in five minutes.

Maloney - Summation

141

1 MR. MALONEY: I think it's a --

2 THE COURT: I -- you know --

3 MR. MALONEY: I'm not --

4 THE COURT: Your very good witness, Mr. Leventon,
5 pretty much said, yeah, I threatened Mr. Phelan with a lawsuit,
6 and he said it will just be an admin claim, and then maybe I'll 7 sue you personally -- intentional Tort. Ouch.

8 MR. MALONEY: Your Honor, well, let's say the tables
9 seem to have turned as I stand before you today because my 10 client's, you know, staring down the possibility of literally 11 having its note sold out from under it, but --

12 THE COURT: Well, I guess my question is, why did we 13 ever come to this and what happens if I don't agree with this?

14 MR. MALONEY: Your Honor, we'll all live --

15 THE COURT: Someone reminded me of how early it was 16 that I threw out that, put some money in escrow and this all 17 goes away. I know I've said it many times. I didn't even 18 remember I said it even during the involuntary proceedings.
19 What happens?

20 MR. MALONEY: Your Honor --

21 THE COURT: Apparently, putting an escrow of, you 22 know, back then, you know, nine million dollars would have been 23 fine, and I'll lift the stay, you can go forward in state court 24 and try your luck at appealing the arbitration award, for which 25 there are very few ways you can get it overturned on an appeal.

Maloney - Summation

1 You know, I'll let resets happen, I will totally get out of 2 everyone's way as long as there's a pot of money so that all
3 the creditors' bases get paid in full. I'll let people do
4 whatever they want.

5 MR. MALONEY: As it relates to my --

6 THE COURT: Nix -- no, no, no, no one took that bait
7 in the three or four times it was thrown out. So I know that 8 is not palatable apparently, so what happens if I don't approve 9 this plan? I'm going to look at the law and equity and do what 10 they require, but what happens if I don't approve it?

11 MR. MALONEY: Your Honor, we've been in our fox holes 12 for so long, you know, as I noted, there's going to have to be 13 a solution. I would submit that the ultimate backstop is that 14 the trustee's got 25, #27 million worth of claims, and if he's 15 right there's going to be lots of money, including to pay his 16 lawyers.

17 THE COURT: In ten years.

18 MR. MALONEY: Excuse me?

19 THE COURT: In ten years.

20 MR. MALONEY: I don't know how to respond to that, 21 other than I've been involved in cases where the Courts seem to 22 drag their feet deliberately hard, and it didn't last ten 23 years. But I make no predictions on that, Your Honor. I just 24 can't speak to that, but I know that it doesn't have to be ten 25 years.

1 million dollar number came out. It's the same number in this 2 current plan. So, what went through my mind at that point in 3 time was the fact that the trustee had already run a process,
4 essentially an auction, and Extra ended up winning that 5 process.

6 And when I looked at the economics of the Extra
7 proposal and how that flowed through and how that valued Acis
8 and I looked at Plans B and C and then that those were 9 confirmed and the various moving parts in B and C, and in some 10 situations creditors weren't repaid much at all. In some 11 situation there would be some cash available for the equity.
12 A million dollars on a probability weighted basis is in the 13 ballpark of reasonableness, and if anything too high.

14 You know, and obviously the backdrop at that point,
15 too, was argument from the Highlands that the PMAs weren't 16 worth anything at all. So I had that obviously in my mind as 17 well.

18 Q Right. Did you factor into account the litigation claims 19 at all?

20 A Yeah, I factored the litigation claims and when I was 21 thinking about the valuation, absolutely. You know, the issue 22 with the litigation claims is, well, number one, I'm not an 23 attorney, but number two, I don't -- there's going to be a 24 cost to collect. There's going to be a whole lot of time 25 involved, and I think there's a high risk of at the end of the

Terry - Direct/Rosen

1 day not being able to collect.

2 MS. ROSEN: Okay. Laura, could you please pull up
3 Exhibit 713?

4 Q Mr. Terry, can you identify that document?

5 A This is my ballot from -- in relation to this plan.

6 Q Okay. And did you vote in favor of the plan?

7 A Yes, I did.

8 MS. ROSEN: Okay. Your Honor, we'd move to admit
9 Exhibit 713.

10 THE COURT: Seeing there's no objection.

11 UNIDENTIFIED ATTORNEY: No objection.

12 MS. O'NEIL: No objection.

13 MS. ROSEN: Okay.

14 THE COURT: Admitted.

15 Q Okay. If the plan is confirmed, just generally speaking, 16 what would your role be with the reorganized debtor?

17 A I'll be a hundred percent equity owner. I'll be an 18 officer of the reorganized debtor, essentially managing the 19 reorganized debtor on a go-forward basis.

20 Q Mr. Terry, I'll just clarify too, there are two debtors, 21 but we in the plan refer to them in the singular, so I'm doing 22 that meaning both debtors. Okay. So and are you prepared to 23 take on those responsibilities as of the effective date under 24 the plan?

25 A Absolutely.

1 a presentence order that says these exhibits are hereby sealed,
2 and I don't think that's controversial.

3 THE COURT: All right. So no objections, but just 4 previewing, I'm going to get a motion seal all these?

5 MR. BINFORD: Yes. I think -- this is the motion. I 6 think you're going to get an order since we have agreement from 7 the parties.

8 THE COURT: All right.

9 MR. BINFORD: I don't know if that's agreeable to the 10 Court. I'm happy to draft a motion.

11 THE COURT: Well, I just know, Cathy and Laura, it
12 seems like we have this all the time. And when I grant an oral 13 motion, people in the clerk's office go crazy. I have to have 14 something to link the order to.

15 Okay. Just prepare and agreed motion and then 16 simultaneously submit the agreed order and -- I'm sorry. I 17 don't know why we have these issues, but, ECF, we have these 18 issues. We have to have a motion.

19 MR. BINFORD: For the record, I don't know if it's an 20 efficient use of time. Do you want me to read off these 21 exhibits, the exhibit numbers? Or since it's by agreement --

22 THE COURT: Since it's by agreement, no. I'll just 23 accept it and sign the order when I get it.

24 MR. BINFORD: Thank you.

25 THE COURT: So, just to be clear, we are admitting at

1 sub-advisory services, where HCF Advisor is a relying advisor
2 of Highland. If you look on Highland's Form ADV, which is 3 accessible through SEC websites or something like that -- and 4 Highland has a number of relying advisors.

5 But HCF Advisor is Highland. It's set up for 6 whatever legal or structural reasons to be separate from 7 Highland Capital proper, but, at the same time, from a
8 regulatory perspective from -- if you look at Highland's Form 9 ADV, it's a -- HCF Advisor is a relying advisor of Highland.
10 It's one and the same.

11 That's the distinction between Highland HCF Advisor
12 could be well capitalized, the substance of Highland Capital, 13 its office space, employees, balance sheet, back office, legal, 14 what you, would all be incorporated with HCF Advisor, where 15 Acis with no employees is not looked at that way.

16 Q So the answer to my question is Highland HCF Advisor does 17 not have the $40 million to $50 million of capital per se? It 18 doesn't have the capital on its own balance sheet? Correct or 19 no?

20 A Well, it's a relying advisor of Highland.

21 Q I understood all that. But now I'm just asking does it 22 have --

23 A It probably -- it probably doesn't.

24 Q What does it have in assets or debts?

25 A It probably doesn't have many assets at all today.

1 of a state court lawsuit.

2 So, now, there may be things that would distinguish that,
3 but that's something to be -- that's something to be troubled
4 about if you're a director of this company.

5 Q And are these the types of things that, without, you know,
6 just divulging privileged communications, are these the type 7 of experiences and perspectives that you've shared with the 8 other board members in the context of considering the various 9 motions, the various matters for which Foley's retention is 10 sought?

12 Q Okay.

13 MR. MORRIS: Just one second, Your Honor.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 (Pause.)

16 MR. MORRIS: Nothing further, Your Honor.

17 THE COURT: All right. Any recross on that redirect?

18 MR. LAMBERSON: No, Your Honor.

19 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Nelms.

20 (The witness steps down.)

21 THE COURT: Any other evidence from Highland?

22 MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, we have had admitted our 23 exhibits. Among those exhibits are two declarations from Ms.
24 O'Neil, and so she's available in the courtroom today if 25 anybody wants to cross-examine on those issues.

O'Neil - Cross

115

1 THE COURT: All right. Well, I will accept those 2 declarations as direct evidence. Any desire to cross-examine 3 Ms. O'Neil?

4 MS. PATEL: Yes, Your Honor.

5 THE COURT: All right. Ms. O'Neil, we'll go ahead
6 and swear you in on this today.

7 HOLLAND O'NEIL, DEBTOR'S WITNESS, SWORN

8 THE COURT: All right. Please be seated.

10 BY MS. PATEL:

11 Q Good afternoon, Ms. O'Neil.

12 A Good afternoon.

13 Q Ms. O'Neil, do you concurrently represent both Highland 14 Capital Management and Neutra, which is a Cayman entity, 15 correct?

16 A Yes.

17 Q Okay. There are other entities that you either represent 18 or have represented that are kind of affiliated or within the 19 Highland umbrella; is that correct?

20 A Yes.

21 Q Okay. And that includes, for example, CLO HoldCo was one 22 such representation. Isn't that right?

23 A Previous. Previously.

24 Q Okay.

25 A Not currently.

1 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you all.

SECOND INTERIM APPLICATION FOR COMPENSATION AND REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES OF PACHULSKI STANG ZIEHL & JONES LLP,
AS COUNSEL FOR THE DEBTOR AND DEBTOR IN POSSESSION, FOR THE PERIOD FROM APRIL 1, 2020 THROUGH JULY 31, 2020

UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY JUDGE:

Pursuant to sections 330 and 331 of Title 11 of the United States Code (the “Bankruptcy Code”), Rule 2016 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure (collectively, the “Bankruptcy Rules”), Rule 2016-1 of the Local Bankruptcy Rules of the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas (collectively, the “L.B.R.”), the Court’s Guidelines for Compensation and Expense Reimbursement of Professionals (the “Guidelines”), and the Order Establishing Procedures for Interim Compensation and Reimbursement of Expenses of Professionals [Docket No. 141] (the “Interim Compensation Procedures Order”), Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones LLP (“PSZ&J” or the “Firm”), as counsel for Highland Capital Management, L.P., the above-captioned debtor and debtor in possession (the “Debtor”), hereby submits its Second Interim Application for Compensation and for Reimbursement of Expenses of Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones LLP as Counsel for the Debtor and Debtor in Possession for the Period from April 1, 2020 through July 31, 2020 (the “Application”).

By this Application, PSZ&J seeks entry of an order, substantially in the form attached hereto as Exhibit C, authorizing an interim allowance of: (a) compensation for professional services rendered by PSZ&J to the Debtor in the amount of $3,475,794.50; and (b) reimbursement of actual and necessary expenses in the amount of $12,205.15 for the period from April 1, 2020 through July 31, 2020 (the “Compensation Period”).

This amount is net of voluntary write-offs of $12,926.00 in fees and $2,525.88 in expenses during the Compensation Period. In support of the Application, PSZ&J respectfully represents as follows:

I. BACKGROUND

1. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334. This is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2). Venue is proper in this district under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409.

2. On October 16, 2019 (the “Petition Date”), the Debtor filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware (the “Delaware Court”). The Debtor has continued in the possession of its property and has continued to operate and manage its business as a debtor in possession pursuant to sections 1107(a) and 1108 of the Bankruptcy Code. No trustee or examiner has been appointed in this chapter 11 case.

3. On October 29, 2019, the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the “Committee”) was appointed by the U.S. Trustee in the Delaware Court.

4. On November 14, 2019, the Delaware Court signed the Interim Compensation Procedures Order authorizing certain professionals and members of any official committee (collectively, the “Professionals”) to submit monthly applications for interim compensation and reimbursement for expenses (each, a “Monthly Fee Application”) pursuant to the procedures specified therein. Commencing with the period ending December 31, 2019 and at three-month intervals thereafter, each of the Professionals may file with the Court an interim application for allowance of the amounts sought in its Monthly Fee Applications for that period. All fees and expenses paid are on an interim basis until final allowance by the Court.

5. The retention of PSZ&J as counsel to the Debtor was approved effective as of October 16, 2019 by the Delaware Court's Order Pursuant to Section 327(a) of the Bankruptcy Code, Rule 2014 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure and Local Rule 2014-1 Authorizing the Employment and Retention of Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones LLP as Counsel for the Debtor and Debtor in Possession Nunc Pro Tunc to the Petition Date, signed on December 2, 2019 [Docket No. 176] (the "Retention Order"). The Retention Order authorized PSZ&J to be compensated on an hourly basis and to be reimbursed for actual and necessary out-of-pocket expenses.

II. SUMMARY OF EVENTS DURING THE CHAPTER 11 CASE AND PRESENT POSTURE

A. Venue Transfer to the Northern District of Texas

6. On November 1, 2019, the Committee filed a Motion of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors for an Order Transferring Venue of this Case to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas [Docket No. 85] (the "Venue Transfer Motion"). Following arguments from the Debtor and the Committee, as well as brief witness testimony from the CRO, the Delaware Bankruptcy Court ruled in favor of the Committee and entered an order transferring venue [Docket No. 1].

B. The Settlement with the Committee and the Debtor's Restructuring Efforts

7. On December 27, 2019, the Debtor filed a Motion for Approval of Settlement with the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors Regarding Governance of the Debtor and Procedures for Operations in the Ordinary Course [Docket No. 281] (the "Settlement Motion").

This Court approved the Settlement Motion on January 9, 2020 [Docket No. 339] (the "Settlement Order"). The settlement (the "Settlement") came after weeks of negotiations between the Debtor and the Committee. The Settlement (i) created a new independent board of directors (the "Independent Board") at Strand Advisors, Inc., the Debtor's general partner and ultimate party in control, and (ii) implemented certain protocols governing the operation of the Debtor's business in the ordinary course.

8. Since its appointment, the Independent Board has focused on the following activities: (a) defending against the United States Trustee's motion for appointment of a chapter 11 trustee; (b) familiarizing itself with the Debtor's assets, liabilities, and operations; and (c) stabilizing the Debtor's employee base. As explained further below, the Independent Board has also devoted substantial efforts toward analyzing the claims that have been filed in this case, many of which have arisen from exceedingly long, complex, and acrimonious prepetition litigation. Because the Debtor has only minimal funded debt, the resolution of these litigation claims is key to any restructuring.

9. Since the appointment of the Independent Board, the Debtor has worked with the Committee and its creditors to obtain their input on the best way to maximize the Debtor's value and to conclude this case in an efficient manner. As part of that process, the Independent Board has conducted multiple meetings with the full Committee and individual meetings with key creditors. On July 14, the Court entered its order [D.I. 854] appointing James Seery, Jr., one of the members of the Independent Board, as the Debtor's chief executive officer and foreign representative. The Debtor also continued to make substantial progress in analyzing and reconciling the claims against its estate and has already filed objections to large claims asserted by Acis Capital Management, UBS, and IFA.

10. On August 3, 2020, the Court entered its Order Directing Mediation [D.I. 912], pursuant to which the Court ordered the Debtor, the Committee, Acis Capital Management, UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch, the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund; and James Dondero to mediate their various disputes pursuant to several scheduled mediation sessions to take place during August and September. On August 12, 2020, the Debtor filed its Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [D.I. 944] (the "Plan") and related disclosure statement [D.I. 945] (the "Disclosure Statement").

C. Major Events Occurring During the Compensation Period

11. During the Compensation Period, the Debtor made significant strides in seeking to resolve claims against the estate and propose a plan of reorganization that will enable the Debtor to emerge from chapter 11.

12. Claims Resolution. The Debtor successfully defeated the motion for relief from the automatic stay filed by UBS Securities LLC and UBS AG, London Branch (collectively, "UBS"), which sought authority to litigate UBS' claims against the Debtor in New York State Court. The Debtor also prepared objections to claims filed by UBS, Acis Capital Management, L.P., and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC (“Acis”). If mediation is not successful, the Debtor will ask the Court to resolve certain aspects of each of these claims at hearings scheduled in September 2020. The Debtor is also in the final stages of documentation of a settlement with the Redeemer Committee of the Highland Crusader Fund and will promptly seek Court approval of the settlement. The Debtor also filed objections to a variety of other claims against the estate and expects that all material claim objections will be filed by the end of August 2020.

13. Retention of Chief Executive Officer. In July 2020, the Court approved the Debtor's retention of James Seery as the Debtor's Chief Executive Officer (“CEO”) and Chief Restructuring Officer (“CRO”). Mr. Seery, who has been a member of the Independent Board since January 9, 2020, has been effectively acting as the Debtor's CEO and CRO since the middle of March 2020 and, in that capacity, has made substantial progress in stabilizing the Debtor's operations after the onset of the COVID 19 pandemic, monetized certain assets of the estate, maintained adequate liquidity and advanced the Debtor's efforts to market other assets of the its estate.

14. Filing of the Disclosure Statement and Plan of Reorganization. Working cooperatively both with the Committee and individual members of the Committee, the Debtor prepared and filed both the Plan and Disclosure Statement on August 12, 2020. The Debtor is a sophisticated organization with multiple subsidiaries and complicated assets. The Debtor is also an investment adviser registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”) pursuant to the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 (the “Advisers Act”). In formulating the Plan and the Disclosure Statement, the Debtor had to analyze each of the Debtor's assets and its corporate structure and to create a post-effective date structure that would allow the Debtor to preserve the value of its estate. This structuring was further complicated by the SEC overhang and the restrictions imposed by the Advisers Act on transferability and ownership.

Consequently, the structuring of the Plan and the Disclosure Statement was a multi-disciplinary exercise which required the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel to coordinate with both corporate and regulatory counsel and the negotiation of the Plan and the Disclosure Statement also required the participation of regulatory counsel for the Committee and, in certain circumstances, individual Committee members. Despite the substantial work that has been done on the Plan, certain unresolved issues between the Debtor and the Committee remain. The Debtor is confident that these issues can be resolved in advance of the September 29 hearing on the Disclosure Statement, either through direct negotiation or through mediation (discussed below). In addition to the potential restructuring contemplated by the Plan and Disclosure Statement, the Debtor also continues to work with the Committee, the Debtor's largest creditors, and Mr. Dondero in an effort to reach a consensual restructuring that will eliminate the need for ongoing costly and time consuming litigation.

15. Mediation. At the Court's suggestion, the Debtor, the Committee, UBS, Acis, the Redeemer Committee and Mr. Dondero will be participating in a mediation with Sylvia Mayer and the Honorable Allan Gropper. The Debtor has prepared an extensive mediation statement, have provided the Mediators with information relevant to the case and have otherwise been working hard to increase the chances that the mediation will be successful.

III. PSZ&J'S APPLICATION FOR COMPENSATION AND FOR REIMBURSEMENT OF EXPENSES

A. Compensation Paid and Its Source

16. All services for which PSZ&J requests compensation were performed for or on behalf of the Debtor. PSZ&J has received no payment and no promises for payment from any source other than the Debtor for services rendered or to be rendered in any capacity whatsoever in connection with the matters covered by this Application. There is no agreement or understanding between PSZ&J and any other person other than the partners of PSZ&J for the sharing of compensation to be received for services rendered in this case.

17. PSZ&J has received payments from the Debtor during the year prior to the Petition Date in the amount of $500,000, including the Debtor's filing fee for this case, in connection with the preparation of initial documents and the prepetition representation of the Debtor. PSZ&J is current as of the Petition Date and has completed its final reconciliation of prepetition fees and expenses (subject to any prepetition expenses that have not been received to date). The retainer balance remaining from the prepetition payments to PSZ&J will be credited to the Debtor and utilized as PSZ&J's retainer to apply to postpetition fees and expenses pursuant to the compensation procedures approved by the Delaware Court.

B. Monthly Fee Statements

18. Pursuant to the Interim Compensation Procedures Order, PSZ&J has submitted the following Monthly Fee Applications (the "Monthly Fee Statements") comprising the four months within the Compensation Period, each of which is incorporated herein by reference in its entirety:

- a. For the period April 1, 2020 – April 30, 2020 - fees of $890,818.00 (80% of allowed fees $1,113,522.50) and reimbursement of expenses of $3,437.28 [Docket No. 648];
- b. For the period May 1, 2020 – May 31, 2020 - fees of $642,807.60 (80% of allowed fees $803,509.50) and reimbursement of expenses of $4,372.94 [Docket No. 773];
- c. For the period June 1, 2020 – June 30, 2020 – fees of $655,029.20 (80% of allowed fees $818,786.50) and reimbursement of expenses of $3,205.81 [Docket No. 879]; and
- d. For the period July 1, 2020 – July 31, 2020 – fees of $591,980.80 (80% of allowed fees $739,976.00) and reimbursement of expenses of $1,189.12 [Docket No. 936].

19. As of the date of this Application, no party has objected to any of PSZ&J's Monthly Fee Statements.

20. PSZ&J's itemized time records for attorneys and paraprofessionals performing services for the Debtor during the Compensation Period and PSZ&J's itemized records detailing expenses incurred on behalf of the Committee during the Compensation Period were attached as Exhibit A to each of the Monthly Fee Statements and are incorporated herein by reference. These statements contain daily time logs describing the time spent by each attorney and paraprofessional during the Compensation Period. To the best of PSZ&J's knowledge, this Application complies with sections 330 and 331 of the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules, and the Interim Compensation Procedures Order.

C. Actual and Necessary Expenses

21. PSZ&J seeks reimbursement for expenses incurred in rendering services to the Debtor during the Compensation Period in the amount of $12,205.51. Itemized records detailing such expenses were attached as Exhibit A to each of the Monthly Fee Statements and are incorporated herein by reference. A detailed listing of actual and necessary expenses incurred by PSZ&J during the Compensation Period is attached hereto as part of Exhibit B.

22. PSZ&J customarily charges $0.10 per page for photocopying expenses and $0.10 per page for scanning and printing charges. PSZ&J's photocopying machines automatically record the number of copies made when the person that is doing the copying enters the client's account number into a device attached to the photocopier. PSZ&J summarizes each client's photocopying charges on a daily basis.

23. PSZ&J charges $0.25 per page for out-going facsimile transmissions. There is no additional charge for long distance telephone calls on faxes. The charge for outgoing facsimile transmissions reflects PSZ&J's calculation of the actual costs incurred by PSZ&J for the machines, supplies and extra labor expenses associated with sending telecopies and is reasonable in relation to the amount charged by outside vendors who provide similar services. PSZ&J does not charge the Debtor for the receipt of faxes in this case.

24. With respect to providers of on-line legal research services (e.g., LEXIS and Westlaw), PSZ&J charges the standard usage rates these providers charge for computerized legal research. PSZ&J bills its clients the actual amounts charged by such services, with no premium. Any volume discount received by PSZ&J is passed on to the client.

25. PSZ&J believes the foregoing rates are the market rates that the majority of law firms charge clients for such services. In addition, PSZ&J believes that such charges are in accordance with the American Bar Association's ("ABA") guidelines, as set forth in the ABA's

Statement of Principles, dated January 12, 1995, regarding billing for disbursements and other charges.

IV. SUMMARY OF SERVICES RENDERED

26. The names of the timekeepers of PSZ&J who have rendered professional services in this case during the Compensation Period are set forth above. These services performed, by categories, are generally described below, with a more detailed identification of the actual services provided set forth on the attached Exhibit B. Exhibit B identifies the attorneys and paraprofessionals who rendered services relating to each category, along with the number of hours for each individual and the total compensation sought for each category.

27. PSZ&J, by and through such persons, has prepared and assisted in the preparation of various motions and orders submitted to the Court for consideration, advised the Debtor on a regular basis with respect to various matters in connection with the Debtor's case, and performed all necessary professional services which are described and narrated in detail below. PSZ&J's efforts have been extensive due to the size and complexity of the Debtor's case.

Summary of Services by Project

28. The services rendered by PSZ&J during the Compensation Period can be grouped into the categories set forth below. PSZ&J attempted to place the services provided in the category that best relates to such services. However, because certain services may relate to one or more categories, services pertaining to one category may in fact be included in another category. These services performed, by categories, are generally described below, with a more detailed identification of the actual services provided set forth in Exhibit A to each of the Monthly Fee Statements. The summary charts above identify the attorneys and paraprofessionals who rendered services relating to each category, along with the number of hours for each individual and the total compensation sought for each category.

A. Asset Analysis/ Recovery

29. The Firm provided services on behalf of the Debtor relating to analysis of assets, including the wind down and distribution of certain funds managed by the Debtor. These services addressed a wide array of topics relating to the Debtor's assets, including intercompany transactions relating to funds administered by the Debtor, ordinary course governing protocols, margin accounts and the closing of the Multi-Strat sale, among others. The Firm also negotiated a settlement with UBS in connection with the Multi-Strat sale. In addition, the Firm addressed issues relating to prepetition rabbi trust agreements and certain shared services agreements.

Fees: $233,757.50

Hours: 262.70

B. Bankruptcy Litigation

30. This category includes work related to various contested matters and hearings pending before the Court. The Firm addressed several litigation issues affecting the Debtor, including the complaints filed by Acis in the Bankruptcy Court and other courts, engaged in discovery in connection with the UBS litigation and Acis, litigation issues concerning complaints and causes of action against the Debtor in nonbankruptcy forums, responded to and addressed numerous issues in connection with the Committee's discovery requests propounded on the Debtor, and addressed issues in connection with CLO Holdco's request for distribution of proceeds from the Court Registry and several contested hearings in connection therewith. In addition, the Firm prepared and filed various pleadings in connection with aforementioned services and prepared and appeared before the Court on the hearings related thereto.

Fees: $510,875.00

C. Case Administration

31. Given the breadth and complexity of the issues confronting the Debtor during this chapter 11 case, time allocated to this category is primarily attributable to the regular status calls conducted by and among Firm professionals, as well as discussions by the Firm, the Debtor and DSI regarding the issues and tasks addressed in order to advance the administration of the chapter 11 case.

Fees: $163,525.00

Hours: 209.20

D. Claims Administration/ Objection

32. This category includes work related to various contested matters pending before the Court. A significant amount of work PSZ&J performed during the Compensation Period involved the Independent Board's request that the Firm conduct an extensive review and analysis of the largest claims asserted against the Debtor's estate by UBS, Acis, and the Redeemer Committee, which in the aggregate exceed $1 billion. The analysis of these claims involved the review of years of litigation between the Debtor and the claimants to understand the complex factual and legal issues arising in connection therewith. Separately, the Firm also addressed other issues relating to claims analysis and administration, including the preparation of a several claim objections against UBS, Acis and Redeemer. The Firm also prepared and filed stand-alone objections to the claims of Acis, UBS and IFA as well as an omnibus objection to claims.

Fees: $1,172,004.50

Hours: 1219.20

E. Compensation of Professionals

33. During the Compensation Period, the Firm addressed issues relating to the payment and compensation of the Firm, including the preparation of its monthly fee statements and first interim fee application, and related pleadings.

Fees: $36,955.00 Hours: 49.40

F. Compensation of Professionals/ Others

34. The Firm assisted other estate professionals, several of whom who may not be familiar with the applicable rules governing compensation and reimbursement of expenses, with the preparation of their respective monthly and interim fee applications and staffing reports filed with the Court.

Fees: $29,810.00 Hours: 39.00

G. Employee Benefits/ Pension

35. The Firm performed services in this category relating to severance issues, the retention of Mr. Seery as the Debtor's chief executive officer, as well as issues related to the Debtor's benefit plans.

Fees: $97,705.50 Hours: 102.40

H. Executory Contracts

36. During the Compensation Period, the Firm negotiated several extensions of time to assume or reject its headquarters lease with the landlord.

Fees: $4,677.50 Hours: 5.10

I. Financial Filings

37. The Firm assisted the Debtor with the preparation of its monthly operating reports filed with the Court.

Fees: $4,170.00 Hours: 4.60

J. General Business Advice

38. The Firm prepared for and participated in numerous meetings with the Independent Board to address case issues and receive appropriate direction from the Independent Board, including insurance matters, non-debtor fund distribution issues, plan implementation strategies, claim objections and mediation. Separate from scheduled meetings, the Firm communicated extensively with members of the Independent Board regarding all aspects of the Debtor's case including proposed transactions involving the Debtor's assets and those of its managed funds, negotiations with the Committee, pending litigation, the retention of Mr. Seery as CEO and CRO, and issues relating to Directors and Officers insurance coverage and other matters.

Fees: $390,861.50 Hours: 380.10

K. General Creditors' Committee

39. The Firm regularly met with and participated on calls and meetings with the Committee on multiple case issues.

L. Mediation

40. Time billed to this matter relates to the Court ordered mediation in connection with the claims asserted by UBS and Acis, and a potential global resolution of matters with all principal participants. During the Compensation Period, the Firm, with the assistance of estate professionals, selected a mediator and provided case background information, addressed discovery issues in connection with mediation, drafted a comprehensive mediation statement to provide an overview of the Debtor's proposed plan, and a summary of the claims that are the subject of the mediation.

Fees: $59,975.00 Hours: 63.00

M. Operations

41. Time billed to this category relates to the daily business operations of the Debtor. During the Compensation Period, the Firm, among other things, analyzed the Debtor's operating protocols and cash flow projections and budget.

Fees: $1,829.50 Hours: 1.70

N. Plan and Disclosure Statement

42. Time billed to this category relates to work performed with respect to the Plan and Disclosure Statement. In addition to formulating and drafting the Plan and researching implementation issues in connection therewith, the Firm prepared a motion to extend the Debtor's plan filing and solicitation exclusivity periods, a motion to approve the adequacy of the Disclosure Statement, the form of ballots and solicitation procedures, and the Disclosure Statement. As mentioned above, structuring the Plan and Disclosure Statement was complicated by the nature of the Debtor's business, its multiple subsidiaries, its complicated assets, and the fact that the Debtor is a registered investment adviser with the SEC under the Advisers Act. Consequently, formulating the Plan and Disclosure Statement and the structure of the post-effective date reorganized entity was a multi-disciplinary exercise which required the Debtor's bankruptcy counsel to coordinate with both corporate and regulatory counsel and the negotiation of the Plan and Disclosure Statement also required the participation of regulatory counsel for the Committee and, in certain circumstances, individual Committee members.

Fees: $294,376.50 Hours: 320.00

O. Retention of Professionals/ Other

43. Time billed to this category relates to the retention of estate professionals other than the Firm. During the Compensation Period, the firm addressed Committee issues in connection with Wilmer Hale and Hunton Andrews Kurth's retention applications, and prepared an application to engage a litigation support firm to assist with the Committee's discovery issues. The Firm also assisted DSI with the preparation of a supplemental disclosure declaration and prepared an application to appoint DSI as financial advisor to the Debtor.

Fees: $58,974.00 Hours: 67.10

P. Stay Litigation

44. During the Compensation Period, the Firm, among other things, reviewed and analyzed the stay/contempt motion filed by Acis and prepared an opposition thereto. The Firm also drafted an opposition to the UBS stay relief motion and addressed numerous related issues in connection with that motion. The Firm also analyzed NexBank's purported termination of a shared services agreement and potential stay violation.

Fees: $373,218.50 Hours: 398.60

Q. Tax Issues

45. During the Compensation Period, the Firm reviewed correspondences and decisions concerning various tax issues in connection with the Debtor's case.

Fees: $5,717.50

Hours: 5.90

V. STATEMENT OF THE APPLICANT

46. PSZ&J makes the following statements:

- (a) PSZ&J did not agree to any variations from, or alternatives to, its standard or customary billing rates, fees or terms for services that were provided during the Compensation Period.
- (b) None of the hourly rates of PSZ&J's professionals and paraprofessionals included in this Application has been varied based on the geographic location of this case.
- (c) This Application does not include any rate increases since PSZ&J's retention, other than as allowed for pursuant to the Retention Order.

VI. BUDGET

47. The Debtor and the Firm projected that the Firm's fees and expenses during the Compensation Period would be $3,200,000. The Firm's fees during the Compensation Period was $3,475,794.50. The budget and staffing plan for the Compensation Period is attached hereto as Exhibit D, and PSZ&J's disclosures of customary and comparable compensation, including blended hourly rates, for the Compensation Period is attached hereto as Exhibit E.

VII. STANDARD FOR ALLOWANCE OF FEES AND EXPENSES

48. Bankruptcy Code § 330 authorizes the Court to award to professional persons who have been employed by the estate pursuant to Bankruptcy Code §§ 1103 or 327 reasonable compensation for actual and necessary services rendered, including reimbursement of actual and necessary expenses incurred by such professional persons.

49. As more fully described below, PSZ&J submits that the elements governing awards of compensation pursuant to Bankruptcy Code § 330 justify the allowance, on an interim basis, of the fees and expenses incurred in its representation of the Debtor during the Compensation Period.

50. The Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit established a set of guidelines for use by lower federal courts when ruling on attorneys' fee requests in Johnson v. Georgia Highway Express, Inc., 488 F.2d 714, 717-19 (5th Cir. 1974). Under Johnson, courts should consider the following factors: (a) the time and labor required; (b) the novelty and difficulty of the questions presented; (c) the skill requisite to perform the legal services properly; (d) the preclusion of other employment due to the acceptance of the case; (e) the customary fee; (f) whether the fee is fixed or contingent; (g) time limitations imposed by the client with the circumstances of the case; (h) the amount involved and the results obtained; (i) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorney; (j) the undesirability of the case; (k) the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client; and (l) awards in similar cases. Id. at 717-19. In In re First Colonial Corp. of America, 544 F.2d 1291, 1298-99 (5th Cir. 1977), the Fifth Circuit applied the Johnson factors to the analysis of fee awards in bankruptcy cases. In 2005, the Fifth Circuit harmonized the provisions of section 330 and the traditional Johnson factors, explaining:

The Fifth Circuit has traditionally used the lodestar method to calculate "reasonable" attorneys' fees under § 330. In re Fender, 12 F.3d 480, 487 (5th Cir. 1994). A court computes the lodestar by multiplying the number of hours an attorney would reasonably spend for the same type of work by the prevailing hourly rate in the community. Shipes v. Trinity Indus., 987 F.2d 311, 319 (5th Cir. 1993). A court then may adjust the lodestar up or down based on the factors contained in § 330 and its consideration of the twelve factors listed in Johnson, 488 F.2d at 717-19. See Fender, 12 F.3d at 487. While the bankruptcy court has considerable discretion in applying these factors, In re First Colonial Corp. of America, 544 F.2d 1291, 1298 (5th Cir. 1977), it must explain the weight given to each factor that it considers and how each factor affects its award. Fender, 12 F.3d at 487; Evangeline Refining Co., 890 F.2d at 1327-28.

In re Cahill, 428 F.3d 536, 539-40 (5th Cir. 2005).

VIII. APPLICATION OF THE JOHNSON FACTORS

51. As set forth in greater detail below, PSZ&J's request for allowance of fees and reimbursement of expenses is reasonable and proper pursuant to section 330, the lodestar, and the relevant Johnson factors. Accordingly, the Court should approve this Application and allow the amounts requested herein.

- (a) Time and Labor Required. PSZ&J has expended over 3,719.20 hours representing the Debtor during the Compensation Period. All of the time spent was necessary and appropriate for the representation of the Debtor in this case.
- (b) Novelty and Difficulty of Questions Presented. This case has presented several novel and difficult restructuring issues, including, among others, (i) structuring a plan for the Debtor's specialized business and addressing issues relating to non debtor affiliated entities; (ii) specialized matters relating to the alternative investment sector, (iii) issues with respect to the Debtor's management of funds, and (iv) development and use of various negotiated protocols necessary for the Debtor to continue to operate its business. PSZ&J's efforts were critical with respect to handling these complex and issues.
- (c) Skill Requisite to Perform Services Properly. Each of the PSZ&J attorneys providing services to the Debtor possesses the skills expected of a national and highly ranked restructuring practice.
- (d) Customary Fees. The hourly rates charged by each PSZ&J professional who performed services for the Debtor are PSZ&J's normal rates for services of this kind and are comparable to those being charged by other professionals with similar qualifications and experience.

- (e) Whether the Fee is Fixed or Contingent. The fees requested in this Application represent fixed hourly rates.
- (f) Amounts Involved and Results Obtained. PSZ&J's representation of the Debtor in this case involves restructuring efforts encompassing (a) assets and liabilities of over one billion dollars and (b) the operations of an alternative investment manager. This case also involves complex issues regarding (i) the more than one billion dollars in claims collectively asserted by UBI, Acis, and the Redeemer Committee, and (ii) the Debtor's transition and ability to operate its business within the constraints of chapter 11 and to constructively engage with the Committee and other economic parties and the drafting and filing of the Plan and Disclosure Statement.
- (g) Experience, Reputation, and Ability of Counsel. PSZ&J attorneys have represented, and are sought after to represent, numerous debtors and official committees in some of the largest and most sophisticated bankruptcy cases in the country.
- (i) Awards in Similar Cases. The fees and expenses for which PSZ&J seeks compensation and reimbursement are not excessive and are substantially similar to those awarded in similar cases in this district for similar services rendered and results obtained.

52. PSZ&J respectfully submits that it has satisfied the requirements for the allowance of the compensation and reimbursement of expenses sought herein. The services described above, at the time they were provided, were necessary and beneficial to the Debtor and its estate. PSZ&J's services were consistently performed in a timely manner commensurate with the complexity of the issues facing the Debtor and the nature and importance of the problems, issues, and tasks. Furthermore, all of the services for which compensation is requested hereunder were rendered at the request of and solely on behalf of the Debtor and not on behalf of any other entity. In accordance with the Guidelines, the Certification of Jeffrey N. Pomerantz is attached hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated herein by reference.

IX. NOTICE

53. PSZ&J will serve this Application in accordance with the Interim Compensation Procedures Order. Any objections to this Application must be in writing and filed with the Court and served upon PSZ&J so as to be received no later than September 9, 2020. PSZ&J respectfully submits that no other or further notice need be provided.

X. NO PRIOR REQUEST

54. No prior request for the relief sought in this Application has been made to this or any other court.

XI. CONCLUSION

WHEREFORE, PSZ&J respectfully requests that, pursuant to the Interim Compensation Procedures Order, the Court (i) allow on an interim basis compensation in the amount of $3,475,794.50 for services rendered by PSZ&J during the Compensation Period; (ii) allow on an interim basis reimbursement of expenses in the amount of $12,205.15 for expenses incurred during the Compensation Period; (iii) authorize payment of these allowed fees and expenses to PSZ&J; and (iv) grant such other and further relief as the Court may deem proper.
