representatives of the Claims Purchasers and of Seery and production of documents pursuant to deposition notices and subpoenas duces tecum that HMIT had attached to the motion. On May 26, 2023, this court held yet another status conference. Following the status conference, the court granted in part and denied in part HMIT's request for expedited discovery by ordering only Seery and Dondero to be made available for depositions prior to the June 8 Hearing. The court reached what seemed like appropriate middle ground by allowing the deposition of Seery and allowing the other parties to depose Dondero (for whom sworn declarations had been submitted), but the court was not going to allow any more discovery (i.e., of the Claims Purchasers) at so late an hour. The court was aware that HMIT and Dondero had been seeking discovery relating to the very claims trades that are the subject of the Revised Proposed Complaint from the Claims Purchasers in Texas state court "Rule 202" proceedings for approximately two years, where their attempts were rebuffed.

Approximately 60 hours before the June 8 Hearing, HMIT filed its Witness and Exhibit List disclosing for the first time two potential expert witnesses (along with biographical information and a disclosure regarding the subject matter of their likely testimony). Highland, the Claimant Trust, and Seery filed a joint motion to exclude the expert testimony and documents ("Motion to Exclude"), which the court ultimately granted in a separate order.

During the full-day June 8 Hearing on the Motion to Leave, the court admitted over 50 HMIT exhibits and over 30 Highland/Claimant Trust exhibits. The court heard testimony from HMIT's witnesses Dondero and Seery (as an adverse witness) and from the Highland Parties' witness Mark Patrick, the administrator of HMIT since August 2022 (as an adverse witness). The bankruptcy court allowed HMIT to make a running objection to all evidence—as it continued to argue that evidence was not appropriate.

III. LEGAL ANALYSIS

In determining whether HMIT should be granted leave, pursuant to the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan and the court's prior Gatekeeper Orders, to pursue the Proposed Claims, the court must address the issue of whether HMIT would have standing to bring the Proposed Claims in the first instance. If so, the next question is whether the Proposed Claims are "colorable." But prior to getting into the weeds on standing and "colorability," some general discussion regarding the topic of claims trading in the bankruptcy world seems appropriate, given that HMIT's Proposed Claims are based, in large part, on allegations of improper claims trading.

A. Claims Trading in the Context of Bankruptcy Cases—Can It Be Tortious or Otherwise Actionable?

As noted, at the crux of HMIT's desired lawsuit is what this court will refer to as "claims trading activity" that occurred shortly after the Plan was confirmed, but before the Plan went effective. HMIT believes that the claims trading activity gave rise to various torts: breach of fiduciary duty on the part of Seery; knowing participation in breach of fiduciary duty by the other Proposed Defendants; and conspiracy by all Defendants. HMIT also believes that the following remedies should be imposed: equitable disallowance of the Purchased Claims; disgorgement of the alleged profits the Claims Purchasers made on their purchases; and disgorgement of all Seery's compensation received since the beginning of his "collusion" with the other Defendants. Without a doubt, the Motion for Leave and Proposed Complaint revolve almost entirely around the claims trading activity.

This begs the question: When (or under what circumstances) might claims trading activity during a bankruptcy case give rise to a cause of action that either the bankruptcy estate or an economic stakeholder in the case might have standing to bring? Here, the claims trading wasn't even "during a bankruptcy case" really—it was post-confirmation and pre-effective date, and it happened to be: (a) after mediation of the claims, (b) after Rule 9019 settlement motions, (c) after objections by Dondero and certain of his family trusts were lodged, (d) after evidentiary hearings, and (e) after orders were ultimately entered allowing the claims (and in most cases, such orders were appealed). The further crux of HMIT's desired lawsuit is that Seery allegedly "wrongfully facilitated and promoted the sale of large unsecured creditor claims to his close business allies and friends" by sharing material non-public information to them regarding the potential value of the claims (i.e., the potential value of the bankruptcy estate), and this is what made the claims trading activity particularly pernicious. The alleged sharing of MNPI allegedly caused the Claims Purchasers to purchase their claims without doing any due diligence and with knowledge that the claims would be worth much more than the Plan's "pessimistic" projections might have suggested, and also allowed Seery to plant friendly allies into the creditor constituency (and on the post-confirmation CTOB) that would "rubber stamp" his generous compensation. This is all referred to as "not arm's-length" and "collusive." Notably, the MNPI mostly pertained to a likely future acquisition of MGM by Amazon (which transaction, indeed, occurred in 2022, after being publicly announced in Spring of 2021); as noted earlier, Highland owned, directly and indirectly, common stock in MGM. Also notably, there had been rumors and media attention regarding a potential sale of MGM for many months.[138] In summary, to be clear, HMIT's desired lawsuit is laced with a theme of "insider trading"—although this isn't a situation of securities trading per se (i.e., the unsecured Purchased Claims were not securities), and, as noted earlier, the Texas State Securities Board has not seen fit to investigate the claims trading activity.

So, preliminarily, is claims trading in bankruptcy sinister per se? The answer is no.

[138] E.g., Benjamin Mullin, MGM Holdings, Studio Behind 'James Bond,' Explores a Sale, THE WALL STREET JOURNAL (Dec. 21, 2020, 6:38 p.m.).

The activity of investing in distressed debt (which frequently occurs during a bankruptcy case—sometimes referred to as "claims trading") is ubiquitous and, indeed, has been so for a very long time. As noted by one scholar:

> The creation of a market in bankruptcy claims is the single most important development in the bankruptcy world since the Bankruptcy Code's enactment in 1978. [Citations omitted.] Claims trading has revolutionized bankruptcy by making it a much more market-driven process. [Citations omitted.] . . . The development of a robust market for all types of claims against debtors has changed the cast of characters involved in bankruptcies. In addition to long-standing relational creditors, like trade creditors or a single senior secured bank or bank group, bankruptcy cases now involve professional distressed debt investors, whose interests and behavior are often quite different than traditional relational counterparty creditors.

Adam J. Levitin, Bankruptcy Markets*: Making Sense of Claims Trading*, 4 BROOK. J. CORP. FIN. & COM. L. 64, 65 (2010) (hereinafter "Bankruptcy Markets").[139]

As a pure policy matter, some practitioners have bemoaned this claims trading phenomenon, suggesting that "distressed debt traders may sacrifice the long-term viability of a debtor for the ability to realize substantial and quick returns on their investments."[140] Others suggest that claims trading in bankruptcy is beneficial, in that it allows creditors of a debtor an early exit from a potentially long bankruptcy case, enabling them to save expense and administrative hassles, realize immediate liquidity on their claims (albeit discounted), and may even permit them to take advantage of a tax loss on their own desired timetable.[141] On the flipside, "[c]aims trading permits an entrance to the bankruptcy process for those investors who want to take the time and effort to monitor the debtor and contribute expertise to the reorganization process."[142]

So, what are the "rules of the road" here? What does the Bankruptcy Code dictate regarding claims trading? The answer is nothing. The Bankruptcy Code itself has no provisions whatsoever regarding claims trading. The only thing resembling any regulation of claims trading during a bankruptcy case is found at Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 3001(e)—the current version of which went into effect in 1991—and it imposes extremely light regulation—if it could even be called that. This rule requires, in pertinent part (at subsection (2)), that "[i]f a claim other than one based on a publicly traded note, bond, or debenture" is traded during the case after a proof of claim is filed, notice/evidence of that trade must be filed with the bankruptcy clerk by the transferee. The transferor shall then be notified and given 21 days to object. If there is an objection, the bankruptcy court will hold a hearing regarding whether a transfer, in fact, took place. If there is no objection, nothing further needs to happen, and the transferee will be considered substituted for the transferor.

There are several things noteworthy about Rule 3001(e)(2). First, the only party given the opportunity to object is the transferor of the claim (presumably, in the situation of a dispute regarding whether there was truly an agreement regarding the transfer of the claim). Second, there is no need for a bankruptcy court order approving the transfer (except in the event of an objection by the alleged transferor). Third, the economic consideration paid need not be disclosed to the court or anyone. Fourth, there is no requirement or definition of timeliness. Finally, it explicitly does not apply with regard to publicly traded debt. This, alone, means that many claims trades are not even reported in a bankruptcy case. But it is not just publicly traded debt that will not be reflected with a Rule 3001(e) filing. For example, bank debt, in modern times, is often syndicated (i.e., fragmented into many beneficial holders of portions of the debt) and only the administrative agent for the syndicate (or the "lead bank") will file a proof of claim in the bankruptcy—thus, as the syndicated interests (participations) change hands, and they frequently do, there typically will not be a Rule 3001(e) notice filed.[143] To be clear here, this syndication-of-bank-debt fact, along with the fact that there are financial products whereby bank debt might be carved up into economic interests separate and apart from legal title to the loan, means there are many situations in which trading of claims during a bankruptcy case is not necessarily transparent or, for that matter, policed by the bankruptcy court. This is the world of modern bankruptcy. Most of the claims trading that gets reported through a Rule 3001(e) notice is the trading of small vendor claims. And this is all regarded as private sale transactions for the most part.[144]

Suffice it to say that there is not a wealth of case law dealing with claims trading in a bankruptcy context. Perhaps this is not surprising, since it is not prohibited and is mostly a matter of private contract between buyer and seller. The case law that does exist seems to arise in situations of perceived bad faith of a purchaser—for example, when there was an attempt to control voting and/or ultimate control of the debtor through the plan process (not always problematic, but there are outlier cases where this was found to cross a line and result in consequences such as disallowing votes on a plan or even equitable subordination of a claim).[145] Another type of case that has generated case law is where the purchaser of claims occupied a fiduciary status with the debtor.[146] Still another type of case that has generated case law is where there is an attempt to cleanse claims that might have risks because of a seller's malfeasance, by trading the claim to a new claim holder.[147]

[144] Note that Bankruptcy Rule 3001(e) was very different before 1991. Between 1983-1991, the rule required that parties transferring claims inform the court that a transfer of claims was taking place and also disclose the consideration paid for the transferred claims. A hearing would take place prior to the execution of a trade. Judicial involvement was required and resulted in judicial scrutiny of transactions—something that simply does not exist today.

The following is a potpourri of the more notable cases that have addressed claims trading in different contexts. Most of them imposed no adverse consequences on claims traders: In re Kreisler, 546 F.3d 863, 864 (7th Cir. 2008) (where a corporation named Garlin, that was owned by the individual chapter 7 debtors' sister and close friend, purchased a $900,000 bank claim for $16,500, and there was no disclosure of Garlin's connections to debtors and no Rule 3001(e)(2) notice was filed, the Seventh Circuit reversed the bankruptcy court's invocation of the doctrine of equitable subordination to the claim, stating: "Equitable subordination is generally appropriate only if a creditor is guilty of misconduct that causes injury to the interests of other creditors;" the Seventh Circuit further stated that it could "put to one side whether the court's finding of inequitable conduct was correct" because even if there was misconduct, it did not harm the other creditors, who were in the same position whether the original creditor or Garlin happened to own the claim; the Seventh Circuit did note that Garlin's decision to purchase the original bank creditor's claim might have disadvantaged the other creditors if it interfered with the trustee's own potential settlement with the original bank creditor (note that the trustee argued that she had been negotiating a deal with bank under which bank might have reduced its claims); however, the trustee presented no evidence that any deal with the bank was imminent or even likely; thus, whether such a deal could have been reached was speculation; equitable subordination was therefore improper."); *Viking Assocs., L.L.C. v. Suffice it to say that the courts have, more often than not, been unwilling to impose legal consequences, for an actor's involvement with claims trading. At most, in outlier-type situations during a case, courts have taken steps to disallow claims for voting purposes or to subordinate claims to other unsecured creditors for distribution purposes.[148] But the case at bar does not present facts that are typical of any of the situations in reported cases.

For one thing, unlike in the reported cases this court has located, there seems to have been complete symmetry of sophistication among the claim sellers and claim purchasers here—and complete symmetry with HMIT for that matter. All persons involved are highly sophisticated financial institutions, hedge funds, or private equity funds. No one was a "mom-and-pop" type business or vendor that might be vulnerable to chicanery. The claims ranged from being worth $10's of millions of dollars to $100's of millions of dollars in face value. And, of course, the sellers/transferors of the claims have never shown up, subsequent to the claims trading [148] Note that, while some cases suggest that outright disallowance of an unsecured claim, in the case of "inequitable conduct" might be permitted (not merely equitable subordination to unsecured creditors)—usually citing to Pepper v. Litton, 308 U.S. 295 (1939)—the Fifth Circuit has suggested otherwise. In re Mobile Steel Co., Inc., 563 F.2d 692, 699-700 (5th Cir. 1977) (cleaned up) (noting that "equitable considerations can justify only the subordination of claims, not their disallowance" and also noting that "three conditions must be satisfied before exercise of the power of equitable subordination is appropriate[:] (i) The claimant must have engaged in some type of inequitable conduct[;] (ii) The misconduct must have resulted in injury to the creditors of the bankrupt or conferred an unfair advantage on the claimant[; and] (iii) Equitable subordination of the claim must not be inconsistent with the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act." In Mobile Steel, the Fifth Circuit held that the bankruptcy judge exceeded the bounds of his equitable jurisdiction by disallowing a group of claims and also reversed the subordination of certain claims, on the grounds that the bankruptcy court had made clearly erroneous findings regarding alleged inequitable conduct and other necessary facts. Contrast In re Lothian Oil Inc., 650 F.3d 539 (5th Cir. 2011) (involving the question of whether a bankruptcy court may recharacterize a claim as equity rather than debt; the court held yes, but it has nothing to do with inequitable conduct per se; rather section 502(b)'s language that a claim should be allowed unless it is "unenforceable against the debtor and property of the debtor, under any agreement or applicable law...." is the relevant authority; unlike equitable subordination, recharacterization is about looking at the true substance of a transaction not the conduct of a party (if it looks like a duck and quacks like a duck, it's a duck—i.e., equity); the court indicated that section 105 is not a basis to recharacterize debt as equity; it's a matter of looking at state law to determine if there is any basis and looking at the nature of the underlying transaction—as either a lending arrangement or equity infusion.

transactions, to complain about anything. Everyone involved here is, essentially, a behemoth and there is literally no sign of innocent creditors getting harmed. Second, the case at bar is unique in that the claims traded here had all been allowed after objections, mediation, and Rule 9019 settlements during the bankruptcy case. Thus, the amounts that would be paid on them were "locked in," so to speak. There was no risk to a hypothetical claims-purchaser of disallowance, offset, or any "claw-back" litigation (or—one might have reasonably assumed—any type of litigation). Third, the terms for distributions on unsecured claims had been established in a confirmed plan (although the claims were purchased before the effective date of the Plan). Thus, there was a degree of certainty regarding return on investment for the Claims Purchasers here that was much higher than if the claims had been purchased early, during, or mid-way through the case.[149] This was post-confirmation, pre-effective date claims purchasing. Interestingly, all three of these facts might suggest that little due diligence would be undertaken by any hypothetical purchaser. The rules of the road had been set. The court makes this observation because HMIT has suggested there is something highly suspicious about the fact that Farallon allegedly told Dondero that it did no due diligence before purchasing its claims (leading him to conclude that the Claims Purchasers must have purchased their claims based on receiving MNPI from Seery). Not only has there been no colorable evidence suggesting that insider information was shared, but the lack of due diligence in this context does not reasonably seem suspicious. The claims purchases

[149] See discussion in BANKRUPTCY MARKETS, at 91:

> Some claims purchasers buy before the bankruptcy petition is filed, some at the beginning of the case, and some towards the end. For example, there are investors who look to purchase at low prices either when a business is failing or early in the bankruptcy and ride through the case until payouts are fairly certain. [Citations omitted.] These investors might be hoping to buy at 30 cents on the dollar and get a payout at 70 cents on the dollar. Perhaps if they waited another six months, the payout would be 74 cents on the dollar, but the additional 4 cents on the dollar for six months might not be a worthwhile return for the time value of the investment. Other investors might not want to assume the risk that exists in the early days of a case when the fate of the debtor is much less certain, but they would gladly purchase at 70 cents on the dollar at the end of the case to get a payout of 74 cents on the dollar six months later.

were almost like passive investments, at this point—there was no risk of a claim objection and there was a confirmed plan, with a lengthy disclosure statement that described not only plan payment terms and projections, but essentially anything that any investor might want to know.

To reiterate, here, HMIT seeks leave to assert the following causes of action:

I. Breach of Fiduciary Duties (Seery)

II. Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciary Duties (Claims Purchasers)

III. Conspiracy (all Proposed Defendants)

IV. Equitable Disallowance (Claims Purchasers)

V. Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust (all Proposed Defendants)

VI. Declaratory Judgment (all Proposed Defendants)

The court struggles to fathom how any of these proposed causes of action or remedies can be applied in the context of: (a) post-confirmation claims trading; (b) where the claims have all been litigated and allowed.

In reflecting on the case law and various Bankruptcy Code provisions, the court can fathom the following hypotheticals in which claims trading during a bankruptcy case might be somehow actionable:

> Hypothetical #1: The most obvious situation would be if a purchaser of a claim files a Rule 3001(e) Notice, and the seller/transferor then files an objection thereto. There would then be a contested hearing between purchaser and seller regarding the validity of the transfer with the bankruptcy court issuing an appropriate order after the hearing on the objection. As noted, there was no objection to the Rule 3001(e) notices here.
> Hypothetical #2: Alternatively, there could be a breach of contract suit between purchaser and seller if one thinks the other breached the purchase-sale agreement somehow. Perhaps torts might also be alleged in such litigation. As noted, there is no dispute between purchasers and sellers here.
> Hypothetical #3: If there is believed to be fraud in connection with a plan, a party in interest might, pursuant to section 1144 of the Bankruptcy Code, move for revocation of the plan "at any time before 180 days after the date of entry of the order for confirmation" and the court "may revoke such order if and only if such order was procured by fraud." As noted, here HMIT has suggested that the "pessimistic" plan projections may have been fraudulent or misrepresentations somehow. The time elapsed long ago to seek revocation of the Plan.

Hypothetical #4: As discussed above, in rare situations (bad faith), during a Chapter 11 case, before a plan is confirmed, a claims purchaser's claim might not be allowed for voting purposes. See Sections 1126(e) of the Bankruptcy Code ("the court may designate any entity whose acceptance or rejection of such plan was not in good faith"). Obviously, in this case, this is not applicable—the claims were purchased post-confirmation.

Hypothetical #5: As discussed above, in rare situations (inequitable conduct), a court might equitably subordinate claims to other claims. See Section 510(c) of the Bankruptcy Code. But here, HMIT is seeking either: (a) equitable subordination of the claims of the Claims Purchaser to HMIT's Class 10 former equity interest (in contravention of the explicit terms of section 510(c)) or, (b) equitable disallowance of the claims of the Claims Purchasers (in contravention of Mobile Steel).

Hypothetical #6: Bankruptcy Code section 502(b)(1) and the Fifth Circuit's Lothian Oil case may permit "recharacterization" of a claim from debt to equity in certain circumstances, but not in circumstances like the ones in this case. Here, the claims have already been adjudicated and allowed (some after mediation, and all after Rule 9019 settlement orders). The only way to reconsider a claim in a bankruptcy case that has already been allowed is through Bankruptcy Code section 502(j) ("A claim that has been allowed or disallowed may be reconsidered for cause. . . according to the equities of the case."). The problem here is that Bankruptcy Rule 9024 provides that a motion for "reconsideration of an order allowing or disallowing a claim against the estate entered without a contest is not subject to the one year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c)" (emphasis added). Here there was most definitely "a contest" with regard to all of these purchased claims. Thus, it would appear that any effort to have a court reconsider these claims pursuant to section 502(j) is untimely—as it has been well beyond a year since they were allowed.

Hypothetical #7: If a party believes "insider trading" occurred there are governmental agencies that investigate and police that. Here, the purchased claims (which were not based on bonds or certificated equity interests) would not be securities so as to fall under the SEC's purview. Moreover, there was evidence that HMIT or Dondero-Related entities requested that the Texas State Securities Board investigate the claims trading and the board did not find a basis to pursue anyone for wrongdoing.

Hypothetical #8: The United States Trustee can investigate wrongdoing by a debtor or unsecured creditors committee. While the United States Trustee would naturally have concerns about members of an unsecured creditors committee (or an officer of a debtor-in-possession) adhering to fiduciary duties and not putting their > own interests above those of the estate, here, there are a couple of points that seem noteworthy. One, the claims trading activity was post-confirmation so—while certain of the claim-sellers may have still been on the unsecured creditors committee, as the effective date of the plan had not yet occurred—the circumstances are very different than if this had all happened during the early, contentious stages of the case. It seems inconceivable that there was somehow a disparity of information that might be troubling—the Plan had been confirmed and it was available for the world to see. The whole notion of "insider information" (just after confirmation here) feels a bit off-point. Bankruptcy practitioners and judges sometimes call bankruptcy a fishbowl or use the "open kimono" metaphor for good reason. It is generally a very open process. And information-sharing on the part of a debtor-in-possession or unsecured creditors committee is intended to be robust. See, e.g., Bankruptcy Code sections 521 and 1102(b)(3). In a way, HMIT here seems to be complaining about this very situation that the Code and Rules have designed.

In summary, claims trading is a highly unregulated activity in the bankruptcy world. HMIT is attempting to pursue causes of action here that, to this court's knowledge, have never been allowed in a context like this.

B. Back to Standing—Would HMIT Have Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims?

The Proposed Defendants argue that HMIT lacks standing to bring the Proposed Claims, either: (a) derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor and Claimant Trust, or (b) directly on behalf of itself. Thus, they argue that this is one reason that the Motion for Leave should be denied.

In making their specific standing arguments, the parties analyze things slightly differently:

The Claims Purchasers focus primarily on HMIT's lack of constitutional standing but also argue that HMIT does not have prudential standing under Delaware trust law to bring the Proposed Claims either individually or derivatively. Why do they mention Delaware trust law? Because the Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, 12 Del. C. §§ 3801–29.[150]

The Highland Parties' standing arguments focus almost entirely on HMIT's lack of prudential standing under Delaware trust law to bring the Proposed Claims.

HMIT argues that the Proposed Defendants "play fast and loose with standing arguments" and that HMIT has constitutional standing as a "party aggrieved"[151] to bring the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself. HMIT also argues that it has standing under Delaware trust law to bring a derivative action on behalf of the Claimant Trust, and that it not only has standing to bring the Proposed Claims derivatively on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor under the Plan, but it is the best party to do so.

1. The Different Types of Standing: Constitutional Versus Prudential

The parties are addressing two concepts of standing that can sometimes be confused and misapplied by both attorneys and judges: constitutional Article III standing, which implicates federal court subject matter jurisdiction,[152] and the narrower standing concept of prudential standing, which does not implicate subject matter jurisdiction but nevertheless might prevent a party from having capacity to sue, pursuant to limitations set by courts, statutes or other law.

Article III constitutional standing works as follows: a plaintiff, as the party invoking federal jurisdiction, bears the burden of establishing three elements: (1) that he or she suffered an injury in fact that is concrete, particularized, and actual or imminent—not conjectural or hypothetical, (2) that there is a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of, and (3) it must be likely, not speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.[153] "If the plaintiff does not claim to have suffered an injury that the defendant caused and the court can remedy, there is no case or controversy for the federal court to resolve."[154] These elements ensure that a plaintiff has "'such a personal stake in the outcome of the controversy' as to warrant his invocation of federal-court jurisdiction and to justify exercise of the court's remedial powers on his behalf."[155]

[152] Article III, Section 2 of the U.S. Constitution gives federal courts jurisdiction over enumerated cases and controversies.

[153] See Thole v. U.S. Bank, N.A., 140 S.Ct. 1615, 1618 (2020)(citing the Supreme Court's seminal case on the tripartite test for Article III constitutional standing, Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560-61 (1992), where the Supreme Court stated that "the irreducible constitutional minimum of standing contains [the] three elements"); see also Spokeo, 578 U.S. at 338; Abraugh v. Altimus, 26 F.4th 298, 302 (5th Cir. 2022) (citing id.).

[155] Warth v. Seldin, 422 U.S. 490, 498-99 (1975) (quoting Baker v. Carr, 369 U.S. 186, 204 (1962)).

Apart from this minimal constitutional mandate, courts and statutes have set other limits on the class of persons who may seek judicial remedies—and this is the concept of prudential standing. In its recent opinion in Abraugh v. Altimus,[156] the Fifth Circuit set forth a detailed analysis of the two types of "standing," noting that the term "standing" is often "misused" in our legal system, which has led to confusion for both attorneys and judges.[157] The constitutional standing that is necessary for a court to exercise subject matter jurisdiction is broader than prudential standing and is only the first hurdle a party must clear before pursuing a claim in federal court.

The Fifth Circuit explained that in addition to Article III constitutional standing, "courts have occasionally articulated other 'standing' requirements that plaintiffs must satisfy under certain conditions, beyond those imposed by Article III,"[158] such as the "standing" requirement that might be imposed by a statute or by jurisprudence. The Abraugh case was a perfect example of the latter.

Abraugh involved the civil rights statutes that provide, among other things, that "a party must have standing under the state wrongful death or survival statutes to bring [a § 1983 cause of action]" and noted that these statutes impose additional "standing" requirements that are a matter of prudential standing, not constitutional standing.[159] In Abraugh, the Fifth Circuit reversed and remanded a district court's dismissal of a § 1983 civil rights cause of action—noting that the district court had stated that it was dismissing based on a "lack of subject matter jurisdiction" because the plaintiff in that action lacked standing.[160] The plaintiff was the mother of a prisoner who died by suicide while in custody who brought a § 1983 action against Louisiana correctional officers and officials. After finding that the plaintiff/mother lacked standing under Louisiana's wrongful death and survival statutes (because there had been a surviving child and wife of the prisoner who were the proper parties with capacity to sue), the district court held that it was dismissing for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. The Fifth Circuit pointed out that the plaintiff/mother may have lacked standing under Louisiana's wrongful death and survival statutes to bring the claim under § 1983, but that type of standing was matter of prudential standing, and the plaintiff/mother actually did have Article III constitutional standing ("a constitutionally cognizable interest in the life of her son").[161] Thus, the district court's error was not in finding that the plaintiff/mother lacked prudential standing but in improperly conflating the two standing concepts when it held that it had lacked subject matter jurisdiction to consider any of the plaintiff's/mother's amended complaints.[162] The Fifth Circuit noted specifically that[163] > prudential standing does not present a jurisdictional question, but "a merits question: who, according to the governing substantive law, is entitled to enforce the right?" As the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure make clear, "an action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest." FED. R. CIV. P. 17(a)(1). And a violation of this rule is a failure of "prudential" standing. "Not one of our precedents holds that the inquiry is jurisdictional." It goes only to the validity of the cause of action. And "the absence of a valid . . . cause of action does not implicate subject-matter jurisdiction."

Somewhat relevant to this prudential standing discussion is the fact that, in this bankruptcy case, there have been dozens of appeals of bankruptcy court orders by Dondero and Dondero-related entities. In connection therewith, both the district court and the Fifth Circuit, in evaluating the appellate standing of the appellants, have taken pains to distinguish between the concepts of:

The Fifth Circuit opined that "the district court did not err in describing [the mother's] inability to sue under Louisiana law as a defect of 'standing[, b]ut it is a defect of prudential standing, not Article III standing" thus technically not implicating the federal court's subject matter jurisdiction. Id. at 303.

(a) traditional, constitutional standing, and (b) a type of prudential standing known as the "person aggrieved" test, which is applied in the Fifth Circuit in determining whether a party has standing to appeal a bankruptcy court order—which it describes as a narrower and "more exacting" standard than constitutional standing. As explained in a Fifth Circuit opinion addressing the standing of a Dondero-related entity called NexPoint to appeal bankruptcy court orders allowing professional fees, the "person aggrieved" standard that is typically applied to ascertain bankruptcy appellate standing originated in a statute in the Bankruptcy Act. The Fifth Circuit continued to apply it after Congress removed the provision when it enacted the Bankruptcy Code in 1978.[164] Because it is narrower and "more exacting" than the test for Article III constitutional standing, it involves application of prudential standing considerations.[165] The Fifth Circuit describes the "person aggrieved" test for bankruptcy appellant standing as requiring that an appellant show that it was "directly and adversely affected pecuniarily by the order of the bankruptcy court," requiring "a higher causal nexus between act and injury than traditional standing . . . that best deals with the unique posture of bankruptcy actions."[166] In affirming the district court's dismissal of NexPoint's appeal of the bankruptcy court's fee orders, due to NexPoint's lack of prudential standing under the "person aggrieved" test, the court rejected NexPoint's argument that it had standing to appeal because "it meets traditional Article III standing requirements [and that the more exacting] prudential standing considerations such as the 'person aggrieved' standard" did not survive the Supreme Court's 2014 Lexmark[167] opinion,[168] which addressed standing issues in the context of false advertising claims under the Lanham Act and reminded that courts may not "limit a cause of action that Congress has created merely because 'prudence' dictates."[169] The Fifth Circuit held that the Supreme Court's reminder in Lexmark did not nullify the "person aggrieved" test for prudential standing in bankruptcy appeals, citing its own decision in Superior MRI Services Inc. v. Alliance Healthcare Services, Inc.[170] (rendered a year after Lexmark was decided), in which it held that Lexmark applied only to the circumstances of that case, "rather than broadly modifying—or undermining—all prudential standing concerns, such as the one animating the 'person aggrieved' standard in bankruptcy appeals."[171]

Similarly, in yet another appeal in this bankruptcy case involving three Dondero-related entities as appellants (NexPoint, Dugaboy, and HCMFA)—this one an appeal of a bankruptcy court order authorizing the creation of an indemnity subtrust and entry into an indemnity trust agreement—the district court noted the parties' confusion about the standing issue, as exemplified in the parties' reference to constitutional standing when they were actually arguing that they had prudential standing under the "person aggrieved" test: "Although the parties frame this issue as one of constitutional standing . . . they cite case law and present arguments about the prudential standing requirement embodied in the 'person aggrieved' test."[172] The district court noted that it had an "independent obligation to consider constitutional standing before reaching its prudential aspects."[173] The district court dismissed the appeal as to Dugaboy and HCMFA for lack of standing but, upon concluding that NexPoint did have standing, dismissed the appeal as to it on the merits. The Fifth Circuit affirmed.[174] Interestingly, the court noted that, while the parties did not contest the district court's determination that NexPoint had standing to pursue the appeal, it "may consider prudential standing issues sua sponte."[175] In doing so, the Fifth Circuit recognized the distinction between constitutional standing and the prudential "person aggrieved" test applied to bankruptcy appeals, which "is, of necessity, quite limited" and "an even more exacting standard than traditional constitutional standing," as it requires an appellant to show that it is "directly, adversely, and financially impacted by a bankruptcy order."[176]

In summary, in analyzing whether HMIT would have standing to bring the Proposed Claims, this court must first determine whether HMIT would have constitutional standing under Article III (which is a subject matter jurisdiction hurdle) and, assuming it does, then additionally address whether HMIT would also have prudential standing (i.e., capacity to sue) pursuant to any applicable statutes (e.g., Delaware statutes), jurisprudence, or other substantive law that might limit who may sue. aggrieved" test[177]—which, as discussed above, is a matter of prudential standing—this is applied only in the context of bankruptcy appellate matters.[178] As noted in its most recent opinion discussing standing in an appeal from the Highland bankruptcy case, the Fifth Circuit reiterated that the "person aggrieved" test is a test for bankruptcy appellate standing, which is narrower than a party in interest's right to be heard in bankruptcy cases in general.[179] The court rejected an argument that Bankruptcy Code § 1109, which provides that "[a] party in interest . . . may raise and may appear and be heard on any issue in a case under this chapter" confers appellate standing, noting that "one's standing to appear and be heard before the bankruptcy court [is] a concept distinct from standing to appeal the merits of a decision" and that the "person aggrieved" test for bankruptcy appellate standing is narrower than the test for determining one's standing to appear and be heard in a bankruptcy proceeding.[180]

Thus, the court will now analyze whether HMIT would, at a minimum, have constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims.

2. HMIT Would Lack Article III Constitutional Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims.

As noted above, the Supreme Court and the Fifth Circuit have made clear that constitutional standing is necessary for a court to exercise subject matter jurisdiction. It is only the first hurdle a party must clear before pursuing a claim in federal court. HMIT, as plaintiff, would bear the [177] HMIT insists that it has constitutional standing to bring claims on its individual behalf "as an aggrieved party." See Reply, ¶ 7.

[178] HMIT's argument in this matter that it has constitutional standing because it is a "party aggrieved" incorrectly conflates the prudential bankruptcy appellate "person aggrieved" test with the broader test that is applied to constitutional standing. The court is not being critical of this mistake. As noted at supra note 149, the Fifth Circuit in Abraugh pointed out that courts and attorneys alike have created confusion by misusing the term "standing" when they equate a lack of "standing," in all instances, with a lack of subject matter jurisdiction, even when the party is found to lack only prudential standing. Thus, HMIT is not alone in its confusion over the two different concepts of standing.

burden of establishing: (1) that it suffered an injury in fact that is concrete, particularized, and actual or imminent—not conjectural or hypothetical, (2) that there is a causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of, and (3) it must be likely, not speculative, that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision.[181]

Concrete and Particularized; Actual or Imminent. As the Supreme Court made clear in the Lujan case, the injury in fact element requires a showing that the injury was "concrete and particularized" and "actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical."[182] The Supreme Court in the Spokeo case expounded on the "concrete and particularized" requirements of the "injury in fact" element. Particularization requires a showing that the injury "must affect the plaintiff in a personal and individual way," but while particularization is necessary, it alone is "not sufficient," because an injury in fact must also be "concrete."[183] And, concreteness is "quite different from particularization."[184] A "concrete" injury must be "real," and "not abstract," though it does not mean that the injury must be "tangible," as the injury can be intangible and nevertheless be concrete.[185] In addition to the concreteness and particularization requirements, an injury in fact must be "actual or imminent" such that "allegations of injury that is merely conjectural or hypothetical do not suffice to confer standing."[186] "Although imminence is concededly a somewhat elastic concept, it cannot be stretched beyond its purpose, which is to ensure that the alleged injury is not too speculative for Article III purposes—that the injury is certainly impending"; "allegations of possible future injury are not sufficient."[187]

Traceability - Causal Connection. As to the second element—that the injury was caused by the defendant—the Supreme Court in Lujan further described it as requiring a showing that "the injury has to be fairly traceable to the challenged action of the defendant."[188] The "fairly traceable" test requires an examination of "the causal connection between the assertedly unlawful conduct and the alleged injury."[189]

Redressability. The third element—redressability—requires the court to examine the connection "between the alleged injury and the judicial relief requested."[190] "Relief that does not remedy the injury suffered cannot bootstrap a plaintiff into federal court."[191] "[A] court must determine that there is an available remedy which will have a 'substantial probability' of redressing the plaintiff's injury."[192]

The Claims Purchasers argue that HMIT lacks constitutional standing to pursue the claims asserted in the Proposed Complaint because: (i) neither HMIT nor the Bankruptcy Estate was injured by the Claim Purchasers' acquisition of the claims; and (ii) the Proposed Complaint lacks a theory of cognizable damages to the Reorganized Debtor, the Claimant Trust, and/or the beneficiaries of the Claimant Trust.[193]

[193] As noted earlier, certain of the Proposed Defendants—the Highland Parties—do not focus on HMIT's lack of constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims against them, but on its lack of prudential standing under

The court agrees with the Claims Purchasers' argument here. What is HMIT's concrete and particularized injury—that is "real" and is not abstract? That is not conjectural or hypothetical? That is actual or imminent?

Recall that, under the Plan, HMIT holds a Class 10 contingent interest in the Claimant Trust that only realizes value if all creditors are paid in full with interest. HMIT alleges the following injury: it has suffered a devaluation of its unvested Contingent Claimant Trust Interest by virtue of the alleged over-compensation of Seery as the Claimant Trustee—Seery's alleged over-compensation depletes the assets in the Claimant Trust available for distribution to creditors under the Plan, such that there is less likely a chance that HMIT ultimately receives any distributions on account of its Class 10 Contingent Claimant Trust Interest.[194] Yet, HMIT testified, through both witnesses Dondero and Patrick, that it had no personal knowledge of what Seery's actual compensation is under the CTA at the time HMIT filed its Motion for Leave. It was clear that HMIT's allegations regarding Seery's "excessive" compensation were based entirely on Dondero's pure speculation. In reality, Seery's base salary is exactly what the bankruptcy court approved during the bankruptcy case by a court order (after negotiations between Seery and the Committee). The CTA now further governs his compensation. The CTA, which was publicly filed in advance of the Plan confirmation hearing and approved by this court as part of the Plan applicable law. Because constitutional standing is a matter of subject matter jurisdiction, the court has an independent duty to determine whether HMIT would have constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims in federal court. The issue cannot be forfeited or waived by a party. *See Abraugh v. [194] At the June 8 Hearing, HMIT's counsel was unable to identify any other injury HMIT has alleged to have suffered. HMIT's counsel acknowledged that claims trades, in and of themselves, would not "involve injury to the Reorganized Debtor and to the Claimant Trust" and that claims trades are "normally outside the purview of the bankruptcy court" but that "[h]ere, we have alleged . . . . injury [that] takes the form of unearned excessive fees that Mr. Seery has garnered as a result of his relationship and arrangements, as we have alleged, with the Claims Purchasers." June 8 Hearing Transcript, 67:16-68:8. HMIT can only point to Seery's excess compensation as injury.

(which has been affirmed by the Fifth Circuit), specifically provides that Seery's post-Effective Date compensation would include a "Base Salary" (again, same as during the bankruptcy case), a "success fee," and "severance."[195] The CTA discussed the role of the Committee and then the CTOB in setting the success fee and severance and the like. A fully executed copy of the CTA was admitted into evidence at the June 8 Hearing. HMIT is essentially arguing that its injury (i.e., diminished likelihood of realizing value on its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest) stems from a court-sanctioned and creditor-approved process for approving compensation to Seery. Moreover, HMIT has failed to plead facts sufficient to show that, even if Seery received excessive compensation and that compensation is ordered to be returned, HMIT's Contingent Claimant Trust Interest will ever vest. The district court and the Fifth Circuit in various appeals by Dugaboy, another Dondero-related entity that, similar to HMIT, was a holder of a limited partnership interest in Highland whose interests were terminated as of the Effective Date of the Plan in exchange for a Contingent Claimant Trust Interest, have repeatedly rejected Dugaboy's claims to have standing based on the speculative nature of its alleged injuries as a contingent beneficiary of the Claimant Trust under the Plan. For example, the Fifth Circuit affirmed the district court's dismissal of an appeal by Dugaboy of the bankruptcy court's order authorizing the creation of an indemnity subtrust, wherein Judge Fitzwater found that, in addition to lacking prudential standing under the > Compensation. As compensation for any services rendered by the Claimant Trustee in connection with this Agreement, the Claimant Trustee shall receive compensation of $150,000 per month (the "Base Salary"). Within the first forty-five days following the Confirmation Date, the Claimant Trustee, on the one hand, and the Committee, if prior to the Effective Date, or the Oversight Board, if on or after the Effective Date, on the other, will negotiate go-forward compensation for the Claimant Trustee which will include (a) the Base Salary, (b) a success fee, and (c) severance.

"person aggrieved" test to appeal the bankruptcy court's order, Dugaboy lacked constitutional standing "because they have not identified any injury fairly traceable to the Order: the injuries identified are speculative at best and nonexistent at worst."[196] HMIT's allegations of injury are, without a doubt, "merely conjectural or hypothetical" and are only speculative of possible future injury if its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest ever vests."[197] The court finds that HMIT would not meet the "concrete and particularized" or the "actual or imminent" requirements for an "injury in fact," and, thus, would lack constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims.

With regard to the second requirement of constitutional standing—whether HMIT could show "traceability" with respect to the Claims Purchasers and/or Seery (i.e., a "causal connection between the assertedly unlawful conduct and the alleged injury"[198]), as noted above, there is only a speculative injury. Even if there is unlawful conduct asserted (i.e., sharing of MNPI to Claims Purchasers who then, as a quid pro quo, rubber stamped excessive compensation for Seery), there is nothing other than a hypothetical theory of an alleged injury (i.e., an allegedly less likelihood of a distribution on a Contingent Claimant Trust Interest).

With respect to the third requirement of constitutional standing—whether HMIT can show "redressability" (i.e., that it is likely, not speculative, that the injury can be redressed by a favorable decision), there are multiple problems here.[199] The major remedy sought here is the equitable disallowance of the allowed Purchased Claims (and disgorgement and/or constructive trust of amounts paid or owed to the Claim Purchasers on account of their claims). There is no such remedy available here. As noted earlier, there is a similar concept of equitable subordination of a claim to another claim, or of an interest to another interest, pursuant to Bankruptcy Code section 510(c). But under the literal terms of section 510(c), claims cannot be subordinated to interests. Moreover, the Fifth Circuit noted in the Mobile Steel case,[200] that equitable disallowance of a claim (as opposed to equitable subordination of a claims) is not an available remedy. Bankruptcy Code section 502(b)(1) and the Fifth Circuit's Lothian Oil case might permit "recharacterization" of a claim from debt to equity in certain circumstances—but not based on inequitable conduct but rather on the nature of a financial transaction. In any event, here, the claims have already been adjudicated and allowed (some after mediation, and all after Rule 9019 settlement orders). The only way to reconsider a claim in a bankruptcy case that has already been allowed is through Bankruptcy Code section 502(j) ("A claim that has been allowed or disallowed may be reconsidered for cause. . . according to the equities of the case."). As noted earlier, the problem here is that Bankruptcy Rule 9024 provides that a motion for "reconsideration of an order allowing or disallowing a claim against the estate entered without a contest is not subject to the one year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c)" (emphasis added). As further noted earlier, here there was most definitely a "contest" with regard to all of these purchased claims. Thus, it would appear that any effort to have a court reconsider and potentially disallow these claims pursuant to section 502(j) is untimely—as it has been well beyond a year since they were allowed.

[199] See supra notes 182-184 and accompanying text. The court will note that, as discussed supra note 141 and pages 71-72, the remedy of equitable subordination (as to the Claims Purchasers) would not redress HMIT's alleged injury (because equitable subordination of claims to interests is not an available remedy in the Fifth Circuit and thus subordination of the Purchased Claims to other claims would not change HMIT's distributions from the Claimant Trust, if any), and because outright disallowance of all or part of the already allowed Purchased Claims is not an available remedy either, HMIT would not be able to meet the "redressability" requirement with respect to the Claims Purchasers.

3. HMIT Would Also Lack Prudential Standing to Bring the Proposed Claims.

Even if HMIT would have constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims in an adversary proceeding filed in the bankruptcy court, the Proposed Claims would still be barred if HMIT would lack prudential standing to bring them under applicable state or federal law. HMIT argues that it does have prudential standing under both federal bankruptcy law and Delaware law to pursue the Proposed Claims derivatively and also to bring the Proposed Claims in its individual capacity.

With regard to "federal bankruptcy law," HMIT argues that it has standing pursuant to: (a) Rule 23.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, pertaining to derivative actions, which "applies to this proceeding pursuant to" Rule 7023.1 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, and (b) Louisiana World Exposition v. Federal Insurance Co. ("LWE"),[201] the Fifth Circuit's leading case addressing when a creditors committee may be granted standing to bring causes of action on behalf of a bankruptcy estate. But, federal bankruptcy law does not confer standing where the plaintiff otherwise lacks standing under applicable state law. In other words, whether HMIT would have prudential standing to sue under Delaware law is dispositive of the issue, regardless of the forum. Rule 23.1 "speaks only to the adequacy of the . . . pleadings," and "cannot be understood to 'abridge, enlarge, or modify any substantive right,'"[202] including a right (or lack thereof) to bring a derivative action under the substantive law of Delaware. Additionally, HMIT's reliance on LWE is misplaced: LWE permits creditors, in certain circumstances during a bankruptcy case, to "file suit on behalf of a debtor-in-possession or a trustee"[203] and does not apply to a party's right to sue, derivatively, on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor or any entity that is the assignee of the former bankruptcy estate's assets. Upon confirmation of the Plan, the bankruptcy estate of Highland ceased to exist;[204] Highland is no longer a debtor-in-possession but a reorganized debtor, and the Claimant Trust is a new entity created under the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement. Even if LWE did apply in this post-confirmation context, it supports the application of Delaware law to the issue of prudential standing and does not supersede state-law requirements for standing. In LWE, before addressing the requirements a creditors' committee must meet to sue derivatively on behalf of a bankruptcy estate as a matter of federal bankruptcy law, the Fifth Circuit conducted a lengthy analysis to determine "as a threshold issue" whether the creditors' committee in that case could assert its claims under Louisiana law.[205] The court specifically addressed whether the creditors' committee could pursue a derivative action under Louisiana law and concluded that "there is no bar in Louisiana law to actions brought by or in the name of a corporation against the directors and officers of the corporation which benefit only the creditors of the corporation; indeed, Louisiana law specifically recognizes such actions."[206] So, even under LWE (which the court does not think applies in this post-confirmation context), if HMIT would be barred from bringing a derivative action on behalf the Reorganized Debtor or Claimant Trust under state law, the analysis stops there.[207] Thus, the court looks to Delaware law to determine if HMIT would have prudential standing to pursue the derivative claims on behalf the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust.

HMIT acknowledges that both the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are organized under Delaware law, and thus the cause of action against Seery alleging breach of fiduciary duties to the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are governed by Delaware law under the "Internal Affairs Doctrine."[208] In addition, because HMIT's breach of fiduciary duties claim is governed by Delaware law, its aiding and abetting theory of liability as to the Claims Purchasers is also governed by Delaware law.[209] For the reasons set forth below, the court finds that HMIT would lack prudential standing under Delaware law to bring the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint, derivatively, on behalf of either the Claimant Trust or the Reorganized Debtor.

a) First, HMIT Would Lack Prudential Standing Under Delaware Law to Bring Derivative Actions on behalf of the Claimant Trust.

The Claimant Trust is a Delaware statutory trust governed by the Delaware Statutory Trust Act, 12 Del. C. §§ 3801–29,[210] and "to proceed derivatively against a Delaware statutory trust, a plaintiff has the burden of satisfying the continuous ownership requirement" such that "the plaintiff must be a beneficial owner" continuously from "the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains" through "the time of bringing the action."[211] This requirement is "mandatory and exclusive" and only "a beneficial owner" "has standing to bring a derivative claim on behalf of the Trust."[212] The Highland Parties argue that HMIT is not a "beneficial owner" of the Claimant Trust and, therefore, would lack standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust. HMIT argues to the contrary: that it is currently, and was at all relevant times, a "beneficial owner" of the Claimant Trust under Delaware trust law such that it would have standing to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust if it were allowed to proceed with the filing of the Proposed Complaint. The disagreement turns on the nature of HMIT's interest under the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement and whether HMIT, as a holder of such interest, would be considered a "beneficial owner" of the Claimant Trust under Delaware trust law.

As noted, pursuant to the Plan, HMIT's former limited partnership interest in Highland was cancelled as of the Effective Date in exchange for its pro rata share of a "Contingent Claimant Trust Interest," as defined under the Plan.[213] HMIT argues that its Contingent Claimant Trust Interest makes it a contingent beneficiary of the Claimant Trust, which makes it a present "beneficial owner" under Delaware trust law.

The Highland Parties argue that HMIT is not a "beneficial owner" of the Claimant Trust; rather, the "beneficial owners" of the Claimant Trust are the "Claimant Trust Beneficiaries,"[214] which are defined in the Plan and the CTA as "the Holders of Allowed General Unsecured Claims" (which are in Class 8 under the Plan) and "Holders of Allowed Subordinated Claims" (which are in Class 9 under the Plan); [215] HMIT, a holder of a Class 10 interest under the Plan, is neither.

HMIT, as the holder of a "Contingent Claimant Trust Interest," has only an unvested contingent interest in the Claimant Trust and, as such, is not a "beneficial owner" of the Claimant Trust for standing purposes under Delaware trust law. HMIT argues that it "should be treated as a vested Claimant Trust Beneficiary due to [the Proposed Defendants'] wrongful conduct and considering the current value of the Claimant Trust Assets before and after the relief requested herein."[216] The court disagrees.

HMIT's status as a "beneficiary" of the Claimant Trust is defined by the CTA itself, pure and simple. The CTA specifically provides that "Contingent Trust Interests" "shall not have any rights under this Agreement" and will not "be deemed 'Beneficiaries' under this Agreement," "unless and until" they vest in accordance with the Plan and the CTA. It is undisputed that HMIT's Contingent Trust Interest has not vested under the terms of the Plan and the CTA, and the court does not have the power to equitably deem HMIT's Contingent Trust Interest to be vested based on HMIT's unsupported allegation of wrongdoing on the part of Seery, the Claimant Trustee. Thus, the court finds that HMIT is not a "beneficial owner" of the Claimant Trust and, therefore, lacks prudential standing under Delaware law to bring derivative claims on behalf of the Claimant Trust.[217]

b) HMIT Would Likewise Lack Prudential Standing Under Delaware Law to Bring Derivative Actions on behalf of the Reorganized Debtor.

HMIT acknowledges that the Reorganized Debtor, Highland Capital Management, L.P., is a Delaware limited liability partnership governed by the Delaware Limited Partnership Act, 6 Del. C. § 17-101, et seq.[218] To bring "a derivative action" on behalf of a limited partnership, "the plaintiff must be a partner or an assignee of a partnership interest" continuously from "the time of the transaction of which the plaintiff complains" through "the time of bringing the action."[219]

HMIT is not a partner, general or limited, of the Reorganized Debtor limited partnership. HMIT was a limited partner in the original debtor (specifically, a holder of Class B/C Limited Partnership interests in Highland), but that limited partnership interest was extinguished on August 11, 2021 (the Effective Date of the Plan) per the terms of the Plan, and HMIT does not own any partnership interest in the newly created Reorganized Debtor limited partnership.[220] Because HMIT would not hold a partnership interest in the Reorganized Debtor at "the time of bringing the action," it "lacks derivative standing" to bring claims "on the partnership's behalf."[221] HMIT likewise cannot satisfy "the continuous ownership requirement"; when HMIT's limited partnership interest in the original Debtor was cancelled on the Plan's Effective Date, HMIT "los[t] standing to continue a derivative suit" on behalf of the Debtor.[222] Finally, to the extent HMIT seeks to bring a "double derivative" action on behalf of the Claimant Trust based on claims purportedly held by its wholly owned subsidiary, the Reorganized Debtor, HMIT lacks standing. A "double derivative" action is a suit "brought by a shareholder of a parent corporation to enforce a claim belonging to a subsidiary that is either wholly owned or majority controlled."[223] And, under Delaware law, "parent level standing is required to enforce a subsidiary's claim derivatively."[224] Because HMIT would lack derivative standing to bring claims on behalf of the parent Claimant Trust,[225] it also would lack standing to bring a double derivative action.

c) Finally, HMIT Would Also Lack Prudential Standing under Applicable Law to Bring the Proposed Claims As Direct Claims.

HMIT argues that it has "direct" standing to pursue the Proposed Claims on behalf of itself, individually.[226] But just because HMIT asserts that some or even all of the Proposed Claims are direct, not derivative claims, does not make it so: "a claim is not 'direct' simply because it is pleaded that way."[227] Rather, in determining whether claims are direct or derivative, a court must "look at the substance of the Petition, and the nature of the wrongs alleged therein, rather than the Plaintiffs' characterization."[228] And, under Delaware law, "whether a claim is solely derivative or may continue as a dual-natured claim 'must turn solely on the following questions: (1) who suffered the alleged harm (the corporation or the suing stockholders, individually); and (2) who would receive the benefit of any recovery or other remedy (the corporation or the stockholders, individually)?'"[229] "In addition, to prove that a claim is direct, a plaintiff 'must demonstrate that the duty breached was owed to the stockholder and that he or she can prevail without showing an injury to the corporation.'"[230] Similarly, in the bankruptcy context, whether a creditor can assert a claim directly or whether the claim belongs to the estate turns on the nature of the injury for which relief is sought: "[i]f the harm to the creditor comes about only because of harm to the debtor, then its injury is derivative, and the claim is property of the estate," such that "only the bankruptcy trustee has standing to pursue the claim for the estate . . . ."[231] "To pursue a claim on its own behalf, a creditor must show this direct injury is not dependent on injury to the estate."[232]

As a reminder, HMIT argues that the injury it has suffered is a devaluation of its interests in the Claimant Trust by virtue of alleged over-compensation of Seery as the Claimant Trustee. HMIT was unable, when pressed during closing arguments, to identify any other injury. It essentially admitted that the claims trades, in and of themselves, would not have harmed the Claimant Trust, the Reorganized Debtor, or individual stakeholders, including HMIT, since the Claims Purchasers acquired already allowed unsecured claims, such that the distributions on those claims pursuant to the Plan would be unchanged in the hands of new holders of the claims.

Thus, by its own concessions, any alleged harm to HMIT (through devaluation of assets in the Claimant Trust) "comes about only because of harm to the debtor," so the alleged "injury is derivative."[233] The court concludes that all of the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint allege derivative claims only, and that none would be direct claims against the Proposed Defendants. Thus, HMIT would lack prudential standing to bring any of the Proposed Claims in the Proposed Complaint, so its Motion for Leave should be denied.

d) Some Final Points Regarding Standing.

In this standing discussion, one should not lose sight of the fact that there are both procedural safeguards in place, as well as certain independent individuals in place with fiduciary duties that might act in the event of any shenanigans regarding Claimant Trust activities. Under section 4.1 of the CTA (approved as part of the Plan process), the CTOB, which includes an independent disinterested member in addition to representatives of the Claims Purchasers,[234] oversees the Claimant Trustee's performance of his duties, approves his compensation, and may remove him for cause. Moreover, there is a separate "Litigation Trustee" in this case who was brought in, post-confirmation, as an independent fiduciary to pursue claims and causes of action. These independent persons are checks and balances in the post-confirmation wind down of Highland. This is what creditors voted on in connection with the Plan. Seery and the Claims Purchasers are not in sole control of anything. The CTA, as well as Delaware law, very clearly set forth who can bring an action in the event of some colorable claim. This is the reality of prudential standing. Just as in the Abraugh case, where Louisiana law dictated that a mother could not bring a wrongful death case when the deceased prisoner had a surviving wife and child, Delaware law and the CTA dictate here that a contingent beneficiary cannot bring the Proposed Claims here. This is separate and apart from whether the claims are colorable.

C. Are the Proposed Claims "Colorable"?

1. What is the Proper Standard of Review for a "Colorability" Determination?

Although the court has determined that HMIT would not have standing (constitutional or prudential) to bring the Proposed Claims, this court will nevertheless evaluate whether the claims—assuming HMIT somehow has standing—might be "colorable." This, in turn, requires the court to assess what the legal standard is to determine if a claim is "colorable." As a reminder, the Plan's Gatekeeper Provision and this court's prior Gatekeeper Orders entered in January and July 2020 each required that, before a party may commence or pursue claims relating to the bankruptcy case against certain protected parties, it must first obtain a finding from the bankruptcy court that its proposed claims are "colorable." The Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders did not specifically define "colorable" or what type of legal standard should apply.

HMIT argues that the standard for review to be applied by this court is the same as a simple "plausibility" standard used in connection with a Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss. In other words, the court should simply assess whether the allegations of the Proposed Complaint, taken as true and with all inferences drawn in favor of the movant, state a plausible claim for relief (i.e., colorable equals plausible), and that this standard does not allow for the weighing of evidence by the court.[235] The Proposed Defendants, however, argue that the test for colorability should be more akin to the test applied under the Barton doctrine,[236] under which a plaintiff must make a prima facie case that a proposed claim against a bankruptcy trustee is "not without foundation." In this regard, they argue that the court can and should consider evidence outside of the four corners of the complaint—especially since HMIT attached to its Motion for Leave, as "evidence" to support it, two declarations of Dondero (as part of a 350-page attachment) and only attempted to withdraw those declarations after the Highland Parties urged that they be permitted to cross-examine Dondero on them.

This court ultimately determined that the "colorability" standard was somewhat of a mixed question of fact and law and, therefore, the parties could put on evidence at the June 8 Hearing if they so-chose. The court would not require it. It was up to the parties. But, in any event, the Proposed Defendants should have an opportunity to cross-examine Dondero on the statements made in his declarations since the declarations had been filed on the docket and the court had reviewed them at this point. HMIT attempted to withdraw the declarations and any reference to them in the Motion for Leave, by filing redacted versions of the Motion for Leave,[237] less than 72 hours before the June 8 Hearing; however, the redacted versions did not redact any allegations in the Motion for Leave that were purportedly supported by the Dondero declarations. Also, HMIT called Dondero as a direct witness, in addition to calling Seery as an adverse witness at the June 8 Hearing, albeit subject to its running objection to the evidentiary format of the hearing.[238] HMIT also filed a witness and exhibit list attaching 80 exhibits and over 2850 pages of evidence and moved for the admission of those exhibits at the June 8 Hearing (again, subject to its running objection to the evidentiary format of the hearing).[239]

In determining what appropriate legal standard applies here in the "colorability" analysis, the context in which the Gatekeeper Provision of the Plan was approved seems very relevant. In determining that the Gatekeeper Provision was legal, necessary, and in the best interest of all of the parties, this court set forth in the Confirmation Order a lengthy discussion of the factual support for it, and made specific findings relating to Dondero's post-petition litigation and the need for inclusion of the Gatekeeper Provision in the Plan.[240] This court observed that "prior to the commencement of the Debtor's bankruptcy case, and while under the direction of Dondero, the Debtor had been involved in a myriad of litigation, some of which had gone on for years and, in some cases, over a decade" and that "[d]uring the last several months, Dondero and the Dondero Related Entities have harassed the Debtor, which has resulted in further substantial, costly, and time-consuming litigation for the Debtor."[241] This court further found that: (1) Dondero's post-petition litigation "was a result of Dondero failing to obtain creditor support for his plan proposal and consistent with his comments, as set forth in Seery's credible testimony, that if Dondero's plan proposal was not accepted, he would 'burn down the place,'"[242] (2) without the Gatekeeper Provision in place, "Dondero and his related entities will likely commence litigation against the Protected Parties after the Effective Date" and that "the threat of continued litigation by Dondero and his related entities after the Effective Date will impede efforts by the Claimant Trust to monetize assets for the benefit of creditors and result in lower distributions to creditors because of costs and distraction such litigation or the threats of such litigation would cause,"[243] and, (3) "unless the [court] approves the Gatekeeper Provision, the Claimant Trustee and the Claimant Trust Oversight Board will not be able to obtain D&O insurance,[244] the absence of which will present unacceptable risks to parties currently willing to serve in such roles." Thus, as set forth in the Confirmation Order, the Gatekeeper Provision (and the Gatekeeper Orders as well, which were approved based on the same concerns regarding the threat of continued litigation by Dondero and his related entities) required Dondero and related entities to make a threshold showing of colorability, noting that the:

> Gatekeeper Provision is also within the spirit of the Supreme Court's "Barton Doctrine." Barton v. Barbour, 104 U.S. 126 (1881). The Gatekeeper Provision is also consistent with the notion of a prefiling injunction to deter vexatious litigants, that has been approved by the Fifth Circuit in such cases as Baum v. Blue Moon Ventures, LLC, 513 F.3d 181, 189 (5th Cir. 2008), and In re Carroll, 850 F.3d 811 (5th Cir. 2017)."[245]

The Fifth Circuit, in approving the Gatekeeper Provision on appeal, noted that that the Plan injunction and Gatekeeper Provision "screen and prevent bad-faith litigation against Highland Capital, its successors, and other bankruptcy participants that could disrupt the Plan's effectiveness."[246]

Again, the court believes it is appropriate to consider the context in which—and the purpose for which—the Gatekeeper Orders and Gatekeeper Provision were entered in assessing [244] Asd noted at ⁋ 79 of the Confirmation Order, the bankruptcy court heard testimony from Mark Tauber, a Vice President with AON Financial Services, the Debtor's insurance broker ("AON"), regarding his efforts to obtain D&O insurance for the post-confirmation parties implementing the Plan. Mr. Tauber credibly testified that of all the insurance carriers that AON approached to provide D&O insurance coverage after the Effective Date, the only one willing to do so without an exclusion for claims asserted by Mr. Dondero and his affiliates required that the Confirmation Order approve the Gatekeeper Provision.

how "colorability" should work here. It seems that applying HMIT's proposed Rule 12(b)(6) "plausibility" standard would impose no hurdle at all to litigants and would render the threshold for bringing claims under the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders entirely duplicative of the motion to dismiss standard that every litigant already faces.

The authorities cited by HMIT in support of its argument for applying a Rule 12(b)(6) standard are inapposite. HMIT has cited no authority that addresses the appropriate standard for assessing the "colorability" of claims in the context of a plan gatekeeper provision—specifically, one implemented in response to a demonstrated need to screen and prevent continued bad-faith, harassing litigation against a chapter 11 debtor that would impede the debtor's implementation of a plan, which is what we have here. HMIT relies on a bevy of cases that include benefits coverage disputes under ERISA, Medicare coverage disputes, and constitutional challenges[247]—none of which implicate the Barton doctrine and vexatious-litigant concerns that were referenced by the court in the Plan as justifications for the gatekeeping provisions at issue here.

In affirming the Plan's Gatekeeper Provision, the Fifth Circuit stated, "Courts have long recognized bankruptcy courts can perform a gatekeeping function" and noted, by way of example, that "[u]nder the 'Barton doctrine,' the bankruptcy court may require a party to 'obtain leave of the bankruptcy court before initiating an action in district court when the action is against the trustee or other bankruptcy-court-appointed officer, for acts done in the actor's official capacity."[248] As noted above, the Fifth Circuit found that the Gatekeeper Provision, which "requires that, before any lawsuit is filed, the plaintiff must seek the bankruptcy court's approval of the claim as 'colorable'"—i.e., to "screen and prevent bad-faith litigation,"—is "sound."[249]

On balance, the court views jurisprudence applying the Barton doctrine and vexatious litigant injunctions—while not specifically addressing the "colorability" standard under gatekeeping provisions in a plan[250]—as more informative on how to approach "colorability" than any of the other authorities presented by the parties. One example is In re VistaCare Group, LLC.[251]

In VistaCare, the Third Circuit noted that, under the Barton doctrine, "[a] party seeking leave of court to sue a trustee must make a prima facie case against the trustee, showing that its claim is not without foundation," and emphasized that the "not without foundation" standard, while similar to the standard courts apply in evaluating Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss, "involves a greater degree of flexibility" than a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss because "the bankruptcy court, which given its familiarity with the underlying facts and the parties, is uniquely situated to determine whether a claim against the trustee has merit," and "is also uniquely situated to determine the potential effect of a judgment against the trustee on the debtor's estate."[252] To satisfy the "prima facie case standard," "the movant must do more than meet the liberal notice-pleading requirements of Rule 8."[253] "[I]f the [bankruptcy] court relied on mere notice-pleading standards rather than evaluating the merits of the allegations, the leave requirement would become meaningless."[254] This court agrees with the notion, that "[t]o apply a less stringent standard would eviscerate the protections" of the Gatekeeper Provision and Gatekeeper Orders.[255] The court notes, as well, that courts in the Barton doctrine context regularly hold evidentiary hearings on motions for leave to determine if the proposed complaint meets the necessary threshold for pursuing litigation. The Third Circuit in VistaCare noted that "[w]hether to hold a hearing [on a motion for leave to bring suit against a trustee] is within the sound discretion of the bankruptcy court,"[256] and that "the decision whether to grant leave may involve a 'balancing of the interests of all parties involved,'" which will ordinarily require an evidentiary hearing.[257] The Third Circuit applied "the deferential abuse of discretion standard" in considering whether the bankruptcy court's granting of leave should be affirmed on appeal.[258]

Courts of appeal routinely apply the deferential abuse of discretion standard to a bankruptcy court's decision regarding whether leave should be granted to sue a trustee. Although the Fifth Circuit has not squarely addressed this issue, all nine Circuits that have considered this issue have also adopted an abuse-of-discretion standard. See In re Bednar, 2021 WL 1625399, at 3 (B.A.P. 10th Cir. Hedback, 718 F.3d 762 (8th Cir. 2013) (applying abuse-of-discretion standard to Barton doctrine).

The Fifth Circuit has affirmed a bankruptcy court's conducting of an evidentiary hearing, in the context of applying a Barton doctrine analysis as to a proposed lawsuit against a trustee, without any concern that the inquiry was somehow improper.[259]

Similarly, courts in the vexatious litigant context, where there was an injunction requiring a movant to seek leave to pursue claims, have required movants to "show that the claims sought to be asserted have sufficient merit," including that "the proposed filing is both procedural and legally sound," and "that the claims are not brought for any improper purpose, such as harassment."[260] "For a prefiling injunction to have the intended impact, it must not merely require a reviewing official to apply an already existing level of review," such as the "plausibility" standard for a Rule 12(b)(6) motion.[261] Rather, courts apply "an additional layer of review," and "may appropriately deny leave to file when even part of the pleading fails to satisfy the reviewer that it warrants a federal civil action" or that the "litigant's allegations are unlikely," especially "when prior cases have shown the litigant to be untrustworthy or not credible . . . ."[262]

In summary, the court rejects HMIT's positions: (a) that it need only show, at most, that the allegations in the Proposed Complaint are "plausible" under the Rule 12(b)(6) standard for motions to dismiss; and (b) that this court improperly conducted an evidentiary hearing on the Motion for Leave (i.e., that consideration of evidence in this context is impermissible). The court notes, again, that HMIT's argument that this court is not permitted to consider evidence in making its "colorability" determination is completely contradictory to HMIT's actions in filing the Motion for Leave, where it attached two Dondero declarations as part of 350 pages of "objective evidence" that "supported" its motion.

The court concludes that the appropriate standard to be applied in making its "colorability" determination in this bankruptcy case, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function pursuant to the two Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeper Provision in this Plan, is a broader standard than the "plausibility" standard applied to Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss. It is, rather, a standard that involves an additional level of review—one that places on the proposed plaintiff a burden of making a prima facie case that its proposed claims are not without foundation, are not without merit, and are not being pursued for any improper purpose such as harassment. Additionally, this court may, and should, take into consideration its knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and any additional evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave. For ease of reference, the court will refer to this standard of "colorability" as the "Gatekeeper Colorability Test." The court considers this test as a sort of hybrid of what the Barton doctrine contemplates and what courts have applied when considering motions to file suit when a vexatious litigant bar order is in place.

2. HMIT's Proposed Complaint Does Not Present "Colorable" Claims Under this Court's Gatekeeper Colorability Test or Even Under a Rule 12(b)(6) "Plausibility" Standard.

The court finds, in the exercise of its gatekeeping function under the Gatekeeper Orders and the Gatekeeping Provision in the Plan, that the Motion for Leave should be denied as the claims set forth in the Proposed Complaint are not "colorable" claims. The court makes this determination after considering evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing, including the testimony of Dondero, Patrick, and Seery, and the numerous exhibits offered by HMIT and the Highland Parties. HMIT's Proposed Claims lack foundation, are without merit, and appear to be motivated by the improper purposes of vexatiousness and harassment. But, even under the less stringent

"plausibility" standard under Rule 12(b)(6) motions to dismiss, where all allegations must be accepted as true, HMIT's "[t]hreadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory statements," fail to "[]cross the line from conceivable to plausible."[263]

HMIT makes unsubstantiated and conclusory allegations in its Motion for Leave and Proposed Complaint that the Claims Purchasers purchased the large allowed unsecured claims only because Seery, while he was CEO of Highland prior to the Effective Date of the Plan, provided them with MNPI and assurances that the Purchased Claims were very valuable. This was allegedly in exchange for their agreement to approve, in their future capacities as members of the CTOB, excessive compensation for Seery in his capacity as the Claimant Trustee after the Effective Date of the Plan. This was an alleged quid pro quo that HMIT claims establishes Seery's breach of fiduciary duties and the Claims Purchasers' conspiracy to participate in that breach. As discussed below, these allegations are unsubstantiated and conclusory allegations, and they do not support the inferences that HMIT needs the court to make when it analyzes whether the Proposed Claims are "colorable"—or even merely plausible.

a) HMIT's Proposed Breach of Fiduciary Duties Claim Set Forth in Count I of the Proposed Complaint

Based on HMIT's Proposed Complaint and the evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing, the court finds that HMIT has not pleaded facts that would support a "colorable" breach of fiduciary duties claim against Seery, under this court's Gatekeeper Colorability Test, nor a plausible claim pursuant to the Rule 12(b) standard. HMIT alleges that Seery breached his fiduciary duties (i) "[b]y disclosing material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon" before their purchase of certain Highland claims, and (ii) by receiving "compensation paid to him under the terms of the [CTA] since the Effective Date of the Plan in August 2021."[264]

As earlier noted, both the Reorganized Debtor and the Claimant Trust are organized under Delaware law and, thus, its proposed Count I against Seery for breach of fiduciary duties to these entities is governed by Delaware law under the "Internal Affairs Doctrine."[265] Under Delaware law, "[t]o bring a claim for breach of fiduciary duty, a plaintiff must allege '(1) that a fiduciary duty existed and (2) that the defendant breached that duty.'"[266] HMIT fails to plausibly or sufficiently allege either element such that its breach of fiduciary duty claims against Seery could survive.

Under Delaware law, officers and directors generally owe fiduciary duties only to the entity and its stakeholders as a whole, not to individual shareholders.[267] Because Seery did not owe any "duty" to HMIT directly and individually, the Proposed Complaint fails to state a claim for breach of fiduciary duties to HMIT. HMIT's "legal conclusion[]" that Seery "owed fiduciary duties to HMIT, as equity, and to the Debtor's Estate"[268] "do[es] not suffice" to plausibly allege the existence of any actionable fiduciary relationship.[269] And as discussed earlier in the standing section, HMIT does not have standing to assert a breach of fiduciary claim derivatively on behalf of the Claimant Trust or Reorganized Debtor. But even if HMIT had sufficiently alleged the existence of a fiduciary duty by Seery to HMIT—or to the Reorganized Debtor or Claimant Trust that HMIT would have standing to assert—Seery's alleged communications with Farallon would not have breached those duties.

HMIT alleges that Seery ""disclose[d] material non-public information to Stonehill and Farallon," and they "acted on inside information and Seery's secret assurances of great profits."[270] But the Proposed Complaint does not make any factual allegations regarding HMIT's "conclusory allegations," and its "legal conclusions" are "purely speculative, devoid of factual support," and therefore "stop[] short of the line between possibility and plausibility of entitlement to relief"[271] (and certainly stop short of being "colorable"). HMIT never alleges when any of these purported communications occurred, what material non-public information Seery provided, and what "assurances of great profits" he made to Farallon or to Stonehill. At the June 8 Hearing, Dondero could only clarify that he believed the MGM Email to have been MNPI and that he believed that Seery must have communicated that MNPI to Farallon at some point between December 17, 2020 (the date the MGM Email was sent) and May 28, 2021 (the day that Dondero alleges to have had three telephone calls with representatives of Farallon, Messrs. Patel and Linn, regarding Farallon's purchase of the bankruptcy claims). Dondero alleges that, during these phone calls, Patel and Linn gave Dondero no reason for their purchase of the claims that "made [any] sense." Dondero and Patrick also both testified that neither of them had any personal knowledge: (a) of a quid pro quo arrangement between Seery and the Claims Purchasers, (b) of Seery having actually communicated any information from the MGM Email to Farallon, or (c) whether Seery's post-Effective Date compensation had or had not been negotiated in an arms' length transaction. Dondero only speculates regarding these things, because it "made no sense" to him that the Claims Purchasers would have acquired the bankruptcy claims without having received the MNPI. But HMIT admits in the Proposed Complaint that Farallon and Stonehill purchased the Highland claims at discounts of 43% to 65% to their allowed amounts. Thus, they would receive at least an 18% return based on publicly available estimates in Highland's court-approved Disclosure Statement.[272] The evidence established that, if the acquisition of the UBS claims is excluded—recall that the UBS claims were not purchased until August 2021, which was after the May 28, 2021 phones calls that Dondero made to Farallon personnel—the Claims Purchasers would have expected to net over $33 million in profits, or nearly a 30% return on their investment, had Highland met its projections (this is based on the aggregate purchase price of $113 million for the non-UBS claims purchased in the Spring 2021).

To be clear, the only purported MNPI identified in HMIT's Proposed Complaint was the MGM Email Dondero sent to Seery containing "information regarding Amazon and Apple's interest in acquiring MGM." But, the evidence showed that this information was widely reported in the financial press at the time. Thus, it could not have constituted MNPI as a matter of law.[273] Moreover, the evidence showed that Dondero did not communicate in the MGM Email the actual inside information that he claimed to have obtained as a board member of MGM–which was that Amazon had met MGM's "strike price" and that the MGM board was going into exclusive negotiations with Amazon to culminate the merger with them (and, thus, Apple was no longer considered a potential purchaser). Dondero admitted that he included Apple in the MGM Email for the purpose of making it look like there was a competitive process still ongoing. In other words, the MGM Email, at the very least, did not include MNPI and, at worst, was deceptive regarding the status of the negotiations between MGM and potential purchasers.

As to HMIT's allegations that Seery's post-Effective Date compensation is "excessive" and that the negotiations between Seery and the CTOB "were not arm's-length,"[274] the evidence at the June 8 Hearing reflected that the allegations are completely speculative, without any foundation whatsoever, and lack merit. And they are also simply not plausible. HMIT fails to allege facts in the Proposed Complaint that would support a reasonable inference that Seery breached his fiduciary duty to HMIT or the estate as a result of bad faith, self-interest, or other intentional misconduct rising to the level of a breach of the duty of loyalty.[275]

b) HMIT's Proposed Claims Set Forth in Counts II (Knowing Participation in Breach of Fiduciaries) and III (Conspiracy)

HMIT seeks to hold the Claims Purchasers secondarily liable for Seery's alleged breach of fiduciaries duties on an aiding and abetting theory in Count II of the Proposed Complaint[276] and, along with Seery, on a civil conspiracy theory of liability in Count III of the Proposed Complaint.[277] Because HMIT's breach of fiduciary duties claim is governed by Delaware law, its aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duties claim against the Claims Purchasers (Count II) is also governed by Delaware law.[278] HMIT's conspiracy cause of action against the Claims

Purchasers and Seery (Count III), on the other hand, does not involve a matter of "internal affairs" or of corporate governance, so it is governed by Texas law under the Plan.[279]

As an initial matter, because HMIT does not present either a "colorable"—or even plausible claim—that Seery breached his fiduciary duties, it cannot show that it has alleged a "colorable" or plausible claim for secondary liability for the same alleged wrongdoing.[280] In addition, HMIT's civil conspiracy claim against the Claims Purchasers and Seery is based entirely on Dondero's speculation and unsupported inferences and, thus, HMIT has not "colorably" alleged, or even plausibly alleged, its conspiracy claim. Under Texas law, "civil conspiracy is a theory of vicarious liability and not an independent tort."[281] "[T]he elements of civil conspiracy [are] "(1) two or more persons; (2) an object to be accomplished; (3) a meeting of minds on the object or course of action; (4) one or more unlawful, overt acts; and (5) damages as the proximate result."[282] While HMIT alleges that "Defendants conspired with each other to unlawfully breach fiduciary duties,"[283] it is simply a "legal conclusion" and not the kind of allegation that the court must assume to be true even for purposes of determining plausibility under a motion to dismiss.[284]

HMIT repeats four times that Seery provided MNPI to Farallon and Stonehill as a "as a quid pro quo" for "additional compensation,"[285] each time based upon conclusory allegations based "upon information and belief" and, frankly, pure speculation from Dondero that his imagined "scheme," "covert quid pro quo," and secret "conspiracy" between Seery, on the one hand, and Farallon and Stonehill, on the other,[286] must have occurred because "[i]t made no sense for the [Claims] Purchasers to invest millions of dollars for assets that – per the publicly available information – did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk" (i.e., "[t]he counter-intuitive nature of the purchases at issue compels the conclusion that the [Claims] Purchasers acted on inside information and Seery's assurance of great profits.")[287] Importantly, HMIT admits that the Claims Purchasers would have turned a profit based on the information available to them at the time of their acquisitions of the Purchased Claims.[288] HMIT's allegations about the level of potential profits were contradicted by their own allegations and other evidence admitted at the June 8 Hearing. But Dondero's speculation about what level of projected return would be sufficient to justify the acquisition of the claims by the Claims Purchasers, or any other third-party investor, does not give rise to a plausible inference that they acted improperly.[289] Thus, HMIT cannot meet [286] See id. ¶ 3 ("Thus, acting within a cloak of secrecy, Seery provided close business acquaintances, the other Defendants with material non-public information concerning the value of assets which they then used to purchase the largest approved unsecured claims.").

[288] See, e.g., id. ¶ 3 (alleging that acquiring the claims "did not offer a sufficient potential profit to justify the publicly disclosed risk")(emphasis added); ¶ 43 ("Furthermore, although the publicly available projections suggested only a small margin of error on any profit potential for its significant investment . . . ."); ¶ 49 ("Yet, in this case, it would have been impossible for Stonehill and Farallon (in the absence of inside information) to forecast any significant profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments given the publicly available, negative financial information.") (third emphasis added).

[289] In fact, the court did not allow Mr. Dondero to testify regarding what kind of information a hypothetical investor in bankruptcy claims would require or what level of potential profits would justify the purchase of bankruptcy claims by investors in the bankruptcy claims trading market because he was testifying as a fact witness, not an expert. Thus, the court only allowed Dondero to testify as to what data he (or entities he controls or controlled) would rely on, what his risk tolerance would have been, and what level of potential profits he would have required to purchase an allowed unsecured bankruptcy claim in a post-confirmation situation. its burden, under the Gatekeeper Colorability Test, of making a prima facie showing that its allegations do not lack foundation or merit. Nor can it meet a plausibility standard.

In addition, contrary to the Proposed Complaint's statement that it would have been "impossible for Stonehill and Farallon (in the absence of insider information) to forecast any significant profit at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments," the evidence showed there were already reports in the financial press that MGM was engaging with Amazon, Apple, and others in selling its media portfolio, and thus the prospect of an MGM transaction increasing the value of, and return on, the Purchased Claims, "at the time of their multi-million-dollar investments" was publicly available information.[290] HMIT's suggestion that the Claims Purchasers were in possession of inside information not publicly available when they acquired the Purchased Claims is simply not plausible. Nor is HMIT's allegation that "[u]pon information and belief" Farallon "conducted no due diligence but relied on Seery's profit guarantees" plausible. The allegations regarding Farallon not conducting any due diligence are based, again, entirely on Dondero's speculation and inferences he made from what Patel and Linn (of Farallon) allegedly told him on May 28, 2021; Dondero did not testify that either Patel or Linn ever told him specifically that they had conducted no due diligence. HMIT's allegations in the Proposed Complaint that Farallon "conducted no due diligence," are based on Dondero's speculation, unsubstantiated, and contradicted by the testimony of Seery, who testified that emails to him from Linn in June 2020 and later in January 2021 indicated to him that Farallon, at least, had been conducting some level of due diligence in that they had been following and paying attention to the [290] The court notes, as well, that the Claim Purchasers acquired the UBS claims in August 2021—approximately two and a half months after the announcement of the MGM-Amazon transaction (which was on May 26, 2021)—a fact that HMIT makes no attempt to harmonize with its conspiracy theory that the Claims Purchasers profited from the misuse of MNPI allegedly given to them by Seery.

Highland case.[291] In addition, there are no allegations in the Proposed Complaint regarding whether Stonehill conducted due diligence or not, and Patrick testified that neither he nor HMIT had any personal knowledge of how much due diligence Farallon or Stonehill did prior to acquiring the Purchased Claims.[292] The court finds and concludes that HMIT's allegations of aiding and abetting and conspiracy in Counts II and III of the Proposed Complaint are based on unsubstantiated inferences and speculation, lack internal consistency, and lack consistency with verifiable public facts. Accordingly, HMIT has failed to show that these claims have a foundation and merit and has also failed to show that they are plausible.

c) HMIT's Proposed Claims Set Forth in Counts IV (Equitable Disallowance), V (Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust), and VI (Declaratory Relief) of the Proposed Complaint

i. Count IV (Equitable Disallowance).

In Count IV of its Proposed Complaint, HMIT seeks "equitable disallowance" of the claims acquired by Farallon's and Stonehill's special purpose entities Muck and Jessup, "to the extent over and above their initial investment," and, in the alternative, equitable subordination of their claims to all claims and interests, including HMIT's unvested Class 10 Contingent Claimant Trust Interest, "given [their] willful, inequitable, bad faith conduct" of allegedly "purchasing the Claims based on material non-public information" and being "unfairly advantaged" in "earning significant profits on their purchases."[293] As noted above, these remedies are not available to HMIT.[294]

First, HMIT's request to equitably subordinate the Purchased Claims to all claims and interests is not permitted because Bankruptcy Code § 510(c), by its terms, permits equitable [291] See June 8 Hearing Transcript, 239:6-21.

[292] See id., 310:19-312:2.
[293] Proposed Complaint ¶¶ 83-87.
[294] See infra pages 74-75.

subordination of a claim to other claims or an interest to other interests but does not permit equitable subordination of a claim to interests.

Second, "equitable" disallowance of claims is not an available remedy in the Fifth Circuit pursuant to the Mobile Steel case.[295]

Third, reconsideration of an already-allowed claim in a bankruptcy case can only be accomplished through Bankruptcy Code § 502(j), which, pursuant to Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 9024, allows reconsideration of allowance of a claim that was allowed following a contest (which is certainly the case with respect to the Purchased Claims) based on the "equities of the case." But this is only if the request for reconsideration is made within the one-year limitation prescribed in Rule 60(c) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. HMIT's request for disallowance of Muck and Jessup's Purchased Claims (if it could somehow be construed as a request for reconsideration of their claims), is clearly untimely, as it is being made well beyond a year since their allowance by this court following contests and approval of Rule 9019 settlements. Thus, the court finds that HMIT has not alleged a colorable or even plausible claim in Count IV of the Proposed Complaint and, therefore, the Motion for Leave should be denied.

ii. Count V (Unjust Enrichment and Constructive Trust)

In Count V of the Proposed Complaint, HMIT alleges that, "by acquiring the Claims using [MNPI], Stonehill and Farallon were unjustly enriched and gained an undue advantage over other creditors and former equity" and that "[a]llowing [the Claims Purchasers] to retain their ill-gotten benefits would be unconscionable;" thus, HMIT alleges, the Claims Purchasers "should be forced to disgorge all distributions over and above their original investment in the Claims as restitution for their unjust enrichment" and "a constructive trust should be imposed on such proceeds . . . ."[296]

[296] Proposed Complaint ¶¶ 89-93.

HMIT alleges further that "Seery was also unjustly enriched by his participation in this scheme and he should be required to disgorge or restitute all compensation he has received from the outset of his collusive activities" and "[a]lternatively he should be required to disgorge and restitute all compensation received since the Effective Date" over which a constructive trust should be imposed.[297] HMIT has not alleged a colorable or even a plausible claim for unjust enrichment or constructive trust in Count V.

Under Texas law,[298] "[u]njust enrichment is not an independent cause of action but rather characterizes the result of a failure to make restitution of benefits either wrongfully or passively received under circumstances which give rise to an implied or quasi-contractual obligation to repay."[299] Thus, "when a valid, express contract covers the subject matter of the parties' dispute, there can be no recovery under a quasi-contract theory."[300] Here, as noted above, HMIT's only alleged injury is a diminution of the value of its unvested Contingent Claimant Trust Interest by virtue of Seery's allegedly having wrongfully obtained excessive compensation, with the help of the Claims Purchasers. Yet Seery's compensation is governed by express agreements (i.e., the Plan and the CTA). Thus, HMIT's claim based on unjust enrichment is not an available theory of recovery.

iii. Count VI (Declaratory Relief)

HMIT seeks declaratory relief in Count VI of the Proposed Complaint, essentially, that Dondero's conspiracy theory is correct and that HMIT's would succeed on the merits with respect to the Proposed Claims if it were permitted leave to bring them in an adversary proceeding.[301] But, a request for declaratory relief is not "an independent cause of action"[302] and "in the absence of any underlying viable claims such relief is unavailable."[303] This court has already found and concluded that HMIT would not have constitutional or prudential standing to bring the underlying causes of action in the Proposed Complaint. This court has also found and concluded that all of the Proposed Claims are without foundation or merit and are not even plausible and are all; being brought for the improper purpose of continuing Dondero's vexatious, harassing, bad-faith litigation. Thus, HMIT would not be entitled to pursue declaratory judgement relief as requested in Count VI of the Proposed Complaint.

[297] Id. ¶ 94.

[298] Under the Plan, Texas law governs HMIT's "claim" for unjust enrichment because it is not a "corporate governance matter." (Plan Art. XII.M.) It also governs HMIT's "claim" for constructive trust, which "is merely a remedy used to grant relief on the underlying cause of action." Sherer v. Sherer, 393 S.W.3d 480, 491 (Tex. App. 2013).

[299] Taylor v. Trevino, 569 F. Supp. 3d 414, 435 (N.D. Tex. 2021) (cleaned up); see also Yowell v. Granite Operating Co., 630 S.W.3d 566, 578 (Tex. App. 2021) (same).

d) HMIT Has No Basis to Seek Punitive Damages

HMIT separately alleges that the Claims Purchasers' and Seery's "misconduct was intentional, knowing, willful, in bad faith, fraudulent, and in total disregard of the rights of others," thus entitling HMIT to an award of punitive damages under applicable law. But, HMIT abandoned its proposed fraud claim that was in its Original Proposed Complaint, so its sole claim for primary liability is Seery's alleged breach of his fiduciary duties. And under Delaware law, the "court cannot award punitive damages in [a] fiduciary duty action."[304]

[301] Proposed Complaint ¶¶ 96-99.

3. HMIT Does Not Present "Colorable" Claims Under this Court's Gatekeeper Colorability Test Because It Seeks to Bring the Proposed Complaint for Improper Purposes of Harassment and Bad-Faith, Vexatiousness.

Under this court's Gatekeeper Colorability Test, in addition to showing that its allegations and claims are not without foundation or merit, HMIT must also show that the Proposed Claims are not being brought for any improper purpose. Taking into consideration the court's knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and the evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, the court finds that HMIT is acting at the behest of, and under the control or influence of, Dondero in continuing to pursue harassing, bad faith, vexatious litigation to achieve his desired result in these bankruptcy proceedings. So, in addition to failing to show that its Proposed Claims have foundation and merit, HMIT cannot show that it is pursuing the Proposed Claims for a proper purpose and, thus, cannot meet the requirements under the Gatekeeper Colorability Test; HMIT's Motion for Leave should be denied.

IV. CONCLUSION

The court concludes, having taken into consideration both its knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings and the parties and the evidence presented at the hearing on the Motion for Leave, that HMIT's Motion for Leave should be denied for three independent reasons: (1) HMIT would lack constitutional standing to bring the Proposed Claims (and, thus, the federal courts would lack subject matter jurisdiction over the Proposed Claims); (2) even if HMIT would have constitutional standing to pursue the Proposed Claims, it would lack prudential standing to bring the Proposed Claims; and (3) even if HMIT would have both constitutional standing and prudential standing to bring the Proposed Claims, it has not met its burden under the Gatekeeper Colorability Test of showing that its Proposed Claims are "colorable" claims—that the Proposed Claims are not without foundation, not without merit, and not being pursued for an improper purpose. Moreover, even if this court's Gatekeeper Colorability Test should be replaced with a Rule 12(b)(6) "plausibility" standard, the Proposed Claims are not plausible.

Accordingly,

IT IS ORDERED that HMIT's Motion for Leave be, and hereby is DENIED.

IV.
FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A. The Tortured History of Dondero, Okada, Ellington, and The Defendant Minions

27. Dondero and Okada co-founded Highland Capital Management, LP ("Highland Capital") in 1993 and, with the Defendant Trusts, were its primary owners until it emerged from bankruptcy in August 2021. Highland Capital is an investment advisor registered with the SEC under the Investment Company Act of 1940 that managed billions of dollars of assets through its structure of approximately 2,000 separate business entities. Plaintiff was one of those entities.

28. Dondero was President and Chief Executive Officer of Highland Capital was a "Key Man" manager of Plaintiffs most valuable investment, Restoration Capital Partners, LP. until his removal in 2020.

29. Okada was Chief Investment Officer and Executive Vice President until Highland Capital filed for bankruptcy in October 2019. He also was defined as a "Key Man" manager of Plaintiffs most valuable investment, Restoration Capital Partners, LP. He managed the investor relations department of Highland Capital where he orchestrated his stated strategy to manipulate "perception over reality."

30. Ellington served in various roles as a partner and Highland Capital's Chief Legal Officer and General Counsel from 2010 until he was fired for cause in January 2021 for acting in a manner adverse to Highland Capital's interest.

31. Leventon served as Assistant General Counsel at Highland from 2009 until he was fired for cause in January 2021 for acting in a manner adverse to Highland Capital's interest.

32. Thomas Surgent ("Surgent") served as Chief Compliance Officer and Deputy General Counsel of Highland Capital from 2011 through the Highland Capital bankruptcy and has served as Highland Capital's General Counsel since it emerged from bankruptcy in August 2021.

33. Girard served as internal counsel at Highland Capital from 2011 until he was terminated in 2017.

34. Hurst was a partner at his former firm, Gruber Hurst Johansen Hail Shank LLP, and is currently a partner at Lynn Pinker Gruber & Schwegmann where he served as outside counsel to Plaintiff until he was fired by Highland Capital's new management team in 2020 for insubordination and unprofessional misconduct.

35. Brown was a partner at her former firms, Gruber Hurst Johansen Hail Shank LLP, and Lynn Pinker Gruber & Schwegmann where she served as outside counsel to Plaintiff.

36. Katz was a partner at his former firm, Hunton Andrews Kurth, and is now at DLA Piper[1], where he served as outside counsel to Plaintiff and Highland Capital.

37. Jeff Abrams ("Abrams"), Matt Miller ("Miller") and Stephen Hough ("Hough") were attorneys at Abrams & Bayliss and served as outside counsel to Plaintiff.

38. Dameris was a board member of Plaintiff and served as a Managing Director at Highland Capital.

39. Boyce was a board member of Plaintiff and was a Partner at Highland Capital. He also served as Head of Private Equity for Plaintiff's limited partnership interests including Plaintiffs most valuable investment, Restoration Capital Partners, LP. from late 2011 until his termination from Highland Capital in 2014.

40. Britain was a board member of Plaintiff and was a Partner at Highland Capital.

41. Honis was a board member of Plaintiff, Partner of Highland Capital, and trustee to Hunter Mountain. He also was a "Key Man" manager of Plaintiffs most valuable investment, Restoration Capital Partners, LP.

42. Walia was a board member of Plaintiff and was a Partner at Highland Capital.

43. Dougherty was a board member of Plaintiff and was a Partner at Highland Capital.

44. Trey Parker ("Parker") was Co-Chief Investment Officer with Okada at Highland Capital and Head of Private Equity after Boyce for Plaintiff's limited partnership investments

[1] Throughout this petition Plaintiff will refer to Katz, Hunton Andrews Kurth and DLA Piper collectively as ("Katz/HAK/DLAP, except where DLAP is identified separately") including Plaintiff's most valuable investment, Restoration Capital Partners, LP. He was also named Partner at Highland Capital in 2015.

45. Waterhouse was the Chief Financial Officer at Highland Capital until he was terminated in 2021.

46. Collins was the Head of Human Resources at Highland Capital until he was terminated in 2021 and was the primary agent to implement and execute actions on behalf of the board for Plaintiff as well as lead its investor communications, document custody, governance solicitation and Highland Capital's buyout offer solicitation.

47. David Klos ("Klos") was a senior accountant at Highland Capital that was responsible for the management of Plaintiff's accounting records. He has been the Chief Financial Officer at Highland Capital since its emergence from bankruptcy in August 2021.

48. Rick Swadley ("Swadley") was a senior tax director at Highland Capital that was responsible for the management of Plaintiff's tax records until he was terminated in 2021.

49. Dugaboy, Get Good, the Okada Trusts and Hunter Mountain are trusts established by Dondero and Okada for the benefit of themselves and their family members.

50. Dondero and Okada, with Boyce, Parker, Ellington, Leventon, Girard, Surgent, Hurst, Katz/HAK/DLAP, Waterhouse, Klos and Swadley at their side, controlled Highland Capital and its byzantine web of funds and other entities under its management with unilateral and unfettered discretion for years. They ensured that Highland Capital and its affiliates routinely failed to observe corporate formalities with respect to their personnel, corporate governance, internal systems, legal affairs, and considerable assets.

51. In September 2008, Highland Capital took a dramatic turn for the worse because of Dondero and Okada's mismanagement and self-dealing during the financial crisis. Highland Capital defaulted on its credit facility, prompting its lenders to demand a forensic accounting review of missing cash and assets. The audit revealed that Dondero and Okada had siphoned tens of millions of dollars out of Highland Capital's accounts, while leaving creditors and employees with insufficient resources to collect what was owed to them. A multitude of lawsuits were filed over a ten-year period against Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trust, Ellington, Leventon, and their affiliates as they became embroiled in litigation on allegations of fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, breach of good faith and fair dealing, willful misconduct, fraudulent transfers, money laundering, and wire fraud that resulted in verdicts of over one billion dollars in damages against them or their affiliates.

52. The lenders initially demanded that the cash be returned immediately to which Dondero threatened, "Highland will fail before I fail!" Following months of difficult negotiations, the lenders agreed to an extension of the credit facility in exchange for strict repayment terms and a security interest in over $125 million of Highland Capital's remaining assets. In addition, the lenders agreed to allow for the creation of a vessel to set aside assets for the purpose of retaining and incentivizing employees – this entity is Plaintiff. Importantly, the assets were transferred to Plaintiff in exchange for deferred compensation assets that were terminated as a result of the security interests taken by the lenders. Dondero, Okada and their affiliates were intentionally forbidden from participating as preferred unit holders in Plaintiff.

53. Plaintiff has never had employees and at all times depended on its board of directors, legal counsel, managers, service providers, and its investment advisors to conduct its affairs. Highland employees, including Dondero, Okada, Parker, Ellington, Leventon, Girard, Surgent, Collins, Hellen Kim, Waterhouse, Swadley, and Klos performed investment management, legal, accounting, and tax services to Plaintiff under Shared Services and Blanket Agreements. Dondero and Okada resented the cost of Plaintiff.

54. Okada often demonstrated his contempt for Highland Capital employees, routinely lambasting them and referring to Hispanics as "spics" and "wetbacks," Jews as "Jesus Killers," and Caucasians as "dumb white people that all look the same." He would flaunt his belief that he could "do whatever I want because I'm in a protected class," while bragging about the Japanese surprise attack on Pearl Harbor. Okada also exposed himself in the nude at company events, groped women in the office through simulated intercourse, and physically assaulted employees as his self-proclaimed alter ego, "Thor."

B. Daugherty Resigns from Highland Capital and is Removed as Director of Plaintiff

55. Patrick Daugherty ("Daugherty") was a partner, officer, director, Head of Private Equity, and Co-Head of Research for Highland Capital and certain of its affiliates from 1998 until 2011. Daugherty resigned from Highland Capital on September 28, 2011, because he refused to participate in the conduct at Highland Capital that would later result in over a billion dollars in damage awards to investors and creditors for breach of fiduciary duty, willful misconduct, and fraud, among other causes of action. Indeed, Dondero, Okada, Ellington, Leventon, Katz/HAK/DLAP, Hurst and Brown would later pursue legal actions on behalf of Highland Capital against Daugherty to whitewash willful misconduct and breach of fiduciary duties against UBS, Josh Terry (a former employee), the Credit Strategies fund investors and the Crusader Fund investors (including Dallas Police and Fire, Baylor University, Army Airforce Exchange, Ontario Teachers, and many others).

56. Prior to his resignation, Daugherty became a holder of Series A Preferred Units of Plaintiff on October 26, 2009. He was awarded 1,571.86 preferred units and was the largest holder of the lender-approved Plaintiff. Plaintiff was created based on a "last man standing" structure where remaining employees would receive reallocated shares of the units forfeited by departed employees. The number of Daugherty's units and percentage ownership of Plaintiff increased to 1,909.69 and approximately 19.09% as other employees resigned from Highland Capital prior to their interests vesting in 2011. At the time of his resignation, Daugherty was a director of Plaintiff. After his resignation, Defendants began a campaign to inflict economic pain on Daugherty by stripping Plaintiff of its assets.

57. On February 16, 2012, Plaintiff's board members, Boyce, Britain, Dameris, Dougherty (no relation to Daugherty), Honis, and Walia removed Daugherty as a director of Plaintiff. Immediately thereafter, the newly composed board executed a Second Amended and Restated Agreement (the "2012 Amendment") prepared by Highland Capital's Chief Compliance Officer and Deputy General Counsel, Surgent. The 2012 Amendment purported to impose a punitive procedure to deplete the value of a holder who litigated any action "related to" Plaintiff, Highland Capital, and its officers and directors, escrow the holder's interest, and, in a type of reverse-indemnification, impose the litigation costs of Plaintiff and any deemed "diminution in value" cost to the litigant, whether it lost or won the litigation - a proverbial lose-lose clause.

58. After his removal as a director of Plaintiff, Daugherty had no access to or ability to know what the Defendants were doing regarding the Plaintiff.

59. In a dubious tax scheme, ownership of Highland Capital transferred to Hunter Mountain on or around December 17, 2015, from its then-existing limited partners (i.e., Dondero, Okada, Ellington, Parker, and entities they controlled). Through a complex series of transactions that occurred on December 21, 2015, and December 24, 2015, Dondero and Okada caused Hunter Mountain to become the owner-in name of 99.5% of the economic interests of Highland Capital. Meanwhile, Dondero and Okada caused Hunter Mountain to issue a series of notes and cash, such that Dondero, Okada, and certain entities they controlled (including Dugaboy, Okada Trust #1, and Okada Trust #2) continued to receive the economic benefit of limited partnership distributions made by Highland Capital to Hunter Mountain even after they had purportedly sold their limited partnership interests to Hunter Mountain.

C. Daugherty Obtains Control of Plaintiff and For the First Time Discovers Harm to Plaintiff Caused by Defendants' Deliberately Concealed Bad Acts and Omissions

60. Daugherty and his affiliates now own and control 100% of Plaintiff pursuant to the terms of a bankruptcy court approved settlement on March 1, 2022. It is critically important to note that it was not until Daugherty and his affiliates obtained control of Plaintiff in March of 2022 that Defendants' wrongdoing complained of in this lawsuit, was fully discovered and that those wrongful acts and omissions had been deliberately concealed.

61. After obtaining control of Plaintiff, Daugherty (on behalf of Plaintiff) began to request documents, legal invoices, emails, and metadata related to Plaintiff, but was met with obstruction at every turn. Despite this, through diligent efforts undertaken since March of 2022 Daugherty, for the first time, has been able to gather detailed information regarding Defendants' acts and omissions as they relate to harm caused to Plaintiff.

62. The subsequent facts relay more background information interposed with what Plaintiff now knows happened with the information obtained since March of 2022.

D. In 2022, it is Discovered that Plaintiff's Board Members Stripped Plaintiff of all of its Assets Through a Series of Shady Backdoor Corporate Governance Maneuvers

63. Back on September 24, 2012, Daugherty, after he was removed as a director of Plaintiff, made his first request to inspect and verify Plaintiff's assets. Abrams & Bayliss acted to block the inspection by scheming with Surgent, Hurst, and Katz/HAK to demand that Daugherty pay for the costs of producing the materials and sign an onerous confidentiality agreement.

64. It was not until Plaintiff's new management demanded review of its invoices and records in May 2022 that it was revealed that Abrams & Bayless had been retained solely on behalf of Plaintiff on June 11, 2012, after discussions with Boyce, Britain, Dameris, Honis, Dougherty, Hough, Abrams, Brown, Ellington, Kim, Collins, and Surgent regarding the Plaintiff's litigation with Daugherty. It was also revealed that in an email dated November 28, 2012, Dameris was advised by Jeff Abrams and Stephen Hough ("Hough"), "We caution that the board, which manages Plaintiff, owes fiduciary duties to both the LLC itself and to its members."

65. Invoices and emails discovered in October 2022, revealed that December 22, 2012, Dondero communicated his buyout offer to members of Plaintiff's board after Dameris considered and Dondero rejected certain settlement scenarios regarding Daugherty's claims against Plaintiff despite Abrams & Bayliss' warning to Dameris that Plaintiff's board had fiduciary duties to Plaintiff and the other unit holders. This provided previously unknown context to an email that was produced in the Texas litigation from Dameris, as Managing Director of Highland Capital, to Dondero on December 26, 2012 that presented as legitimate a "Buyout" scheme in which Dondero could gain control of Plaintiff at a substantial discount to value, pending review by Delaware counsel, noting "[i]f you decide to offer everyone except 1 [Daugherty] a buyout . . ..". It refuted certain testimony given by Dondero in the Texas trial that Dondero had no influence over Plaintiff prior to January 2013. It also revealed why Dameris collaborated with Abrams & Bayliss on December 30, 2013, to enhance indemnification rights of Plaintiff's directors. Importantly, this scheme was created at the same time that a large cash payoff was due to be paid to Plaintiff from the Safety-Kleen Systems, Inc. sale proceeds.

66. It was not until Plaintiff's new management demanded review of its invoices and records in May 2022 that it was for the first time revealed that Hough (copying Abrams & Bayliss) had conspired with Plaintiff and its former board members on December 30, 2012 to provide a detailed scheme of "Buyout Steps," including how to transfer control of Plaintiff to Dondero and Okada, while attempting to forgive the board members of their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff and simultaneously seeking to create expanded indemnification rights for themselves.

67. It was also revealed for the first time in late 2022 that Surgent sent an email on January 9th and 15th, 2013, distributing all of Plaintiff's operative documents to implement the scheme to Katz/HAK, Paul Lackey ("Lackey"), Michael Aigen ("Aigen), Hough, Ellington, Boyce, Britain, Dameris for comment. Katz/HAK, Lackey, and Aigen were not counsel to Plaintiff during this time but, nevertheless, Plaintiff's confidential information was disclosed to them.

68. Highland Capital and Dondero directed Collins and Surgent to offer all of Plaintiff preferred unit holders, except Daugherty, to purchase their preferred units for 100% of the value of their cash interests and 60% of the value of their non- cash interests on January 18, 2013.

However, Highland Capital and its legal team often engaged in the practice of creating documents after the fact and back-dating or forward-dating them to appear as if they existed on the date listed. It was not until October 2022 that it was revealed for the first time that the actual offer for preferred unit holders that were employed by Highland Capital at the time occurred much sooner and were effectively offers to keep their employment if they signed. Indeed, all of the preferred unit holders that were employed by Highland Capital at the time purported to accept the offer on the same date the offer was made, January 18, 2013. When the offer was finally presented to former employees on January 31, 2013, Collins and Surgent warned those who questioned the fairness of the price that a majority had already agreed to the offer and that anyone who did not accept the offer would "have their rights stripped."

69. It was also not until late 2022 that documents were finally produced that revealed that Plaintiff's board of directors and legal counsel did nothing to protect Plaintiff from this lowball offer, despite knowing it was a violation of their fiduciary duties. It did not seek a higher price from Highland Capital, Dondero, Okada or from Highland Capital's other partners at the time, including Boyce, Britain, Ellington, and Honis, who stood to benefit from the transaction, despite simultaneously serving on Plaintiff's board. They did not discuss a poison pill, a standstill, or any other corporate defense mechanism available to protect from a creeping takeover pursuant to their obligations under Delaware law. The board never even met to discuss the offer. Rather, they secretly attempted to ratify their own self-dealing actions, whitewash their dereliction of duty, and enlisted counsel from Abrams & Bayliss and Surgent to provide themselves broad releases of their fiduciary obligations and indemnifications while paving the way for Dondero, Okada, Ellington, and Highland Capital to strip Plaintiff of its assets. Tellingly, in one of the many amendments and actions by written consent that were never produced in the litigation with Daugherty, the board members purported to execute a Reserve for actual and potential expenses but did not bother to reserve anything for the claims being made by Daugherty.

70. It was not until concealed documents with metadata were finally produced by Abrams & Bayliss and new management at Highland Capital in October 2022 that a review indicated numerous documents had been executed in violation of Section 5.1, 5.2(b)(ii) and 5.2(b)(iv) of the Second Amended and Restated Limited Liability Company Agreement. Specifically, document data revealed they had been falsely and intentionally misdated by Plaintiff's counsel, Surgent, to appear as if the board members had authority when, in fact, they did not. Hough reported to Abrams in a "Buyout Update Plaintiff" email on January 18, 2013, "Thomas Surgent called and told me that the Plaintiff buyout documents were executed this morning, with close to 60% accepting. As we discussed, Highland [Capital] is going to wait two weeks to extend the offer to HERA's [Plaintiff's] non-employee members…. "Thomas [Surgent] will date the outgoing board's resignations January 19 so that there is no doubt that their resignations occurred only after the transactions were effected." Indeed, Surgent noted in an email to Hough that they had not reached the 75% threshold until February 11, 2013, long after the board members had surrendered their ownership rights in the Plaintiff and their board positions had terminated. Regardless of their failed attempt, the board members disregarded the fact that Delaware entities such as Plaintiff are not permitted to waive liability for fraud, or breach of good faith and fair dealing.

71. It was not discovered until May 2024 that Walia was never included as a signatory to the January 17, 2013, governance amendments and corporate actions and that Honis did not submit his signatures on the proposed actions until after 4:30pm on January 18, 2013. By that time, Boyce, Britain, Dougherty, and Dameris had previously forfeited their positions as board members by waiving and releasing any and all rights they had to the Preferred Units pursuant to the terms of the Transfer Agreement. The then-existing governance of the Second Amended and Restated Limited Liability Company Agreement specifically required that 75% approval of board members be required for amendments to the agreement. Since there were only two board members at the time Honis submitted his signatures for the proposed actions, approval was impossible without the signature of Walia. The attempted amendments failed, but Honis and Walia subsequently negotiated for and received their own transactions that required them to waive and release all claims to their Preferred Units pursuant to their Transfer Agreements. Accordingly, Daugherty became the only remaining owner of the Preferred Units in Plaintiff and only he and his affiliates could effect a change in governance pursuant to the terms of the last legitimate governance amendment on February 16, 2012.

72. The new manager of Plaintiff, Highland ERA Management, LLC was formed on February 1, 2013, and, at the direction of Dondero, wrongfully assumed management and control of Plaintiff. Although Defendants contended that Highland ERA Management was the manager of Plaintiff, metadata later revealed in October 2022 indicated there was no valid corporate action taken by the board and Series A Preferred Unit holders to execute such an arrangement. Indeed, Daugherty was the only rightful and sole owner of the Series A Preferred Units of Plaintiff at that time.

73. Despite the absence of valid authority, Dondero, serving as the president of Highland ERA Management, with the assistance of his minions at Highland Capital and their legal counsel who simultaneously represented both Highland Capital and the Plaintiff through a Shared Services Agreement and a Blanket Agreement, purported to execute a series of transactions to strip Plaintiff of its assets.

74. On February 1, 2013, the day that Highland ERA Management was formed, Dondero purportedly executed the Third Amended and Restated Agreement on behalf of Plaintiff prepared by Surgent, Ellington, Katz/HAK, Hurst, Hough and Abrams, which (1) eliminated the purpose for which Plaintiff was created, (2) eliminated the requirement of Plaintiff to make cash distributions to preferred unit holders to cover pass-through tax obligations attributable to Plaintiff, (3) eliminated members' rights to indemnification, (4) limited indemnification obligations to the discretion of the Manager (Highland ERA Management, LLC) or the Initial Member (Highland Capital Management, LP), and (5) provided for broad indemnification to the Manager (Highland ERA Management, LLC) and Dondero.

75. Dondero purported to execute an Expense Allocation Agreement prepared by Surgent, Ellington, Leventon, Katz/HAK, Hurst, Hough, Abrams, Waterhouse and Klos also dated February 1, 2013, on behalf of both Highland Capital and Plaintiff under which the parties reallocated 93.4% of Highland Capital's purported legal expenses billed by their firms and others related to the Texas Litigation[2] to Plaintiff for no consideration. According to the document, Highland Capital had incurred $1,142,284 in legal expenses in the Texas Litigation as of December 31, 2012, compared to just $154,029 incurred by Plaintiff over the same period.

76. On February 6, 2013, Daugherty sent a letter seeking to review Plaintiff's books and records to verify its assets and their value. Abrams & Bayliss rejected the request in a letter dated February 13, 2013 by declaring, "You seek, inter alia, 'documents establishing the December 31, 2012 estimated value of the Interests as calculated by HERA [Plaintiff];' 'HERA's [Plaintiff's] balance sheets, income statements, lists of assets, general ledger, and the account records for any depository accounts of HERA [Plaintiff], as of December 31, 2012 and for the periods ending December 31, 2012, 2011, 2010 and 2009;' 'HERA's [Plaintiff's] 2009, 2010 and 2011 federal, state, and local tax returns'; 'information… regarding and identifying the current holders of the Series A Preferred Units, and to the extent the Common Unit Holder has already acquired any such units… from whom, in what amounts and for what consideration;' 'documents… regarding member lists;' and 'documents… regarding HERA's [Plaintiff's] Board… and any amendments to HERA's [Plaintiff's] company agreement.' Your Demand takes a shotgun approach to requesting books and records that is antithetical to the 'rifled precision' required by Delaware law. e.g., Brehm v. Eisner, 746 A.2d 244, 266 (Del. 2000)."

[2] On April 11, 2012, Highland Capital, at the direction of Dondero, Okada, Ellington, Leventon, Girard and Surgent, commenced a lawsuit against Daugherty in Texas captioned Highland Capital Management, L.P. v. Daugherty, Cause No. 12- 04005 in the 68th Judicial District Court of Dallas County, Texas (the "Texas Litigation") which will be described in detail in Section F below.,

77. It was further discovered in 2022 that on February 7, 2013, Surgent sent an email attaching Daugherty's request to inspect Plaintiff's assets to Hough, Hurst, Katz/HAK, Lackey and Ellington. Again, Katz/HAK and Lackey did not represent Plaintiff at the time but were adverse to Daugherty and his counsel at Looper Reed, and McGraw on behalf of Highland Capital. It was later discovered in September 2023 that Leventon, Ellington, Surgent, Dondero, Klos, Swadley, Waterhouse, and Katz/HAK had fraudulently allocated over $14,000,000 in invoices from Hunton Andrews Kurth, Lackey Hershman and other firms to Plaintiff.

78. It was discovered for the first time in October 2022 that an action by written consent purportedly executed by Dondero on April 30, 2013 was in fact backdated to declare Highland Capital as the "sole economic interest holder in the [Plaintiff] following the consummation of the transactions pursuant to the Offers to Purchase dated on or about January 18, 2013, and January 31, 2013." The same document also declared that, "Daugherty's economic interest in the [Plaintiff] is now zero as a result of the application of Article XI of [Plaintiff's Operating Agreement]." And it further resolved to transfer all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital because Highland Capital and Plaintiff "have each determined that it is in their respective best interest" to transfer substantially all the assets of Plaintiff as "in-kind distribution[s]" to Highland Capital (then valued at approximately $9,700,000 on top of approximately $6 million in cash that Highland Capital also took), despite providing no consideration to Plaintiff.

79. Through this series of bogus transactions that were only revealed for the first time in October 2022 to have been backdated and later circulated by Leventon and Goldsmith to appear legitimate, Highland Capital claimed to have taken all of Plaintiff's assets, leaving it insolvent. Plaintiff only became insolvent in 2013 because its funds and assets were purportedly used: (1) to pay for substantially all of Highland Capital's attorneys' fees incurred in the Texas Litigation pursuant to the Expense Allocation Agreement dated February 1, 2013; (2) to pay for all of Plaintiff's attorneys' fees incurred in in trying to wrongfully prevent Daugherty from receiving his share of the Plaintiff's assets; and (3) to transfer and register substantially all of its assets to Highland Capital for nothing. It was also revealed that in an email dated October 7, 2013, Katz/HAK, Hurst, and Miller knew Plaintiff's board had ignored their duties to carefully review the Highland Capital Purchase Offer and had even discussed the Lampers v. Fertitta case by highlighting:

> Turning first to the board's failure to employ a poison pill to prevent Fertitta from obtaining control without paying a control premium, it is reasonable in the context of a motion to dismiss to infer fiduciary misconduct more serious than a breach of the duty of care. The failure to act in the face of an obvious threat to the corporation and the minority stockholders instead supports a reasonable inference that the board breached its duty of loyalty in choosing not to cross Fertitta.

E. The Texas Litigaiton

80. On April 11, 2012, Highland Capital, at the direction of Dondero, Okada, Ellington, Leventon, Girard and Surgent, commenced a lawsuit against Daugherty in Texas captioned Highland Capital Management, L.P. v. Daugherty, Cause No. 12-04005 in the 68th Judicial District Court of Dallas County, Texas (the "Texas Litigation"), and Dondero subsequently threatened, "You will never get a dime" and "I'm going to take you [Daugherty] to zero." Daugherty responded with counterclaims against Highland Capital, Plaintiff, and others, alleging breach of contract and breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing against Plaintiff and Highland Capital. Katz/HAK and Hutton Andrews Kurth purported to represent Highland Capital while Hurst, Brown and Gruber Hurst purported to represent Plaintiff.

81. It was later revealed after legal invoices were finally produced under new management in October 2022, that as Defendants prepared for the first trial in Texas, they [Highland Capital, Hurst, Katz/HAK, Ellington, Brown, Leventon, Surgent, Girard, Boyce, Britain and Hunton Andrews Kurth] participated in a mock trial on December 4, 2013, that resulted in their mock jury finding in favor of Daugherty. From December 6 to 12, 2013, Defendants Dondero, Hurst, Brown, Katz/HAK, Abrams, Miller, Boyce, Britain, Ellington,

Girard, Leventon, and others schemed to "come up with trial strategy regarding witness testimony as to HERA [Plaintiff] sale and where are funds;" and conferenced with "Delaware counsel concerning escrowing of Daugherty's HERA [Plaintiff] interests and related issues there to."

82. In June 2019, after a Delaware court granted the crime-fraud exception to attorney client privilege, it was for the first time revealed that on December 12, 2013, Ellington, Leventon, and Surgent coordinated with Abrams & Bayliss to serve as escrow agent of the Escrow. Highland Capital's assistant general counsel, Leventon, sent a draft of the Escrow Agreement to Abrams & Bayliss on December 13, 2013, and the agreement was executed that day by Ellington. Matthew Miller ("Miller"), an Abrams & Bayliss attorney who primarily worked on the escrow matter and had just completed his first year as an attorney and simply used the terms proposed by Leventon.

83. The assets deposited in the escrow were represented to be: (1) $1,210,502.03 in cash; (2) a limited partner interest in Restoration Capital Partners Fund, LP and (3) 1088.42 shares of NexPoint Credit Strategies. This was the story Defendants "came up with" so they could sell to the jury that they had not simply stolen Plaintiff's assets. The notion that Defendants did nothing nefarious with Plaintiff's and Daugherty's assets and merely set them aside would become a theme of Defendants in the Texas Litigation.

84. The key provision of the Escrow Agreement that undergirded Defendants' story in the Texas Litigation provided that if Daugherty prevailed in the Texas Litigation, escrowed assets in the amount of the judgment "shall" be transferred to Plaintiff. Also pursuant to the crime-fraud discovery in May 2019, it was revealed that 19 days after executing the Escrow Agreement, Leventon and Girard changed the Escrow Agreement without Daugherty's knowledge because it wanted to "slip sheet the Schedule 1 assets" to change "the NexPoint shares from shares to the cash equivalent of shares because it is difficult to find a prime broker to open account for such a small pool of assets." Abrams & Bayliss simply swapped the pages. Abrams & Bayliss later explained, "if Daugherty digs deeply enough, he may discover that Schedule 1 was revised on December 16, 2013, with no re-execution of the Escrow Agreement by Highland and Abrams & Bayliss. Highland's counsel merely re-sent the Escrow Agreement with an updated Schedule 1, and Abrams & Bayliss sent an email confirmation of the change." According to Abrams & Bayliss, "[i]t is unlikely that Daugherty would learn of the revision." With the appearance of an escrow in place, Defendants were poised to present themselves in the Texas Litigation not as thieves, but rather as protectors of Plaintiff's and Daugherty's interests. That is the story they spun at trial. This was a state of affairs just a month before trial in the Texas Litigation.

85. On the first day of trial, January 16, 2014, Okada took the stand as Chief Investment officer and Head of Public Relations to assure the jury the following regarding their duties to clients and funds: "We have an advisory business where we're managing other people's money, teachers, firefighters, individuals, through their pension funds, or through their retirement accounts, or, you know, various pools of savings." "But our primary business at Highland Capital is to take their money, take the money that's entrusted to us and make good decisions with it."

86. He further sanctimoniously lectured about his and Dondero's culture of trust, "Our culture is one of trust, of hard work, and transparency, and something that we like to call alignment of interest, and I will explain the last one. But when you're managing other people's money you have to make sure that they trust you. That they know what you're doing. That you're telling them what you're doing, how well you're doing well, whether you're doing well or not doing so well. You've got to be honest and straightforward. And you can't do this for 20 years without doing that. If you're not trustworthy and honest and your culture isn't one of those, you're just not going to be in this business. You don't survive in the money management business without having a culture of trust……And then lastly, I would say that this idea of alignment of interest is where -- think of it this way, if something's good for you, it's good for me. If it's good for our clients, it should be good for us. If it's bad for our clients, it should be bad for us, that's alignment of interest. It means that whatever you're doing, whether you're paying an employee, or whether you're promoting an employee, or whether you're making an investment, you've got to think about the client. You're thinking about their interest and putting their interest first. And our culture is one of doing that." This testimony was a far cry from what insiders knew about Okada, Dondero and the culture at Highland Capital. Indeed, Okada was often observed to cover his ears and exclaim "I'm not hearing this! I'm not hearing this! I'm not hearing this!" when confronted with legal, fiduciary, and ethical misdeeds at Highland Capital. It was quite a contrast with reality when Highland Capital filed for bankruptcy on October 16, 2019, because its clients, including teachers, firefighters, veterans, pensioners, former employees, and other creditors, won over $1.4 billion in damage awards against it for willful misconduct, fraud, breach of fiduciary duties and other causes of action.

87. In furtherance of the sham, Hurst, Dondero, and Surgent made it a point to let the court and jury know that Plaintiff retained control of "all" of its assets. Dondero also testified in January, responding to questions by Hurst as follows:

> Q. Okay. So – so if, if Mr. Daugherty somehow prevails in his lawsuit against Patrick Boyce and Lane Britain and [Plaintiff], what happens to Mr. Daugherty's interest that's being escrowed right now with a third-party escrow agent?
> A. They go to him.
> Q. I'm sorry?
> A. They go to him via to HERA [Plaintiff] and then to him.

Dondero further testified when Hurst asked him:

> Q. The escrow, did you just escrow this last month?
> A. No. We've had it segregated at Highland since April when we first put it in and then formalized the escrow. It takes a while to set up an escrow and transfer illiquid assets that have all sorts of transfer limitations.

88. Highland Capital's Chief Compliance Officer and Deputy General Counsel,

Surgent, swore under oath in regard to a question regarding the April 30, 2013, implementation of the asset sweep from Plaintiff, "Yes, but then it placed those funds in escrow." But when questioned further why the escrow appeared to be created 36 days prior to his testimony and more than eight months after the assets were swept from Plaintiff, Surgent answered to the court and jury, "The escrow was formalized in this agreement, but I believe it existed sooner." In fact, it did not, and Surgent knew that.

89. In closing arguments, Plaintiff's counsel, Hurst, lied to the court and jury once again, "[I]f Pat Daugherty happens to prevail in his lawsuit against HERA [Plaintiff], you heard Jim Dondero testify, he gets his interest, which is currently escrowed in the third-party escrow account, all of it."

90. It was not until some evidence from Abrams & Bayliss was produced pursuant to the crime-fraud ruling in Delaware on June 7, 2019, and substantial detailed legal invoices and emails were produced to the new management of Highland Capital in October 2022 that this web of lies was fully exposed.

91. After three-weeks of trial, the jury found that Plaintiff, at the direction of Defendants from Highland Capital, breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing by adopting Section 12.1 of the 2012 Agreement (the Lose-Lose clause) and that Highland Capital and Dondero had defamed Daugherty with malice. The jury awarded Daugherty damages against Plaintiff in the amount of $2.6 million, plus interest which remains unpaid and has currently accreted to approximately $5 million. The court also determined that Daugherty had retained ownership of his preferred units in Plaintiff. The problem was Dondero, Ellington, Surgent and their merry band of minions lied to the jury and never funded Escrow while incurring millions in legal fees to drain Plaintiff's assets to perpetuate the lie.

92. It was not until May 2019, after a Delaware court granted the crime-fraud exception to attorney client privilege, that it was revealed that Highland Capital contacted Abrams & Bayliss on February 14, 2014 "to discuss a memorandum we need drafted to address the Escrow Agreement in context of the recent Daugherty Verdict." The memo reaffirmed that Abrams & Bayliss had "received no cash or documents from Highland Capital or HERA [Plaintiff] regarding the escrow of Daugherty's interests in Restoration Capital Partners, LP. The memorandum then discussed the consequences if the escrow of Plaintiff's assets was deemed a "sham." In a section of the memorandum titled "Daugherty May Assert that the Escrow Agreement Is a Sham and that the Deposit Assets Stayed within the Control of Highland," Abrams & Bayliss advised: "Daugherty could argue that, even if the Deposit Assets are deemed to be in escrow, the Escrow Agreement left Highland [Highland Capital] with actual control of the Deposit Assets because (1) A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] is Highland's [Highland Capital] counsel, and (2) A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] may resign at any time with the Deposit Assets returning to Highland [Highland Capital]. Daugherty might argue that, despite the language of the Escrow Agreement, A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] will do whatever Highland [Highland Capital] instructs it to do with the Deposit Assets, even if that means disbursing the Deposit Assets contrary to the Escrow Agreement's terms. Paragraph 5 of the Escrow Agreement entitles A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] to resign at any time provided that it gives ten days advance notice. After A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] resigns, it must deliver the Deposit Assets either to the successor escrow agent or to Highland [Highland Capital]. Daugherty might argue that, even if A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] would not disburse the Deposit Assets in contradiction of the Escrow Agreement, A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] might be willing to resign as Escrow Agent in order to return the Deposit Assets to Highland." Said another way, Plaintiff's own lawyers were acting on behalf of Highland Capital at the expense of their client while they stripped it of its assets and charged it for the privilege.

93. True to form, Highland Capital requested, and on March 25, 2014, Abrams & Bayliss provided, an expanded memo addressing "tangentially related topics." In the expanded memo, Abrams & Bayliss explained: "Although unlikely, it is conceivable that the court in the Texas Litigation could take issue with the assertion of Plaintiff's counsel that the full amount of the Deposit Assets was held by A&B, when arguably at least, only $1.2 million of the Deposit Assets were truly beyond Highland's control."

94. Defendants also attempted to conceal the true value of the assets that were supposed to be escrowed on behalf of Plaintiff. When Girard was asked to provide an update on value by Miller, Girard briefed Abrams that, "Girard would prefer not to update the estimated value of the Restoration Capital Funding interest. Highland received a windfall when the jury valued Daugherty's Plaintiff interest at only $2.6 million because Highland believes his former interest in HERA [Plaintiff] is worth more. Schedule 1 currently reflects a value of $3.03 million. If Highland updated Schedule 1 to reflect their current estimates, the Escrow Assets would be worth $3.3 million."

95. Daugherty suspected that Defendants had lied about the existence of the escrow and on August 24, 2014, served post-judgment discovery requests on Plaintiff and Highland Capital, seeking information concerning the location of Plaintiff's assets and liabilities and its post-litigation conveyances to Highland Capital.

96. Twenty days later, Plaintiff, at the direction of Dondero and Hurst, filed a Notice of Cash Deposit in Lieu of Supersedeas Bond and Affidavit Establishing Net Worth. Plaintiff submitted the affidavit of Klos, which stated that Plaintiff had a negative net worth of ($2,447,709) after fraudulently applying approximately $7,500,000 of Highland Capital's legal expenses at the time to Plaintiff as of August 31, 2014. Highland Capital also purported to have loaned Plaintiff the cash necessary to repay its own legal expenses owed to Highland Capital because Plaintiff did not have sufficient funds after transferring all of its assets to Highland Capital back on April 30, 2013. However, a footnote to the balance sheet exhibit to the affidavit noted, "Per Escrow Agreement dated December 13, 2013, between HCMLP [Highland Capital] and Abrams & Bayliss, LLP, if a final, non-appealable judgment against HERA [Plaintiff] is reached, Abrams & Bayliss, LLP as Escrow Agent, will transfer the HERA [Plaintiff] Deposit Assets to HERA [Plaintiff]." The affidavit included a copy of the Escrow Agreement with a schedule again falsely listing escrow assets of: (1) $1,210,502.03 in cash; (2) a limited partner interest in Restoration Capital Partners Fund, LP and (3) cash equivalent of 1088.42 shares of NexPoint Credit Strategies.

97. Also not revealed until May 2019, after a Delaware court granted the crime-fraud exception to attorney client privilege, Miller emailed Abrams, "do we look bad for claiming to hold non-monetary assets in escrow when on a day-to-day basis we have no idea what the status of these assets are?" Miller was "not looking forward to being deposed."

98. In order to conceal the fact that no such transfer ever actually occurred, Dondero, Hurst and the Highland Capital minions then directed Plaintiff to object to Daugherty's discovery requests on the basis that it was harassing and argued that its cash deposit limited post-judgment discovery to Plaintiff's net worth. Hurst, doubled down at a subsequent hearing on September 22, 2014, before the court and stated, "everything that's in the sworn financial statement has been provided to the other side and it's been provided to the Court, also came up during trial; that is the exact same assets."

99. Again on July 10, 2015, Hurst thwarted discovery of Plaintiff's missing assets by filing Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC's Written Objections To Daugherty's Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions and responding to every question and request for production with the boiler plate response, "Given the procedural posture of the case, with a final judgment and appellant bond on file, the only discovery that may be sought by Daugherty is that directly relevant to the calculation of HERA's [Plaintiff's] net worth. The scope of this request goes well beyond that, seeking information that that [sic] has potential proprietary confidential interests and unduly burdening a third-party."

100. On December 1, 2016, Hurst and Ellington boasted in the press about a settlement with Nautic Partners regarding breach of fiduciary duty over an indirect investment owned by Plaintiff and other funds in Cornerstone Healthcare Inc. It was not discovered until December 2021 that Dondero, as Chairman of the Cornerstone board, and Ellington, as General Counsel to Highland Capital serving as the investment advisor to the funds that owned interests in Cornerstone, had schemed with Hurst, Katz/HAK/DLAP and Hunton Andrews Kurth to revise their fee structure on the eve of settlement increasing them from an hourly fee that had already reached $6 million to a contingency fee that would pay the lawyers approximately $25 million in fees. Dondero and Ellington then received an $11 million facilitating fee that was wired to their affiliates secretly operating as the SAS platform in the Cayman Islands.

101. Also on December 1, 2016, Daugherty's judgment against Plaintiff, which had been affirmed on appeal, became final and non-appealable pursuant to the appellate Court's mandate. The appellate court also denied the request to declare that Daugherty's ownership in the preferred units of Plaintiff were extinguished as a result of his damage award. Dondero, Katz/HAK, Ellington, Leventon, Miller, and Abrams reviewed the mandate that day and started the process of shutting down the Escrow and assuring the remaining cash assets were swept from Plaintiff to Highland Capital. A summary of the reconciled emails sent or received from different time zones follows:

102. From discovery obtained in May 2019, after a Delaware court granted the crime-fraud exception to attorney-client privilege, a series of emails revealed that on December 1, 2016, at 7:51 p.m.: Hunton Andrews Kurth, outside counsel for Highland Capital and now concurrently outside counsel for Plaintiff, emailed Abrams, counsel for Highland Capital, counsel for Plaintiff, and trustee for Plaintiff's escrow: "Kevin , we need to have a call as early tomorrow as possible regarding the escrow arrangements. Can you let me know when you can be available? Also, can you please send us a copy of the escrow agreement?. Abrams responded to the email copying

Miller and Hunton Andrews Kurth lawyers Katz/HAK, James Bookhout, and Isabel Crosby.

103. December 2, 2016, at 10:03 a.m.: Miller informed Abrams, "The call with Highland's [Highland Capital's] attorneys in the HERA [Plaintiff] litigation was short. Simply put, Highland [Highland Capital] wants to get the funds back to HERA [Plaintiff] and/or Highland [Highland Capital] as quickly as possible in any way we feel comfortable with." Miller proposed several alternatives, including resignation: "Second, we could resign as escrow agent under Paragraph 5 …. This paragraph permits us to return assets directly to the Depositor, which is Highland [Highland Capital]. Highland's [Highland Capital's] attorneys think that a ten-day notice period will not interfere with their garnishment action plans."

Miller outlined for Abrams a step-by-step resignation plan:

1. Resignation letter from us that states that all deposit assets will be released to Highland [Highland Capital] after the 10-day notice period.
2. Letter from Highland [Highland Capital] waiving notice period and seeking our confirmation and signature (because paragraph 10 requires all amendments or waivers to be signed by both parties).
3. Wiring of cash back to Highland [Highland Capital].

Highland [Highland Capital] encouraged Abrams & Bayliss to resign, "As an update to the below, Highland [Highland Capital] would prefer that we resign but before we do to agree in writing that the 10-day notice period is waived." "Hunton Andrews Kurth and [Abrams & Bayliss] were on the same page about the resignation strategy."

104. December 2, 2016, at 2:52 p.m.: Miller emailed Hunton Andrews Kurth: "As we discussed, attached is the resignation letter we contemplate as the first step of unwinding the escrow."

105. December 2, 2016, at 4:37 p.m.: Miller emailed Hunton Andrews Kurth: "As an FYI, my banker tells me that 5:30 EST is the cut-off time for a domestic wire; the international transfer cut-off already is passed. I am not optimistic that I will receive the necessary authorizations during the next hour. However, would you mind passing along the Highland [Highland Capital] letter on an FYI basis so that I have the wiring instructions handy?"

106. December 2, 2016, at 5:08 p.m.: Hunton Andrews Kurth emailed Miller: "Matt, please find attached Highland's [Highland Capital's] signed letter accepting the Escrow Agent's resignation." Miller subsequently informed Abrams, "The second step in the HERA [Plaintiff] strategy is for you to sign the attached letter from Highland [Highland Capital]."

107. December 2, 2016, at 10:07 p.m.: Miller emailed Ellington: "Scott, please find the attached correspondence regarding the escrow agreement between Highland Capital Management, L.P. and Abrams & Bayliss LLP."

108. December 2, 2016, at 10:18 p.m.: Katz/HAK emailed Miller: "Matt, attached is correspondence from Scott Ellington accepting the resignation and providing wiring instructions. If you need additional information, please let me know."

109. December 2, 2016, at 10:19 p.m.: Miller emailed Katz/HAK: "Thanks, Mark. [sic] We will get a counter-signed copy back to you and arrange for wiring the funds."

110. December 3, 2016, at 10:06 a.m.: Miller emailed Ellington and Katz/HAK: "Scott and Marc, attached please find a counter-signed copy of Scott Ellington's letter."

111. December 3, 2016, at 2:45 p.m.: Internal Abrams & Bayliss email: "Wells Fargo was unable to initiate the transaction today [a Saturday]. The wire amount required multiple levels of upper management approval so I will go back on Monday morning."

112. December 5, 2016, at 12:26 p.m.: Miller emailed the team: "Team, As reflected below, the funds A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] was holding in escrow on behalf of HERA [Plaintiff] have been transferred as instructed in Scott Ellington's December 2, 2016, letter."

113. "Boom!" (emphasis added). That was the reaction of Girard when he learned the Escrow funds "have been received" by Highland [Highland Capital] on December 5, 2016.

F. Crime-Fraud Evidence in Delaware

114. On February 16, 2017, Abrams of Abrams & Bayliss unveiled Defendants' "Highland Employee Asset strategy" to Daugherty:

> I write on behalf of Abrams & Bayliss LLP ("Abrams & Bayliss") in response to your letter of February 14, 2017 (incorrectly dated February 14, 2016) regarding my firm's service as escrow agent under an escrow agreement with Highland Capital Management, L.P. ("Highland"), dated December 13, 2013 (the "Escrow Agreement"). Capitalized terms used but not defined herein have the meanings given in the Escrow Agreement.
> By letter dated December 2, 2016, Abrams & Bayliss notified Highland that it was resigning as Escrow Agent pursuant to Paragraph 5 of the Escrow Agreement. By letter dated December 2, 2016, Highland informed Abrams & Bayliss that it was (i) accepting Abrams & Bayliss' resignation as Escrow Agent, (ii) waiving the ten-day notice period under Paragraph 5 of the Escrow Agreement, and (iii) directing Abrams & Bayliss to return the Deposit Assets to Highland in accordance with the instructions provided in the letter.
> On December 3, 2016, Abrams & Bayliss informed Highland in writing that it agreed to the waiver of the notice period, such that Abrams & Bayliss' resignation was effective immediately. On December 5, 2016, Abrams & Bayliss returned the Deposit Assets to Highland in accordance with the December 2, 2016, instructions. Accordingly, Abrams & Bayliss no longer serves as Escrow Agent or holds Deposit Assets.

115. On July 6, 2017, Daugherty, having his disputed ownership in Plaintiff's assets recently confirmed by Texas Appellate Court, filed a complaint in Delaware Chancery Court seeking the return of all of Plaintiff's assets, in addition to making claims for fraudulent transfer, breach of fiduciary duties on behalf of Plaintiff, aiding and abetting breach of fiduciary duties on behalf of Plaintiff, and breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing on behalf of Plaintiff, among other claims. Certain defendants moved to dismiss the complaint.

116. On January 16, 2018, the Delaware Court of Chancery denied the motion to dismiss against Highland Capital and Plaintiff but granted dismissal against Dondero and Highland ERA management, which was controlled by Dondero at the time, on the grounds that evidence against them was "conclusory." At that time, the court was not privy to the evidence that was later produced pursuant to the crime-fraud ruling in May 2019 and the document production by new management at Highland Capital in October 2022 and October 2023. Later, on June 29, 2018, the Delaware Court denied dismissal against Highland Capital but granted dismissal based on laches for the claims arising out of what was known about the 2013 amendments and contemporaneous actions of the Defendants at that time, which was very little.

It was not until October 2022 and October 2023 that Highland Capital, under new management, produced refuting documentation and invoices.

117. On May 17, 2019, the Delaware Chancery Judge granted a motion to compel stating, "Daugherty has been dogged in his pursuit of these documents, and Highland [Capital] was just as resolute in refusing to produce them." She also stated, "Daugherty has made a prima facie showing that a reasonable basis exists to believe that a fraud has been perpetrated, and that Highland [Highland Capital] sought A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] to serve as escrow agent and to provide legal analysis in furtherance of that fraud; specifically, to protect the escrowed assets from Daugherty while the Texas case was pending, and then to transfer them back to Highland [Highland Capital] after the Texas verdict was finalized. I conclude any privilege Highland [Highland Capital] claims over A&B's [Abram's & Bayliss] legal advice regarding the escrow arrangement and A&B's [Abram's & Bayliss] resignation has been stripped under the crime-fraud exception." She also concluded that Highland Capital, Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, and the other defendants (who were also controlled by Dondero) were "improperly withholding documents," that "there is a reasonable basis to believe" that they perpetrated a fraud—and solicited "the services of attorneys to aid in furtherance of that fraud"—as part of an effort to evade Daugherty's judgment during the pendency of his case. The Vice Chancellor concluded that "defendants, with [counsel's] advice and assistance, were never going to let the assets held in the escrow agreement make their way to Daugherty." Additionally, a Contractual Master was appointed to oversee discovery compliance. It was later discovered in2021, after Highland Capital filed for bankruptcy, that Leventon concealed the existence of company owned phones used by Dondero and Ellington, as well as a secret server used by many of the defendants or their affiliates to transfer assets. In addition, despite a motion to compel to the contrary, the existence of numerous January 2013 Plaintiff amendments and actions by written consent were concealed by Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, and Surgent until they were finally produced in October 2022 after full ownership of Plaintiff was transferred to Daugherty.

118. On the second day of a three-day trial, Dondero—for the first time—revealed that his misconduct as manager of Plaintiff was done at the direction and based on the advice of his outside and in-house counsel, i.e., the other defendants in this action. He testified, for example:

> Q. Did Highland [Capital] have outside counsel advising with respect to the purchase of the units?
> A. Yes. I believe the whole situation was the most lawyered thing we've ever done. I mean, there was counsel for each of the board members, there was counsel for Highland [Highland Capital], there was counsel for HERA [Plaintiff], there was Delaware counsel. Everything was orchestrated, dictated by counsel.
> Q. Did Highland [Highland Capital] have – did that counsel that Highland [Highland Capital] used also advise counsel on the documents, the transaction documents, relating to those purchases?
> A. Yes. All the functional documents and major moves at various turning points were all at the request – or decided by counsel.
> Q. Did you have any communication – are you familiar with Abrams & Bayliss, with what Abrams & Bayliss is?
> A. I know they're a Delaware law firm. But beyond that, no.
> Q. Did you ever have any communications with Abrams & Bayliss about them resigning as escrow agent?
> A. No. Highland [Highland Capital] and myself, I know, were purposely kept separate from this whole thing. And it was driven by – it was driven by counsel.
> Q. My question is a little bit more specific because it relates to the escrow assets and Mr. Daugherty. If you had been told by counsel that Mr. Daugherty was entitled to the escrow assets, you would have given him the escrow assets; right?
> A. Yes. We would have done whatever counsel told us. We tried very hard to compartmentalize this mess. We have a business to run. And this is – a half dozen lawsuits, haranguing everybody in public, it was all intended to disrupt our business as much as possible. So we tried to delegate it and compartmentalize it to the lawyers as much as possible.
> Q. Let's talk about which lawyers you're referring to. So I'll start with the in-house lawyers again. Which in-house lawyers of Highland [Highland Capital] are you relying on with respect to the transfer of the escrow assets?
> A. It would have been the same three internal lawyers working with external counsel.
> Q. Mr. Ellington, Mr. Leventon, and Mr. Surgent; is that right?
> A. I believe so. I believe they were the ones at that time and place.
> Q. Which outside counsel are you relying on?
> A. I don't know if Andrews and Kurth had merged with Piper. I don't know who else was involved besides the Abrams guys. But it would have been, more likely than not, those two counsels with whatever other counsel was representing some of the people who were sued individually.

G. Highland Capital Bankruptcy

119. The following day, on October 16, 2019, Highland Capital at the direction of Dondero and Ellington, filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware. On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the case to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division. As a result, the Delaware action was stayed.

120. On January 9, 2020, the Highland Capital Creditors Committee demanded and the Court approved a change of control of Highland Capital, which involved the removal of Dondero as the sole director and the appointment of James P. Seery ("Seery"), John S. Dubel ("Dubel"), and retired Judge Russell F. Nelms ("Nelms") as independent directors (the "Independent Directors" and collectively, the "Independent Board") of Strand Advisors, Inc., Highland Capital's general partner (the "General Partner"). The Independent Directors were granted exclusive control over Highland Capital and its operations during the pending bankruptcy proceedings.

121. On July 16, 2020, the Court approved Highland Capital's motion to appoint Independent Director Seery, as Highland's CEO and CRO.

122. On October 9, 2020, Dondero was further instructed to resign or face removal as an employee of Highland Capital and as portfolio manager for all Highland Capital managed funds due to his detrimental conduct to the firm and its creditors.

123. Highland Capital's bankruptcy was unique because all of the largest creditors' claims stemmed from litigation claims and judgments against the firm, not debt holders. Indeed, Dondero, Ellington and Leventon expected to use the bankruptcy process to once again thwart recoveries while keeping themselves in control. Dondero later complained to Seery, "I'm not getting the Chapter 11 experience," as if he were somehow supposed to benefit from the failure of the company he managed. To the contrary, bankruptcy revealed a litany of terrible acts through a pattern of recurring conduct resulting in well over $1.4 billion dollars in litigation and arbitration claims and over $50,000,000 in legal fees.

124. In January 2021, it was discovered that Dondero had been secretly coordinating with Highland Capital's then-counsel Ellington and Leventon to direct the affairs of Highland Capital, despite his dismissal. When the Court entered an order restraining Dondero from communicating with Highland Capital employees, Dondero flouted the order by communicating with Ellington and Leventon and instructing other employees to resist document production requests, even though those documents were kept on Highland Capital's computer system.

125. Ellington and Leventon we terminated for cause on January 5, 2021, for acting in manner adverse to Highland Capital's interests.

126. Dondero, Ellington and Leventon evinced no respect for Highland Capital as an entity separate and apart from themselves. The bankruptcy also revealed discovery misconduct during the Delaware action with Daugherty, including a secret server that Dondero, Ellington, Leventon and others routinely used, which was concealed during discovery in the Delaware action with Daugherty. Additionally, the bankruptcy court twice found Dondero in contempt for violating a temporary restraining order. During testimony at the first show cause hearing, it was revealed that Dondero and Ellington destroyed their cell phones that were provided by Highland Capital. Yet, in the Delaware action with Daugherty, Leventon testified at his custodian of records deposition that Highland Capital did not "have access to people's phones" and that Highland Capital did not own any cell phones for the custodians.

127. On February 8, 2021, the Court agreed to confirm Highland Capital's bankruptcy plan, and the Court entered its plan Confirmation Order on February 22, 2021.

128. On August 11, 2021, Highland Capital's bankruptcy plan, as amended to date, became effective, and as a result, Highland Capital's ownership was restructured. Highland Capital became a wholly owned subsidiary of the Highland Claimant Trust, a newly formed liquidating trust owned by the creditors of Highland Capital. Specifically:

- The Highland Claimant Trust became the sole limited partner of Highland Capital.
- HCMLP GP LLC replaced Strand Advisors, Inc. as General Partner of Highland Capital. HCMLP GP LLC is also a wholly owned subsidiary of the Highland Claimant Trust.

- Seery serves as the Claimant Trustee of the Highland Claimant Trust and remains the CEO of Highland Capital today. Dondero and Okada are no longer involved in the management of Highland Capital or the Claimant Trust.

129. In the Bankruptcy, Daugherty filed claims estimated in excess of $40,000.000.00. In November 2021, Daugherty reached a settlement with Highland Capital for some of his claims and specifically retained the right to pursue Defendants in future litigation, i.e., this current lawsuit for these claims.

130. On March 1, 2022, during the settlement hearing, Highland Capital finally acknowledged, "Dondero, through Highland Capital, engaged in an asset-stripping campaign designed to render Plaintiff judgment-proof, further exposing Highland Capital to liability and unnecessary legal costs." Highland's new CEO, James Seery, testified:

> It actually looks like, frankly, the escrow was never really an escrow, and it was a -- it was a fraud from the beginning. And that one's a pretty disturbing one.

131. On April 1,2022, full ownership of Plaintiff and Highland ERA Management was transferred to Daugherty and his affiliates.

132. On May 11, 2022, Plaintiff instructed Abrams & Bayliss, Hunton Andrews Kurth, DLA Piper, Marc Katz/HAK/DLA, and Michal Hurst to forward all of its casefiles, records and invoices allocated to Plaintiff.

133. True to form, Hunton Andrews Kurth responded by letter on May 25, 2022, "Our records and research indicate that the Firm represented ERA and/or HERA [Plaintiff] in connection with only two matters. The first matter was opened on June 1, 2012, for which our records indicate we represented Highland Capital Management, LP ("Highland") and HERA [Plaintiff], and for which only 1.6 hours of attorney time was recorded. We have located no files for this matter other than an electronic record of the recorded time." They made this statement despite Katz/HAK/DLAP representing before the Delaware court that Plaintiff incurred millions of dollars in legal expenses, including those from his firm, making it insolvent.

134. Hunton Andrews Kurth continued, "Additionally, given that Daugherty now wholly owns and controls HERA [Plaintiff] and ERA, we believe we are constrained in what we may transfer. Your HERA [Plaintiff] and ERA file transfer request equates to Daugherty gaining access to his litigation adversaries' attorney's files. In this unique circumstance of a litigant seeking his adversary's attorney's file by acquiring control of one (or more) of his litigation adversary's attorney's former jointly represented clients, the case law we have reviewed favors protecting the co-client's justified expectation that its attorney's files will not be disclosed to its litigation adversary." Said another way, after invoicing millions of dollars in legal fees that were allocated to Plaintiff, Hunton Andrews Kurth continues to conceal their conduct by claiming some privilege based on jointly representing Highland Capital, Dondero and Plaintiff. Tellingly, Hunton Andrews Kurth could produce no retention agreement that named Dondero as a client nor did Dondero pay a single dollar for any such legal expenses. However, Plaintiff was allocated over 93% of the fees invoiced to Highland Capital.

135. DLA Piper delayed until July 22, 2022, to make the following similar response, "Second, as you know, DLA's representations of HERA [Plaintiff] and ERA in the Daugherty Case were joint representations in which DLA also represented HCMLP [Highland Capital] and Mr. Dondero. Mr. Daugherty is still adverse to Mr. Dondero in the Daugherty case and in Daugherty v. Dondero, No. 2019-0956 (Del. Ch.). That means that your request for the client file would result in DLA providing to one litigation party the privileged and work product-protected communications of its litigation adversary. Such a production "would be anathema to the principles underlying the policy of fostering unfettered attorney-client communication." Again, DLA Piper made this response despite having millions of dollars of its fees allocated to Plaintiff, representing Plaintiff in Delaware court, and producing no retention agreement that listed Dondero as a client or that he ever paid anything for the alleged representation.

136. Hurst never responded to Plaintiff's file and document request.

137. It was not until October 2022 and October 2023, after Plaintiff received documents from Highland Capital and Abrams & Bayliss pursuant to two books and records requests, that extensive billing fraud was revealed at the expense of Plaintiff at the hands of its lawyers Katz/HAK/DLAP, Hurst, Hunton Andrews Kurth, Abrams & Bayliss and others. Indeed, financial records and information from Highland Capital reveal that over $14,000,000 of expenses for other matters were allocated to Plaintiff, and its lawyers were aware of it.

138. Shockingly, Highland Capital and its partners, including Dondero, Okada, the Defendant trusts, Ellington, Boyce, Britain, Dougherty, Honis, Parker, had taken the tax benefits of these expenses with the assistance of Surgent, Leventon, Girard, Waterhouse, Swadley and Klos as though they were their own, despite knowing that the obligations to pay were allocated to Plaintiff. Surgent explained to Abrams & Bayliss that they did not want Daugherty to get the tax benefit of the expense/loss pass-throughs so they made the legal expense allocations effective after they received their 2013 buy-out proceeds.

139. Not surprisingly, when the details of the fraud were discovered, new management of Highland Capital realized a charge to the Plaintiff capital accounts in excess $10 million as an offset to write off over $10 million of falsely allocated debt resulting in a loss of capital account basis that could have been used by Plaintiff and its unit holders for tax purposes.

H. A Recurring Theme

140. This above-described acts are simply yet another example of an all-too familiar pattern where Dondero, Okada and Ellington strip the assets of entities they controlled to ensure that an aggrieved party could not collect on its hard-fought judgments or its rights of ownership. When challenged, they execute their well-honed tactics to lie, deny, conceal, and postpone, while attempting to exhaust their adversaries of funds as they ran out the clock. In this case, Plaintiff brings this action to recover tens of millions of dollars in damages that it suffered at the hands of Dondero, Okada, Ellington, and their enablers, acting in concert with other entities that they owned and/or controlled and with the aid of Plaintiff's own officers, directors and attorneys at the time who disregarded their duties to Plaintiff in favor of their own self-interests.

141. Plaintiff was stripped of its assets as retaliation against Daugherty for his assistance in recovery efforts of the following related matters:

1. Dondero Causes HCMLP To Engage In Misconduct Designed To Exact Revenge On Joshua Terry

142. In 2010, Dondero and Okada formed Acis Capital Management, L.P. ("Acis") and Acis Capital Management GP, LLC ("Acis GP") as a "lifeboat" to divert collateralized loan business fees from Highland Capital after its lenders placed security liens on its assets. Dondero was President both of Acis and Acis GP. Okada was Chief Investment Officer for all funds including those of Acis. Collectively, they controlled the investment and operating decisions of the Acis platform. Acis was initially indirectly owned by Dondero and Okada (through Highland Capital Management Services, Inc). Joshua Terry ("Terry"), a Highland Capital employee, later joined the platform in 2011 to manage Acis after its previous managers left Highland Capital. Like Plaintiff, Acis had no employees. Highland Capital was the investment manager for Acis, and Acis performed all of its services through Highland Capital employees. In 2013, Dondero modified Terry's ownership in Acis. As a result, Dondero and Okada, with the help of the Highland Capital legal team, once again engaged in a scheme to siphon value from Acis and transfer it back to Highland Capital.

143. By 2016, Dondero and Terry came to an impasse. Dondero sought to improperly finance a latex company investment in South America by causing a separate portfolio company, Trussway Industries Inc. ("Trussway"), to incur unnecessary debt and divert the loan proceeds to finance the purchase. Terry criticized the misconduct as a breach of their fiduciary duties to their investors. Dondero responded by firing him and making a pretextual claim of termination for "cause." Dondero also amended the partnership agreement to terminate Terry's interests in Acis and directed Acis to sue Terry in Texas state court. Terry counterclaimed and demanded arbitration.

144. On October 20, 2017, following a ten-day arbitration, the arbitration panel issued Terry an award of $7,949,749.15, plus interest, against Acis. The arbitration panel found, among other things, that (i) Terry's termination was "without cause," and Acis had "knowingly and willfully" invoked Highland Capital's false pretext of "for cause" in order to deny Terry his contractual entitlement to the value of his Acis partnership interest, (ii) Acis had breached its limited partnership agreement, and breached the fiduciary duties it owed to Terry as Acis's limited partner, (iii) beginning in 2013, Dondero had caused Acis to pay Highland Capital more than its contractual entitlement for shared expenses in order to reduce the amount of Terry's limited partnership distributions, and (iv) one month after Terry was terminated from Acis, Dondero significantly increased the amounts that Acis was paying Highland Capital under their shared services and sub-advisory agreements, retroactive to January 1, 2016.

145. Beginning on October 24, 2017—four days after Terry's arbitration judgment was issued—Dondero, acting through Highland Capital, and with the aid of Ellington, Leventon, and Surgent, entered into numerous transactions designed to take control of Acis's assets and business and strip Acis of assets so that it would be unable to pay Terry's arbitration award.

146. Dondero's elaborate schemes to render Acis judgment-proof led Terry to file involuntary petitions for protection under chapter 11 of the United States Bankruptcy Code against Acis and Acis GP on January 30, 2018. In response to the bankruptcy filings, Dondero caused Highland Capital, which served as the sub-advisor to the Acis CLOs, to grossly mismanage the Acis funds following the appointment of a chapter 11 trustee in the Acis bankruptcy case. This abrogation of duties caused the chapter 11 trustee to replace Highland Capital with Brigade Capital Management, LP ("Brigade") and Cortland Capital Markets Services LLC ("Cortland").

147. Dondero also caused Highland Capital to commence litigation against the Acis chapter 11 trustee, prompting a countersuit pursuant to which the chapter 11 trustee sought to recover fraudulent transfers Dondero had directed (through Highland Capital) and to stop Highland Capital from engaging in a course of conduct that was harmful to Acis and the Acis CLOs. This led to the entry of a temporary restraining order against Highland Capital, which Dondero caused Highland Capital to violate.

148. Daugherty communicated with Terry on several occasions regarding the extreme means utilized by Highland Capital against Daugherty, including sending constables to his home to execute collection efforts under false pretenses, stripping Plaintiff of its assets, and seeking to have Daugherty incarcerated. For the legal services provided by Hurst, Katz/HAK/DLAP for attacking Daugherty on behalf of Highland Capital, Plaintiff was allocated the bill.

2. Dondero And Ellington Expose HCMLP To Liability By Fraudulently Inducing An Investment From HarbourVest

149. Dondero and Ellington fraudulently induced an investment from third party investors HarbourVest 2017 Global Fund L.P., HarbourVest 2017 Global AIF L.P., HarbourVest Dover Street IX Investment L.P., HV International VIII Secondary L.P., HarbourVest Skew Base AIF L.P., and HarbourVest Partners L.P. (collectively, "HarbourVest"). At the same time that Dondero was surreptitiously transferring valuable rights associated with the Acis funds away from Acis in order to evade Terry's arbitration award, he and Ellington were using Highland Capital to induce the HarbourVest Entities to purchase 49.9% of HCLOF—the owner of the equity tranche of the Acis CLOs—from CLO Holdco for approximately $75 million in cash, with a commitment to invest an additional $75 million in HCLOF. In soliciting this investment, Dondero and Ellington failed to disclose material facts to HarbourVest regarding the Terry disputes and Acis frauds, thus exposing Highland Capital to substantial and unnecessary liability.

150. In inducing HarbourVest's investment, Dondero and Ellington, purportedly acting through Highland Capital, made numerous misrepresentations and omissions, including: (1) failing to disclose that Dondero intended to cause Acis to evade Terry's $7.9 million arbitration award against it, including by causing Acis to consummate a series of fraudulent transfers; (2) misrepresenting the reasons that Dondero changed the name of the holding company for the Acis CLOs from Acis Loan Funding, Ltd. ("ALF") to HCLOF immediately prior to the HCLOF Investment; and (3) expressing confidence in HCLOF's ability to reset or redeem the CLOs under its control, when in actuality Dondero's actions to evade Terry's arbitration award against Acis resulted in Acis's bankruptcy, and rendered the resets impossible.

151. Moreover, unbeknownst to HarbourVest, Dondero intended for CLO Holdco to use the $75 million that it received from HarbourVest to make investments in other Dondero controlled and owned entities, including entities managed by NexPoint and HCMFA. Thus, the HarbourVest investment benefited Dondero personally, but left Highland Capital exposed to hundreds of millions of dollars in potential damages to HarbourVest.

152. At various times in the Highland Capital bankruptcy, Daugherty coordinated with HarbourVest on an ad hoc steering committee basis to identify and seek the return of the assets looted from Highland Capital's estate, HarbourVest and Plaintiff.

3. Willful Misconduct in the Transfer of Highland Capital Credit Strategies Fund's Assets to Dondero, Okada and Ellington Controlled Entities

153. Another instance involved the Highland Capital Credit Strategies Fund judgment. In that case, Highland Capital was found to have engaged in distinct types of misconduct, where Dondero also personally threatened the redeemer committee's personnel with retribution. The most important aspect of the misconduct is that Highland Capital and Dondero effectively moved the assets to other Highland Capital-controlled entities for far less than their actual value. In fact, Highland Capital paid even less for the interest ($24 million) than it had marked the value on its own books ($28 million) and far less than valuations done by third parties, even those hired by Highland Capital (up to $37 million). Highland Capital did so in secret and the redeemer committee only found out when a line item referring to the $24 million as "Cornerstone sale proceeds" showed up in a regular cash report to the redeemer committee. An arbitration panel found that Highland Capital not only breached its obligations under the Plan of liquidation but engaged in willful misconduct in its sale of the Fund's Cornerstone equity. The panel found Highland Capital's explanations to excuse its conduct "to put it mildly, far-fetched."

154. Daugherty communicated several times with members of the Highland Capital Credit Strategies Fund regarding his views of the value and location of their assets pursuant to his ongoing fiduciary duties under the 1940 Advisors Act. In addition, his countersuit against Highland Capital revealed numerous acts of fraud and breaches of fiduciary duty that caused damage to Highland Capital Credit Strategies Fund. Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, Hurst, and Katz/HAK/DLAP embarked on a crusade to smear Daugherty and his law firm while filing numerous baseless show cause motions against him. In addition, the services of the Ashcroft Law Firm ("Ashcroft") were retained to conduct an independent "investigation" into the allegations made by Daugherty. Daugherty was never interviewed and not surprisingly, Ashcroft produced a report that absolved Highland Capital. The arbitration panel disagreed and found in favor of Highland Capital Credit Strategies Fund for over $30,000,000.00 in damages resulting from willful misconduct and breach of fiduciary duty. Once again, for these dubious legal services provided by Hurst, Katz/HAK/DLAP and other firms on behalf of Highland Capital, Plaintiff was allocated the bill.

4. Willful Misconduct in the Transfer of Highland Crusader Fund's Assets to Dondero, Okada and Ellington Controlled Entities

155. Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon also engaged in misconduct relating to Highland Capital managed funds Highland Offshore Partners L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, L.P., Highland Crusader Fund, Ltd., and Highland Crusader Fund II, Ltd. (collectively, the "Crusader Funds"). Highland Capital had placed the Crusader Funds into wind-down in October 2008. Investors in the funds subsequently commenced lawsuits alleging breach of fiduciary duty claims against Highland Capital, based on allegations that Dondero had refused to make mandated distributions and honor redemption requests, and traded the funds' positions in a manner designed to render them illiquid in order to deter future redemptions, which led to multiple disputes among redeeming investors. Certain of these lawsuits were resolved in July 2011, when the parties entered into a Joint Plan of Distribution of the Crusader Fund and a Scheme of Arrangement for its creditors (together, the "Joint Plan and Scheme"). As part of the Joint Plan and Scheme, a committee referred to as the "Redeemer Committee" was elected from the Crusader Funds' investors to oversee Highland Capital's wind-down of the Crusader Funds and distribution of proceeds to investors.

156. On July 5, 2016, the Redeemer Committee (i) terminated Highland Capital as investment manager; (ii) filed a complaint in Delaware Chancery Court against Highland Capital seeking a limited status quo order, a declaration that the Redeemer Committee had "cause" to terminate Highland Capital as manager, and a declaration that Highland Capital had forfeited any right to indemnification as a result of its failure to distribute proceeds to investors of various funds; and (iii) commenced an arbitration proceeding (the "Redeemer Arbitration") against Highland Capital alleging that it had engaged in various forms of misconduct in its role as investment advisor. After two years of arbitration proceedings, the Redeemer Arbitration culminated in a nine-day evidentiary hearing in September 2018 that included testimony from eleven fact witnesses and four expert witnesses. On March 6, 2019, the arbitration panel issued an award in favor of the Redeemer Committee, which resulted in gross damages of $136.8 million and total damages (including interest) of $190.8 million. Ultimately, the panel awarded ten forms of damages: (1) the Deferred Fee Claim ($43,105,395); (2) the Distribution Fee Claim ($22,922,608); (3) the Taking of Plan Claims ($3,277,991); (4) the CLO Trades Claim ($685,195); (5) the Credit Suisse Claim ($3,660,130); (6) the UBS Claim ($2,600,968); (7) the Barclays Claim ($30,811,366); (8) the Legal Fees, Costs, and Expenses Claim ($11,351,850); (9) the Portfolio Company Award ($71,894,891); and (10) the Administrative Fees Award ($514,164).

157. The claims that were asserted against Highland Capital by the Redeemer

Committee stemmed from the various breaches of fiduciary duty to the Crusader Funds that Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon caused Highland Capital to commit. For example, the "Barclays Claim"—which gave rise to over $30 million in liability for Highland Capital—arose out of Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon causing Highland Capital to transfer Barclays' limited partnership interests in the Crusader Funds to Highland Capital's wholly-owned affiliate, Eames, after the Redeemer Committee had already refused to approve that transfer. In so doing, Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon caused Highland Capital to violate the Joint Plan and Scheme and its fiduciary duties. Because of Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon's wrongful conduct, Highland Capital was ordered to pay: (1) over $30 million on account of disgorged partnership interests; (2) additional sums for disgorgement of distribution fees (that were included within the $22.9 million Distribution Fee Award); and (3) interest, fees, and expenses incurred in connection with the arbitration.

158. In addition, from December 2013 through January 2016, Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon caused Highland Capital to purchase 28 Plan Claims from Crusader investors in violation of the Redeemer Committee's right of first refusal ("ROFR"). During this time, Leventon told multiple investors interested in transfers of their interests that Highland had a ROFR to purchase any Plan Claims, never mentioning the Committee's prior and superior ROFR. Leventon also made affirmative misrepresentations to the Redeemer Committee to disguise the fact that Highland Capital had purchased the Plan Claims. Pursuant to the arbitration award, Highland Capital was required to transfer the 28 Plan Claims to the Redeemer Committee, and to disgorge to the Committee whatever financial benefits Highland Capital obtained from the 28 transactions, plus interest at the rate of 9% from the date of each purchase.

159. Dondero's, Ellington's, and Leventon's conduct also resulted in Highland Capital becoming liable to the Redeemer Committee for over $71 million in connection with claims arising from the Cornerstone Healthcare Group Capital ("Cornerstone") that was owned, directly and indirectly, by Highland Capital. Some of Cornerstone's stock was owned by the Crusader Funds. Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon caused Highland Capital to covertly purchase shares in Cornerstone from another fund that Dondero controlled at below-market prices and failed to liquidate the Crusader Funds' shares in Cornerstone as their fiduciary duties required. Pursuant to the arbitration award, Highland Capital was required to purchase the Crusader Funds' shares in Cornerstone at a fixed price of $48,070,407, and to pay pre-judgment interest that brought the total claim to $71,894,891.

160. Additionally, the Joint Plan and Scheme required Highland Capital to defer receipt of certain Deferred Fees until the liquidation of the Crusader Funds was complete. Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon caused Highland Capital to violate that provision of the Joint Plan and Scheme by causing Highland Capital to surreptitiously transfer approximately $32 million in Deferred Fees from the Crusader Funds' accounts on January 21 and April 6, 2016. The arbitration panel ruled that as a consequence of Dondero's, Ellington's, and Leventon's blatant breach of the payment requirements of the Joint Plan and Scheme, Highland Capital forfeited its right to these fees entirely.

161. The Redeemer Committee set a hearing in Delaware Chancery Court for October 8, 2019, to obtain entry of a judgment with respect to the award. The hearing was subsequently continued to October 16, 2019, before the same court presiding over the Daugherty causes involving Dondero, Highland Capital, Ellington, Leventon, Girard, Hurst, and Katz/HAK/DLAP. That morning, Highland Capital filed for bankruptcy.

162. Daugherty communicated several times with members of the Highland Crusader Fund regarding his views of the value and location of their assets pursuant to his ongoing fiduciary duties under the 1940 Advisors Act. In addition, his countersuit against Highland Capital revealed numerous acts of fraud and breaches of fiduciary duty that caused damage to Highland Crusader Fund. Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, Hurst, and Katz/HAK/DLAP embarked on a crusade to smear Daugherty and his legal counsel while filing numerous baseless show cause motions against him. In addition, Ashcroft was retained to conduct an independent "investigation" into the allegations made by Daugherty. Daugherty was never interviewed and, not surprisingly, Ashcroft produced a report that absolved Highland Capital and its officers. The arbitration panel disagreed and found in favor of Crusader Funds for over $190,000,000 in damages resulting from willful misconduct and breach of fiduciary duty among other things. Once again, for these dubious legal services provided by Hurst, and Katz/HAK/DLAP in attempting to silence Daugherty on behalf of Highland Capital, Plaintiff was allocated the bill.

5. Dondero And His Accomplices, Including Ellington, and Leventon, Cause Highland Capital To Engage In Misconduct That Increases Its Liability To UBS

163. In March 2017, the New York state court presiding over UBS's claims against Highland Capital and other fund counterparties ruled its claims could proceed to trial after numerous filings and dismissals since 2009. Shortly thereafter, Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon, along with Highland Capital employees Jean Paul Sevilla ("Sevilla"), Katie (Irving) Lucas ("Irving"), and Matthew DiOrio ("DiOrio") took steps to transfer the fund counterparty's remaining assets to Sentinel Reinsurance, Ltd. ("Sentinel"), a Cayman Islands entity indirectly owned and controlled by Dondero and Ellington, in order to ensure that such assets would be out of UBS's reach in the event that a judgment was entered in its favor.

164. In or around August 2017, Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, Sevilla, Lucas, and DiOrio orchestrated the surreptitious transfer of all of the fund counterparty's assets—with a face amount of $300 million and a market value of at least $100 million —to Sentinel.

165. The pretextual justification for these transfers was to satisfy a $25 million premium on an "after the event" insurance policy issued by Sentinel that insured the fund counterparty's first $100 million of liability to UBS. The real goal of the transfer, however, was to drain the fund counterparty's assets and render them judgment-proof, while keeping the assets within Dondero's and Ellington's control. There is no legitimate explanation as to why the funds transferred assets worth at least four times the premium payment to Sentinel. And given that Dondero and Ellington indirectly own and control Sentinel, they personally and improperly benefitted from this overpayment.

166. Moreover, Ellington and Leventon (along with Sevilla, Lucas, and DiOrio) actively concealed the transfer of assets and the existence of the insurance policy from the new Highland Capital management independent board ("Independent Board"), apparently in order to prevent the Fund Counterparties from making a claim under the policy. Indeed, Leventon, who was directly involved in the transfers to Sentinel, was tasked with educating the Independent Board about UBS's claim and the assets potentially available to satisfy it. In response, Leventon delivered an extensive—but intentionally misleading—presentation to the Independent Board that said nothing about the August 2017 asset transfer and the Sentinel insurance policy and lied to Highland Capital regarding the Fund Counterparties' assets. Additionally, around the same time that Ellington and Leventon were hiding this secret insurance policy from the Independent Board, (i) Ellington charged the policy for personal expenses in excess of $500,000 that bore no relation to the UBS litigation and provided no benefit whatsoever to the Fund Counterparties or Highland Capital; and (ii) Ellington and Leventon, among others, entered into agreements whereby Sentinel agreed to pay attorneys' fees and expenses they incurred in connection with Highland Capital's bankruptcy.

167. As a direct result of Ellington's and Leventon's fraudulent concealment of the transfers to Sentinel, Highland Capital inadvertently made factually inaccurate statements to the Bankruptcy Court and incurred millions of dollars in additional fees litigating (rather than settling) with UBS. In March 2021, after the policy was uncovered through Highland Capital's diligence (notwithstanding Ellington's and Leventon's cover-up), the CDO Fund made a claim on the policy. To date, Sentinel has refused to make any payments.

168. Daugherty communicated several times with members of the UBS team regarding his views of the value and location of their assets pursuant to his ongoing fiduciary duties under the 1940 Advisors Act. In addition, his countersuit against Highland Capital revealed numerous acts of fraud and breaches of fiduciary duty that caused damage to UBS. Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, Hurst, and Katz/HAK/DLAP embarked on a crusade to smear Daugherty and his counsel while filing numerous baseless show cause motions against him. In addition, Ashcroft was retained to conduct an independent "investigation" into the allegations made by Daugherty. Daugherty was never interviewed and not surprisingly, Ashcroft absolved Highland Capital in its report.

169. On February 10, 2020, the New York state court disagreed with the Ashcroft report and issued a judgment against the Highland Counterparties in connection with the phase one litigation in the principal amount of $519,374,149, plus $523,016,882.79 in prejudgment interest, for an overall judgment of $1,042,391,031.79. Trial on UBS's claims against Highland Capital was still pending when HCMLP filed for bankruptcy on October 16, 2019 (as discussed infra).

170. Once again, for these dubious legal services provided by Hurst, Katz/HAK/DLAP, on behalf of Highland Capital, Plaintiff was allocated the bill.

V.
CAUSES OF ACTION

COUNT ONE: BREACH OF FIDUCIARY DUTY #1 – BUYOUT AND SUBSEQUENT STRIPPING OF PLAINTIFF ASSETS 2013 – THE BOARD MEMBER GROUP DEFENDANTS

171. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

172. Boyce, Britain, Dameris, Dougherty, Ellington[3] and Honis (collectively, the

[3] There is a dispute as to whether Ellington was ever properly a board member due to the timing of the "election"

"Board Member Group") had a fiduciary relationship with Plaintiff as they served on the board of directors of Plaintiff.

173. The above described buy out and asset stripping scheme of 2013 was nothing more than a ruse to strip Plaintiff of its assets and its distributions for the benefit of Dondero, Okada, Boyce, Collins, Honis, Ellington, Leventon, Girard, and Waterhouse (collectively, "Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group").

174. Plaintiff discovered in 2022 that Dameris began the scheme with Dondero in December 2012 to strip Plaintiff of its assets for no value by collaborating with Abrams & Bayliss to "…. offer everyone but the 1 a buyout…." Plaintiff but did not learn that Abrams & Bayliss was "Delaware Counsel" until 2022 invoices when some of the invoices were finally provided.

175. Further, Plaintiff discovered in 2022 that in January 2013, Abrams and Bayliss, Boyce, Britain, Ellington, Dameris, Honis, Hurst, Katz and HAK, discussed, coordinated, prepared and reviewed documents prepared for Plaintiff to execute the scheme to strip Plaintiff of its assets for no value and transfer those assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Highland Capital and the Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Defendant Trusts.

176. They revealed their culpability by racing to create broad releases and indemnifications rights for themselves on January 17, 2013, as they attempted to facilitate the buyout.

177. Plaintiff discovered in 2022 that after the buyout, Leventon and Goldsmith identified over $14 million in assets and distribution transfers to Highland Capital and then Leventon lied under oath in multiple courts that such transfers of "non-certificated" limited partnership interests were simply not possible.

178. Further, Plaintiff discovered in 2022 that just prior to the Texas Litigation, and thus whether his vote counts and if it did so when it counted; however, that notwithstanding he took actions as a board member and is thus included in this group.

Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, Hurst, Brown, Abrams & Bayliss, Katz/HAK colluded in December 2013 to manufacture false and misleading evidence that an escrow account was created to hold over $3 million to be paid to Plaintiff upon final resolution of the Texas Litigation.

179. Plaintiff discovered in 2022 that Dameris concealed the value of Plaintiff's assets by saying to Highland Capital colleagues about one particular asset, "I hope he [Daugherty] does not find out about the parking garage deal value". During the Texas trial in 2014, Hurst, Brown and Dondero presented multiple lies about the timing and amount of the escrow to gain advantage for themselves by misleading the judge and jury. Dondero also lied when he testified at the Texas trial that the escrow assets "First go to HERA [Plaintiff]…." Dondero also lied when he testified that the delay caused in funding the escrow for Plaintiff was due to the illiquidity of the escrowed assets when no such assets were ever transferred to the escrow, and in fact the same assets were immediately transferred to Highland Capital purportedly in April 2013.

180. Plaintiff further discovered in 2022 that Abrams & Bayliss knew that Hurst and Brown stated false facts to the jury in the Texas Litigation regarding the assets in the escrow account and that they were falsely representing the contents therein. They also knew that "Highland is happy for Daugherty to be distracted by another front of warfare in Delaware while he is also fighting the appeal in Texas…… Playing obstructionist in Delaware and then filing the Texas bond after-the-fact if Daugherty seems to be succeeding might be fun for Highland, but I think it harms our credibility."

181. Plaintiff, discovered in 2022 that Miller of Abrams & Bayliss had the audacity to ask, "Do we look bad for claiming to hold non-monetary assets in escrow when on a day-to-day basis we have no idea what the status of these assets are? I personally am not looking forward to being deposed, even if I do know the questions ahead of time but will do it if I have to." Miller also acknowledged, "…although Highland doesn't seem to care what the Texas trial judge thinks of it, does Highland lose credibility with the Texas court if the Texas court pierces the escrow account and finds HERA's previous representations that the funds being held in escrow were false?"

182. Moreover Plaintiff discovered in 2022 that later in 2014, Girard colluded with Abrams & Bayliss further to conceal the true value of the escrow assets on behalf of Plaintiff that were previously presented to the Texas Litigaiton jury so that Highland Capital could collect a "windfall."

183. During the Delaware litigation in 2019 Dondero testified at trial that he was relying on the advice of counsel, who are co-Defendants in this action, with respect to the buyout of all Plaintiff unit holders except Daugherty, the purported assignment of all assets from Plaintiff in 2013, and the taking of assets from Plaintiff in December 2016, all of which formed part of the fraud that was consummated in December 2016.

184. The Board Member Group breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporation's interest above the directors own by failing to evaluate the buyout offer for fairness.

185. The Board Member Group breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporation's interest above the directors own by failing to disclose all material facts about the buyout offer including that the board members were controlled by Highland Capital and that Boyce, Britain, and Honis were partners of Highland Capital.

186. The Board Member Group breached its fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporation's interest above the directors own by knowing that the buyout offer had been tendered and doing nothing to assure full disclosure of the buyout offer.

187. The Board Member Group breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff. specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporation's interest above the directors own by doing nothing to challenge, and in fact facilitating, the Dondero-led buyout by Highland Capital and allowing a "creeping takeover" unobstructed by a standstill agreement or poison pill.

188. The Board Member Group breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation, duty to place the corporations interest above the directors own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers relations with the corporation by failing to require abstention from conflicted board members who were simultaneously partners and employees of Highland Capital and stood to gain by acquiring the assets of Plaintiff at a substantial discount.

189. The Board Member Group breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporations interest above the directors own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers relations with the corporation by attempting to acquire broad releases and indemnifications rights for themselves to protect against liability caused by their breaching of fiduciary duties by allowing the buyout or creeping takeover to occur.

190. The Board Member Group breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporation's interest above the directors own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers relations with the corporation by ignoring Plaintiff's existing governance at the time of the buyout, which prohibited a buyout or purchase by Highland Capital. The Board Member Group instead negotiated for their own individual buyout, abdicated their duties as board members, accepted the buyout, surrendered their rights in Preferred Units of Plaintiff pursuant to the terms of the Transfer Agreement, and automatically surrendered their positions as board members of Plaintiff leaving Plaintiff with no one except Abrams & Bayliss, Hurst, Brown, Katz, Andrews Kurth, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group to conduct its affairs.

191. The Board Member Group breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporations interest above the directors own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers relations with the corporation by participating in a scheme to strip Plaintiff of its assets pursuant to the April 2013 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis.

192. The Board Member Group breached its fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporations interest above the directors own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers relations with the corporation by participating in the 2013 asset stripping scheme that left Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts.

193. The Board Member Group breached its fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporations interest above the directors own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers relations with the corporation by causing Plaintiff to incur unnecessary legal expenses so that Dondero could use Plaintiff's relationship with Daugherty to exact his vengeance on Daugherty.

194. The Board Member Group breached its fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporation's interest above the directors own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers relations with the corporation by allocating legal expenses incurred by Highland Capital to Plaintiff.

195. The Board Member Group's breaches proximately caused injury to Plaintiff in forcing it to lose all of its assets and incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff.

COUNT TWO: BREACH OF FIDUCIARY DUTY #2 – BUYOUT AND SUBSEQUENT STRIPPING OF PLAINTIFF ASSETS 2013 – DONDERO ERA MANAGEMENT DEFENDANTS

196. Dondero and his alter ego, Highland ERA Management, LLC ("ERA" and together, "Dondero ERA Management")[4] had a fiduciary relationship with Plaintiff in February 2013. ERA was a limited liability company created by Dondero, as President, in collaboration with Surgent, Dameris, Ellington, Leventon, Surgent, Abrams & Bayliss, Hurst, Katz/HAK, Boyce, Britain and Honis purportedly to serve as the sole general partner and manager of Plaintiff after the Board Member Group vacated their director positions.

197. Dondero ERA Management breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporations interest above the manager's own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers and managers relations with the corporation when they purported to implement an action by written consent in February 2013 that allocated 93% of Highland Capital's expenses related to the Highland Capital v.

[4] ERA Management is not a party to this lawsuit as it is also an entity that Daugherty obtained control of from the Delaware settlement.

Daugherty litigation to Plaintiff that ultimately benefited Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis.

198. Dondero ERA Management breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporations interest above the manager's own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers and manager relations with the corporation by failing to require abstention from conflicted Dondero ERA Management who were simultaneously President and managing partner at Highland Capital and President, Manager and general partner at Plaintiff in February 2013, when they implemented an action by consent that allocated 93% of Highland Capital's expenses related to the Highland Capital v. Daugherty litigation to Plaintiff that ultimately benefited Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis.

199. Dondero ERA Management breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporations interest above the manager's own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers and managers relations with the corporation by attempting to acquire broad releases and indemnification rights for themselves in 2013 to protect against liability caused by their breaching of fiduciary duties in allowing the asset transfer to occur, the expense allocation to occur, the unnecessary legal expenses to occur, and the costs associated with the fraudulent escrow account.

200. Dondero ERA Management breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of due care, duty of loyalty, duty to use uncorrupted business judgment for the sole benefit of the corporation and duty to place the corporations interest above the manager's own interest and the duty of the utmost good faith in the officers and manager's relations with the corporation by failing to require abstention from conflicted Dondero ERA Management who were attempting to acquire broad releases and indemnifications rights for themselves in 2013 to protect against liability caused by their breaching of fiduciary duties in allowing the asset transfer to occur, the expense allocation to occur, the unnecessary legal expenses to occur, and the costs associated with the fraudulent escrow account.

201. 225. Abrams & Bayliss, Hurst and Katz/HAK (collectively, "Outside Legal Providers Group #1") had a fiduciary relationship with Plaintiff in that they acted as attorneys for and provided legal services to Plaintiff.

226. Abrams & Bayliss stated in its engagement letter, "You are engaging us solely to provide civil litigation and related services in connection with the civil action pending in the District Court of Dallas County, Texas, styled Highland Capital Management, L.P. v. Daugherty, No. 12-04005. We refer to our advice with respect to this matter as the 'Representation.' Our engagement is limited to the Representation. We are not acting as your counsel generally or on other matters. We are engaged to represent you as your exclusive Delaware counsel in connection with the Representation. With respect to entities or persons generally affiliated or associated with you, including entities owned by or otherwise related to you, you agree that the Firm is not being asked to provide, and will not be providing, legal advice to, or establishing an attorney-client relationship with, any such affiliated entity or person in his, her, or its individual capacity and will not be expected to do so unless the Firm has been asked and has specifically agreed to do so in writing. Additionally, although in the course of our Representation we may receive or provide information or advice from or to your affiliates, associates, agents, or employees, our engagement is to represent you and not any of your affiliates, associates, agents, or employees."

227. Abrams & Bayliss further stated, "We understand that you have retained Gruber Hurst Johansen Hail Shank LLP ('Gruber Hurst') with respect to matters related to the Representation. We expect to consult with Gruber Hurst, and you have confirmed that we may rely on instructions given and information provided by Gruber Hurst as to all matters involving the Representation and that, absent written notice from you, we may take direction from Gruber Hurst as if provided directly by you." Hurst and Brown were the lead attorneys at Gruber Hurst that provided legal services to and invoiced Plaintiff.

228. The civil litigation in Texas pertaining to Plaintiff was limited to the breach of its implied duty of good faith and fair dealing with regard to the damages to Daugherty's interest in Plaintiff caused by the implementation of Article XII Dispute Resolution of the Second Amended and Restated Limited Liability Company Agreement of Highland Employee Retention Assets, LLC on February 16, 2012 where the jury determined such bad faith actions to have caused a diminution in Daugherty's interests[5]

229. Importantly, the Texas Litigation against Plaintiff did not include actions against or on behalf of Highland Capital or Sierra Verde, nor did it include corporate actions based on asset transfers.

230. Katz/HAK purported to represent Plaintiff in Delaware Court through 2017 up until the Highland Capital bankruptcy filing in 2019.

264. Dondero, Okada and Honis breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of loyalty and utmost good faith, duty of candor, duty to refrain from self-dealing, duty to act with integrity of the strictest kind, duty of honest fair dealing, the duty of full disclosure by serving in the capacity as advisors to Plaintiff in addition to that of its largest investment, Restoration Capital Partners, and allowing Plaintiff's remaining escrow assets to be transferred to Highland Capital in December 2016 for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

265. Collins breached his fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of loyalty and utmost good faith, duty of candor, duty to refrain from self-dealing, duty to act with integrity of the strictest kind, duty of honest fair dealing, the duty of full disclosure by serving in the capacity as administrator, implementor and executor to effectuate the stripping of the remaining assets from the escrow in December 2016 and the transfer of those assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

266. Waterhouse and Leventon breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of loyalty and utmost good faith, duty of candor, duty to refrain from self-dealing, duty to act with integrity of the strictest kind, duty of honest fair dealing, the duty of full disclosure by preparing, allocating, approving and/or signing accounting statements and tax returns from 2013 to 2022 that transferred substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital, falsely allocated Highland Capital expenses to Plaintiff, wrongly failed to indicate payments made by Daugherty and falsely recognized loan obligations back to Highland Capital.

267. Ellington, Leventon and Girard breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of loyalty and utmost good faith, duty of candor, duty to refrain from self-dealing, duty to act with integrity of the strictest kind, duty of honest fair dealing, the duty of full disclosure by wrongfully participating in and coordinating the 2016 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Highland Capital, Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

268. Ellington, Leventon and Girard breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty of loyalty and utmost good faith, duty of candor, duty to refrain from self-dealing, duty to act with integrity of the strictest kind, duty of honest fair dealing, the duty of full disclosure when they collaborated with outside counsel Katz/HAK, and Abrams & Bayliss in December 2016 to transfer Plaintiff's remaining assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

269. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group's breaches proximately caused injury to Plaintiff in forcing Plaintiff to lose all of its assets and incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff.

COUNT SEVEN: BREACH OF FIDUCIARY DUTY #7 –TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016- OUTSIDE LEGAL PROVIDERS GROUP #2 DEFENDANTS

270. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth below.

271. Abrams & Bayliss, Hurst, Katz/HAK and Brown (collectively, "Outside Legal Providers Group #2") had a fiduciary relationship with Plaintiff in that they acted as attorneys for and provided legal.

272. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty to represent the Plaintiff with undivided loyalty, duty to act with absolute perfect candor, openness and honesty without any concealment or deception, duty to be strictly honest about fee arrangements, duty to inform the Plaintiff of matters of material representation, and the duty to timely inform Plaintiff of conflict of interest when they developed, advised and assisted the implementation of the Dondero scheme that transferred Plaintiff's remaining assets from escrow in 2016 to Highland Capital for the benefit of Highland Capital, Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington, and Honis.

273. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty to represent the Plaintiff with undivided loyalty, duty to act with absolute perfect candor, openness and honesty without any concealment or deception, duty to be strictly honest about fee arrangements, duty to inform the Plaintiff of matters of material representation, and the duty to timely inform Plaintiff of conflict of interest when they failed to inform Plaintiff's managers of their duties to Plaintiff regarding the escrow assets and subsequent transfer of assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Highland Capital, Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis despite performing legal analysis of the previous board members' breach of fiduciary duty to Plaintiff and its unit holders on December 2016.

274. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty to represent the Plaintiff with undivided loyalty, duty to act with absolute perfect candor, openness and honesty without any concealment or deception, duty to be strictly honest about fee arrangements, duty to inform the Plaintiff of matters of material representation, and the duty to timely inform Plaintiff of conflict of interest when they collaborated with Ellington, Leventon and Girard in December 2016 to transfer Plaintiff's remaining assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Highland Capital, Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

275. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty to represent the Plaintiff with undivided loyalty, duty to act with absolute perfect candor, openness and honesty without any concealment or deception, duty to be strictly honest about fee arrangements, duty to inform the Plaintiff of matters of material representation, and the duty to timely inform Plaintiff of conflict of interest by knowing their invoices were being double allocated to both Plaintiff and Highland Capital while representing to the Delaware Court that they were allocated to Plaintiff.

292. The Board Member Group's breaches caused Plaintiff injury.

COUNT NINE: IMPLIED DUTIES OF GOOD FAITH AND FAIR DEALING #1 – BUYOUT AND SUBSEQUENT STRIPPING OF PLAINTIFF ASSETS 2013 – BOARD MEMBER GROUP DEFENDANTS

293. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth below.

294. The Board Member Group owed Plaintiff an implied duty of good faith and fair dealing due to their contractual relationship.

295. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that the Board Member Group would allow Plaintiff's assets to be stripped and transferred to Highland Capital in April 2013 for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis for no value. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, The Board Member Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by failing to protect it from having its assets stripped and instead facilitating the transfer of those assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis for no value.

296. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that The Board Member Group would allow Plaintiff's assets to be stripped leaving Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, the Board Member Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing by participating in the 2013 asset stripping scheme that left Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts.

297. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that The Board Member Group would allocate Highland Capital's legal expenses to Plaintiff (including those already repaid by Daugherty). The Board Member Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, The Board Member Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing by allocating legal expenses incurred by Highland Capital to Plaintiff.

298. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that The Board Member Group would double allocate legal expenses to Plaintiff that were incurred by Highland Capital and repaid by Daugherty. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, The Board Member Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing by double allocating legal expenses to Plaintiff that were incurred by Highland Capital and repaid by Daugherty.

299. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that The Board Member Group would participate in preparing, revising, and distributing certain documents designed to strip Plaintiff of all its assets and assist the board members in shielding their liability by doing so. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, The Board Member Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff when they participated in preparing, revising, and distributing certain documents designed to strip Plaintiff of all its assets and assist the board members in shielding their liability. Those documents include but are not limited to:

- WRITTEN CONSENT OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF HIGHLAND EMPLOYEE RETENTION ASSETS LLC - Effective as of January 18, 2013 – Regarding approving a resolution to transfer of Series A Preferred units to Highland Capital in violation of Article IX, and accepting Highland Capitals offer to purchase in violation of Section 5.2(b)(ii).
- WRITTEN CONSENT OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF HIGHLAND EMPLOYEE RETENTION ASSETS LLC - Effective as of January 17, 2013 – Regarding approving amendment to Article VIII – Expanded indemnification for board;
- WRITTEN CONSENT OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF HIGHLAND EMPLOYEE RETENTION ASSETS LLC - Effective as of January 17, 2013 – Regarding removing of Joseph Dougherty as board member and replacing him with Scott Ellington;
- WRITTEN CONSENT OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF HIGHLAND EMPLOYEE RETENTION ASSETS LLC - Effective as of January 17, 2013 – Regarding removal of Walia as board member and approving Amendment;

- AMENDMENT TO SECOND AMENDED AND RESTATED LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY AGREEMENT OF HIGHLAND EMPLOYEE RETENTION ASSET, LLC – Dated January 17, 2013, to add Ellington to board, remove Walia from board and reduce board size to five members by Boyce, Britain, Dameris, Honis and Ellington;
- SECOND AMENDMENT TO SECOND AMENDED AND RESTATED LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY AGREEMENT OF HIGHLAND EMPLOYEE RETENTION ASSET, LLC – Dated January 17, 2013, purporting to amend ARTICLE VIII in its entirety and provide the self-dealing board members with broad indemnification for the bad conduct they just participated in.
- THIRD AMENDMENT TO SECOND AMENDED AND RESTATED LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY AGREEMENT OF HIGHLAND EMPLOYEE RETENTION ASSET, LLC – Dated January 18, 2013, purporting to amend section 5.1 and 5.2. to allow assignment to Highland capital.
- WRITTEN CONSENT OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF HOLDERS OF SERIES A PREFERRED - Effective as of January 18, 2013 – purporting to consent to the Amendment for ARTICLE VIII modification to grant broad releases to the board that just ignored their fiduciary duties at the advice of A&B and Hurst and Brown.
- WRITTEN CONSENT OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF HOLDERS OF SERIES A PREFERRED - Effective as of January 18, 2013 – purporting to consent to the Amendment Section 5.1 and 5.2 modification to alter board member service requirements and approve recommendation of assignment of preferred units to Highland Capital.
- TRANSFER AGREEMENT – for the buyout and release of claims against Plaintiff.
- OFFER TO PURCHASE – dated January 15, 2013with recommendation for dispute reserve and fairness opinion that did not happen.

- THIRD AMENDED AND RESTATED LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY AGREEMENT OF HIGHLAND EMPLOYEE RETENTION ASSET, LLC – Dated February 1, 2013, regarding allocation of Highland Capital's legal expenses to Plaintiff.
- EXPENSE ALLOCATION AGREEMENT – Dated February 1, 2013, regarding allocation of Highland Capital's legal expenses to Plaintiff.
- WRITTEN CONSENT OF MANAGER - Effective as of February 1, 2013 – regarding allocation of Highland Capital's legal expenses to Plaintiff.

300. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that The Board Member Group would participate in preparing, allocating, approving, or signing false accounting statements and tax returns that purported to transfer all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital, falsely allocate Highland Capital expenses to Plaintiff, and falsely allocate loan obligations back to Highland Capital. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, The Board Member Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by participating in preparing, allocating, approving, or signing false accounting statements and tax returns that purported to transfer all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital, falsely allocate Highland Capital expenses to Plaintiff, and falsely allocate loan obligations back to Highland Capital.

301. Ellington and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Ellington would falsely represent himself to be a board member for a three-day period to legitimize and effectuate the Dondero scheme to transfer Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis. Ellington and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Ellington breached his implied duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by falsely representing to be a board member for a three-day period to legitimize and effectuate the Dondero scheme to transfer Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis. [This should probably get moved to the next section since he was not a board member].

302. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that The Board Member Group would allow Dondero to use Plaintiff's relationship with Daugherty to further his vendetta against Daugherty causing Plaintiff to incur unnecessary legal expenses and loss. The Board Member Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, The Board Member Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing by causing Plaintiff to incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff.

303. The Board Member Group's breaches caused Plaintiff injury.

304. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth below.

305. Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon testified that management, administration, legal, accounting, tax, and implementation services were provided to Plaintiff under a Blanket Agreement.

306. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group owed Plaintiff an implied duty of good faith and fair dealing due to their contractual relationship.

307. The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group would not protect Plaintiff from having its assets stripped and instead would facilitate the transfer of those assets to Highland Capital in April 2013 for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by allowing it to have its assets stripped and instead facilitated the transfer of those assets to Highland Capital in April 2013 for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis.

308. The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group would participate in the 2013 asset stripping scheme that left Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, the Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing by participating in the 2013 asset stripping scheme that left Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts.

317. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth below.

318. Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon testified that management, administration, legal, accounting, tax, and implementation services were provided to Plaintiff under a Blanket Agreement. [I'm not sure this is proper here].

319. Dondero and his alter ego, Highland ERA Management, LLC ("ERA" and together, "Dondero ERA Management") owed Plaintiff implied duties of good faith and fair dealing in February 2013. ERA was a limited liability company created by Dondero, as President, in collaboration with Surgent, Dameris, Ellington, Leventon, Surgent, Abrams & Bayliss, Hurst, Katz/HAK, Boyce, Britain and Honis purportedly to serve as the sole general partner and manager of Plaintiff after the Board Member Group vacated their director positions.

320. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would attempt to implement an action by written consent in February 2013 that allocated 93% of Highland Capital's expenses related to the Texas and Delaware litigation to Plaintiff that ultimately benefited Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing to implement an action by written consent in February 2013 that allocated 93% of Highland Capital's expenses related to the Texas and Delaware litigation to Plaintiff that ultimately benefited Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis.

321. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would not require abstention from conflicted Dondero ERA Management who were simultaneously President and managing partner at Highland and President, Manager and general partner at Plaintiff in February 2013, when they implemented an action by consent that allocated 93% of Highland Capital's expenses related to the Texas and Delaware litigation to Plaintiff that ultimately benefited Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their implied duty of good faith and fair dealing to plaintiff when they implemented an action by consent that allocated 93% of Highland Capital's expenses related to the Texas and Delaware litigation to Plaintiff that ultimately benefited Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis.

322. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would attempt to acquire broad releases and indemnification rights for themselves in 2013 to protect against liability caused by their breaching of fiduciary duties in allowing the 2013 asset transfer to occur, the expense allocation to occur, the unnecessary legal expenses to occur, and the costs associated with the fraudulent escrow account in December 2013. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by attempting to acquire broad releases and indemnification rights for themselves in 2013 to protect against liability caused by their breaching of fiduciary duties in allowing the asset transfer to occur, the expense allocation to occur, the unnecessary legal expenses to occur, and the costs associated with the fraudulent escrow account.

323. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would not abstain from attempting to acquire broad releases and indemnification rights for themselves in 2013 to protect against liability caused by their breaching of fiduciary duties in allowing the 2013 asset transfer to occur, the expense allocation to occur, the unnecessary legal expenses to occur, and the costs associated with the fraudulent escrow account in December 2013. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by not abstaining before attempting to acquire broad releases and indemnification rights for themselves in 2013 to protect against liability caused by their breaching of fiduciary duties in allowing the asset transfer to occur, the expense allocation to occur, the unnecessary legal expenses to occur, and the costs associated with the fraudulent escrow account.

324. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would participate in a scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its assets pursuant to the April 2013 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by participating in a scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its assets pursuant to the April 2013 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis.

325. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would not abstain from participating in a scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its assets pursuant to the April 2013 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by not abstaining from participating in a scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its assets pursuant to the April 2013 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis.

326. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would participate in an asset stripping scheme that would leave Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts. Dondero ERA

Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by participating in an asset stripping scheme that would leave Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts.

327. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider that Dondero ERA Management would double allocate legal expenses to Plaintiff that were incurred by Highland Capital and repaid by Daugherty. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing by double allocating legal expenses to Plaintiff that were incurred by Highland Capital and repaid by Daugherty.

328. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider that Dondero ERA Management would approve and/or sign accounting statements and tax returns from 2013 to 2022 that purported to transfer substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital, falsely allocated Highland Capital expenses to Plaintiff, and falsely recognized loan obligations back to Highland Capital. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by approving and/or signing accounting statements and tax returns from 2013 to 2022 that purported to transfer substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital, falsely allocated Highland Capital expenses to Plaintiff, and falsely recognized loan obligations back to Highland Capital.

329. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider that Dondero ERA Management would falsely represent to be the President and manager of Plaintiff while secretly concealing the documentation and governance documents that proved they had no legitimate authority for the purpose of legitimizing and effectuating the Dondero scheme to transfer Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by falsely representing to be the President and manager of Plaintiff while secretly concealing the documentation and governance documents that proved they had no legitimate authority for the purpose of legitimizing and effectuating the Dondero scheme to transfer Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis.

330. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider that Dondero ERA Management would conceive and falsify misleading evidence that was presented to a judge and Texas jury to represent that certain assets transferred from Plaintiff in April 2013 were held in an escrow account as of December 2013. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff when they collaborated with Brown, Hurst, Katz/HAK, Abrams & Bayliss, Dondero, Ellington, Leventon and Surgent to conceive and falsify misleading evidence that was presented to a judge and Texas jury to represent that certain assets transferred from Plaintiff in April 2013 were held in an escrow account as of December 2013.

331. Dondero ERA Management's breaches proximately caused injury to Plaintiff in forcing Plaintiff to lose all of its assets and incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff.

COUNT TWELVE: BREACH OF IMPLIED GOOD FAITH AND FAIR DEALING #4 – TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016- DONDERO ERA MANAGEMENT DEFENDANTS

332. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

333. Dondero ERA Management owed Plaintiff an implied duty of good faith and fair dealing in 2016. ERA was a limited liability company created by Dondero, as President, in collaboration with Surgent, Dameris, Ellington, Leventon, Surgent, Abrams & Bayliss, Hurst, Katz/HAK, Boyce, and Britain purportedly to serve as the sole general partner and manager of Plaintiff after the Board Member Group vacated their director positions.

334. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider that Dondero ERA Management would participate in a new December 2016 scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its remaining assets in an escrow account including a valuable purported interest in Highland Restoration Partners fund and substantial cash and transfer those interest to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain Trust, Ellington and Honis. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by participating in a new December 2016 scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its remaining assets in an escrow account including a valuable purported interest in Highland Restoration Partners fund and substantial cash. These interests were assigned to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain Trust, Ellington and Honis.

335. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider that Dondero ERA Management would fail to require themselves to abstain from conflicted positions regarding a scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its remaining assets in escrow pursuant to the December 2016 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiff's remaining assets to Highland Capital Highland Capital for the benefit of Highland Capital, Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain Trust, Ellington, and Honis. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by failing to require abstention from conflicted Dondero ERA Management who were participating in a scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its remaining assets in escrow pursuant to the December 2016 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiff's remaining assets to Highland Capital Highland Capital for the benefit of Highland Capital, Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain Trust, Ellington, and Honis.

Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly,, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by failing to require abstention from conflicted Dondero ERA Management who were participating in a scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its remaining assets in escrow pursuant to the December 2016 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiff's remaining assets to Highland Capital Highland Capital for the benefit of Highland Capital, Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain Trust, Ellington, and Honis.

338. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would participate in an asset stripping scheme that would leave Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts. Dondero ERA

Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by participating in an asset stripping scheme that would leave Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts.

339. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would cause injury to Plaintiff in forcing Plaintiff to lose all of its assets in escrow and incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by causing injury to Plaintiff in forcing Plaintiff to lose all of its assets in escrow and incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff.

340. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would fail to evaluate the fairness of the escrow transfer on behalf of all preferred unit holders of Plaintiff. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by failing to evaluate the fairness of the escrow transfer on behalf of all preferred unit holders of Plaintiff.

341. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would ignore Plaintiff's existing governance at the time of the escrow transfers that prohibited substantial assets transfers without amendment. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by ignoring Plaintiff's existing governance at the time of the escrow transfers that prohibited substantial assets transfers without amendment.

342. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Dondero ERA Management would cause injury to Plaintiff in forcing Plaintiff to lose all of its escrow assets and incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff. Dondero ERA Management and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Dondero ERA Management breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by causing injury to Plaintiff in forcing Plaintiff to lose all of its escrow assets and incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff.

COUNT THIRTEEN: BREACH OF IMPLIED DUTY OF GOOD FAITH AND FAIR DEALING #5 –TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016- HIGLAND CAPITAL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES GROUP DEFENDANTS

343. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth below.

344. Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon testified that management, administration, legal, accounting, tax, and implementation services were provided to Plaintiff under a Blanket Agreement.

345. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group owed Plaintiff an implied duty of good faith and fair dealing in 2016.

346. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff did not consider that Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group would participate in a new December 2016 scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its remaining assets in an escrow account including a valuable purported interest in Highland Restoration Partners fund and substantial cash and transfer those interest to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain Trust, Ellington and Honis. Accordingly, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by participating in an asset stripping scheme that would leave Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts.

349. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group would cause injury to Plaintiff in forcing Plaintiff to lose all of its assets in escrow and incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by causing injury to Plaintiff in forcing Plaintiff to lose all of its assets in escrow and incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff.

350. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group would fail to evaluate the fairness of the escrow transfer on behalf of all preferred unit holders of Plaintiff. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by failing to evaluate the fairness of the escrow transfer on behalf of all preferred unit holders of Plaintiff.

351. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group would ignore Plaintiff's existing governance at the time of the escrow transfers that prohibited substantial assets transfers without amendment. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff by ignoring Plaintiff's existing governance at the time of the escrow transfers that prohibited substantial assets transfers without amendment.

352. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group would cause injury to Plaintiff by forcing Plaintiff to lose all of its escrow assets and incur unnecessary legal expenses by allocating over $14 million in legal expenses, including cocktails and meals, incurred on behalf of Highland Capital and its affiliates to Plaintiff [including but not limited to Hutton Andrews Kurth, DLA Piper, Gruber Hurst, Abrams & Bayliss, Lynn Pinker Hurst Schwegman, Ashcroft Law Firm, Cole Schotz, Morgan Lewis, Stanton Law Firm, Bell Nunnally, Cooke Young & Keidan, Fish & Richardson, Gardner Haas, Greenberg Traurig, The Griffith Law Firm, Hutcherson Law, Littler Mendelson, Nutter, McLennen & Fish, Contractual Counsel, Robert Half, The Stanton Law Firm, Berkeley Research Group, Bloom Strategic Consulting, CBIZ valuation Group, Digital Works, Duff and Phelps, Elite Document Technology, Esquire Deposition Solutions, Folks & Associates, Point Multimedia, Phil Rochefort Audio Services, Gary Durham Consulting, JAMS Inc, Matthew Okolita, and Michael Colvin.] by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff. 353. Ellington, Leventon and Plaintiff did not consider at the time of contracting that Ellington and Leventon would breach their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff when they collaborated with outside counsel Katz/HAK, and Abrams & Bayliss in December 2016 to transfer Plaintiff's remaining escrow assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Plaintiff would have prohibited such conduct if the parties had considered it. Accordingly, Ellington and Leventon breached their duty of good faith and fair dealing to Plaintiff when they collaborated with outside counsel Katz/HAK, and Abrams & Bayliss in December 2016 to transfer Plaintiff's remaining escrow assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

354. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group's breaches caused Plaintiff injury.

COUNT FOURTEEN: BREACH OF CONTRACT #2 –TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016- HIGLAND CAPITAL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES GROUP DEFENDANTS

355. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth below.

356. Plaintiff had a valid, enforceable contractual relationship with Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group. Plaintiff is a property party to bring suit for breach of contract. Plaintiff performed, tendered performance of, or was excused from performing its contractual obligations.

357. Dondero, Ellington, and Leventon testified that management, administration, legal, accounting, tax, administration, and implementation services were provided to Plaintiff under a Blanket Agreement.

358. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract by failing to protect Plaintiff from having its remaining assets stripped from the escrow in December 2016 and instead facilitated the transfer of those assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

359. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract by participating in the 2016 remaining asset stripping scheme that left Plaintiff insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts.

360. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract by allocating over $14 million in legal expenses, including cocktails and meals, incurred on behalf of Highland Capital and its affiliates to Plaintiff, including but not limited to Hutton Andrews Kurth, DLA Piper, Gruber Hurst, Abrams & Bayliss, Lynn Pinker Hurst Schwegman, Ashcroft

Law Firm, Cole Schotz, Morgan Lewis, Stanton Law Firm, Bell Nunnally, Cooke Young & Keidan, Fish & Richardson, Gardner Haas, Greenberg Traurig, The Griffith Law Firm, Hutcherson Law, Littler Mendelson, Nutter, McLennen & Fish, Contractual Counsel, Robert Half, The Stanton Law Firm, Berkeley Research Group, Bloom Strategic Consulting, CBIZ valuation Group, Digital Works, Duff and Phelps, Elite Document Technology, Esquire Deposition Solutions, Folks & Associates, Point Multimedia, Phil Rochefort Audio Services, Gary Durham Consulting, JAMS Inc, Matthew Okolita, and Michael Colvin.

361. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract by double allocating legal expenses to Plaintiff that were incurred by Highland Capital and repaid by Daugherty.

362. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract by serving in the capacity as advisor to Plaintiff in addition to that of its largest investment, Restoration Capital Partners, and allowing Plaintiff's remaining escrow assets to be transferred to Highland Capital in December 2016 for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

363. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract by allocating legal expenses incurred by Highland Capital to Plaintiff.

364. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract by preparing, allocating, approving, or signing accounting statements and tax returns from 2013 to 2022 that transferred substantially all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital, falsely allocated Highland Capital expenses to Plaintiff, wrongly failed to indicate payments made by Daugherty and falsely indicated loan obligations back to Highland Capital.

365. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract by wrongfully participating in and coordinating the 2016 assignment of all of Plaintiffs assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

366. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract when they collaborated with outside counsel Katz/HAK, and Abrams & Bayliss in December 2016 to transfer Plaintiff's remaining assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.

367. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group breached the contract when they caused Plaintiff to incur unnecessary legal expenses by involving Plaintiff in their scheme to deprive Daugherty of his interests in Plaintiff.

368. Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group's breaches caused Plaintiff injury.

COUNT FIFTEEN - BREACH OF CONTRACT #3 –CHARGING OF EXCESSIVE ATTORNEYS FEES- OUTSIDE LEGAL PROVIDERS GROUP #2 DEFENDANTS

369. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth below.

370. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their contract with Plaintiff by charging excessive attorney's fees. Pollard v. Hanschen, 315 S.W.3d 636, 641 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2010, no pet.).

371. Plaintiff had valid and enforceable contracts with the Outside Legal Providers Group #2. Plaintiff is a proper party to bring suit for breach of contract. Plaintiff performed, tendered performance of, or was excused from performing its contractual obligations.

372. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their contractual duties to Plaintiff when they caused Plaintiff to incur unnecessary legal expenses by invoicing and/or allocating to Plaintiff legal expenses that were actually for the benefit of Highland Capital, including but not limited to unrelated third-party employee harassment and separation agreement matters, defense matters concerning Sierra Verde, Dondero and Okada issues concerning their interests in the Acis Capital Bankruptcy, litigation against the Wall Street Journal for unflattering articles, press spin communications, a multitude of discrete legal actions on behalf of Highland Capital against Daugherty including having Daugherty followed to London and recording his panel discussion at a conference, and to pursue Dondero's various vendettas against former employees Terry and Daugherty, including but not limited to Highland Capital's numerous failed attempts to have Daugherty held in contempt and incarcerated for fabricated violations of a since vacated injunction while approximately $29,000 in donations were funneled to the presiding judge.

373. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their contractual duties to Plaintiff by causing redacted invoices for reimbursement to be produced in the Texas Litigation between Highland Capital and Daugherty in 2014 for services performed on behalf of Highland Capital. And then, after Daugherty paid over $3.1 million in December 2016 pursuant to wiring instructions by Katz/HAK, they represented that the same invoices were unpaid obligations for work performed on behalf of Plaintiff in the Delaware litigation commencing in 2017. Additionally, invoices were being double allocated to both Plaintiff and Highland Capital while they represented to the Delaware Court that they were allocated to Plaintiff.

374. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their contractual duties with Plaintiff by representing to the Delaware court that certain legal expenses incurred on behalf of Plaintiff by Highland Capital were unpaid obligations of Plaintiff when in fact those same invoices were already paid by Daugherty pursuant to wiring instructions provided by Katz/HAK after Katz/HAK was already secretly aware that Highland had already swept over $1.2 million from Plaintiff's escrow account and after Katz/HAK had filed turnover and garnishment motions against Daugherty claiming that Highland Capital had not been paid. Said another way, Katz/HAK charged Plaintiff for expenses they knew had already been paid twice by sweeping Plaintiff's cash escrow assets and then by wire from Daugherty because they had been falsely presented the same invoices as Highland Capital expenses in the Texas trial.

375. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their contractual duties to Plaintiff when it was discovered in 2022 that on February 7, 2013, Surgent sent an email attaching Daugherty's request to inspect Plaintiff's assets to Hough, Hurst, Katz/HAK, and Ellington. Again, Katz/HAK did not represent Plaintiff at the time but was adverse to Daugherty and his counsel at Looper Reed, and McGraw on behalf of Highland Capital.

376. Outside Legal Providers Group #2 breached their contractual duties to Plaintiff when a detailed review of invoices discovered for the first time in 2022 revealed that Outside Legal Providers Group #2, with the assistance of Dondero, Leventon, Ellington, Dondero, Klos, Waterhouse, and Swadley, had fraudulently represented to various courts that over $14,000,000 in invoices for the benefit of Highland Capital was improperly allocated to Plaintiff from 2012 to 2019.

377. Outside Legal Providers Group #2's breaches proximately caused injury to Plaintiff.

COUNT SIXTEEN - CONSPIRACY TO COMMIT FRAUD #1 – BUYOUT AND SUBSEQUENT STRIPPING OF PLAINTIFF ASSETS 2013 – BOARD MEMBER GROUP, DONDERO ERA MANAGEMENT, HIGHLAND CAPITAL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES GROUP, OUTSIDE LEGAL PROVIDERS GROUPS #1 AND #2 DEFENDANTS

378. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth below.

379. The Board Member Group, Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 were a member of a combination of two or more persons whose object was to accomplish an unlawful purpose, to defraud Plaintiff of its assets and distributions pursuant to the buyout scheme of 2012/2013.

380. The Board Member Group, Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 had a meeting of the minds on the object and course of action to cooperate in the 2012/2013 scheme to defraud

Plaintiff and all acted in accordance with the conspiracy to defraud Plaintiff.

381. The Board Member Group, Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 made and caused to be made false representations in the Texas Litigation, Delaware actions, and Northern District of Texas bankruptcy court that were at various times designed to induce the Texas judge and jury, the Delaware judge, the Northern District of Texas Bankruptcy Judge, Daugherty and Plaintiff to rely on those false representations. The Board Member Group, Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 knew the representations to be false at the time made because at all times the Board Member Group, Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 intended to take the assets that they represented were validly approved in the purported corporate governance actions of Plaintiff on January 17, 2013, January 18, 2013, February 2013, and April 30, 2013 and assign Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, Honis and Ellington.

382. The Board Member Group, Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 withheld critical information and documents that disproved the legitimacy of the scheme that stripped Plaintiff of its assets and associated distributions in April of 2013.

383. The Board Member Group, Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 made and caused to be made false representations in the Texas Litigation that were designed to induce the Texas judge and jury on those false representations. The Board Member Group, Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group #1 and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 knew the representations to be false at the time made because at all times the The Board Member Group, Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 intended to take the assets out of escrow that belonged to Plaintiff.

384. The Plaintiff suffered injury as a proximate result of these wrongful acts.

COUNT SEVENTEEN - CONSPIRACY TO COMMIT FRAUD #2 – TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016 – DONDERO ERA MANAGEMENT, HIGHLAND CAPITAL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES GROUP, OUTSIDE LEGAL PROVIDERS GROUP #2 AND BOYCE DEFENDANTS

385. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth below.

386. Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Group #2 and Boyce were members of a combination of two or more person whose object was to accomplish an unlawful purpose, to defraud Plaintiff of the assets held on escrow in 2016.

387. Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers, and Employees Group, the Outside Legal Provider Group #2 and Boyce had a meeting of the minds on the object and course of action to cooperate in the 2016 scheme to defraud Plaintiff and all acted in accordance with the conspiracy to defraud Plaintiff.

388. Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers, and Employees Group, the Outside Legal Provider Group #2 and Boyce participated in the conspiracy to defraud Plaintiff of its assets and distributions therefrom pursuant to the escrow stripping scheme.

389. Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group, the Outside Legal Provider Group #2 and Boyce made and caused to be made false representations in the Delaware courts and the Northern District of Texas bankruptcy courts that were designed to induce the respective judges to rely on those false representations. Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group, the Outside Legal Provider Group #2 and Boyce knew the representations to be false at the time made because at all times the Dondero ERA Management, Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group, Outside Legal Provider Group #2 and Boyce intended to legitimize the taking of the assets out of escrow that belonged to Plaintiff.

390. The Plaintiff suffered injury as a proximate result of these wrongful acts.

COUNT EIGHTEEN – UNJUST ENRICHMENT #1 BUYOUT AND SUBSEQUENT STRIPPING OF PLAINTIFF ASSETS 2013 – ALL DEFENDANTS

391. Plaintiff restates each of the foregoing allegations as if fully set forth in this paragraph.

392. Defendants exercised total control over Plaintiff and, due to their acts and omission, were unjustly enriched.

393. Defendants participated in the conspiracy to defraud Plaintiff of its assets by enabling a scheme that was designed to strip Plaintiff of its assets pursuant to the April 2013 assignment of substantially all of Plaintiffs assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis.

394. Defendants wrongly acquired assets for their mutual benefit while simultaneously being unjustly enriched at the expense of Plaintiff. Defendants took these actions knowingly and as part of their conspiracy to unjustly enrich themselves at the expense of Plaintiff.

395. Defendants were unjustly enriched by the taking of the assets in April 2013 that they had misrepresented as properly approved and then actively concealed the improper execution and legitimacy pursuant to the terms of the Second Amended and Restated Limited Liability Company Operating Agreement of Plaintiff.

396. Defendants accepted, used, and enjoyed the benefit of these assets leaving Plaintiff stripped of its assets and allocated legal expenses that were incurred on behalf of Highland Capital, legal expenses that were already paid by Daugherty, and legal expenses to defend against Daugherty's claims to Plaintiff.

COUNT NINETEEN – UNJUST ENRICHMENT #2 (IN THE ALTERNATIVE)– TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016 – ALL DEFENDANTS

397. Plaintiff restates each of the foregoing allegations as if fully set forth in this paragraph.

398. Defendants exercised total control over Plaintiff and treated its funds as their own.

399. Defendants participated in the conspiracy to defraud Plaintiff of its interests in the escrow in December 2016 to unjustly enrich themselves.

400. Defendants were unjustly enriched by the taking of the assets in escrow that they had misrepresented had been set aside for Plaintiff to pay its obligations. Defendants themselves benefited from this unjust enrichment through the acquisition of the assets and the payment of their legal fees and salaries.

401. Defendants accepted, used, and enjoyed the benefit of these assets leaving Plaintiff stripped of its assets and allocated legal expenses that were incurred on behalf of Highland Capital, legal expenses that were already paid by Daugherty, and legal expenses to defend against Daugherty's claims to Plaintiff.

COUNT TWENTY – VIOLATIONS OF FEDERAL CIVIL RICO—CONDUCT OF A RICO ENTERPRISE, 18 U.S.C. § 1962(C) -- BOARD MEMBER GROUP AND HIGHLAND CAPITAL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES GROUP DEFENDANTS

402. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

403. At all relevant times, the Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group Defendants are each "person[s]" within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. §§ 1961(3) and 1962(c).

404. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group each violated 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c) by the acts described in the paragraphs above.

405. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group actions described in the previous paragraphs constitute an Enterprise within the meaning of 18

U.S.C. §§ 1961(4) and 1962(c).

406. At all relevant times, The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group were engaged in, and/or its activities constituting wire fraud within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c) and 1343. At all relevant times, The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group participated in the operation, management, and directed the affairs of an enterprise intended to defraud Plaintiff of money, property, and other benefits and assets as set forth above (the "Enterprise").

407. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group, each of whom are persons associated with the concerted efforts against Plaintiff did knowingly, willfully, and unlawfully conduct or participate, directly or indirectly, in the conduct, management, or operation of the affairs of the Enterprise.

408. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group through a pattern of racketeering activity within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. §§ 1961(1), 1961(5), and 1962(c), through multiple instances of Mail Fraud and Wire Fraud, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §§ 1341 and 1343, and Money Laundering, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1956(a)(1)(A)(i). The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group devised or intended to devise a scheme to defraud Plaintiff of money, property, and other benefits and assets.

409. For the purposes of executing their scheme, The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group delivered or caused delivery of various documents and things by U.S. mail or by private or commercial interstate carriers or received such therefrom. For the purposes of executing their scheme, The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group transmitted or caused to be transmitted by means of wire communications in interstate or foreign commerce various writings, signs, and signals.

410. In furtherance of their scheme, The Board Member Group and Highland Capital

Officers and Employees Group used the wires and/or U.S. mails or private or commercial carriers to deliver documents and things to Plaintiff or the Enterprise for the purposes of defrauding Plaintiff, including, but not limited to the following: (a) emails; (b) wirings and/or mailings between and among The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group concerning the scheme to defraud Plaintiff of money and property as well as other benefits and assets; and (c) funds transferred between The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group with the intent that those funds be used to promote the carrying on of The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group's scheme to defraud Plaintiff of money and property as well as other benefits and assets.

411. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group used wire and mail communications in furtherance of their scheme to defraud Plaintiff, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §§ 1341 and 1343, as described fully above.

412. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group participated in the scheme or artifice knowingly, willfully, and with the specific intent to advance their scheme to deceive or defraud Plaintiff. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group knowingly and intentionally prepared documents, including but not limited to, resolutions, court papers, letters, notices, and other documents, and then knowingly and with the intent to deceive Plaintiff, caused those documents to be sent to Plaintiff or other entities that would further The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Groups' scheme to defraud.

413. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group have, on multiple occasions, knowing that the property involved in a financial transaction represents the proceeds of some form of unlawful activity, conducted or attempt to conduct a financial transaction which in fact involves the proceeds of specified unlawful activity with the intent to promote the carrying on of specified unlawful activity, including, but not limited to, violations of 18 U.S.C. §§ 1341 and 1343 and The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group have, therefore, violated 18 U.S.C § 1956(a)(1)(A)(i), money laundering.

414. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group have engaged in multiple predicate acts, as described in the preceding paragraphs. The conduct of each of The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group described in the preceding paragraphs constitutes a pattern of racketeering activity connected to the acquisition, establishment, conduct or control of the Enterprise within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. § 1961(5).

415. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Groups' violations of federal law as set forth herein, each of which directly and proximately injured Plaintiff, constitutes a continuous course of conduct, which was intended to defraud Plaintiff of money and property through false representations, fraud, deceit, and other improper and unlawful means. Therefore, said violations were a part of racketeering activity as defined by 18 U.S.C. §§ 1961(1) and (5).

416. Plaintiff was injured in its money and property by reason of The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Groups' violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c).

417. The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Groups' injuries to Plaintiff were a direct, proximate, and reasonably foreseeable result of their violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1962. Plaintiff is the ultimate victim of The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Groups' unlawful Enterprises and scheme. Plaintiff has been and will continue to be injured in its money and property in an amount to be determined at trial.

418. Pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c), Plaintiff is entitled to recover treble damages plus costs and attorneys' fees from The Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group as well as any other relief authorized by statute.

COUNT TWENTY-ONE – PROMISSORY ESTOPPEL – TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016 – DONDERO ERA MANAGEMENT, BOARD MEMBER GROUP, HIGHLAND CAPITAL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES GROUP, OUTSIDE LEGAL PROVIDERS GROUPS #1 AND #2 AND BOYCE DEFENDANTS

436. The Defendants' unlawful taking was made with the intent to deprive the Plaintiff of the property.

437. The Plaintiff sustained damage as a result of the theft.

COUNT TWENTY-FIVE – TEXAS UNIFORM FRAUDLENT TRANSFER ACT (TUFTA) – BUYOUT AND SUBSEQUENT STRIPPING OF PLAINTIFF ASSETS 2013 AND TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016 – BOARD MEMBER GROUP, HIGHLAND CAPITAL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES GROUP, DONDERO ERA MANAGEMENT GROUP, OUTSIDE LEGAL PROVIER GROUP #1 AND #2 DEFENDANTS

438. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

439. Plaintiff is a creditor with a claim as a result of his verdict in the Texas Litigaiton and the Delaware Litigation.

440. The Board Member Group, The Dondero ERA Management, the Highland

Capital Officers, and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Group #1 and #2 are debtors liable on those claims.

441. As described in detail above, The Board Member Group, The Dondero ERA Management, the Highland Capital Officers, and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 fraudulently transferred Plaintiff's assets with the actual intent to hinder delay and/or defraud the Plaintiff.

442. The Board Member Group, The Dondero ERA Management, the Highland Capital Officers, and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Groups #1 and #2 retained possession and control of the assets after the transfer.

443. The Board Member Group, The Dondero ERA Management, the Highland Capital Officers, and Employees Group and the Outside Legal Provider Group #1 and #2 transfer of the assets was concealed and made with the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud Plaintiff.

444. The transfer was of all of Plaintiff's assets.

445. The Plaintiff became insolvent shortly after the transfer was made.

COUNT TWENTY-SIX – FRAUD – BUYOUT AND SUBSEQUENT STRIPPING OF PLAINTIFF ASSETS 2013– THE BOARD MEMBER GROUP, THE DONDERO ERA MANAGEMENT, THE HIGHLAND CAPITAL OFFICERS, AND EMPLOYEES GROUP DEFENDANTS

452. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

453. Plaintiff refers specifically to the above factual background section and the facts plead in the causes of action sections above as applied and incorporated to this cause of action for fraud.

454. As set forth above, The Dondero ERA Management, the Highland Capital Officers, and Employees Group, made multiple false and material representations to Plaintiff regarding the stripping of the escrow in 2016.

455. The Dondero ERA Management, the Highland Capital Officers, and Employees Group, made these representations, and they knew the representations were false.

456. The Dondero ERA Management, the Highland Capital Officers, and Employees Group, made these representations with the intent that the Plaintiff act on it.

457. The Plaintiff did in fact rely on these representations thus causing injury to the Plaintiff.

COUNT TWENTY-EIGHT – THIRD PARTY BENEFICAIRY BREACH OF CONTRACT – TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016– ABRAMS & BAYLISS DEFENDANT

458. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

459. On December 12, 2013, Ellington, Leventon, and Surgent coordinated with Abrams & Bayliss to serve as escrow agent. Highland Capital's assistant general counsel, Leventon, sent a draft of the Escrow Agreement to Abrams & Bayliss on December 13, 2013, and the agreement was executed that day by Ellington. Matthew Miller ("Miller"), an Abrams & Bayliss attorney who primarily worked on the escrow matter and had just completed his first year as an attorney and simply used the terms proposed by Leventon.

460. The assets deposited in the escrow account were represented to be: (1) $1,210,502.03 in cash; (2) a limited partner interest in Restoration Capital Partners Fund, LP and (3) 1088.42 shares of NexPoint Credit Strategies. This was the story Defendants "came up with" so they could sell to the jury in the Texas Litigaiton that they had not simply stolen Plaintiff's assets. The notion that Defendants did nothing nefarious with Plaintiff's assets and merely set them aside would become a theme of Defendants in the Texas Litigation.

461. The key provision of the Escrow Agreement that undergirded Defendants' story in the Texas Litigation provided that if Daugherty prevailed in the Texas Litigation, escrowed assets in the amount of the judgment "shall" be transferred to Plaintiff. Also pursuant to the crime-fraud discovery in May 2019, it was revealed that 122 days after executing the Escrow Agreement, Leventon and Girard changed the Escrow Agreement without Daugherty's knowledge because it wanted to "slip sheet the Schedule 1 assets" to change "the NexPoint shares from shares to the cash equivalent of shares because it is difficult to find a prime broker to open account for such a small pool of assets." Abrams & Bayliss simply swapped the pages. Abrams & Bayliss later explained, "if Daugherty digs deeply enough, he may discover that Schedule 1 was revised on December 16, 2013, with no re-execution of the Escrow Agreement by Highland Capital and Abrams & Bayliss. Highland's counsel merely re-sent the Escrow Agreement with an updated Schedule 1, and Abrams & Bayliss sent an email confirmation of the change."

According to Abrams & Bayliss, "[i]t is unlikely that Daugherty would learn of the revision." With the appearance of an escrow in place, Defendants were poised to present themselves in the Texas Litigation not as thieves, but rather as protectors of Plaintiff's and Daugherty's interests. That is the story they spun at trial. This was a state of affairs just a month before trial in the Texas Litigation.

462. It was not until previously concealed document and email production in 2022 and 2023 that Plaintiff learned the full story of how Abrams & Bayliss and Highland Capital had stripped the escrow account of all assets.

463. The Escrow Agreement between Abrams & Bayliss and Highland Capital is a valid and enforceable contract whose intent was to secure a benefit, the deposited assets, for the benefit of the Plaintiff. Plaintiff is now entitled to enforce that contract as a third-party beneficiary because that benefit has been denied to Plaintiff, as Abrams & Bayliss and Highland Capital stripped the escrow account of the deposited assets.

COUNT TWENTY-NINE – TORTIOUS INTEREFRENCE WITH A CONTRACT – TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016– ABRAMS & BAYLISS AND HIGHLAND CAPITAL OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES GROUP DEFENDANTS

464. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

465. Plaintiff was controlled by a limited liability company operating agreement, which was a valid and enforceable contract. The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and Abrams & Bayliss intentionally interfered with that contract when The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group moved Plaintiff's assets into an escrow account held by Abrams & Bayliss. This interference proximately caused Plaintiff's injury through the loss of its assets, incurring actual damages.

COUNT THIRTY – TORTIOUS INTEREFRENCE WITH A CONTRACT – BUYOUT AND SUBSEQUENT STRIPPING OF PLAINTIFF ASSETS 2013– DONDERO ERA MANAGEMENT, OFFICERS, AND EMPLOYEES GROUP DEFENDANTS

466. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

467. Plaintiff was controlled by a limited liability company operating agreement, which was a valid and enforceable contract. The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group intentionally interfered with that contract when The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group moved Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital in 2013. This interference proximately caused damage to Plaintiff.

COUNT THIRTY-ONE – TORTIOUS INTEREFRENCE WITH A CONTRACT – TRANSFER OF ESCROW ASSETS 2016– DONDERO ERA MANAGEMENT, HIGHLAND CAPITAL OFFICER AND EMPLOYEES GROUP DEFENDANTS

468. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

469. Plaintiff was controlled by a limited liability company operating agreement, which was a valid and enforceable contract. Dondero ERA Management and the Highland Capital Officer and Employees Group intentionally interfered with that contract when The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Dondero ERA Management Group moved Plaintiff's assets from an escrow account to Highland Capital in 2016. This interference proximately caused damages to Plaintiff.

COUNT THIRTY-TWO – BREACH OF FIDUCAIRY DUTY– KATZ/DLAP DEFENDANT

470. Plaintiff hereby incorporates the allegations set forth in the above paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

471. Katz/DLAP breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty to represent Plaintiff with undivided loyalty, duty to act with absolute perfect candor, openness and honesty without any concealment or deception, duty to be strictly honest about fee arrangements, duty to inform the Plaintiff of matters of material representation, and the duty to timely inform Plaintiff of conflict of interest by presenting redacted invoices for reimbursement in the Texas Litigation between Highland Capital and Daugherty in 2014 that represented legal services were performed on behalf of Highland Capital. And then, after Daugherty paid over $3.1 million in December 2016 pursuant to wiring instructions by Katz, they represented that the same invoices were unpaid obligations for work performed on behalf of Plaintiff in the Delaware litigation commencing in 2017.

472. Katz/DLAP breached their fiduciary duties to Plaintiff, specifically the duty to represent Plaintiff with undivided loyalty, duty to act with absolute perfect candor, openness and honesty without any concealment or deception, duty to be strictly honest about fee arrangements, duty to inform the Plaintiff of matters of material representation, and the duty to timely inform Plaintiff of conflict of interest by billing Plaintiff for legal services provided to Highland Capital in the Delaware Litigation.

473. Katz/DLAP's breaches proximately caused injury to the Plaintiff and/or resulted in a benefit to the Defendants.

VI.
CONDITIONS PRECEDENT

474. All conditions precedent for the claims above have been performed or have occurred.

VII.
PRAYER

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Plaintiff Highland Capital Employee Retention Assets LLC prays that Defendants be cited to appear and answer herein, and for the further relief set forth below:

(1) Actual damages;

(2) Exemplary damages;

(3) Pre- and post- judgment interest;

(4) Attorneys' fees and costs of suit; and

(5) Such other and further relief to which Plaintiff Highland Capital Employee Retention Assets LLC may be justly entitled.

TO THE HONORABLE JUDGE OF SAID COURT:

HIGHLAND EMPLOYEE RETENTION ASSETS LLC ("HERA" or "Plaintiff") files its Omnibus Response to the Highland Defendants, Outside Attorneys Defendants and Trustee Defendants' Motions to Dismiss and Memorandum in Support as follows:

Omnibus Response Split into Two Separate Sections

HERA has divided the memorandum into two separate sections: (1) addressing the Highland Defendants and Outside Attorneys Defendants' arguments; and (2) addressing the Trustee Defendants' arguments.

The Court May Consider Extrinsic Materials

HERA attaches to this Response documents that are referenced in the First Amended Complaint ("FAC"), consistent with the FAC, are actual pleadings or court orders themselves, such that they do not present matters outside the FAC. Although a party moving for dismissal ordinarily converts a Rule 12 motion into a Rule 56 motion for summary judgment by attaching extrinsic materials to its motion, a party opposing a Rule 12 motion "has much more flexibility," such that courts may consider the additional materials as long as they are "consistent with the pleadings."[1] In fact, under the more stringent pleading standards of Ashcroft v. Iqbal and Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, "a plaintiff who is opposing a Rule 12(b)(6) or Rule 12(c) motion and who can provide such illustration may find it prudent to do so."[2] The "submission of extraneous materials does not by itself convert a Rule 12(b)(6) motion into a motion for summary judgment."[3]

Here, the Court can consider the materials submitted without converting Defendants' motions to dismiss to motions for summary judgment,[4] because they are referenced in and consistent with the allegations in the FAC, and include things such as exhibits, affidavits, matters of public record, matters that may be taken by judicial notice, and those that Plaintiff relied upon in bringing suit.[5] Given the flexibility HERA has in opposing the motions to illustrate the facts it expects to be able to prove, the Court may consider the materials without converting the motions.[6] However, if the Court determines that conversion is proper, HERA respectfully requests, pursuant to FED. R. CIV. P. 12(d), a reasonable opportunity to conduct discovery so that it may present all material that is pertinent to the motions before the Court renders a ruling.[7]

[7] "If, on a motion under Rule 12(b)(6) or 12(c), matters outside the pleadings are presented to and not excluded by the court, the motion must be treated as one for summary judgment under Rule 56. All parties must be given a reasonable opportunity to present all the material that is pertinent to the motion." (emphasis added).

INTRODUCTION

The claims brought by HERA in this lawsuit have never been alleged in the Prior Lawsuits, or in any other litigation. In fact, HERA was unaware of the claims brought forth in this lawsuit until after March/April 2022. The Court should focus on several key points when sifting through Defendants' "throw-it-against-the-barn-door" approach. First, HERA has never brought any claims of any kind against any party at any time in any jurisdiction. Second, Daugherty is not HERA. Daugherty's individual knowledge and actions cannot, as a matter of law, be imputed onto HERA, and Defendants do not and cannot cite any authority to the Court for this erroneous proposition. HERA retains its own separate corporate identity, and its own claims separate and apart from the individual Daugherty. Third, Daugherty and his affiliates did not obtain control of HERA, and thus actual knowledge of Defendants' bad acts giving rise to the claims made in this lawsuit, until granted control by the bankruptcy court in March/April 2022. Fourth, Defendants have a long history of not only calculated and deceitful concealment, but outright perfidious lying and misrepresentation to juries, judges and, of course, anyone they perceive as an enemy. HERA's claims are not barred, are sufficiently pleaded, and Defendants' Motions to Dismiss should be denied.

HIGHLAND DEFENDANTS AND OUTSIDE ATTORNEYS DEFENDANTS SECTION

I. STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. Relevant Background Facts Important to the Present Lawsuit

1. The Fall of Highland

1. Dondero and Okada, with Britain, Boyce, Dameris, Honis, Parker, Collins, Ellington, Leventon, Girard, Klos, Surgent, Hurst, Katz/HAK/DLAP, Waterhouse, Klos and Swadley at their side, controlled Highland and its byzantine web of funds and other entities under its management with unilateral and unfettered discretion for years.[8] They ensured that Highland and its affiliates routinely failed to observe corporate formalities with respect to their personnel, corporate governance, internal systems, legal affairs, and considerable assets.[9]

[8] FAC ¶27.

2. In September 2008, Highland took a dramatic turn for the worse because of Dondero and Okada's mismanagement and self-dealing during the financial crisis.[10] Highland defaulted on its credit facility, prompting its lenders to demand a forensic accounting review of missing cash and assets.[11] The audit revealed that Dondero and Okada had siphoned tens of millions of dollars out of Highland's accounts, while leaving creditors and employees with insufficient resources to collect what was owed to them.[12] A multitude of lawsuits were filed over a ten-year period against Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Ellington, Leventon, and their affiliates as they became embroiled in litigation on allegations of fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, breach of good faith and fair dealing, willful misconduct, fraudulent transfers, money laundering, and wire fraud that resulted in verdicts of over one billion dollars in damages against them or their affiliates.[13]

3. Following months of difficult negotiations, the lenders agreed to an extension of the credit facility in exchange for strict repayment terms and a security interest in over $125 million of Highland's remaining assets.[14] In addition, the lenders agreed to allow for the creation of a vessel to set aside assets for the purpose of retaining and incentivizing employees – this entity is HERA.[15] Importantly, the assets were transferred to HERA in exchange for deferred compensation assets that were terminated as a result of the security interests taken by the lenders. Dondero, Okada and their affiliates were intentionally forbidden from participating as preferred unit holders in HERA.[16]

4. HERA has never had employees and at all times depended on its board of directors, legal counsel, managers, service providers, and its investment advisors to conduct its affairs.[17] The Highland Defendants and the Outside Attorneys, along with Swadley and Klos, performed investment management, legal, accounting, and tax services to HERA pursuant agreements and/or arrangements, which, to this day, are still unknown to HERA.[18] Dondero and Okada resented the creation and cost of HERA.[19]

2. Daugherty Resigns from Highland and is Removed as Director of HERA

5. Daugherty was a partner, officer, director, Head of Private Equity, and Co-Head of Research for Highland and certain of its affiliates from 1998 until 2011.[20] Daugherty resigned from Highland on September 28, 2011, because he refused to participate in the conduct at Highland that would later result in awards of over a billion dollars in damages to investors and creditors for breach of fiduciary duty, willful misconduct, and fraud, among other causes of action.[21] Indeed, Dondero, Okada, Ellington, Leventon, Girard, Katz/HAK/DLAP, Hurst and Brown would later pursue legal actions on behalf of Highland against Daugherty to whitewash willful misconduct, breach of fiduciary duties and/or fraud against the Credit Strategies fund investors, Crusader Fund investors (including Dallas Police and Fire, Baylor University, Army Airforce Exchange, Ontario Teachers, and many others), UBS, and Josh Terry (a former employee).[22]

6. Prior to his resignation, Daugherty became a holder of Series A Preferred Units of HERA on October 26, 2009.[23] He was awarded 1,571.86 preferred units and was the largest holder of the lender-approved HERA. HERA was created based on a "last man standing" structure where remaining employees would receive reallocated shares of the units forfeited by departed employees.[24] The number of Daugherty's units and percentage ownership of HERA increased to 1,909.69 and approximately 19.09% as other employees resigned from Highland prior to their interests vesting in 2011.[25] At the time of his resignation, Daugherty was the largest holder of HERA and a member of its board of directors.[26]

7. On February 16, 2012, HERA's board members, Boyce, Britain, Dameris, Dougherty (no relation to Daugherty), Honis, and Walia removed Daugherty as a director of HERA.[27]

8. After his removal as a director of HERA, Daugherty had no access to or ability to know what HERA and/or the Defendants were doing regarding HERA until after March 2022, when the Texas bankruptcy court granted Daugherty and his affiliates complete ownership and control of HERA.[28]

9. Immediately after removing Daugherty from HERA's board, the newly composed board executed the Second Amended LLC Agreement, prepared by Surgent.[29] The Second Amended LLC Agreement purported to (i) impose a punitive procedure to deplete the value of a holder who litigated any action "related to" HERA, Highland, and its officers and directors; (ii) escrow the holder's interest; and (iii) in a type of reverse-indemnification, impose the litigation costs of HERA and any deemed "diminution in value" cost to the litigant, whether it lost or won the litigation - a proverbial lose-lose clause.[30]

3. The Texas Lawsuit

10. On April 11, 2012, Highland, at the direction of Dondero, Okada, Ellington, Leventon, Girard and Surgent, commenced a lawsuit against Daugherty in the 68th Judicial District Court of Dallas County, Texas captioned Highland Management, L.P. v. Daugherty, Cause No. 12-04005 (the "Texas Lawsuit").[31] Daugherty responded with counterclaims against Highland, HERA, and others, alleging breach of contract and breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing against HERA and Highland.[32] Katz and Andrew Kurth purported to represent Highland while Hurst, Brown and Gruber Hurst purported to represent HERA.[33]

11. At trial, Hurst, Dondero, and Surgent made it a point to let the court and jury know that HERA retained control of "all" of its assets. Dondero testified responding to questions by Hurst as follows:

> Q. Okay. So – so if, if Mr. Daugherty somehow prevails in his lawsuit against Patrick Boyce and Lane Britain and [HERA], what happens to Mr. Daugherty's interest that's being escrowed right now with a third-party escrow agent?
> A. They go to him.
> Q. I'm sorry?
> A. They go to him via to HERA and then to him.[34]

Dondero further testified when Hurst asked him:

> Q. The escrow, did you just escrow this last month?
> A. No. We've had it segregated at Highland since April when we first put it in and then formalized the escrow. It takes a while to set up an escrow and transfer illiquid assets that have all sorts of transfer limitations.[35]

12. Surgent, swore under oath on January 17, 2014 in regard to a question concerning the April 30, 2013, implementation of the asset sweep from HERA, "Yes, but then it placed those funds in escrow."[36] But when questioned further why the escrow appeared to be created 36 days prior to his testimony and more than eight months after the assets were swept from HERA, Surgent answered to the court and jury, "The escrow was formalized in this agreement, but I believe it existed sooner."[37] In fact, it did not, and Surgent knew that.[38]

13. In closing arguments, HERA's counsel, Hurst, lied to the court and jury once again stating that "if Pat Daugherty happens to prevail in his lawsuit against HERA, you heard Jim Dondero testify, he gets his interest, which is currently escrowed in the third-party escrow account, all of it."[39]

14. After three weeks of trial, the jury found that HERA, at the direction of Defendants from Highland, breached the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing by adopting Article 12.1 of the 2012 Agreement (the Lose-Lose clause) and that Highland and Dondero had defamed Daugherty with malice.[40] The jury awarded Daugherty damages against HERA in the amount of $2.6 million, plus interest which remains unpaid and has currently accreted to approximately $5 million.[41] The court also determined that Daugherty had retained ownership of his preferred units in HERA.[42] The problem was Dondero, Ellington, Surgent and their merry band of minions lied to the jury and never funded the escrow while incurring millions in legal fees to drain HERA's assets to perpetuate the lie.[43]

15. Daugherty suspected that Defendants had lied about the existence of the escrow and on August 24, 2014, served post-judgment discovery requests on HERA and Highland, seeking information concerning the location of HERA's assets and liabilities and its post-litigation conveyances to Highland so as to recover the judgment Daugherty had obtained.[44]

16. Twenty days later, HERA, at the direction of Dondero and Hurst, filed a Notice

[43] FAC ¶91. It should be noted that Defendants in their MTD mislead the Court by noting that the jury found against Daugherty for certain claims by Highland, while omitting the fact that those findings were vacated once the Defendants had been terminated (some for cause) and it was subsequently revealed that several Defendants lied on behalf of Highland in the Texas Lawsuit trial. See Exh. 2 -- Agreed Motion to Partially Vacate the Final Judgment Dated July 14, 2014, at 3, n 1. of Cash Deposit in Lieu of Supersedeas Bond and Affidavit Establishing Net Worth. HERA submitted the affidavit of Klos, which stated that HERA had a negative net worth of ($2,447,709) after fraudulently applying approximately $7,500,000 of Highland's legal expenses at the time to HERA as of August 31, 2014.[45] Highland also purported to have loaned HERA back its own cash necessary to repay HERA's legal expenses that were advanced by Highland because HERA did not have sufficient funds after transferring all of its assets to Highland back on April 30, 2013.[46] However, a footnote to the balance sheet exhibit to the affidavit noted, "Per the Escrow Agreement dated December 13, 2013, between HCMLP [Highland] and Abrams & Bayliss, LLP, if a final, non-appealable judgment against HERA is reached, Abrams & Bayliss, LLP as Escrow Agent, will transfer the HERA Deposit Assets to HERA."[47] The affidavit included a copy of the Escrow Agreement with a schedule, again falsely listing escrow assets of: (1) $1,210,502.03 in cash; (2) a limited partner interest in Restoration Capital Partners Fund, LP and (3) cash equivalent of 1088.42 shares of NexPoint Credit Strategies.[48]

17. In order to conceal the fact that no such transfer ever actually occurred, Dondero, Hurst and the Highland minions then directed HERA to object to Daugherty's discovery requests on the basis that it was harassing and argued that its cash deposit limited post-judgment discovery to HERA's net worth.[49] Hurst, doubled down at a subsequent hearing on September 22, 2014, before the court and stated, "everything that's in the sworn financial statement has been provided to the other side and it's been provided to the Court, also came up during trial; that is the exact same assets."[50]

18. Again on July 10, 2015, Hurst thwarted discovery of HERA's missing assets by filing HERA's Written Objections To Daugherty's Notice of Deposition Upon Written Questions and responding to every question and request for production with the boiler plate response, "Given the procedural posture of the case, with a final judgment and appellant bond on file, the only discovery that may be sought by Daugherty is that directly relevant to the calculation of HERA's net worth.[51] The scope of this request goes well beyond that, seeking information that that [sic] has potential proprietary confidential interests and unduly burdening a third-party."[52]

19. On December 1, 2016, Daugherty's judgment against HERA, which had been affirmed on appeal, became final and non-appealable pursuant to the appellate Court's mandate.[53] The appellate court also denied the request to declare that Daugherty's ownership in the preferred units of HERA was extinguished as a result of his damage award.[54] Incredibly, after the verdict against Daughtry on the attorney's fees portion in the Texas Lawsuit (which was ultimately vacated) the Highland Defendants and Outside Attorneys went on a vengeful post judgment collection witch hunt. The invoices from Gruber Hurst and HAK starting on December 2, 2016 demonstrate how involved S. Grant (Debevoise Law Firm), Leventon, Ellington, Girard, Hurst, Katz and HAK were in assisting Highland to execute a judgment against Daugherty by trying to seize all of his personal assets including his home in Dallas (filed an extraction of judgment) and his house in Montana (coordinated with Sheriff), his shares in NexBank and Trussway, as well as his individual interest in HERA.[55] Then they had the audacity to allocate

Defendants notably allocated legal invoices back to HERA where they were performing work regarding how to stop Daugherty from collecting his judgment against HERA, more proof Delaware I and II were nothing more than collection efforts by Daugherty, individually, to collect on his Texas judgment against HERA. all of those legal costs to HERA. Dondero, Katz/HAK, Ellington, Leventon, Matthew Miller ("Miller"), and Abrams reviewed the mandate that day and started the process of shutting down the Escrow and assuring that the remaining cash assets were swept from HERA to Highland.[56] A summary of the reconciled emails sent or received from different time zones follows:[57]

20. From discovery obtained in May 2019, after a Delaware court granted the crime-fraud exception to attorney-client privilege, a series of emails revealed that on December 1, 2016, at 7:51 p.m., HAK, outside counsel for Highland and concurrently outside counsel for HERA up through 2018 (later replaced after Katz had joined the DLAP firm through 2021), emailed Abrams, counsel for Highland, counsel for HERA, and trustee for HERA's escrow: "Kevin, we need to have a call as early tomorrow as possible regarding the escrow arrangements. Can you let me know when you will be available? Also, can you please send us a copy of the escrow agreement?" Abrams responded to the email copying Miller and Hunton Andrews Kurth lawyers Katz/HAK, James Bookhout, and Isabel Crosby.[58]

21. On December 2, 2016, at 10:03 a.m., Miller informed Abrams, "The call with Highland's attorneys in the HERA litigation was short. Simply put, Highland wants to get the funds back to HERA and/or Highland as quickly as possible in any way we feel comfortable with." Miller proposed several alternatives, including resignation: "Second, we could resign as escrow agent under Paragraph 5 …. This paragraph permits us to return assets directly to the Depositor, which is Highland. Highland's attorneys think that a ten-day notice period will not interfere with their garnishment action plans."[59]

[58] FAC ¶102.
[59] FAC ¶103. Abrams, Katz, Ellington, Leventon, Girard and counsel from Lynn, Pinker, Cox and Hurst were collaborating to strip HERA of its escrow assets while simultaneously seeking to garnish Daugherty's ownership in HERA to collect a judgment on behalf of Highland for approximately $3.1 million by declaring to the court that Daugherty had no other way to satisfy Highland's judgment against him. This was their attempt to beat Daugherty to the HERA escrow assets before it was discovered that the HERA escrow was never funded with the non-cash assets as listed in the Schedule attached to the Escrow that was presented to the judge and jury in the Texas Lawsuit.

Miller outlined for Abrams a step-by-step resignation plan:

1. Resignation letter from us that states that all deposit assets will be released to Highland after the 10-day notice period.
2. Letter from Highland waiving notice period and seeking our confirmation and signature (because paragraph 10 requires all amendments or waivers to be signed by both parties).
3. Wiring of cash back to Highland.[60]

Highland encouraged Abrams & Bayliss to resign, "As an update to the below, Highland would prefer that we resign but before we do to agree in writing that the 10-day notice period is waived." HAK and Abrams & Bayliss were on the same page about the resignation strategy.[61]

22. On December 2, 2016, at 2:52 p.m., Miller emailed HAK: "As we discussed, attached is the resignation letter we contemplate as the first step of unwinding the escrow."[62]

23. On December 2, 2016, at 4:37 p.m., Miller emailed HAK: "As an FYI, my banker tells me that 5:30 EST is the cut-off time for a domestic wire; the international transfer cut-off already is passed. I am not optimistic that I will receive the necessary authorizations during the next hour. However, would you mind passing along the Highland letter on an FYI basis so that I have the wiring instructions handy?"[63]

24. On December 2, 2016, at 5:08 p.m., Hunton Andrews Kurth emailed Miller: "Matt, please find attached Highland's signed letter accepting the Escrow Agent's resignation." Miller subsequently informed Abrams, "The second step in the HERA strategy is for you to sign the attached letter from Highland."[64]

25. On December 2, 2016, at 10:07 p.m., Miller emailed Ellington: "Scott, please find the attached correspondence regarding the escrow agreement between Highland Management, L.P. and Abrams & Bayliss LLP."[65]

26. On December 2, 2016, at 10:18 p.m., Katz/HAK emailed Miller: "Matt, attached is correspondence from Scott Ellington accepting the resignation and providing wiring instructions. If you need additional information, please let me know."[66]

27. On December 2, 2016, at 10:19 p.m., Miller emailed Katz/HAK: "Thanks, Mark. [sic] We will get a counter-signed copy back to you and arrange for wiring the funds."[67]

28. On December 3, 2016, at 10:06 a.m., Miller emailed Ellington and Katz/HAK: "Scott and Marc, attached please find a counter-signed copy of Scott Ellington's letter."[68]

29. On December 3, 2016, at 2:45 p.m., an internal Abrams & Bayliss email states: "Wells Fargo was unable to initiate the transaction today [a Saturday]. The wire amount required multiple levels of upper management approval so I will go back on Monday morning."[69]

30. On December 5, 2016, at 12:26 p.m., Miller emailed the team: "Team, As reflected below, the funds A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] was holding in escrow on behalf of HERA have been transferred as instructed in Scott Ellington's December 2, 2016, letter."[70]

31. "Boom!" (emphasis added). That was the reaction of Girard when he learned the Escrow funds "have been received" by Highland on December 5, 2016.[71]

32. On December 8, 2016, at 9:52 a.m., Katz filed an Application for Writ of Garnishment against Daugherty on behalf of Highland Capital and supported by an Affidavit of Scott Ellington dated November 23, 2016, swearing that:

> 4. In the Final Judgment, Highland Employee Retention Assets, LLC ("HERA") is itself a judgment debtor to Mr. Daugherty under the Final Judgment in the amount of $2,600,000.00 plus prejudgment and post-judgment interest. The Final Judgment is valid and subsisting.

33. More information came out about the Defendants fraudulently concealing information when in June 2019, after a Delaware court granted the crime-fraud exception to attorney client privilege, it was for the first time revealed that on December 12, 2013, Ellington, Leventon, and Surgent coordinated with Abrams & Bayliss to serve as escrow agent of the Escrow.[73] Highland's assistant general counsel, Leventon, sent a draft of the Escrow Agreement to Abrams & Bayliss on December 13, 2013, and the agreement was executed that day by Ellington. Miller, an Abrams & Bayliss attorney who primarily worked on the escrow matter and had just completed his first year as an attorney, simply used the terms proposed by Leventon.[74]

34. The assets deposited in the escrow were represented to be: (1) $1,210,502.03 in cash; (2) a limited partner interest in Restoration Capital Partners Fund, LP and (3) 1088.42 shares of NexPoint Credit Strategies.[75] This was the story Defendants came up with so they could sell to the jury that they had not simply stolen HERA's assets.[76] The notion that Defendants did nothing nefarious with HERA's and Daugherty's assets and merely set them aside would become a theme of Defendants in the Texas Lawsuit.[77]

35. The key provision of the Escrow Agreement that undergirded Defendants' story in the Texas Lawsuit provided that if Daugherty prevailed in the Texas Lawsuit, escrowed assets in the amount of the judgment "shall" be transferred to HERA.[78] Also pursuant to the crime-fraud discovery in May 2019, it was revealed that 14 days after executing the Escrow Agreement, Leventon and Girard changed the Escrow Agreement without Daugherty's knowledge because it wanted to "slip sheet the Schedule 1 assets" to change "the NexPoint shares from shares to the cash equivalent of shares because it is difficult to find a prime broker to open account for such a small pool of assets."[79] Abrams & Bayliss simply swapped the pages. Abrams & Bayliss later explained, "if Daugherty digs deeply enough, he may discover that Schedule 1 was revised on December 16, 2013, with no re-execution of the Escrow Agreement by Highland and Abrams & Bayliss.[80] Highland's counsel merely re-sent the Escrow Agreement with an updated Schedule 1, and Abrams & Bayliss sent an email confirmation of the change."[81] According to Abrams & Bayliss, "[i]t is unlikely that Daugherty would learn of the revision."[82] With the appearance of an escrow in place, Defendants were poised to present themselves in the Texas Lawsuit not as thieves, but rather as protectors of HERA's and Daugherty's interests.[83] That is the story they spun at trial.[84]

36. It was further revealed that Highland contacted Abrams & Bayliss on February 14, 2014 "to discuss a memorandum we need drafted to address the Escrow Agreement in context of the recent Daugherty Verdict."[85] The memo reaffirmed that Abrams & Bayliss had "received no cash or documents from Highland or HERA regarding the escrow of Daugherty's interests in Restoration Capital Partners, LP."[86] The memorandum then discussed the consequences if the escrow of HERA's assets was deemed a "sham."[87] In an Article of the memorandum titled "Daugherty May Assert that the Escrow Agreement Is a Sham and that the Deposit Assets Stayed within the Control of Highland," Abrams & Bayliss advised: "Daugherty could argue that, even if the Deposit Assets are deemed to be in escrow, the Escrow Agreement left Highland with actual control of the Deposit Assets because (1) A&B [Abrams & Bayliss] is Highland's counsel, and (2) A&B may resign at any time with the Deposit Assets returning to Highland . might argue that, despite the language of the Escrow Agreement, A&B will do whatever Highland instructs it to do with the Deposit Assets, even if that means disbursing the Deposit Assets contrary to the Escrow Agreement's terms. Paragraph 5 of the Escrow Agreement entitles A&B to resign at any time provided that it gives ten days' advance notice. After A&B resigns, it must deliver the Deposit Assets either to the successor escrow agent or to Highland. Daugherty might argue that, even if A&B would not disburse the Deposit Assets in contradiction of the Escrow Agreement, A&B might be willing to resign as Escrow Agent in order to return the Deposit Assets to Highland."[88] Said another way, HERA's own lawyers were acting on behalf of Highland at the expense of their own client while they stripped it of its assets and charged it for the privilege.[89]

37. True to form, Highland requested, and on March 25, 2014, Abrams & Bayliss provided, an expanded memo addressing "tangentially related topics."[90] In the expanded memo, Abrams & Bayliss explained: "Although unlikely, it is conceivable that the court in the Texas Lawsuit could take issue with the assertion of HERA's counsel that the full amount of the Deposit Assets was held by A&B, when arguably at least, only $1.2 million of the Deposit Assets were truly beyond Highland's control."[91]

38. Defendants also attempted to conceal the true value of the assets that were supposed to be escrowed on behalf of HERA.[92] When Girard was asked to provide an update on value by Miller, Girard briefed Abrams that, "Girard would prefer not to update the estimated value of the Restoration Capital Funding interest. Highland received a windfall when the jury valued Daugherty's HERA interest at only $2.6 million because Highland believes his former interest in HERA is worth more. Schedule 1 currently reflects a value of $3.03 million. If

[92] FAC ¶94.

Highland updated Schedule 1 to reflect their current estimates, the Escrow Assets would be worth $3.3 million."[93]

39. It was further revealed that Miller emailed Abrams, "do we look bad for claiming to hold non-monetary assets in escrow when on a day-to-day basis we have no idea what the status of these assets are?" Miller was "not looking forward to being deposed."[94]

40. Finally, after legal invoices were finally produced under new Highland management in October 2022, HERA discovered that as Defendants prepared for the first trial in Texas, they (Highland, Hurst, Katz/HAK, Ellington, Brown, Leventon, Surgent, Girard, Boyce, Britain and Hunton Andrews Kurth) participated in a mock trial on December 4, 2013, that resulted in their mock jury finding in favor of Daugherty.[95] From December 6 to 12, 2013, Defendants Dondero, Hurst, Brown, Katz/HAK, Abrams, Miller, Boyce, Britain, Ellington, Girard, Leventon, and others schemed to "come up with trial strategy regarding witness testimony as to HERA sale and where are funds;" and conferenced with "Delaware counsel concerning escrowing of Daugherty's HERA interests and related issues there to."[96]

4. Delaware I and Delware II

41. Defendants spend an inordinate amount of paper arguing that all of these claims have been litigated in Delaware I and Delware II. However, that is simply not true. Delaware I and Delware II focus soley on Daugherty'a individual claims trying to recover funds from Highland to satsify the judgment he obtained in the Texas Lawsuit.[97] HERA never made a claim in the Prior Lawsuits.[98] This is pivotal, because Defendants cannot direct this Court to a single legal proceeding or pleading wherein HERA makes a claim prior to this lawsuit.

42. Further, as discussed in the argument section in detail below, neither Daugherty nor any other party has ever made a derivative claim on behalf of HERA. Being named as a nominal defendant in Delaware I and Delware II (simply because it was the entity for which Defendants lied about having funds in escrow to satifsy the judgment) does not equate to having or making claims. This is a complete red herring.

43. On February 16, 2017, Abrams, of Abrams & Bayliss, unveiled Defendants' "Highland Employee Asset strategy" to Daugherty:

> I write on behalf of Abrams & Bayliss LLP ("Abrams & Bayliss") in response to your letter of February 14, 2017 (incorrectly dated February 14, 2016) regarding my firm's service as escrow agent under an escrow agreement with Highland Management, L.P. ("Highland"), dated December 13, 2013 (the "Escrow Agreement"). Capitalized terms used but not defined herein have the meanings given in the Escrow Agreement.
> By letter dated December 2, 2016, Abrams & Bayliss notified Highland that it was resigning as Escrow Agent pursuant to Paragraph 5 of the Escrow Agreement. By letter dated December 2, 2016, Highland informed Abrams & Bayliss that it was (i) accepting Abrams & Bayliss' resignation as Escrow Agent, (ii) waiving the ten-day notice period under Paragraph 5 of the Escrow Agreement, and (iii) directing Abrams & Bayliss to return the Deposit Assets to Highland in accordance with the instructions provided in the letter.
> On December 3, 2016, Abrams & Bayliss informed Highland in writing that it agreed to the waiver of the notice period, such that Abrams & Bayliss' resignation was effective immediately. On December 5, 2016, Abrams & Bayliss returned the Deposit Assets to Highland in accordance with the December 2, 2016, instructions. Accordingly, Abrams & Bayliss no longer serves as Escrow Agent or holds Deposit Assets.[99]

44. On July 6, 2017, Daugherty, having his disputed ownership in HERA's escrow funds recently confirmed by Texas Appellate Court, filed Delaware I seeking to recover his judgment from the Texas Lawsuit. Certain defendants moved to dismiss the complaint.[100]

45. On January 16, 2018, the Delaware Court of Chancery denied the motion to dismiss against Highland and HERA but granted dismissal against Dondero and Highland ERA management, which was controlled by Dondero at the time, on the grounds that evidence against them was "conclusory."[101] Later, on June 29, 2018, the Delaware I Court denied dismissal against Highland but granted dismissal based on laches for the claims arising out of what was known about the 2013 amendments and contemporaneous actions of the Defendants at that time, which due to the concealment of critical documents, was very little.[102] It was not until October 2022 and October 2023 that Highland, under new management, produced refuting documentation and invoices.[103]

46. On May 17, 2019, the Delaware I Judge granted a motion to compel stating, "Daugherty has been dogged in his pursuit of these documents, and Highland was just as resolute in refusing to produce them."[104] She also stated, "Daugherty has made a prima facie showing that a reasonable basis exists to believe that a fraud has been perpetrated, and that Highland sought A&B to serve as escrow agent and to provide legal analysis in furtherance of that fraud; specifically, to protect the escrowed assets from Daugherty while the Texas case was pending, and then to transfer them back to Highland after the Texas verdict was finalized. I conclude any privilege Highland claims over A&B's legal advice regarding the escrow arrangement and A&B's resignation has been stripped under the crime-fraud exception."[105] She also concluded that Highland, Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, and the other defendants (who were also controlled by Dondero) were "improperly withholding documents," that "there is a reasonable basis to believe" that they perpetrated a fraud—and solicited "the services of attorneys to aid in furtherance of that fraud"—as part of an effort to evade Daugherty's judgment during the pendency of his case.[106] The Judge concluded that "defendants, with [counsel's] advice and assistance, were never going to let the assets held in the escrow agreement make their way to Daugherty."[107]

[101] FAC ¶ 116. At that time, the court was not privy to the evidence that was later produced pursuant to the crime-fraud ruling in May 2019 and the documents produced to HERA in and after October 2022.

Additionally, a Contractual Master was appointed to oversee discovery compliance.[108] It was later discovered in 2021, after Highland filed for bankruptcy, that Leventon concealed the existence of company owned phones used by Dondero and Ellington, as well as a secret server used by many of the defendants or their affiliates to transfer assets.[109] In addition, despite a motion to compel to the contrary, the existence of numerous January 2013 HERA actions and resolutions by written consent were concealed by Dondero, Boyce, Britain, Demaris, Ellington, Leventon, Surgent, Hurst, Katz, Abrams and Hough until they were finally produced in October 2022 after full ownership and control of HERA was transferred to Daugherty.[110]

47. On the second day of a three-day trial, Dondero—for the first time—revealed that his vis-a-vis ERA's misconduct as manager of HERA was committed at the direction and based on the advice of his outside and in-house counsel, i.e., the In-house attorney defendants and Outside Attorneys in this action.[111] He testified, for example:

> Q. Did Highland have outside counsel advising with respect to the purchase of the units?
> A. Yes. I believe the whole situation was the most lawyered thing we've ever done. I mean, there was counsel for each of the board members, there was counsel for Highland, there was counsel for HERA, there was Delaware counsel. Everything was orchestrated, dictated by counsel.
> Q. Did Highland have – did that counsel that Highland used also advise counsel on the documents, the transaction documents, relating to those purchases?
> A. Yes. All the functional documents and major moves at various turning points were all at the request – or decided by counsel.
> Q. Did you have any communication – are you familiar with Abrams & Bayliss, with what Abrams & Bayliss is?
> A. I know they're a Delaware law firm. But beyond that, no.
> Q. Did you ever have any communications with Abrams & Bayliss about them resigning as escrow agent?
> A. No. Highland and myself, I know, were purposely kept separate from this whole thing. And it was driven by – it was driven by counsel.
> Q. My question is a little bit more specific because it relates to the escrow assets and Mr. Daugherty. If you had been told by counsel that Mr. Daugherty was entitled to the escrow assets, you would have given him the escrow assets; right?

> A. Yes. We would have done whatever counsel told us. We tried very hard to compartmentalize this mess. We have a business to run. And this is – a half dozen lawsuits, haranguing everybody in public, it was all intended to disrupt our business as much as possible. So we tried to delegate it and compartmentalize it to the lawyers as much as possible.
> Q. Let's talk about which lawyers you're referring to. So I'll start with the in-house lawyers again. Which in-house lawyers of Highland are you relying on with respect to the transfer of the escrow assets?
> A. It would have been the same three internal lawyers working with external counsel.
> Q. Mr. Ellington, Mr. Leventon, and Mr. Surgent; is that right?
> A. I believe so. I believe they were the ones at that time and place.
> Q. Which outside counsel are you relying on?
> A. I don't know if Andrews and Kurth had merged with Piper. I don't know who else was involved besides the Abrams guys. But it would have been, more likely than not, those two counsels with whatever other counsel was representing some of the people who were sued individually.[112]

5. Highland Bankruptcy

48. On the third day of the trial, October 16, 2019, Highland, at the direction of Dondero and Ellington, filed a voluntary petition for relief under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code in the Bankruptcy Court for the District of Delaware.[113] On December 4, 2019, the Delaware Court entered an order transferring venue of the case to the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division.[114] As a result, the Delaware I action was stayed.[115]

49. On January 9, 2020, the Highland Creditors Committee demanded and the Court approved a change of control of Highland, which involved the removal of Dondero as the sole director and the appointment of James P. Seery ('Seery"), John S. Dubel ("Dubel"), and retired Judge Russell F. Nelms ("Nelms") as independent directors (the "Independent Directors" and collectively, the "Independent Board") of Strand Advisors, Inc., Highland's general partner (the

"General Partner").[116] The Independent Directors were granted exclusive control over Highland and its operations during the pending bankruptcy proceedings.[117]

50. On July 16, 2020, the Court approved Highland's motion to appoint Independent Director Seery to replace Dondero, as Highland's CEO and gave him the additional title of CRO.[118]

51. On or around April 2020, Highland's new management discovered that Hurst had filed an unauthorized lawsuit on its behalf and ordered him to dismiss the lawsuit and subsequently terminated his services because of unprofessionalism.[119]

52. On October 9, 2020, Dondero was instructed to resign or be fired as an employee of Highland and as portfolio manager for all Highland managed funds due to his detrimental conduct to the firm and its creditors.[120]

53. Highland's bankruptcy was unique because all of the largest creditors' claims stemmed from litigation claims and judgments against the firm, not debt holders.[121] Indeed, Dondero, Ellington and Leventon expected to use the bankruptcy process to once again thwart recoveries while keeping themselves in control.[122] To the contrary, bankruptcy revealed a litany of terrible acts through a pattern of recurring conduct resulting in well over $1.4 billion dollars in litigation and arbitration claims and over $50,000,000 in legal fees.[123]

54. In January 2021, it was discovered that Dondero had been secretly coordinating with Highland's then-counsel, Ellington and Leventon, to direct Highland's affairs, despite his dismissal.[124] When the Court entered an order restraining Dondero from communicating with

Highland employees, Dondero flouted the order by communicating with Ellington and Leventon and instructing other employees to resist document production requests, even though those documents were kept on Highland's computer system.[125]

55. Ellington and Leventon were fired for cause on January 5, 2021, for acting in a manner adverse to Highland's interests.[126]

56. Dondero, Ellington and Leventon evinced no respect for Highland as an entity separate and apart from themselves.[127] The bankruptcy also revealed discovery misconduct during the Delaware I action with Daugherty, including a secret server that Dondero, Ellington, Leventon and others routinely used, which was concealed during discovery in the Delaware I action with Daugherty.[128] Additionally, the bankruptcy court twice found Dondero in contempt for violating a temporary restraining order.[129] During testimony at the first show cause hearing, it was revealed that Dondero and Ellington destroyed their cell phones that were provided by Highland.[130] Yet, in the Delaware I action with Daugherty, Leventon testified at his custodian of records deposition that Highland did not "have access to people's phones" and that Highland did not own any cell phones for the custodians.[131]

57. On February 8, 2021, the Court agreed to confirm Highland's bankruptcy plan, and the Court entered its plan Confirmation Order on February 22, 2021.[132]

58. On August 11, 2021, Highland's bankruptcy plan, as amended to date, became effective, and as a result, Highland's ownership was restructured.[133] Highland became a wholly owned subsidiary of the Highland Claimant Trust, a newly formed liquidating trust owned by the creditors of Highland.[134] Specifically:

- The Highland Claimant Trust became the sole limited partner of Highland.
- HCMLP GP LLC replaced Strand Advisors, Inc. as General Partner of Highland. HCMLP GP LLC is also a wholly owned subsidiary of the Highland Claimant Trust.
- Seery serves as the Claimant Trustee of the Highland Claimant Trust and remains the CEO of Highland today. Dondero and Okada are no longer involved in the management of Highland or the Claimant Trust.[135]

59. In the Bankruptcy, Daugherty filed a 3018 estimated claim for bankruptcy plan voting purposes at $40,000.000.00.[136] In November 2021, it is vital to note that Daugherty reached a settlement with Highland in the bankruptcy that excluded Defendants and specifically preserved claims on behalf of HERA in future litigation, i.e., this lawsuit and these claims.[137]

B. March/April 2022 -- Daugherty and His Affiliates Obtain Control of HERA and For the First Time Discover Harm to HERA Caused by Defendants' Deliberately Concealed Bad Acts and Omissions

60. Daugherty and his affiliates obtained ownership and control of HERA pursuant to the terms of a bankruptcy court approved settlement in March/April 2022.[138] It is critically important to note that it was not until Daugherty and his affiliates obtained control of HERA in March/April 2022, that Defendants' wrongdoing complained of in this lawsuit, was discovered and that those wrongful acts and omissions had been deliberately concealed. Indeed, Defendants strategically attempt to limit the discussion of their liability to matters only concerning the escrow fraud; however, documents discovered after March 1, 2022, reveal that the escrow scam was merely an extension of a much greater fraud and concealment – that the January/February 2013 buyout scheme and all actions pursuant to it were invalid.

61. After control was removed from the Defendants, HERA began to request documents, legal invoices, emails, and metadata related to HERA, but was met with obstruction at every turn.[139] Despite this, through diligent efforts undertaken since March 2022, HERA, for the first time, has been able to gather and piece together information regarding Defendants' acts and omissions as they relate to harm caused to HERA.[140]

62. Starting with March 1, 2022, during the bankruptcy settlement hearing, Highland finally acknowledged, "Dondero, through Highland, engaged in an asset-stripping campaign designed to render HERA judgment-proof, further exposing Highland to liability and unnecessary legal costs." Highland's new CEO, James Seery, testified:

> It actually looks like, frankly, the escrow was never really an escrow, and it was a -- it was a fraud from the beginning. And that one's a pretty disturbing one.[141]

63. On April 1, 2022, actual full ownership and control of HERA and ERA was transferred to Daugherty and his affiliates.[142]

64. On May 11, 2022, HERA instructed Abrams & Bayliss, HAK, DLAP, Marc Katz, and Michal Hurst via Lynn Pinker Hurst and Schwegman, to forward all of their respective casefiles, records and invoices allocated or related to HERA.[143]

65. True to form, HAK responded by letter on May 25, 2022, "Our records and research indicate that the Firm represented ERA and/or HERA in connection with only two matters. record of the recorded time." [144] They made this statement despite Katz/HAK/DLAP representing before the Delaware court that HERA was insolvent as it incurred millions of dollars in legal expenses, including those from his firm.[145]

66. HAK continued, "Additionally, given that Daugherty now wholly owns and controls HERA and ERA, we believe we are constrained in what we may transfer. Your HERA and ERA file transfer request equates to Daugherty gaining access to his litigation adversaries' attorney's files. In this unique circumstance of a litigant seeking his adversary's attorney's file by acquiring control of one (or more) of his litigation adversary's attorney's former jointly represented clients, the case law we have reviewed favors protecting the co-client's justified expectation that its attorney's files will not be disclosed to its litigation adversary."[146] Tellingly, HAK could produce no retention agreement that named Dondero as a client nor did Dondero pay a single dollar for any such legal expenses.[147] To summarize, after invoicing millions of dollars in legal fees that were knowingly allocated to HERA, HAK continued to conceal their conduct by claiming some contrived privilege based on jointly representing Highland, Dondero and HERA.[148] However, for strategic purposes while representing HERA against Daugherty in the prior collection efforts, Katz/HAK/DLAP left the Delaware court with precisely the opposite impression by making sure it knew 93% of the legal fees invoiced to Highland were for the benefit of HERA.[149]

67. DLAP delayed until July 22, 2022, to make the following similar response:

> Second, as you know, DLA's representations of HERA and ERA in the Daugherty Case were joint representations in which DLA also represented HCMLP [Highland] and Mr. Dondero. Mr. Daugherty is still adverse to Mr. Dondero in the Daugherty case and in Daugherty v. Dondero, No. 2019-0956 (Del. Ch.). That means that your request for the client file would result in DLA providing to one > litigation party the privileged and work product-protected communications of its litigation adversary. Such a production "would be anathema to the principles underlying the policy of fostering unfettered attorney-client communication.[150]

Again, DLAP made this response despite having millions of dollars of its fees allocated to HERA, representing HERA in Delaware courts, and producing no retention agreement that listed Dondero as a client or that he ever paid anything for the alleged representation.[151]

68. Hurst and Lynn Pinker Hurst and Schwegman never responded to HERA's file and document request.[152]

69. For over 13 years, Defendants have fraudulently concealed documents and resisted discovery efforts to obtain HERA documents. In 2013, Daugherty made a demand to inspect the books and records of HERA, but the Highland Defendants and Outside Attorneys denied the request.[153] Even after the bankruptcy court granted Daugherty and his affiliates 100% ownership and control of HERA and ordered all HERA books and records turned over, the Highland Defendants still refuse to comply. Even as late as January 2024, counsel for HERA was still requesting documents from HERA's former attorneys and Highland, which requests have still been refused.[154]

70. It was not until October 2022 and after that HERA received documents from Highland's new management and Abrams & Bayliss pursuant to two books and records requests, that extensive billing fraud, at the expense of HERA at the hands of its lawyers Katz/HAK/DLAP, Hurst, HAK, Abrams & Bayliss and others, was revealed.[155] The position Outside Attorneys take that they did not perform legal services on behalf of HERA (thus, making Highland their client), is simply unbelievable.[156]

71. HAK provided legal services to HERA along with the other Outside Attorneys pursuant to a purported joint defense agreement, and all of their invoices for work on behalf of Highland and HERA in the Texas Lawsuit were allocated to HERA.[157] HAK's legal services were expansive, and all the Outside Attorneys worked under a purported joint defense agreement, although it has never been produced to HERA.[158] Ellington testified in his deposition in Delaware I that the Outside Attorneys performed legal services for HERA pursuant to a shared services agreement or affiliated agreement.[159] Ellington also testified at the Delaware I trial that he and Surgent provided legal services to HERA through contractual and shared services agreement.[160] Dondero testified in Delaware I trial that he, along with the Outside [156] Exh. 18 – Email from Annette Tyler attaching Abrams & Bayliss and HAK invoices for February 2013. (App. 209-263). The Abrams & Bayliss invoice identifies the buyout scheme and people they spoke with in January and February 2012, including, Surgent (misspelled Sargent), Dameris and the HERA board. The HAK invoice was not produced by HAK or Highland. However, it was found as an exhibit supporting Highland's fee award in the Texas Lawsuit. They actually had the audacity to redact this work that was done for the buyout scheme and present it to the Texas court as an expense incurred by Highland in the breach of contract action against Daugherty in Texas. One can see from the unredacted portions: 1-15-13 — Katz corresponded with Surgent and Lackey on the same day of an email produced by AB that was addressed to Paul Lackey, Michael Aegen, Marc Katz, Boyce, Britain, Dameris, Ellington and Hough. The email goes on to say "Paul/Michael: I will call you to discuss the form of release contained in the transfer agreement to determine what final tweaks are necessary to cover the issue previously discussed. Marc: I will call you to explain. (App. 223-224); 1-22-13 — Katz correspondence with counsel to HERA (misspelled HEAR), Boyce, Britain, and Surgent. (App. 227-228); (d) 1-23-13 -- Katz correspondence with counsel to HERA (misspelled HEAR) regarding case matters. (App. 233-235); (g) 1-31-13 — Regas (of HAK) correspondence with Shonn Brown (counsel to HERA) to develop litigation strategy regarding Boyce deposition.(App.238-239). Surgent plays a central role in these communications, but he is also the current General Counsel at Highland and serves as its gatekeeper to stymie HERA's document requests. Not coincidentally, Highland failed to produce any invoices from this critical period (from any firm) or emails that implicated Surgent's role in the January/February 2013 buyout scheme. Importantly, the HAK invoice was used as part of the expenses that the jury ordered Daugherty to pay to Highland in the Texas Lawsuit (subsequently vacated) and he paid that amount around December 13, 2016. At the same time, Highland allocated these same invoices to HERA and forced HERA to recognize these expenses on its own tax and financial statements (double counting). Additionally, after Daugherty paid the expenses, Katz, as counsel to HERA, continued to represent to the Delaware court that these were legitimate expense of HERA's that had gone unpaid and that such amounts were owed to Highland pursuant to a loan (triple counting).

Attorneys and Highland's in-house attorneys, decided to transfer the HERA assets to Highland.[161] Indeed, financial records and information from Highland reveal that over $14,000,000.00 of expenses were allocated to HERA, and its lawyers were aware of it.[162] The Outside Attorneys are now apparently admitting that these allocated expenses were illegitimate and fraudulent.

72. Shockingly, Highland and its partners, including Dondero, Okada, the Defendant trusts, Ellington, Boyce, Britain, Dougherty, Honis and Parker, took the pass-through tax benefits of these expenses with the assistance of Surgent, Leventon, Girard, Waterhouse, Swadley and Klos as though they were their own, despite knowing that the obligations to pay were additionally recognized as loan write-off losses on Highland's books, creating another pass-through loss.[163] Surgent explained to Abrams & Bayliss that they did not want Daugherty to get the tax benefit of the expense/loss pass-throughs so they made the legal expense allocations effective after they received their 2013 buy-out proceeds.[164]

73. Not surprisingly, when the details of the fraud were discovered, Highland's new management realized a charge to HERA's capital accounts in excess $10 million as an offset to write off over $10 million of falsely allocated debt, resulting in a loss of capital account basis that could have been used by HERA and its unit holders for tax purposes.[165]

74. In addition, HERA, for the first time in 2022 and 2023, received thousands of pages of documents, emails and invoices from Highland, through its new management.

solely on behalf of HERA on June 11, 2012, after discussions with Boyce, Britain, Dameris, Honis, Dougherty, Hough, Abrams, Brown, Ellington, Kim, Collins, and Surgent regarding HERA's litigation with Daugherty.[166] It was also revealed that in an email dated November 28, 2012, Dameris was advised by Abrams and Hough, "We caution that the board, which manages HERA, owes fiduciary duties to both the LLC itself and to its members."[167]

76. Invoices and emails discovered in October 2022, revealed that on December 22, 2012, Dondero communicated his buyout offer to members of HERA's board after Dameris considered and Dondero rejected certain settlement scenarios regarding Daugherty's claims against HERA, despite Abrams & Bayliss' warning to Dameris that HERA's board had fiduciary duties to HERA and the other unit holders.[168] This provided previously unknown context to an email that was produced in the Texas Lawsuit from Dameris, as Managing Director of Highland, to Dondero on December 26, 2012 that presented as legitimate a "Buyout" scheme in which Dondero could gain control of HERA at a substantial discount to value, pending review by Delaware counsel, "[i]f you decide to offer everyone except 1 [Daugherty] a buyout."[169]

77. Therefore, the argument that the HERA board members did not know of the buyout offer and asset transfers from HERA to Highland because they occurred after they signed their Transfer Agreements is a gross misremembering of the actual facts.[170] In fact, it is quite clear they were fully aware and complicit in the scheme, per emails from their lawyers with draft documents a week before they signed the Transfer Agreements.[171]

78. This also refutes certain testimony given by Dondero in the Texas Lawsuit that Dondero had no influence over HERA prior to January 2013.[172] It also revealed why Dameris collaborated with Abrams & Bayliss on December 30, 2013, to enhance indemnification rights of HERA's directors.[173] Importantly, this buyout scheme was created at the same time that a large cash payoff was due to be paid to HERA's largest asset holding, Restoration Capital Partners, LP, pursuant to the sale proceeds of Safety-Kleen Systems, Inc.[174]

79. Likewise, Okada was fully aware, or certainly should have been fully aware, of the buyout scheme. Yet, he testified in the Texas Lawsuit he knew next to nothing of the buyout scheme.[175] This is incredible, since Okada was the Chief Investment Officer and Executive Vice President (as well as co-founder) of Highland.[176] He was a Principal and controlled the "Manager" of HERA's largest asset, Restoration Capital Partners, LP., along with Dondero.[177] It is impossible to believe that Okada knew nothing about the buyout scheme, given these positions and the fact that he and his trusts benefitted from the assets assigned to Highland from HERA.[178]

80. It was not until HERA demanded review of its own invoices and records in May 2022 that it was for the first time revealed that Hough (copying Abrams & Bayliss) had conspired with HERA and its former board members on December 30, 2012 to provide a detailed scheme of "Buyout Steps," including how to transfer control of HERA to Dondero and Okada, while attempting to forgive the board members of their fiduciary duties to HERA and simultaneously seeking to create expanded indemnification rights for themselves.[179]

81. It was also revealed for the first time in late 2022 that Surgent sent an email on January 9, 2013, and again on January 15, 2013, distributing all of HERA's operative documents to implement the buyout scheme to Katz/HAK, Paul Lackey ("Lackey"), Michael Aigen ("Aigen), Hough, Ellington, Boyce, Britain, Dameris for comment. Even though Katz/HAK, Lackey, and Aigen were purported not to be counsel for HERA during this time, they nevertheless received HERA's confidential information, and their legal invoices were allocated to HERA.[180]

82. Additionally, records discovered in 2022 revealed that on January 11, 2013, in an email addressed to Britain, Dameris and Surgent, Abrams demanded an additional $100,000 retainer for the services rendered in regard to the buyout and transfer.[181] It was also revealed that invoices to HERA, with attention to Surgent, from January and February 2013 falsely labeled the subject matter of the buyout and transfer advice as "Daugherty Litigation."[182]

83. Highland and Dondero directed Collins and Surgent to offer holders of HERA preferred units that were current employees (plus Joe Dougherty) Transfer Agreements to purchase their preferred units for 100% of the value of their cash interests and 60% of the value of their non-cash interests on January 18, 2013.[183] When asked under oath why current employees were given the offer two weeks prior to non-employees, Carl Moore, as corporate representative for HERA, testified that it was just because of logistics in order to easily access current employees.[184] It was not until October 2022 that it was revealed for the first time that the actual offer for preferred unit holders that were employed by Highland (plus Joe Dougherty) at the time occurred much sooner, because Dondero had told Surgent that he did not want Daugherty to find out.[185] Dondero needed a majority and current Highland Capital employees were effectively given an offer they could not refuse weeks before their year-end bonuses were paid upon approval by Dondero on February 28, 2013. Joe Dougherty, in turn, received over $1 million, plus expanded indemnification from Highland. Indeed, all of the preferred unit holders that were employed by Highland at the time purported to accept the offer on the same date the offer was made -- January 18, 2013.[186] When the offer was finally presented to former employees, other than Joe Dougherty, on January 31, 2013, Collins and Surgent warned those who questioned the fairness of the price that a majority had already agreed to the offer and that anyone who did not accept the offer would "have their rights stripped."[187]

84. It was also not until late 2022 that documents were finally produced that revealed that HERA's board of directors ignored the advice of legal counsel, despite testimony by Britain and Boyce to the contrary, and did nothing to protect HERA from this lowball buyout; despite knowing it was a violation of their fiduciary duties. It did not seek a higher price from Highland, Dondero, Okada or from Highland's other partners at the time, including Boyce, Britain, Ellington, and Honis, who stood to benefit from the transaction, despite simultaneously serving on HERA's board.[188] They did not discuss a poison pill, a standstill, or any other corporate defense mechanism available to protect from a creeping takeover pursuant to their obligations under Delaware law.[189] They did not even seek a fairness opinion on the financial fairness of the buy-out scheme event though they were advised by Abrams to do so.[190]

85. Between January 17- April 30, 2013, the Defendants executed this buyout scheme though a series of corporate governance maneuvers designed to strip HERA of its assets. The timing of who actually was serving on the HERA board, and thus who had authority to make certain decisions, is critical to determining the illegitimacy of the corporate governance actions that purportedly occurred from January 17- April 30, 2013.

86. It was not until March 2022 that HERA came into possession of documents that for the first time prove that the January 17-April 30, 2013, actions and subsequent documents were invalid.[191] Similarly, the Defendants have constantly changed their story as to what happened January 17-19, 2013.

87. Article 5 of the Second Amended LLC Agreement clearly governed HERA's management as of January 17, 2013,[192] which reads in relevant part:

> Section 5.1 General. The Company shall be managed by a Board of Directors (the "Board"), which shall at all times consist of six members, consisting of the following individuals:

The Board shall act by majority vote (either by meeting or written consent), unless a greater percentage is expressly required under this Agreement. Each member of the Board shall serve until such member shall cease to hold Series A Preferred Units or until such member's death, resignation or removal from by Board by the unanimous affirmative vote of the remaining Board members. Any vacancies on the Board shall be filled by holder(s) of Series A Preferred Units elected by a majority of the remaining members of the Board, or if no such majority decision can be reached, by the holder(s) of the greatest number of Series A Preferred Units who are not then currently a member of the Board and who are willing to serve on the Board, or if no Series A Preferred Units remain outstanding, as determined by a majority of the remaining members of the Board.

Section 5.2 Delegation of Powers of the Board (a) Subject to Article 5.2(b) and ARTICLE XI hereof, the Board shall have the exclusive and complete authority, acting without the consent or approval of, or notice to, the Member and in the Board's sole and absolute discretion, to operate the Company and its business and to make all determinations or elections or to consent to any matter otherwise described in this Agreement. Neither the Member nor any other unitholder shall have the authority to remove any member of the Board.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Agreement or any provision of law that otherwise so empowers the Company, from and after the date of this Agreement and until the date on which all assets of the Company have been distributed in full, the Company shall not, and shall not have power or authority and shall not be authorized to, and the Board shall not, and shall not have power or authority and shall not be authorized to cause the Company to, take any of the following actions without the prior affirmative vote or written consent of at least 75% of the members of the Board:

(v) incur or assume any indebtedness or obligations except for liabilities under Article 3.3, or cause the Company, to incur or assume any indebtedness or obligations except for liabilities under Section 3.3[.][193]

88. Section 5.1 clearly states that "Each member of the Board shall serve until such member shall cease to hold Series A Preferred Units."[194] Thus, once a board member executed their respective Transfer Agreements, they ceased to hold Series I Preferred Units and ceased to have the right to vote as a HERA board member.[195] Proof of the Defendants' manipulation, forward dating and back dating the corporate documents, and the timeline of events of January 17 and 18, 2013 is critical.

89. The Court must first look at the January 18, 2013, email from Hough to Abrams (not discovered until 2022) which illuminates the degree of Defendants' manipulation to effectuate the invalid corporate governance documents.[196] First, Hough acknowledged that the HERA Transfer Agreements were signed the morning of January 18 (ostensibly including Boyce, Britain and Dameris), thus removing them as HERA board members.[197] Second, the document purporting to remove Walia as a HERA Board member was "effective" January 17, 2013.[198] Third, Hough incredibly admits that the amendments "permitting Dondero to make further amendments, the various member consents, the offer to purchase, and the transfer agreements were dated January 18."[199] Fourth, to cover their tracks, he admits Surgent would date the outgoing board members resignations January 19, 2013, so there is no doubt their resignation occurred only after the transactions were effected.[200]

90. This is truly a remarkable fantasy, as it is clear that it does not matter when the HERA board members resigned, as their removal as HERA board members occurred upon the surrender of their units, i.e., the Transfer Agreements.[201] Thus, despite the Defendants' best efforts to manipulate and conceal these invalid actions, HERA now knows these actions were invalid. Sadly, even if the HERA board members had wanted to stop Dondero from stripping HERA's assets (which they clearly did not), they were apparently powerless to do so. Britain testified in his deposition in the Texas Lawsuit that, as a HERA Board Member, he had no power to stop the offers, even though he admits he had a fiduciary duty to do so.[202] So, he was either lying when he said he had no power to stop the offers, despite signing over 12 documents in an attempt to effectuate the offer, or he was lying when he testified that he could have told Dondero no.

91. It is undisputed that R. Jospeh Dougherty signed his Transfer Agreement on January 17, 2013, and thus was automatically removed from the HERA board.[203] It is undisputed that Walia did not execute his Transfer Agreement until February 5, 2013.[204] Honis did not submit his 12-page fax signatures for all of the documents below until January 18, 2013, at 4:33pm CST – after the other board members (except Walia) had already signed their Transfer Agreements and thus relinquished all claims and rights to their HERA interests and board positions.[205]

92. As a result, the January 17, 2013 Written Consent of Board of Directors purporting to (1) approve the amendment to Section 5.1 of the Second Amended LLC Agreement to change number of board members from 6 to 5, and (2) remove Walia effective January 17, 2013, is clearly invalid, because at that time a unanimous vote was required to remove Walia (which had not occurred because Honis had not executed the documents) and a 75% vote was required to amend Section 5.1 (which had not occurred because Honis and Walia had not executed the documents).[206]

93. This is also the case for the remainder of the corporate governance documents

Defendants used to make further amendments, all of which are invalid.

- Written Consent of Board of Directors (Expense Payments and Reserves) -- effective date January 17, 2013 – Honis execution untimely, Walia did not vote, and no majority vote approving same, as required by Second Amended LLC Agreement § 5.1. Thus this action and document are invalid.[207]
- Written Consent of Board of Directors (Transfer of Dougherty Units to Highland) -- effective date January 17, 2013 – Honis execution untimely, Walia did not vote, and no majority vote approving same, as required by Second Amended LLC Agreement § 5.1. Thus this action and document are invalid.[208]
- Written Consent of Board of Directors (Approval to amend § 5.1 to reduce number of board members to 5 and remove Walia as board member) -- effective date January 17, 2013 – Honis execution untimely, Walia did not vote, no majority vote approving same, as required by Second Amended LLC Agreement § 5.1, there was not 75% required to amend pursuant to § 5.2(b)(iv) and no unanimous vote to remove Walia pursuant to § 5.1. Thus this action and document are invalid.[209]
- Amendment to Second Amended LLC Agreement (Amending § 5.1 to reduce number of board members to 5) -- effective date January 17, 2013 – Honis execution untimely, Walia did not vote, and pursuant to Second Amended LLC Agreement § 5.1, there was not 75% required to amend pursuant to § 5.2(b)(iv). untimely, Walia did not vote, and pursuant to Second Amended LLC Agreement § 5.1, there was not 75% required to amend pursuant to § 5.2(b)(iv). In addition, no majority of preferred unit holders consented (only 33.235% without Dougherty and Honis) to and ratified Article VIII amendment, as required. Thus this action and document are invalid.[211]

- Second Amendment to Second Amended LLC Agreement (Amending Article VIII for Indemnification and Liability) -- effective date January 18, 2013 – Honis execution untimely, Walia did not vote, and there was not 75% required to amend pursuant to § 5.2(b)(iv). In addition, no majority of preferred unit holders consented (only 33.235% without Dougherty and Honis) to and ratified Article VIII amendment as required. Thus this action and document are invalid.[212]
- Board Resolution of Written Consent (Approval to 3rd Amendment to §§ 5.1, 5.2(b)(iv) and Article IX for acceptance and offer of assignment of preferred unit to Highland) -- effective date January 18, 2013 – Honis execution untimely, Walia did not vote, and there was not 75% required to amend pursuant to § 5.2(b)(iv). ratified the proposed Article 5.1, 5.2(b)(iv) and Article IX amendment as required. Thus this action and document are invalid.[214]

- Transfer Agreements – as of the morning of January 18, 2013, Surgent informs Abrams & Bayliss via Steven Hough in email, "Thomas Surgent called and told me that the HERA buyout documents were executed this morning, with close to 60% accepting. As we discussed, Highland is going to wait two weeks to extend the offer to HERA's non-employee members."[215] Therefore, as of noon January 18, 2013, Ellington, Boyce, Britain and Dameris had vacated their board positions and, pursuant to § 5.1, had no power or authority to act on behalf of HERA.[216] As of 4:33pm CST, Honis had vacated his board position and, pursuant to § 5.1, had no power or authority to act on behalf of HERA.[217] Thus, HERA was left with an incomplete board -- only Walia and what should have been Daugherty, had it not been concealed from him, to fill the remaining board positions.
- On February 1, 2013, Highland ERA Management, LLC ("ERA") was created in Delaware via an LLC Agreement with Highland as limited partner, Strand Advisors as the general partner, and Dondero as president.[218]
- Third Amended LLC Agreement (Replaces the Second Amended LLC Agreement and names ERA as manager of HERA) – effective February 1, 2013 – At this time Walia is the only sitting board member, and there was not 75% required to amend pursuant to § 5.2(b)(iv). Further, ERA has no authority to act as manager of HERA. Thus this action and document are invalid.[219]

February 1, 2013 – At this time Walia is only sitting board member and there was not 75% required to amend pursuant to § 5.2(b)(iv). Further, ERA has no authority to act as manager of HERA. Thus this action and document are invalid.[220]

- Written Consent of Manager – effective February 1, 2013 – (Expense Allocation to HERA) -- At this time Walia is the only sitting board member, and there was not 75% required to allow transfer, assignment of conveyance of HERA assets pursuant to § 5.2(b)(ii). Further, ERA had no authority to act as manager of HERA. Thus this action and document are invalid.[221]
- Assignment Agreement (HERA assets assigned to Highland as sole interest holder) – effective April 30, 2013 – At this time Walia had signed his Transfer Agreement (February 5, 2013), resulting in no board and no 75% required to allow transfer, assignment of conveyance of HERA assets pursuant to § 5.2(b)(ii). Further, ERA had no authority to act as manager of HERA. Thus this action and document are invalid. [222]
- Manager's Written Consent (Making Daugherty's economic interest in HERA zero per Article XI and approving assignment of HERA assets to Highland as sole interest holder) – effective April 30, 2013 – At this time Walia had signed his Transfer Agreement (February 5, 2013), resulting in no board, no 75% required to allow transfer, assignment of conveyance of HERA assets pursuant to § 5.2(b)(ii), and no 75% required to amend the agreement pursuant to § 5.2(b)(iv). Further, ERA had no authority to act as manager of HERA. Thus this action and document are invalid.[223]

94. Through these actions, Defendants secretly attempted to ratify their own self-dealing actions, whitewash their dereliction of duty, and enlisted counsel from Abrams & Bayliss,

Andrews Kurth, Gruber Hurst, Surgent, Ellington, Girard and Leventon to provide themselves broad releases of their fiduciary obligations and indemnifications while paving the way for Dondero, Okada, Ellington, and Highland to strip HERA of its assets.[224]

95. Tellingly, these critical corporate governance documents were never produced in the Prior Lawsuits because Defendants deliberately concealed the true events of January 17, 2013, to April 30, 2013. During the Texas Lawsuit, they only produced documents to "legitimize" their actions.[225] Furthermore, the HERA board members purported to execute a reserve for actual and potential expenses but did not bother to reserve anything for the claims being made in the Prior Lawsuits. Regardless of their failed attempt, the board members disregarded the fact that Delaware entities, such as HERA, are not permitted to waive liability for fraud or breach of good faith and fair dealing.

96. There are significant takeaways from the above documents and timeline demonstrating the invalidity of these documents and actions: (1) It was not discovered until May 2024 that Walia never resigned or was properly removed, such that he was a required signatory to the January 17-18, 2013, governance amendments and corporate actions;[226] (2) Taken in concert with Honis not submitting his signatures on the proposed actions until after 4:30pm on January 18, 2013, the actions by Boyce, Britain, Dougherty, and Dameris, who had already forfeited their positions as HERA board members by waiving and releasing any and all rights they had pursuant to the terms of the Transfer Agreement, were void;[227] (3) Since there were only two board members at the time Honis submitted his signatures for the proposed actions, approval was impossible without Walia's signature.

97. More recently, on October 31, 2024, Britain, Dougherty and Dameris filed documents in this Court claiming they resigned as board members as of January 17, 2013.[228] Accordingly, Britain and Dameris wrongfully purported to be acting as board members of HERA for all purported governance actions on January 18, 2013.

98. Therefore all of the attempted amendments failed, but Honis and Walia subsequently negotiated for and received their own transactions that required them to waive and release all claims pursuant to their Transfer Agreements.[229] Accordingly, Daugherty became the only remaining owner of the preferred units in HERA as of February 22, 2013, and only he and his affiliates could effect a change in governance pursuant to the terms of the last legitimate governance amendment on February 16, 2012,[230] a fact Daugherty and HERA did not discover until May of 2024 when Walia confirmed same.

99. Defendants knew their actions were invalid, as they fabricated Honis's signature at least once (of which Plaintiff only became aware of in late 2022).[231] Exhibit 58 (Second Amendment to the Second Amended LLC Agreement and Exhibit 68 the deposition of Carl Moore, the corporate representative of HERA during the Texas Lawsuit, and Exhibit 71 to that deposition purports to be the executed signature pages of Honis and Boyce (with no fax information in the header).[232] As has been established, Honis faxed his signature pages to all documents from a hotel in San Francisco on January 18, 2013, at 4:33pm CST, as evidence by the fax line at the top of the page where he signed all the documents, a review of which contains no signature of Honis on a Second Amendment to the Second LLC Agreement, it does not exist.[233]. Honis was not with Boyce on January 18, 2013, as Honis was in San Francisco and all his signature pages have fax information in the header.[234] So either Honis never signed the Second Amendment to the Second Amended LLC Agreement (thus again making it invalid), or his signature was fabricated by the Defendants.[235]

100. Further, the significance of the timing of execution is confirmed by Britain in an affidavit he provided in the Texas Lawsuit wherein he swears under oath that "By operation of Section 5.1 of the Second Amended and Restated HERA LLC Agreement, I was automatically removed as a director upon sale of my Series A preferred Units" – the sale, of course, being the Transfer Agreement. Therefore, the timing of the execution of the Transfer Agreements is critical to the analysis above regarding validity.[236]

101. Moreover, these actions, specifically the transfer of assets through the: (1) Board Resolution by Written Consent transferring Dougherty units to Highland; (2) Board Resolution by Written Consent acceptance of Offer and Assignment of Preferred Units to Highland; (3) Third Amendment to Second Amended LLC Agreement acceptance of Offer and Assignment of Preferred Units to Highland; (4) Preferred Unit Resolution by Written Consent acceptance of Offer and Assignment of Preferred Units to Highland; (5) Assignment Agreement where HERA assets are assigned to Highland; and (6) Manager Resolution by Written Consent approving assignment of HERA assets to Highland, all violated Section 2.1 of the Second Amended LLC Agreement which states:

> Section 2.1 Purposes. The purpose of the Company shall be to receive and hold assets to be contributed by the Initial Member and to distribute the proceeds of such assets from time to time to certain employees of the Initial Member (or of affiliates of the Initial Member, as applicable) as the Board may from time to time determine in order to create a retention initiative for such employees and to engage in such other lawful purposes and activities in connection with the foregoing.[237]

102. Moreover, Defendants' actions of January-April 2013 violated Article IX of the Second Amended LLC Agreement, which IX states:

> No interest in the Company, whether Common Units, Preferred Units or otherwise, may be assigned without the prior written consent of the Board, provided, however, that vested Series A Preferred Units may be assigned as set forth on Exhibit A.[238]

103. Thus, the transfer of Preferred Units is null and void.

104. Defendants' actions of January-April 2013 also violated Article XI of the Second Amended LLC Agreement, which states:

> Section 11.1 Separateness: Operating Procedures. Until the date on which no Series A Preferred Units remain outstanding, the Company represents warrants and covenants as follows:
> (a) The purpose for which the Company is organized shall be and remain limited solely to (i) directly owning and holding assets to be contributed by the Member and to distribute the proceeds of such assets from time to time to certain employees of the Member in order to create a retention initiative for such employees (the "Retention Assets"), (ii) distribute the proceeds of the Retention Assets in accordance with the terms of the Series A Preferred Units of the Company, and (iii) transacting any and all lawful business for which a limited liability company may be organized under Delaware law that is incident, necessary and appropriate to accomplish the foregoing.
> (b) The Company will maintain all of its books, records, and bank accounts separate from those of any affiliate. The Company's assets will not be listed as assets on the financial statement of any other entity. The Company's assets will not be listed as assets on the financial statement of any other entity; provided, however, that its assets may be included in a consolidated financial statement of its parent if inclusion on such consolidated financial statements shall contain a footnote to the effect that the Company's assets are owned by it and that they are being included on the financial statement of its parent solely to comply with the requirements of GAAP. The Company will file its own tax returns and will not file a consolidated federal income tax return with any other entity unless required to do so by applicable law or regulation.
> (c) The Company will be, and at all times, will hold itself out to the public as, a legal entity separate and distinct from any other entity (including any of its affiliates), shall correct any known misunderstanding regarding its status as a separate entity, shall conduct business in its own name, and shall maintain and utilize separate stationery, invoices and checks.

(d) The Company shall maintain its bank accounts separate from any other person or entity other than a successor in interest and will not commingle its funds and other assets with those of any of its affiliates, other than any successor in interest, or any other person, and will not participate in a cash management system with any such party.

(e) The Company will not guarantee or become obligated for the debts of any other entity or person or pledge its assets for the benefit of any such entity or person and does not and will not hold itself out as being responsible for the debts or obligations of any other person or hold out its credit as available to satisfy the obligations of any other person or entity.

(f) The Company shall allocate fairly and reasonably any overhead expenses that are shared with an affiliate, including paying for office space and services performed by any employee of an affiliate.

(h) The Company shall pay its own liabilities and expenses out of its own funds drawn on its own, or any successor-in-interest's, bank account.[239]

105. These are not mere semantics; this is Corporate Governance and Authority 101. The aforementioned HERA governance, resolutions, agreements, and assignments that were purportedly executed in January 2013 and after are invalid.

106. The Highland Defendants and Outside Attorneys knew the buyout scheme was a sham, even commenting prior to the January 17-18, 2013 execution of documents that the HERA Board Members would be in breach of their fiduciary duties.[240] Highland's in-house lawyers and the Outside Attorneys all agree that the HERA board members owed fiduciary duties to HERA.[241]

107. The Highland Defendants deliberately withheld critical documents from January

[239] Exh. 48 -- Second Amended LLC Agreement, Article XI. (App. 539-559).
[240] Exh. 25 – November 28, 2012, email from Abrams and Hough to Dameris.(App. 337-341).

17-18, 2013, and the immediate aftermath, that "allowed" them to strip HERA of its assets. The only documents that were produced in the Prior Lawsuits were those that purported to legitimize the acting authority and its actions, such as: Second Amended and Restated LLC Agreement dated 2-16-12, Amendment to the Second Amended and Restated LLC Agreement dated 1-17-13, Second Amendment to the Second Amended and Restated LLC Agreement dated 1-17-13, Third Amendment to the Second Amended and Restated LLC Agreement dated 1-18-13, Third Amended and Restated LLC Agreement – dated 2-1-13, Expense Allocation Agreement – dated 2-1-13, Written Consent for Expense Allocation – dated 2-1-13, Assignment Agreement – dated 4-30-13, Managers Written consent re Asset Transfer – dated 4-30-13, Board resignations of Boyce and Britain – dated January 19, 2013, and Escrow Agreement – dated 12-13-13.

108. The damning documents were fraudulently and deliberately concealed from HERA until 2022 and later. As a result, HERA did not have knowledge of these claims until that time, specifically the manner and timing to which the actions occurred, making them invalid.

109. Indeed, Defendants followed up their scheme to conceal critical documents by providing false and misleading testimony in depositions through 2013 and at the Texas Trial in 2014. Surgent, Boyce, Britain all testified in the Texas Lawsuit, upon direction by Hurst and Brown, that the HERA Board was not involved in the buy-out scheme offer to purchase HERA preferred units by Highland.[242] Thus, during the Prior Lawsuits, Daugherty and the court were told that Highland owned 100% of the HERA preferred units. However, once HERA obtained documents in 2022, it realized that the HERA Board was in fact not only involved in the buy-out scheme, but they also knew about it beforehand and actively attempted to facilitate it.[243]

110. This testimony was proven to be a lie, when Abrams and Bayliss produced a series of documents in 2022 that revealed Surgent and Defendants' current counsel, Michael Aigen, were actively involved in reviewing and implementing the governance documents to effect the offer and subsequent transfer of assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Defendants.[244] These documents specifically included a resolution to address Article IX, a "Privileged Offer to Purchase", and all other documents to affect the buyout scheme despite Surgent's testimony to the contrary that there was no need for Article IX to effect transfer.[245]

D. HERA's Assets Are Stripped

111. Although Defendants contended that ERA was the manager of HERA, metadata later revealed in October 2022 indicated there was no valid corporate action taken by the board.[246] Despite the absence of valid authority, Dondero, acting as the president of ERA, with the assistance of his minions at Highland and their legal counsel who simultaneously represented both Highland and HERA through what they claim were Shared Services Agreement and a Blanket Agreement, purported to execute a series of transactions to strip HERA of its assets.[247]

112. On February 1, 2013, the day that ERA was formed, Dondero purportedly executed the Third Amended LLC Agreement on behalf of HERA prepared by Surgent, Ellington, Katz/HAK, Hurst, Hough and Abrams, which (1) eliminated the purpose for which HERA was created, (2) eliminated the requirement of HERA to make cash distributions to preferred unit holders to cover pass-through tax obligations attributable to HERA, (3) eliminated members' rights to indemnification, (4) limited indemnification obligations to the discretion of the Manager (Highland ERA Management, LLC) or the Initial Member (Highland Management, LP), and (5) provided for broad indemnification to the Manager (Highland ERA Management, LLC) and Dondero.[248]

113. That same day, Dondero also purported to execute an Expense Allocation Agreement prepared by Surgent, Ellington, Leventon, Katz/HAK, Hurst, Hough, Abrams, Waterhouse and Klos, on behalf of both Highland and HERA under which the parties reallocated 93.4% of Highland's purported legal expenses billed by their firms and others related to the Texas Lawsuit to HERA for no consideration.[249] According to the document, Highland had incurred $1,142,284 in legal expenses in the Texas Lawsuit as of December 31, 2012, compared to just $154,029 incurred by HERA over the same period.[250]

114. On February 6, 2013, Daugherty sent a letter seeking to review HERA's books and records to verify its assets and their value.[251] Defendants rejected this request and their reasoning was laid out in an email dated February 13, 2013 by declaring, "You seek, inter alia, 'documents establishing the December 31, 2012 estimated value of the Interests as calculated by HERA;' 'HERA's balance sheets, income statements, lists of assets, general ledger, and the account records for any depository accounts of HERA, as of December 31, 2012 and for the periods ending December 31, 2012, 2011, 2010 and 2009;' 'HERA's 2009, 2010 and 2011 federal, state, and local tax returns'; 'information… regarding and identifying the current holders of the Series A Preferred Units, and to the extent the Common Unit Holder has already acquired any such units… from whom, in what amounts and for what consideration;' 'documents… regarding member lists;' and 'documents… regarding HERA's Board… and any amendments to HERA's company agreement.' Your Demand takes a shotgun approach to requesting books and records that is antithetical to the 'rifled precision' required by Delaware law. e.g., Brehm v. Eisner, 746

115. However, it was discovered in 2022 that on February 7, 2013, Surgent sent an email attaching Daugherty's request to inspect HERA's assets to Abrams, Hough, Hurst, Katz/HAK, Lackey and Ellington.[253] Again, Katz/HAK and Lackey did not represent HERA at the time but were adverse to Daugherty and his counsel at Looper Reed, and McGraw on behalf of Highland.[254]

116. It was not discovered until October of 2022 the manner of how all of HERA's assets had been stripped and litigation expenses allocated to it. Exhibit 73, obtained from Highland in October of 2022, contains Highland financial statements and an excel spreadsheet summary that proves this.[255] It also proves that Leventon, Ellington, Surgent, Dondero, Klos, Swadley, Waterhouse, and Katz/HAK had fraudulently allocated all of the legal invoices from the Outside Attorneys and other firms to HERA.[256]

117. It was further discovered for the first time in October 2022 that an action by written consent purportedly executed by Dondero on April 30, 2013, to declare Highland as the "sole economic interest holder in [HERA] following the consummation of the transactions pursuant to the Offers to Purchase dated on or about January 18, 2013, and January 31, 2013" was invalid.[257] The same document also declared that, "Daugherty's economic interest in [HERA] is now zero as a result of the application of Article XI of [HERA's] Operating Agreement."[258] And it further resolved to transfer all of HERA's assets to Highland because Highland and HERA "have each determined that it is in their respective best interest" to transfer substantially all the assets of HERA as "in-kind distribution[s]" to Highland (then valued at approximately $9,700,000 on top of approximately $6 million in cash that Highland also took), despite providing no consideration to HERA.[259]

118. Through this series of these invalid transactions that were only revealed for the first time in October 2022 to have been invalid and/or otherwise backdated and later circulated by Leventon and Goldsmith to appear legitimate, Highland claimed to have taken all of HERA's assets, leaving it insolvent.[260] HERA only became insolvent in 2013 because its funds and assets were purportedly used: (1) to pay for substantially all of Highland's attorneys' fees incurred in the Texas Lawsuit pursuant to the Expense Allocation Agreement dated February 1, 2013; (2) to pay for all of HERA's attorneys' fees incurred in in trying to wrongfully prevent Daugherty from receiving his share of the HERA's assets; and (3) to transfer and register substantially all of its assets to Highland for nothing.[261]

119. It was also revealed in 2022 that in an email dated October 7, 2013, Katz/HAK, Hurst, and Miller knew HERA's board had ignored their duties to carefully review the Highland Purchase Offer and had even discussed the Lampers v. Fertitta case by highlighting:

> Turning first to the board's failure to employ a poison pill to prevent Fertitta from obtaining control without paying a control premium, it is reasonable in the context of a motion to dismiss to infer fiduciary misconduct more serious than a breach of the duty of care. The failure to act in the face of an obvious threat to the corporation and the minority stockholders instead supports a reasonable inference that the board breached its duty of loyalty in choosing not to cross Fertitta.[262]

120. Further, the excel spreadsheets prepared by Highland personnel for 2013 to 2019 (and concealed from HERA until October 2022) show details of law firms, individuals, and

Highland (listed as GP) that received cash/assets of HERA.[263] Importantly, HERA owned assets composed of cash and non-cash assets. The cash assets generated interest, and the non-cash assets generated cash upon their monetization and then subsequently generated interest once converted to cash and distributed.[264] The financial statements and spread sheets show that these cashflows were itemized until the assets were transferred to Highland circa April 30, 2013.[265] The distributions continued, but going forward, they came from the assets taken from HERA and assigned to Highland books.[266] Dondero, Okada and their trusts (and ay various times Britain, Boyce, Ellington, Honis and Parker) owned Highland from 2013 to 2020 and received comingled distributions in cash from the Highland distributions. Accordingly, they directed HERA assets to Highland and then directed the cash distributions from those assets to themselves and their trusts.[267]

121. At the time of the Highland bankruptcy filing, any cash not already distributed to Dondero, Okada and their trusts, and the non-cash assets on the books of Highland were trapped pursuant to the automatic stay and were subsequently held in the Claimant Trust for the benefit of creditors. Thus, some of the remaining wrongly transferred assets from HERA were not distributed to Dondero, Okada, and their Trusts and remained on the books of Highland to pay creditors.

122. These facts and attached exhibits show: (1) HERA has never alleged a single claim against any party in any previous court, including the Prior Lawsuits; (2) HERA's assets were stripped and litigation expenses allocated through a series of invalid corporate actions; (3) HERA could not (due to being controlled by Defendants doing the bad acts) or did not know to (since most of the information forming the basis of this lawsuit was discovered after March of 2022 or

II. STANDARD OF REVIEW

123. Rule 12(b)(6) permits dismissal if a party fails "to state a claim upon which relief can be granted."[268] When deciding a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, the court accepts all well-pleaded facts as true, viewing them in the light most favorable to the non-movant.[269] A well-pleaded complaint must allege facts upon which the claims are based and not be a conclusory recitation of the elements of a cause of action.[270] A complaint must state sufficient facts such that the "claim has facial plausibility" and is not merely "possible."[271] A plaintiff pleads a claim with facial plausibility when the "factual content . . . allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable."[272] The complaint must allege sufficient facts to "give the defendant fair notice" of plaintiff's claims against it.[273] The alleged facts must be facially plausible such that the facts nudge the plaintiff's claims "across the line from conceivable to plausible."[274] The court must view all facts in the light most favorable to the plaintiff.[275]

124. Courts have set out a two-step approach for assessing the sufficiency of a complaint in the context of a Rule 12(b)(6) motion.[276] First, the Court identifies conclusory allegations and disregards them, for they are "not entitled to the assumption of truth."[277] Second, the Court "consider[s] the factual allegations in [the complaint] to determine if they plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief."[278] "This standard 'simply calls for enough fact to raise a reasonable expectation that discovery will reveal evidence of' the necessary claims or elements."[279] This evaluation will "be a context-specific task that requires the reviewing court to draw on its judicial experience and common sense."[280] When conducting a Rule 12(b)(6) analysis while sitting in diversity, a court applies Texas state substantive law to the question of whether a party's factual allegations "plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief."[281]

III. ARGUMENT AND AUTHORITIES

A. Statute of Limitations

125. HERA did not have a chance to bring a claim until March/April 2022, when Daugherty and his affiliates gained ownership and control over HERA through a settlement agreement in Highland's Bankruptcy.[282] HERA is the Plaintiff here, not Daugherty, a fact Defendants refuse to acknowledge because doing so would render their basis for dismissal on limitations moot. At no time has HERA ever brought any claim against any party for the stripping of its assets and allocation of expenses, much less the fundamental revision of HERA's business purpose. A cursory review of the pleadings in all of the Prior Lawsuits abundantly bears this truth out. In fact, the opposite is quite true: HERA has always been a party being sued by Daugherty in his individual capacity. HERA's claims in this lawsuit are not Daugherty's claims, nor could they be.

126. Furthermore, Defendants, try as they might, cannot impute Daugherty's claims or knowledge to HERA for limitations purposes in this lawsuit. Not until March/April 2022, when Daugherty and his affiliates gained ownership and control of HERA, did HERA for the very first time have the ability to bring claims on behalf of itself, because at all times prior, it was controlled by the Defendants who were perpetrating the bad acts against HERA. The Defendants argue profusely and erroneously that because Daugherty, individually, was the plaintiff in the Prior Lawsuits, HERA somehow had knowledge of its own claims and could have brought those claims.

127. Limitations is an affirmative defense.[283] To obtain a Rule 12(b)(6) dismissal based on an affirmative defense, the successful affirmative defense must appear clearly on the face of the pleadings.[284] In other words, Defendants are not entitled to dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6) unless HERA has pleaded itself out of court by admitting to all of the elements of the defense.[285]

1. Adverse Domination Applies to Toll the Applicable Statutes of Limitation

128. The adverse domination rule applies to toll the limitations on causes of action against members of the board of an entity while it is dominated by wrongdoers.[286] The logic behind adverse domination is that it is unreasonable to expect the wrongdoers to bring an action against themselves.[287] Another rationale for the doctrine is that a wrongdoing corporate officer or director will seek to hide his or her wrongful conduct from the entity.[288] Similarly, another rationale for the doctrine is that where the agents of the corporation who know of the injury are themselves the wrongdoers, their knowledge should not be imputed to the corporation.[289] Thus, if the plaintiff can show that the officer/director was acting adversely to the entity and entirely for his own or another's purpose, then the limitations will be tolled, because imputation would not apply,[290] a rule well established in the Fifth Circuit.[291] In order for limitations to run against a corporation's right of action against one of its own directors, two things must concur: (1) notice (2) to a disinterested majority of its board members.[292]

129. Here, HERA was dominated by the wrongdoers, through a combination at different times of the Board Member Group and Dondero/ERA until March/April 2022, when Daugherty and his affiliates were granted control and ownership over HERA.[293] As set forth in the FAC, HERA alleges that each and every member of the Board Member Group and Dondero/ERA, along with the Outside Attorneys, committed fraud and were members of a conspiracy to commit fraud,[294] acting in their own self-interests and not for the benefit of HERA, such that their knowledge is not imputed to HERA.[295] Once Daugherty and his affiliates received documents in October of 2022, the limitations clock began to run. HERA filed this suit on February 29, 2024,[296] less than two years later, such that HERA's causes of action are not barred by limitations.

130. Specifically applicable to adverse domination, the following acts pleaded in the FAC show that Defendants had complete control over HERA while simultaneously conducting the bad acts. The January 17-18, 2013, corporate governance actions taken by Defendants, which are invalid as discussed at length above, changed the entire business purpose of HERA from being a vessel to set aside assets to retain and incentivize Highland employees[297] to being an entity owned and controlled by Dondero and ERA to transfer those assets to Highland.[298] Second, Defendants stripped HERA of its assets and allocated to it millions in legal expenses. These actions are precisely why the adverse domination doctrine exists.

131. It is not reasonable to think that Defendants would bring an action against themselves and, in fact, they did not.[299] Defendants actively hid their wrongful acts in not disclosing the full extent of the corporate governance transactions and effects until after 2022 and only then when forced to turn over the records.[300] Likewise, Defendants, as agents of HERA, knew of the injury, but their knowledge cannot be imputed to HERA.[301] As the Fifth Circuit requires, HERA has sufficiently pleaded that Defendants were acting adversely to HERA for entirely their own interests, or the interests of those under their control and direction, including the Outside Attorneys. Thus, limitations were tolled while HERA was adversely dominated, until March/April 2022.

2. The Discovery Rule Applies to HERA's Claims

i. Knowledge Should Not Be Imputed

132. The discovery rule, which applies to both the act and the injury, requires that a claim be (a) inherently undiscoverable and (b) objectively verifiable.[302] If the plaintiff can show that the officer/director was acting adversely to the corporation and entirely for his own or another's purpose, then limitations will be tolled.[303] The officer/director, though, must act so that his endeavors are so incompatible that it destroys the agency.[304] Courts in this district have held that that where it is not clear from the face of the pleadings that a defendant's knowledge can be imputed to the entity, dismissal under 12(b)(6) is improper.[305]

133. The general rule is that courts are to impute an officer/director's knowledge to the corporation so long as the officer/director is acting on the corporation's behalf.[306] Where a plaintiff can show that the officer/director was acting adversely to the corporation and entirely for his own or another's purpose, however, limitations will be tolled.[307] Courts have refused to impute the knowledge of the principals to controlled entities where the officers "allegedly filled their own pockets while fraudulently extending the life of the institution they continued to milk" and where they "systematically looted [the company] of its most profitable and least risky businesses as well as millions of dollars in income."[308] This is exactly what happened here. Defendants, through their individual acts for their own benefit, drove HERA to insolvency, such that their knowledge cannot be imputed to HERA for limitations purposes.

134. The Taylor Court's analysis applies in this case. In Taylor, the plaintiffs explicitly alleged that "Faulkner caused the Breitling Entities to fraudulently sell tens of millions of dollars' worth of securities to investors" and that he "diverted and distributed substantial sums to himself for his own personal benefit and in support of his lavish lifestyle."[309] The Court held that the plaintiffs had pleaded a factual scenario that may give rise to an exception to imputation and that "dismissal at this juncture would be improper, as it cannot be said that Plaintiffs could prove no set of facts entitling them to relief."[310] The Court further held that because it "is a factual issue" whether defendant acted on behalf of, or against, the entities such that his knowledge should be imputed to them, that question was better decided in the context of a summary judgment motion.[311]

135. HERA has not pleaded itself out of court. It has pleaded a factual scenario that may give rise to an exception to imputation rendering dismissal at this stage inappropriate. It is clear in this case that Defendants' actions stripped HERA of its assets and, importantly, those actions were adverse to HERA and inured entirely to the benefit of Defendants or those in league with them, such that limitations should be tolled.

ii. The Prior Lawsuits Are Completely Different Than This Lawsuit

136. Defendants want this Court to believe that this case has been litigated three times and thus HERA has knowledge.[312] Imputation of knowledge has been addressed above, and this case is entirely different than the Prior Lawsuits, despite Defendants' best efforts to confuse the Court.[313] Defendants argue profusely and erroneously that because Daugherty was a Plaintiff in the Prior Lawsuits, HERA somehow had knowledge of its own claims.

137. In the Texas Lawsuit, Daugherty filed counterclaims against HERA for loss of his ownership interest and/or the diminution in value of his individual units in HERA.[314] Daugherty's contention was that the Second Amended LLC Agreement, whereby he was removed as a director of HERA, diminished the value of his individual HERA interests and made it punitive for anyone to sue HERA going forward.[315] Daugherty's individual interests and the value of his individual units in HERA have no bearing on the claims brought by HERA against the Defendants in this lawsuit.

138. In Delaware I, Daugherty is obviously suing HERA and others to collect on his judgment in the Texas Lawsuit,[316] which has nothing to do with the claims HERA has and asserts in this lawsuit. Specifically, Daugherty seeks to collect on his Texas judgment and seeks the return of assets fraudulently transferred from HERA (the Escrow account) to satisfy his Texas judgment.[317] The Delaware I complaint is replete with examples where the harm complained of is to Daugherty, individually, a few examples of which include: (1) all acts of ERA disadvantaged Daugherty;[318] (2) transfer of HERA assets' funds reserved for Daugherty in the Escrow;[319] (3) failed to satisfy Daugherty's judgment.[320]

139. In Delaware II, Daugherty again sued HERA and others to collect on his judgment in the Texas Lawsuit, which, again, has nothing to do with claims HERA has and asserts in this lawsuit. Specifically, Daugherty sought to collect on his Texas judgment and sought the return of assets fraudulently transferred from HERA (the Escrow account) to satisfy his Texas judgment.[321] The Delaware II complaint is also replete with examples where the harm complained of is to Daugherty, individually, a few examples of which include: (1) cost allocation damages Daugherty;[322] (2) defendants' actions deprived Daugherty of his HERA interest;[323] and (3) defendants' actions solely to harm Daugherty.[324] In fact, anywhere damages are complained of, they are damages to Daugherty, only.[325]

140. Simply because there are some similar facts in the Prior Lawsuits does not somehow equate to a limitations defense as urged by Defendants. Instead, a thorough examination of the actual claims made by whom and against whom in the Prior Lawsuits juxtaposed against the exception arguments above can only lead the Court to deny the motion to dismiss on limitations grounds.

3. Daugherty Never Brought A Derivative Suit on Behalf of HERA

141. Defendants argue that HERA's claims are barred because they allege Daugherty previously brought derivative claims on behalf of HERA in Delaware I and Delaware II. This argument is completely without merit. To determine whether a claim is direct or derivative under Delaware law, courts consider "who suffered the alleged harm" and "who would receive the benefit of any recovery or other remedy[.]"[326] If a claim is derivative, "the plaintiff must plead that (1) a demand was made on the entity or (2) reasons why making such demand on the entity would be futile."[327] Further a derivative claim must "allege with particularity the efforts, if any, made by the plaintiff to obtain the action the plaintiff desires from the directors or comparable authority and the reasons for the plaintiff's failure to obtain the action or for not making the effort."[328]

142. Delaware I and Delaware II were brought by Daugherty in his individual capacity for damages he suffered, individually.[329] Thus, Daugherty "suffered the alleged harm," and Daugherty "would receive the benefit of any recovery or other remedy"[330] in those matters. Nowhere in either of the Delaware I or Delaware II complaints is there any allegation that Daugherty made demand on HERA nor any allegation of the futility in doing so, as required by Delaware law to bring a derivative claim.[331] Nor are there any allegations of efforts by Daugherty to obtain the action he desired from the then-directors of HERA or the reasons for failure to do so.[332] Those complaints are devoid of any allegations necessary to state a derivative claim, because, simply put, it was Daugherty who brought the claims, and it was Daugherty that suffered the injury.

143. In a derivative action brought in Texas on behalf of a Delaware entity, Delaware law applies to substantive issues, such that the foregoing analysis applies to Daugherty's claims in the Texas Lawsuit.[333] As set forth above, Daugherty brought claims only in his individual capacity, because his personal ownership interest in HERA had diminished in value. There are no allegations necessary to state a derivate claim.[334] Daugherty, individually, obtained a judgment against Defendants, including HERA.[335] Defendants' argument that Daugherty has brought derivative claims on behalf of HERA is absurd.

144. As set forth above, HERA did not have actual or constructive knowledge of the claims it brings in this lawsuit, such that discovery rule applies, and HERA's claims are not barred by limitations.

4. The Fraudulent Concealment Doctrine Applies to the Applicable Statutes of Limitations

145. Fraudulent concealment is an equitable doctrine that tolls limitations "because a person cannot be permitted to avoid liability for his actions by deceitfully concealing wrongdoing until limitations has run."[336] Fraudulent concealment tolls the statute of limitations until "the fraud is discovered or could have been discovered with reasonable diligence."[337] A party asserting fraudulent concealment must establish an underlying wrong, and that "the defendant actually knew the plaintiff was in fact wronged, and concealed that fact to deceive the plaintiff."[338] Here, HERA alleges an underlying wrong -- that Defendants knew they were stripping HERA's assets and wrongfully allocating expenses, leaving HERA insolvent.[339] HERA also alleges that Defendants concealed their wrongful acts to deceive HERA, i.e. they hid the wrongful corporate governance acts and asset stripping from HERA. As set forth throughout the FAC, Daugherty and then HERA (once Daugherty obtained ownership and control) exercised reasonable diligence and continuously requested documents from Defendants for years to no avail.[340] Due to Defendants' fraudulent concealment, HERA still did not discover the wrongful conduct until after March/April 2022, when Daugherty was granted control and ownership of HERA.

B. Res Judicata And Claim Splitting

1. HERA's Claims Are Not Precluded by Res Judicata or Claim Splitting

146. Defendants cannot rely on res judicata or claim splitting to avoid HERA's claims, which neither HERA nor its privies have prosecuted or are prosecuting against Defendants.

147. Delaware I is stayed pending the conclusion of Highland's bankruptcy proceedings:

> On the morning of October 16, 2019—the third day of trial—the defendants informed the Court that Highland Capital filed for bankruptcy. All proceedings against Highland Capital were automatically stayed, and the parties agreed that the rest of the First Delaware Action should also be stayed. Those proceedings remained stayed, and the trial record remains open.[341]

148. Defendants' assertion that the "Delaware I Lawsuit further adjudicated claims arising from the 2016 Escrow Transfer, including those based on the formation and dissolution of the Escrow"—citing a pre-trial brief[342]—is nonsensical. The trial record is open. There is no final judgment and thus it remains open and appealable. The absence of claims against any of Defendants in the stayed Delaware I case disposes of the claim splitting argument, which Defendants acknowledge can prevent a party "from simultaneously prosecuting multiple suits involving the same subject matter against the same defendants."[343] And the absence of a final judgment should dispose of res judicata.

149. There is also a lack of privity. When Daugherty brought his claims, he was adverse to HERA, which was controlled by Highland, Dondero and the other Defendants and which had been found liable to Daugherty in the Texas Lawsuit. This is not a case where a stockholder sued a defendant and then the same stockholder caused his own company, which he was always in privity with, to file a subsequent suit, as Defendants claim.[344] HERA's claims here are based on information obtained by HERA after Dondero and his lackies were ousted and bear little resemblance to the claims Daugherty pursued before. Daugherty and HERA were not in privity at any time his claims were pending in Delaware I. The Second Circuit, for example, has "found privity where a party to a previous suit was, at the time of the litigation, acting as either a fiduciary or organizational agent of the person against whom preclusion is asserted."[345] The Court should follow that reasoning here and reject the argument that the current ownership and control of HERA by Daugherty and his affiliates means they were in privity in 2017. HERA has never had a fair chance to pursue its own claims, on its own behalf, against its former faithless fiduciaries. The Delaware I case provides no basis to bar HERA's claims.

150. As for Delaware II, it is not pending against Defendants and thus not relevant to claim splitting. In support of their argument that Delaware II bars this case under res judicata, Defendants argue that there was a final judgment on the merits.[346] The case was dismissed under

Court of Chancery Rule 12(b)(6) and, say Defendants, "operates as an adjudication on the merits."[347] But the cases Defendants cite in support of their argument involved dismissals of prior cases "with prejudice."[348] Delaware II, however, was dismissed "without prejudice."[349] Defendants overlooked this disconnect between their authorities and the facts. "A dismissal without prejudice, while final, does not operate as res judicata with respect to a subsequent lawsuit on the same cause of action."[350] Delaware II provides no basis to bar HERA's claims.

151. Finally, the Texas Lawsuit was not based on the 2013 Buyout or the 2016 Escrow Transfer,[351] as Defendants claim, and Daugherty and HERA were not then in privity (Daugherty won a judgment against HERA). Daugherty tried to bring claims about the faithless governance of HERA, but the defendants successfully precluded Daugherty from doing so. After the deadline to amend the pleadings, the Defendants produced over one million pages of documents and on November 13, 2013, Daugherty tried to amend his claims to challenge some of the 2013 transactions.[352] The Defendants responded that they "would be prejudicially forced into the untenable position of having to defend against new facts, claims, and theories with virtually no meaningful time before trial to develop their defenses through discovery or legally."[353] The judge denied Daugherty's motion to amend. It is unclear on what basis Defendants could possibly be asserting that the "Texas Lawsuit adjudicated claims arising from the 2013 Buyout, including those based on alleged facts regarding the buyout offer, the Third Amended LLC Agreement, the asset transfers to Highland, and the Assignment Agreement."[354] The trial record debunks Defendants' argument.[355] Nor can Defendants seriously contend the escrow-transfer claims were adjudicated in the Texas Lawsuit—they arose from Defendants' misconduct after the Texas Lawsuit. The Texas Lawsuit provides no basis to bar HERA's claims.

C. Judicial Estoppel - 2016 Escrow Transfer

1. Highland Defendants

152. Here again, Defendants mischaracterize the facts, testimony, and law to try and divert this Court's attention from the truth. Again, Delaware I and II were lawsuits brought by Daugherty to collect on his judgment in the Texas Lawsuit. This lawsuit is a claim by HERA for all of HERA's assets wrongfully transferred away by the Defendants.

153. Defendants' argument fails for several reasons. First, the double recovery rule cited by Defendants is inapplicable and misconstrued in this case. The Brookfield case does state the double recovery rule in Delaware that "prohibits a plaintiff from recovering twice for the same injury from the same tortfeasor."[356] However, Defendants misconstrue its application to this case. The Brookfield case does not say "in other words HERA and its sole member Daugherty cannot both be allowed to recover for the same claim." The Brookfield case was a derivative shareholder case, which is not the case here. Similarly, the same plaintiff recovering twice from the same tortfeasor does not exist in this case. In Delaware I, the plaintiff was Daugherty, individually, and the defendants were Highland, HERA, ERA and Dondero.[357] In Delaware II, the plaintiff was Daugherty, individually, and the defendants were Dondero, ERA, HERA, HAK/, Katz, Hurst, Ellington, Surgent and Leventon.[358] In the Bankruptcy, the debtor was Highland and the creditor was Daugherty, individually.[359] In the present case, the Plaintiff is HERA, a limited liability company whose members are Daugherty and his affiliate Angry Horse Land, LLC. The Plaintiff here is not Daugherty, as incorrectly alleged by Defendants to be the sole member of HERA. The Defendants are obviously the named Defendants. None of the Prior Lawsuits have the same plaintiff trying to recover twice from the same tortfeasor. The injury in the Prior Lawsuits was for recovery of the Daugherty judgment entered in the Texas Lawsuit and further the Texas Lawsuit judgment was for breach of good faith and fair dealing regarding the implementation of the "lose-lose" clause in the Second LLC Agreement as opposed to this lawsuit which claims the corporate governance actions were invalid (notably HERA does not contest the legitimacy of the Second Amended LLC Agreement in this lawsuit). The injury in this case is for all the assets stolen from and expenses allocated to HERA by the Defendants. The tortfeasors, while there is some crossover, are not identical such that the double recovery rule does not apply.

154. Second, HERA makes no claim to the monies that were supposed to be placed in escrow for Daugherty to satisfy the judgment he obtained in the Texas Lawsuit. Further, Daugherty has never made any claim to HERA assets other than those promised to be placed in escrow to satisfy his judgment in the Texas Lawsuit.

155. Third, it was not until March 2022 and after that Daugherty and/or HERA even knew where the other HERA assets were that Defendants had transferred to Highland.[360] As such, there is no possible way for Daugherty to have made a previous claim to those assets in the Prior Lawsuits.

156. Fourth, a review of the pleadings in the Prior Lawsuits shows Daugherty never made a claim for assets of HERA, other than those he was promised had been placed in escrow to satisfy his judgment in the Texas Lawsuit.[361] In fact, the pleadings reveal quite the opposite, as all relate to assets to satisfy collection of the judgment Daugherty obtained in the Texas Lawsuit.[362] Defendants' cites to the record prove this fact explicitly when Daugherty testified in Delaware I "[t]hat if I won, I got the escrow assets. I would get what was set aside, up to what was set aside in the account." This refers explicitly and solely to the funds in escrow the Defendants lied about setting up to satisfy the Daugherty judgment in the Texas Lawsuit. Daugherty made no claim to any other HERA assets other than what Defendants had promised had been set aside for him in the event he won the Texas Lawsuit, which he did, and which Defendants lied about setting aside.

157. Fifth and finally, a settlement in the Highland Bankruptcy has no bearing on the Defendants in the present case, and Defendants provide no case law or evidence to the contrary.

158. Since Daugherty has only ever made claims for the HERA assets that were supposed to be placed in escrow to satisfy his judgment in the Texas Lawsuit and since HERA has never made a claim as to those assets, Defendants' judicial estoppel argument fails as a matter of law.

2. Outside Attorneys Defendants

159. HERA incorporates the previous arguments in the immediately preceding section, here. Additionally, the Outside Attorneys argue that HERA is judicially estopped because Daugherty's claims in the Prior Lawsuits are imputed to HERA citing the Austin v. McNamara case, which is inapplicable to this case. In Austin v. MacNamara, there was one individual who was the sole shareholder of an entity (and had complete control of the entity) who filed bankruptcy, did not disclose the debt in the bankruptcy, and tried to sue on that same debt later.[363]

[361] See Exh. 6 - Delaware I Second Amended Complaint (App. 41-84); Exh. 7 - Delaware II Verified Amended Complaint (App. 85-133); Exh. 10 -- Order Approving Settlement with Patrick Hagaman Daugherty (Claim No. 205) and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith (App. 151-183).

[363] Austin v. McNamara, No. 6:05-cv-247, 2007 WL 578498, (E.D. Tex. Mar. 30, 2007).

The Court held that because the plaintiff asserted a position contrary to that asserted in the instant suit, the judicial estoppel doctrine applied.

160. In this case, Daugherty was not the sole shareholder when these causes of action arose but was a minority shareholder, at best. According to Defendants, he was not a shareholder during any of the Prior Lawsuits (even though Daugherty owned 19.1%), and, as has been clearly established, never had any type of ownership and control over HERA until March/April 2022.[364] Judicial estoppel "prevents a party from asserting a position in a legal proceeding that is contrary to a position previously taken in the same or some earlier proceeding."[365] The purpose of the doctrine is to protect the integrity of the judicial process.[366] Two elements must be established before a party is estopped under this doctrine: first, it must be shown that the position of the party to be estopped is clearly inconsistent with its previous one; and second, that party must have convinced the court to accept that previous position.[367] Some factors that "typically inform" a court's decision as to the applicability of the doctrine include: whether a party's position is "clearly inconsistent" with its earlier position; whether the party succeeded in persuading a court to accept the earlier position; or whether the party seeking to assert an inconsistent position "would derive an unfair advantage or impose an unfair detriment on the opposing party if not estopped."[368] "Judicial estoppel is particularly appropriate where . . . a party fails to disclose an asset to a bankruptcy court, but then pursues a claim in a separate tribunal based on that undisclosed asset."[369]

161. Defendants cannot establish the two necessary elements for judicial estoppel. First, Defendants cannot show that HERA has made any claim in any previous proceeding

(because it has not). As such, the claims HERA makes in this lawsuit cannot be inconsistent as they are being made for the first time by HERA. Further, even if Defendants could (and they cannot) impute Daugherty's Prior Lawsuits to HERA, the claims made by HERA in this lawsuit against these Defendants were never made in the Prior Lawsuits.

162. Second, Defendants cannot show that HERA convinced any previous court to accept its position. Again, HERA never took a position in the Prior Lawsuits. Further, Defendants cannot show how HERA "would derive an unfair advantage or impose an unfair detriment on the opposing party if not estopped."[370]

163. Two additional facts should be considered in this analysis. First, Defendants continue to wrongfully insist Daugherty is the sole member of HERA.[371] As has been shown, that is not the case. Even if HERA is currently owned controlled by Daugherty and his affiliate, that control did not begin until March/April 2022.[372] Second, unlike in McNamara, HERA did not fail to disclose anything in the Prior Lawsuits – a primary basis for the McNamara courts' finding of judicial estoppel.

164. Defendants cannot satisfy the requirements for judicial estoppel, and their motion to dismiss must be denied.

D. HERA's Claims Are Not Barred by the Judicial Proceedings Privilege

165. The Highland Defendants next argue HERA's claims that are premised, in part, on "the content of communications made in the course of judicial proceedings" are barred by the judicial proceedings privilege.[373] According to the Highland Defendants, the privilege applies to "all intentional torts," regardless of the circumstances surrounding the claim.[374] The Highland Defendants read the doctrine too broadly.

166. The judicial proceedings privilege commonly applies to claims of libel and slander.[375] The privilege "bars claims based on communications related to a judicial proceeding when the claimant seeks defamation-type damages."[376] In other words, the privilege applies where the plaintiff is seeking damages based on reputational harm caused by a statement in a judicial proceeding.[377]

167. Although Texas courts have expanded the doctrine to non-defamation causes of action, the purpose for extending is clear – to prevent a plaintiff from circumventing the policy behind the privilege by asserting the same claim "'under a different label.'"[378] When claims are predicated on statements made in judicial proceedings, the doctrine does not apply when the plaintiff is not seeking relief akin to reputational or mental anguish damages. The limitations of the doctrine was summed up in Kyle v. Strasburger:

> Fidelity is correct that the judicial privilege doctrine may, under certain circumstances, apply in non-defamation cases. But those circumstances are limited to cases in which a plaintiff, though asserting a non-defamation claim, seeks "defamation damages"—i.e., damages for loss of reputation and mental anguish. . . . To the extent Kyle's statutory claims are based on statements made in judicial proceedings, they do not seek relief akin to reputational or mental anguish damages—instead, they seek damages arising from Kyle's agreement to transfer her interest in the homestead to Mark.[379]

168. The Highland Defendants do not point to any of HERA's claims that seek damages for reputational harm – because the FAC does not seek those damages. Consequently, the privilege does not apply to bar any of HERA's claims.

E. HERA's Claims Are Not Barred by Attorney Immunity

169. Attorney immunity is a more comprehensive affirmative defense that protects an attorney from civil liability than the traditional common law rule that a lawyer owes no duty of care to a third party by shielding lawyers for actions taken in connection to representing a client.[380] The policy behind this rule is that attorneys are to zealously fight for their client's interest and fear of liability in connection with representing a client would undercut this.[381] Furthermore, there are other mechanisms to punish lawyers who engage in improper conduct such as sanctions, disbarment, or other disciplinary proceedings.[382] The key inquiry for attorney immunity is whether the action was of "the kind of conduct in which an attorney engages when discharging [their] duties to [their] client" or if the actions are "entirely foreign to the duties of an attorney."[383] Courts again emphasize that the alleged wrongfulness of the conduct is not important as the inquiry for attorney immunity is the kind of conduct alleged.[384] Fraud on behalf of a client is protected but independently fraudulent conduct schemed with a client is outside the limits of attorney immunity.[385] Furthermore, even conduct taken on behalf of a client may not be protected if it is not an action involving the "uniquely lawyerly capacity of one who possesses the office, professional training, skill and authority of an attorney."[386] Following this long list of examples and various fact patterns outlining the contours of attorney immunity, the Texas Supreme Court summarized the limits of the doctrine as follows:

> [A]ttorney immunity protects an attorney against a non-client's claim when the claim is based on conduct that (1) constitutes the provision of "legal" services involving the unique office, professional skill, training, and authority of an attorney and (2) the attorney engages in to fulfill the attorney's duties in representing the client within an adversarial context in which the client and the non-client do not share the same interests and therefore the non-client's reliance on the attorney's conduct is not justifiable.[387]

1. Claims Asserted Against Hunton and Katz

170. Hunton and Katz correctly assert that attorneys are absolutely immune from suit and liability to non-clients for any conduct within the scope of the representation of a client. However, attorney immunity does not apply to clients, including former clients, who may bring direct claims against their attorneys,[388] which is precisely the case here. As alleged in the FAC, Katz was a partner at Hunton, where he served as outside counsel to HERA.[389] Additionally, HERA alleges that Hunton and Katz prepared the Third Amended LLC Agreement on behalf of HERA on or about February 1, 2013, which (1) eliminated the purpose for which HERA was created, (2) eliminated the requirement of HERA to make cash distributions to preferred unit holders to cover pass-through tax obligations attributable to HERA, (3) eliminated members' rights to indemnification, (4) limited indemnification obligations to the discretion of the Manager (ERA) or the Initial Member (Highland Capital Management, LP), and (5) provided for broad indemnification to the Manager (ERA) and Dondero.[390] HERA further alleges that Hunton and Katz prepared an expense allocation on behalf of HERA, pursuant to which 93.4% of Highland's purported legal expenses related to the Texas Lawsuit to HERA.[391] In fact, Katz represented in Delaware I that he and Hunton did represent HERA when he informed the court that HERA had incurred millions of dollars in legal expenses, including those from his firm.[392] Hunton and Katz, themselves, purported to represent HERA in all of the Prior Lawsuits.[393]

171. Hunton and Katz also represented HERA when they took actions in furtherance of the 2013 Asset Transfer. In 2022, HERA discovered that in January 2013, Hunton and Katz, among others, discussed, coordinated, prepared and reviewed documents prepared for HERA to execute the scheme to strip HERA of its assets for no value and transfer those assets to Highland for the benefit of Highland and the Highland Officers and Employees Group and the Defendant Trusts.[394] Also in 2022, HERA discovered that just prior to the Texas Lawsuit, Hunton and Katz colluded with other Defendants in December 2013 to manufacture false and misleading evidence that an escrow account was created to hold over $3 million to be paid to HERA upon final resolution of the Texas Lawsuit.[395] They also represented HERA when they participated in the 2016 Escrow Transfer. As HERA alleges, Hunton and Katz acted as outside counsel to HERA when they collaborated with others in December 2016 to transfer HERA's remaining assets to Highland for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.[396] And, they represented HERA when they double counted fees Daugherty had already paid to justify the taking of the Escrow Assets in December 2016. Specifically, HERA alleges that Hunton and Katz caused redacted invoices for reimbursement to be produced in the Texas Lawsuit between Highland and Daugherty in 2014 for services performed on behalf of Highland. And then, after Daugherty paid over $3.1 million in December 2016 pursuant to wiring instructions by Katz/HAK, they represented that the same invoices were unpaid obligations for work performed on behalf of HERA in Delaware II commencing in 2017.[397]

172. Even though these actions related to depositing funds into an escrow account, something attorneys do for clients, the act of pulling money out of the account after a verdict came down against their client is not part of the normal work an attorney does. In fact, the Texas Supreme Court cited approvingly in Cantey Hanger, LLP, the case of Essex Crane Rental Corp. v.

Carter,[398] a case that very closely matches the facts of this case. In Essex, the plaintiff sued a defendant's attorneys for conspiracy in helping a judgment debtor avoid payment.[399] The trial court rendered summary judgment for the attorneys based upon their attorney immunity defense.[400] However, the en banc Court of Appeals in Houston reversed, holding that attorney immunity did not apply when the actions alleged were drafting fraudulent documents to help a client evade payment of a judgment.[401]

173. Because Hunton and Katz represented HERA at all times during which they are alleged to have taken actions against HERA, the attorney immunity doctrine does not apply to bar HERA's claims. However, even if Hunton and Katz did not represent HERA during the time that the foregoing fraudulent conduct took place, attorney-immunity still does not apply to protect them. The attorney-immunity defense does not apply when an attorney personally participates in a fraudulent business scheme with his client, because such acts are entirely foreign to the duties of an attorney.[402] Thus, fraudulent conduct outside the scope of an attorney's legal representation of his client is also not protected.[403] All of the foregoing acts taken by Hunton and Katz are fraudulent and fall outside the scope of their representation of their client. Accordingly, the attorney-immunity defense does not apply to bar HERA's claims against Hunton and Katz.

2. Claims Asserted Against In-House Attorneys (Ellington, Leventon, and Girard)

174. The In-House Attorneys are likewise not immune from suit. The In-House Attorneys provided legal services to HERA allegedly pursuant to a Shared Services Agreement or Blanket Agreement or Joint Defendant Agreement,[404] thus HERA was a client of the In-House Attorneys. The In-House Attorneys are alleged to have participated the following fraudulent acts in furtherance of a fraudulent business scheme with Highland, while simultaneously representing HERA (although Ellington, Leventon, Girard and Surgent invoked the privilege to avoid answering questions from Daugherty's counsel in the Prior Lawsuits):

1. Preparing the Third Amended LLC Agreement on behalf of HERA, which (1) eliminated the purpose for which HERA was created, (2) eliminated the requirement of HERA to make cash distributions to preferred unit holders to cover pass-through tax obligations attributable to HERA, (3) eliminated members' rights to indemnification, (4) limited indemnification obligations to the discretion of the Manager (ERA) or the Initial Member (Highland Capital Management, LP), and (5) provided for broad indemnification to the Manager (ERA) and Dondero.[405]
2. Preparing an Expense Allocation Agreement on behalf of Highland and HERA that reallocated 93.4% of Highland Capital's purported legal expenses related to the Texas Lawsuit to HERA for no consideration.[406]
3. Double allocating Highland's legal expenses to HERA.[407]
4. Purporting to provide legal services to HERA that were in actuality for the benefit of Highland to develop and execute a scheme to strip HERA of its assets and transfer them Highland for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis.[408]

5. Participating in the creation of the Escrow Agreement and fraudulently switching out assets therein, to falsely represent in the Texas Lawsuit that HERA's assets were being safely held in escrow.[409]
6. Participating in the 2013 stripping of HERA's assets.[410]
7. Manufacturing false and misleading evidence that an escrow account was created to hold over $3 million to be paid to HERA upon final resolution of the Texas Lawsuit.[411]
8. Colluding with others to conceal the true value of the assets held in escrow.[412]
9. Participating in the 2016 assignment of substantially all of HERA's assets to Highland for the benefit of Highland, Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain, Ellington and Honis.[413]

175. Because the In-House Attorneys committed the foregoing acts while representing HERA, attorney-immunity does not bar HERA's claims against them. However, even if the In-House Attorneys did not represent HERA during the time of that the foregoing fraudulent conduct took place, attorney-immunity still does not protect them. The attorney-immunity defense does not apply when an attorney personally participates in a fraudulent business scheme with his client, because such acts are entirely foreign to the duties of an attorney.[414] Thus, fraudulent conduct outside the scope of an attorney's legal representation of his client is also not protected.[415] The foregoing acts are fraudulent and fall outside the scope of the In-House Attorneys' representation of their client. Accordingly, the attorney-immunity defense does not apply to bar HERA's claims against the In-House Attorneys.

3. HERA's Claims Based on Legal Services Provided to HERA are Not Barred Because of Assignment

176. The Highland Defendants argue that HERA's claims based on legal services provided to it are barred because they were legal malpractice claims unlawfully assigned to Daugherty.

177. First of all, the claims belonged to and were owned by HERA. Those claims are still owned by HERA. What was assigned was any interest Highland held in HERA, the entity, to Daugherty. Ownership of the claims was not assigned. They were owned by HERA before the Bankruptcy Settlement Agreement, and they are still owned by HERA today.

178. While Texas law holds assignments of legal malpractice claims void as contrary to public policy, it also holds that if such an assignment is void, the right to bring the action reverts to the assignor.[416] Here, the right belonged to HERA and still belongs to HERA.

179. HERA's claims based on legal services were not improperly assigned to Daugherty, and they are not barred.

4. HERA's Claims Against Attorneys are Not Improperly Fractured

180. Defendants further argue that HERA's claims against the attorneys are barred by the anti-fracturing rule. The anti-fracturing rule prevents legal-malpractice plaintiffs from opportunistically transforming a claim that sounds only in negligence into other claims.[417] While it is true that when the gist of the complaint is that the attorney failed to exercise the degree of care, skill and diligence that attorneys of ordinary skill and knowledge commonly possess and exercise, the claims may not be "fractured" into separate claims, the rule against fracturing does not preclude a party from asserting causes of action other than negligence against an attorney if the other claims are supported by the facts.[418]

181. For example, if a claim focuses on the attorney obtaining an improper benefit, as opposed to him failing to adequately represent the client, then the claim may appropriately be classified as a breach of fiduciary duty claim.[419] Or, where a plaintiff alleges an attorney made affirmative misrepresentations, it can assert a DTPA claim against that attorney, separate and apart from a negligence claim.[420] Furthermore, courts have also held that plaintiffs may assert fraud and breach of contract claims against their attorneys.[421]

- Prepared, revised and distributed certain documents designed to strip HERA of all its assets and assist the board members in shielding their liability.[444]
- Failed to inform all of HERA's board members of their fiduciary duties to HERA regarding the buyout and subsequent transfer of assets in 2013 to Highland for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis.[445]
- Failed to protect HERA from having its assets stripped in 2013 and instead facilitating the transfer of those assets to Highland for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis.[446]
- Participated in the 2013 asset stripping scheme that left HERA insolvent and unable to pay its expenses and debts.[447]

- Collaborated to conceive and falsify misleading evidence that was presented to a judge and Texas jury to represent that certain assets transferred from HERA in April 2013 were held in an escrow account as of December 2013.[451]
- Invoiced and/or allocated to HERA legal expenses that were actually for the benefit of Highland, including but not limited to unrelated third-party employee harassment and separation agreement matters, defense matters concerning Sierra Verde, Dondero and Okada, issues concerning their interests in the Acis Capital Bankruptcy, Lawsuit against the Wall Street Journal for unflattering articles, press spin communications, a multitude of discrete legal actions on behalf of Highland against Daugherty, and to pursue Dondero's various vendettas against former employees Terry and Daugherty, including but not limited to Highland's numerous failed attempts to have Daugherty held in contempt and incarcerated for fabricated violations of a since vacated injunction while almost $30,000 in fabricated violations of the an injunction for the benefit of Highland to prevent Daugherty from disclosing Highland's confidential information (the injunction was subsequently vacated pursuant to Daugherty's bankruptcy court approved settlement with Highland).[461]

- Caused redacted invoices for reimbursement to be produced in the Texas Lawsuit between Highland and Daugherty in 2014 for services performed on behalf of Highland. And then, after Daugherty paid over $3.1 million in December 2016 pursuant to wiring instructions by Katz/HAK, they represented that the same invoices were unpaid obligations for work performed on behalf of HERA in Delaware II commencing in 2017. Additionally, invoices were being double allocated to both HERA and Highland while they represented in Delaware I and II that they were allocated to HERA.[467]

F. HERA Properly Pleads Counts 3 And 6 ("BOFD") Alleging Improper Benefit Received By In-House Attorneys

1. The FAC Satisfies the Requirements of FRCP 8

184. A plaintiff fails to state a claim for relief under Rule 12(b)(6) when the complaint does not contain "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face."[468] The analysis begins with the court's consideration of whether a party has complied with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8.[469] Specifically, Rule 8 requires that a complaint (1) set forth a "short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief" and (2) be "simple, concise and direct."[470] This serves two purposes. First, Rule 8 "eliminate[s] prolixity in pleading and . . . achieve[s] brevity, simplicity, and clarity."[471] Second, the rule ensures "that judges and adverse parties need not try to fish a gold coin from a bucket of mud."[472] As aptly noted in Garst, "[f]ederal judges have better things to do, and the substantial subsidy of litigation . . . should be targeted on those litigants who take the preliminary steps to assemble a comprehensible claim."[473]

185. The FAC contains 43 pages of factual background clearly and concisely outlining the lengthy historical, factual and legal history that led to this action.[474] This is not a simple car wreck or breach of contract case between two parties. This lawsuit is complex and involves multiple parties over multiple years. Simply because the facts are lengthy does not make them "repetitive, rambling, and references immaterial sources such as banking workbooks, Wikipedia searches, tax manuals, and irrelevant and non-binding authorities."[475] In fact, it is the exact opposite. The factual background is not repetitive. It clearly explains the tortured history leading to this action in as concise a manner as possible for the complexity and history of this case.

186. Likewise, each of the 32 distinct causes of action contains allegations of specific acts attributed to specific defendants.[476] The FAC goes to great lengths to clearly identify which defendants are being sued for which acts.[477] The pleadings also satisfy the federal pleading standard that a complaint must be "plausible on its face" to survive a Rule 12(b)(6) motion.[478] Further, the FAC pleads "factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the [other side] is liable for the misconduct alleged."[479]

187. The Fifth Circuit defines shotgun pleadings (group pleadings) as those wherein the pleader "heedlessly throws a little bit of everything into his complaint in the hopes that something will stick."[480] The Ellman court analysis is appropriate in this case. There, the plaintiff made several allegations against groups of defendants. The Court found that where plaintiffs have explained the basis for grouping the Defendants together when discussing their conduct with respect to the agreements, there was no group pleading.[481] Further, where plaintiffs explained the connection between defendants and the actions, there was no group pleading.[482]

188. Moreover, as the Court is aware, Defendants, to this very day, have not provided HERA all of its records and documents[483] and as many courts have found, "[A]t this stage of litigation, before any discovery has been conducted, Plaintiffs cannot be expected to know the exact nature of the connections between the Defendants, and they do not need to know it in order to meet the pleading standard."[484] The Fifth Circuit has held that the federal pleading standard "simply calls for enough fact to raise a reasonable expectation that discovery will reveal evidence of the necessary claims or elements."[485] Here, HERA does not make conclusory or nonspecific claims against a group of unrelated defendants; it makes specific claims against a group of linked defendants.[486] Given the limited knowledge that HERA has at this point, the FAC contains as much specificity as possible and contains "enough fact to raise a reasonable expectation that discovery will reveal evidence" of the claimed breaches.[487]

189. There is no doubt this Court can conclude what Plaintiff is alleging against the different Defendants. The FAC is nothing like complaints Courts have dismissed pursuant to FRCP 8, including for example, an employment discrimination and wrongful termination complaint wherein the allegations devolve into a litany of conspiracy-and fraud-related accusations that rely on the "haphazard combination[] of legal terms" and that are vague as to who is implicated in each specific action,[488] a complaint that named individuals in conspiracy who were not named as defendants, implicating unspecified "defendant" in intentional infliction of emotional distress claim for "all the above acts" and alleging general negligence against named and unnamed Defendants,[489] and a complaint containing rambling, scattered arguments and factual allegations.[490] Unlike the foregoing, the FAC in this action satisfies the federal pleading standards of FRCP 8, such that Defendants' motions to dismiss must be denied.

2. The FAC Satisfies the Requirements of FRCP 9

190. The FAC satisfies the particularity requirement of FRCP 9(b). Every cause of action specifically identifies which defendants are being sued for that particular claim, related to a specific action, i.e., the 2013 stripping of Plaintiff's assets, and in that section provides the Court and Defendants with sufficient specificity, going so far as to directly quote from emails or documents.

191. In considering a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, a court must determine whether the plaintiff has sufficiently stated a claim upon which relief may be granted.[491] A well-pleaded complaint must allege facts upon which the claims are based and not be a conclusory recitation of the elements of a cause of action.[492] A complaint must state sufficient facts such that the "claim has facial plausibility" and is not merely "possible."[493] A plaintiff pleads a claim with facial plausibility when the "factual content . . . allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable."[494] The complaint must allege sufficient facts to "give the defendant fair notice" of plaintiff's claims against the defendant.[495] The alleged facts must be facially plausible such that the facts nudge the plaintiff's claims "across the line from conceivable to plausible."[496] The court must view all facts in the light most favorable to the plaintiff.[497]

192. When a complaint alleges fraud as part of its action, the plaintiff "must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake."[498] Courts interpret this rule strictly; a plaintiff that pleads fraud must "specify the statements contended to be fraudulent, identify the speaker, state when and where the statements were made, and explain why the statements were fraudulent."[499] "Rule 9(b) requires the complaint to set forth 'the who, what, when, where, and how' of the events at issue."[500]

193. FRCP 9(b) does not, however, require the plaintiff at the pleading stage to put every single piece of evidence it has or might obtain during the discovery process in a pleading. This is not a summary judgment. Plaintiff is only required to meet the federal pleading standards, which the FAC does.

194. Take Count Four as an example.[501] The FAC establishes the fiduciary duty against particular set of identified Defendants.[502] It provides specific examples of actions that constitute a breach of fiduciary duty in every paragraph.[503] Defendants cannot possibly argue that they do not know who Plaintiff is suing for breach of fiduciary duty or what Plaintiff claims those breaches are.

195. This same analysis applies to Counts 7, 32, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 25.[504] Counts 21, 22, 23 and 24[505] are not fraud claims, but even as Defendants try to bootstrap them in under FRCP 9(b), they satisfy the pleading requirements.

196. Simply put, this is not a trial nor a summary judgment motion. It is a specificity of pleading argument, and the FAC satisfies the federal pleading standards of FRCP 12(b)(6) and 9(b). Accordingly, Defendants' motions to dismiss must be denied.

197. The Court must also consider the fact that Defendants have actively prevented the discovery of, and are currently in possession of, information and documents that would allow Plaintiff to plead more precisely. The FAC details Defendants' efforts to avoid turning over pertinent documents and information.[506] To date, none of the Defendants, most importantly the Highland Defendants, with the exception of Abrams and Bayliss, have produced any documents relevant to this lawsuit.

198. The Plaintiff cannot plead what it does not know. Courts have held that where there are facts solely within the possession of the defendants, it is premature to dismiss the claims under FRCP 9(b).[507] Clearly, the Defendants, most notably the Highland Defendants, have more information that would assist the Court in its analysis making dismissal pursuant to FRCP 9(b) improper.

G. HERA Properly Pleads Claims for Breach of Fiduciary Duty ("BOFD") in Count 1

1. Standing

199. Article III of the Constitution extends the judicial power of the United States only to "Cases" and "Controversies."[508] Standing to sue is part of the common understanding of what it takes to make a justiciable case.[509] To establish standing, "[t]he plaintiff must have (1) suffered an injury in fact, (2) that is fairly traceable to the challenged conduct of the defendant, and (3) that is likely to be redressed by a favorable judicial decision."[510]

200. To establish injury in fact, a plaintiff must show that he or she suffered "an invasion of a legally protected interest" that is "concrete and particularized" and "actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical."[511] Central to assessing concreteness is whether the asserted harm has a "close relationship" to a harm traditionally recognized as providing a basis for a lawsuit in American courts.[512] To show traceability, a plaintiff must allege that his injury is connected with the conduct about which he complains.[513] Meanwhile, to establish redressability, a plaintiff must show a "substantial likelihood" that the requested relief will remedy the alleged injury in fact.[514]

201. The Supreme Court has long recognized "that where there is a legal right, there is also a legal remedy by suit or action at law, whenever that right is invaded."[515] More recently, the Supreme Court reemphasized in Uzuegbunam, that "every violation [of a right] imports damage."[516] Likewise, the Fifth Circuit has held that "it is sufficient for standing purposes that the plaintiffs seek recovery for an economic harm that they allege they have suffered."[517]

202. HERA has suffered "an invasion of a legally protected interest" that is "concrete and particularized" and "actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical" – the stripping of its assets by Defendants' acts and omissions.[518] The FAC clearly alleges throughout that its injury, the stripping of its assets, is connected with the conduct about which it complains.[519] Finally, the FAC shows a "substantial likelihood" that the requested relief – recovery of its assets or their value – will remedy the alleged injury.

203. The irrefutable facts are that in 2012 HERA owned assets, by 2016 HERA did not own assets, and those assets were stripped away by Defendants' collective acts and omissions. The FAC methodically establishes this stripping of assets.[520] The FAC specifically identifies Defendants' acts and omissions (that it is aware of as of now).[521] The loss of HERA's assets is clearly an injury in fact, and HERA has standing to bring claims related thereto.

205. Section 5.1 clearly states that a person cannot serve as a Board member once they no longer hold rights to their preferred units.[524] As previously established, the timeline of events of January 17-18, 2013, are critical to the fact that the Board actions taken on those dates are invalid. Honis did not submit his 12-page fax signatures for all of the documents below until January 18, 2013, at 4:33pm CST – after the other board members (except for Walia) had already signed their Transfer Agreements and relinquished all claims and rights to their HERA interests and Board positions.[525] The Board Resolution by Written Consent (Expense Payments and Reserves) -- effective date January 17, 2013 – Honis and Walia did not vote on this and, pursuant to Section 5.1, there was no majority vote approving same.[526] The Board Resolution by Written Consent (Transfer of Dougherty Units to Highland) -- effective date January 17, 2013 – Honis and Walia did not vote on this and, pursuant to Section 5.1, there was no majority vote approving same.[527] Board Resolution by Written Consent (Approval to Amend Article 5.1 to change # of

3. HERA Sufficiently Alleges a Legally Cognizable Duty

207. The FAC pleads significant and specific facts it discovered in 2022 that allow this Court to draw the reasonable inference that the Highland Defendants breached their fiduciary duty. The Delaware standard to survive a motion to dismiss is "reasonable conceivability."[533] That is, when considering the motion, the Court must accept all well-pleaded factual allegations in the FAC as true, accepting even vague allegations in the FAC as well-pleaded if they provide the defendant notice of the claim, draw all reasonable inferences in favor of the plaintiff, and only deny the motion where the plaintiff could not "recover under any reasonably conceivable set of circumstances susceptible of proof."[534]

208. The FAC clearly meets this pleading standard. While the Highland Defendants get caught up on the lowball offer issue, they completely ignore the well-pleaded factual allegations of the bigger issue – that in accepting the lowball offer, they were fully aware that they were stripping HERA of its assets. Specifically, the FAC alleges, among other acts:

- over $14 million in assets and distribution transfers to Highland (the value of which has since doubled at least);[535]
- missing assets from the original 2009 assignment that have not been accounted for[536];
- that the buyout scheme was a plan to strip HERA of its assets, transferring them to Highland and consequently the Highland Defendants;[537]
- hiding the parking garage deal value;[538]
- having absolutely no evaluation of the buyout and its effect on HERA;[539]
- even the Highland Defendants attorneys, upon whom they testified they were relying for advice regarding the buyout, admitted being scared of being deposed about the assets;[540]

209. These, along with the multitude of specific factual allegations in the FAC, clearly establish that it is reasonably conceivable that the Highland Defendants breached their fiduciary duties.

4. Post-Resignation Conduct – The Nanny-Nanny-Boo-Boo Argument

210. Delaware law is clear that once a director has resigned, that director may no longer be held liable for the subsequent actions of the company's board.[541] However, the Highland Defendants misconstrue this argument. The actions of the Highland Defendants in executing the January 17-18, 2013, documents constitute the breach of fiduciary duty itself in that their actions not only purported to transfer control of HERA to Highland, but allowed the future procedural machinations, a few months later, for the stripping of HERA's assets – a plan they were fully aware of at the time of their actions.[542]

211. As has been established, the actions of the board members immediately prior to and on January 17-18, 2013, illustrate the buyout scheme to transfer control of HERA to Highland and Dondero, who then immediately transferred all of HERA's assets to Highland.[543] The Highland Defendants cannot participate in the buyout scheme to transfer control of HERA to Highland (putting into place the exact plan that stripped HERA of its assets), then allow Dondero to transfer the assets to Highland (assets the Highland Defendants all benefited from financially) then argue, "Nanny-nanny-boo-boo, Dondero did that after we were gone, we have no liability."

212. In other words, the Highland Defendants had full knowledge of the buyout scheme, such that their actions immediately prior to and on January 17-18, 2013, constitute a breach of their fiduciary duties, because they knew those actions would give Highland control over HERA and allow Dondero to strip HERA of its assets. They also knew they would benefit from those exact assets as partners and employees of Highland. HERA was damaged by all of these actions. The Highland Defendants cannot now hide and claim exoneration because Dondero transferred HERA's assets a mere 90 days after their actions allowed him to do so.

5. Defendants Are Not Protected by the Business Judgment Rule

213. Despite Defendants' thorough recitation of the doctrine,[544] the business judgment rule is not a basis to dismiss Count 1 for breach of fiduciary duties. "At the pleading stage, to change the standard of review from the business judgment rule to entire fairness, the complaint must allege facts supporting a reasonable inference that there were not enough sufficiently informed, disinterested individuals who acted in good faith when taking the challenged actions to comprise a board majority."[545]

214. HERA's Complaint provides numerous examples of the Board Member Group failing to act on an informed, disinterested basis and in good faith. To start, Dondero's fingerprints are all over the acts of the Board Member Group. That, alone, rebuts the business judgment rule. A plaintiff rebuts the business judgment rule by showing "that: (1) a controlling stockholder stands on both sides of a transaction or (2) at least half of the directors who approved the transaction were not disinterested or independent."[546] The allegations of the Complaint establish that Dondero personally benefited from the wrongdoing of the Board Member Group, which he controlled.[547] The Board Member Group depended on Dondero for their livelihood and he was the sole decision maker of their annual bonuses which were always announced in February. . They did as he pleased, including stripping all of HERA's assets for his benefit.[548]

215. But apart from Dondero's control and interest, the Board Group Members themselves were conflicted because it was in their interest to empty HERA of its assets in favor of Highland, from which they derived their wealth and livelihood. Defendants are wrong that "nothing in Count 1 identifies any material conflict of interest that might have precluded any Board Member from fulfilling his duties to act in the best interest of the company." The Board Member Group pilfered HERA to benefit themselves, Dondero, and Highland.[549] That self-interested conduct is subject to entire-fairness scrutiny.

216. Defendants' argument that their adoption of broad releases and indemnification to shield their past conduct[550] "cannot" amount to a breach of fiduciary duty because it was permitted by statute,[551] is incorrect. Defendants are confusing statutory compliance with fiduciary duties. "[I]nequitable action does not become permissible simply because it is legally possible."[552] Indeed, "Delaware courts have applied entire fairness review when directors or controllers have adopted exculpatory provisions to shield themselves from claims based on past conduct."[553] That is what the Board Group Members did here: attempt to shield themselves from their past misdeeds in any way potentially possible under the Delaware Code. They now have the burden of proving the entire fairness of their self-serving actions.

217. Finally, if Dondero's control and the Board Group Members' own conflicts of interest were not enough to rebut the business judgment rule at the pleading stage (they are, by far), the irrationality and waste of their decisions to strip HERA of all its value supports an inference of bad faith. "To prevail on a waste claim or a bad faith claim, the plaintiff must overcome the general presumption of good faith by showing that the board's decision was so egregious or irrational that it could not have been based on a valid assessment of the corporation's best interests."[554] HERA has done so here.

H. HERA Properly Pleads Its Claims for BOFD in Counts 2, 3, 5 and 6

1. Counts 2, 3, 5 & 6 Are Sufficiently Pleaded to Survive a 12(b)(6) Motion

218. Plaintiff refers the Court to its argument on standing above that applies here.[555] In addition, HERA alleges the requisite elements for breach of fiduciary duty claims against Dondero, individually, and the Employees. On January 17-18, 2013, the Defendants purported to execute corporate governance documents transferring control of HERA to Highland and Dondero. This is, in fact, exactly what happened.

219. Regarding Counts 2 and 5, on February 1, 2013, Dondero created ERA to be the manager of HERA, still ignoring the fact that HERA only had, at that time, two legitimate board members, Walia and Daugherty by accession (although Daugherty was kept from knowing this at that time).[556] Highland was the sole member of ERA and Dondero was presented as the President of both HERA and ERA at that time.[557] That same day, Dondero acting as President and on behalf of Highland, without board approval and without authority for ERA to act as manager, executed the Third Amended LLC Agreement.[558] Dondero, as President and on behalf of Highland, also executed the Expense Allocation Agreement, without board approval and without authority for ERA to act as manager, allocating 95% of Highlands legal expenses to HERA.[559] Then, 60 days later, Dondero, as President and on behalf of Highland, executed the Assignment Agreement and Manager Resolution by Written Consent, without board approval and without authority for ERA to act as manager, assigning all of HERA's assets to Highland.[560]

220. This series of transactions is laid out in pain-staking detail in the FAC and clearly satisfies the factors for the Court to determine at the motion to dismiss stage, that Dondero was acting through ERA. First, as has been discussed at length, the corporate formalities were not observed and, in fact, are invalid.[561] Second, the dominant shareholder, Dondero through ERA and Highland, after the January 17-18, 2013, transactions, siphoned all of HERA's assets to Highland.[562] Third, HERA was not acting independently and functioned as a façade for Dondero to do as he pleased with HERA's assets.[563]

221. Moreover, courts look to actual control for corporate actions. An ultimate human controller who engages directly or indirectly in an interested transaction with a corporation is potentially liable for breach of duty, even if other corporate actors made the formal decision on behalf of the corporation, and even if the controller participated in the transaction through intervening entities.[564] Breach of fiduciary duty is an equitable claim, and it is a maxim of equity that "equity regards substance rather than form."[565] Liability for breach of fiduciary duty therefore extends to outsiders who effectively controlled the corporation.[566] And because the application of equitable principles depends on the substance of control rather than the form, it does not matter whether the control is exercised directly or indirectly. The United States Supreme Court's explanation of how a controller exercised control in the Southern Pacific is pertinent where it held "[I]t is the fact of control of the common property held and exercised, not the particular means by which or manner in which the control is exercised, that creates the fiduciary obligation."[567]

222. Likewise, Delaware courts have held individual defendants liable and the fact that another corporate entity was the formal corporate vehicle behind the transactions did not matter.[568] Delaware corporate decisions consistently look to who wields control in substance and impose the risk of fiduciary liability on that person.[569]

223. The facts pleaded in the FAC, along with the referenced documents, make clear that Dondero and the Highland Defendants exercised complete control over HERA. The Highland Defendants' position that these transactions and Dondero's actions do not establish, at this stage in the proceedings, sufficient facts to survive dismissal, is simply a misstatement of the pleadings and the law.

I. The Second Amended LLC Agreement Does Not Exculpate HERA Board Members

224. Defendants make the argument that language in the Second Amended LLC Agreement exculpates all liability for breach of fiduciary duty is simply incorrect in fact and in law. First, Delaware law prohibits such blanket protection from liability. Where claims for breach of fiduciary duty are alleged, certain violations fall within the coverage of exculpatory charter provisions authorized by 8 DEL. C. § 102(b)(7).[570] Section 102(b)(7) allows for an entity to eliminate or limit "the personal liability of a director to the corporation or its stockholders for monetary damages for breach of fiduciary duty as director[.]".[571] Critically, Section 102(b)(7) provisions may not exculpate directors for their breaches of the duty of loyalty or "acts or omissions not in good faith or which involve intentional misconduct or a knowing violation of law[.]"[572]

225. Courts have held that where a complaint alleges or pleads facts sufficient to support the inference that actions were made in bad faith, knowingly or intentionally, the alleged violation implicates the duty of loyalty and may not be exculpated.[573] This statutory provision and the court's interpretation of the same bear directly in this case. The Highland Defendants, including Dondero, cannot rely on a company agreement as a shield to hide their intentional wrongful acts. As the Delaware Supreme Court noted in a case at the motion to dismiss stage "we do not affirm a dismissal unless the plaintiff would not be entitled to recover under any reasonably conceivable set of circumstances."[574] Similarly, HERA's claims should not be dismissed.

J. The Second Amended LLC Agreement Does Not Exculpate Employees

226. Regarding Counts 3 and 6, the FAC pleads sufficient facts regarding the acts and omissions of the Employees[575] to establish breach of fiduciary duty claims. The same analysis applies to the Employees. This series of transactions is laid out in pain-staking detail in the FAC, outlining which Employees' acts and omissions as to which actions were committed to exert control over HERA.[576] As set forth above, the ultimate human controller who engages directly or indirectly in an interested transaction with a corporation is potentially liable for breach of duty, even if other corporate actors made the formal decision on behalf of the corporation, and even if the controller participated in the transaction through intervening entities.[577] Breach of fiduciary duty is an equitable claim, and it is a maxim of equity that "equity regards substance rather than form."[578] Liability for breach of fiduciary duty therefore extends to outsiders who effectively controlled the corporation.[579] And because the application of equitable principles depends on the substance of control rather than the form, it does not matter whether the control is exercised directly or indirectly. The United States Supreme Court's explanation of how a controller exercised control in the Southern Pacific is pertinent where it held "[I]t is the fact of control of the common property held and exercised, not the particular means by which or manner in which the control is exercised, that creates the fiduciary obligation.[580]

227. As noted previously, the Court must also consider the fact that the Defendants have actively prevented the discovery of, and are currently in possession of, information and documents that would allow Plaintiff to plead more precisely. The FAC details Defendants' efforts to avoid turning over pertinent documents and information.[581] To date, none of the Defendants, most importantly none of the Highland Defendants and Employees, with the exception of Abrams and Bayliss, have produced any documents relevant to this lawsuit.

228. HERA cannot plead what it does not know. Courts have held that where there are facts solely within the possession of the defendants it is premature to dismiss the claims under

K. The Second Amended LLC Agreement Does Not Eliminate All Liability For Breach of Contract

1. Count 8 -- Breach of Contract Applies to HERA Board Members

229. The Highland Defendants' argument that the HERA Board Members are not subject to a breach of contract claim is mystifying and contrary to the law. First, it is irrefutable that company agreements are enforceable contracts. Second, the HERA Board members are signatories to the Second Amended LLC Agreement.[583] Third, the Second Amended LLC Agreement clearly lays out the HERA Board Members' contractual duties. Section 5.1 of the Second Amended LLC Agreement gives the Board and, by extension, each individual Board Member) the "sole right, power and authority to manage, direct and control all business and affairs of the Company."[584] Thus, any action by the Company is an action by the Board and individual Board Members.

230. The FAC pleads facts establishing which actions by the individual Board Members were in breach of their contractual duty.[585] Notwithstanding the specifics laid out in the FAC, the Court need look no further than Section 2.1 of the Second Amended LLC Agreement where the Board and, by extension Board Members, had the following contractual duty: "The purpose of the Company is to receive and hold assets….to distribute...to certain employees…as the Board may from time to time determine in in order to create a retention initiative for such employees."[586]

This duty transposed against the irrefutable transfer of HERA's assets gives rise to a claim for breach of contract and, as a matter of law, survives a motion to dismiss.

2. The Second Amended LLC Agreement Does Not Exculpate Defendants' Liability

231. In Count 8, HERA alleges that the Board Member Group breached the HERA Company Agreement in a number of ways, including by stripping HERA of its assets for no value and misallocating expenses and losses to benefit themselves and their controllers.[587]

232. Defendants argue that Section 8.1 of the Second Amended LLC Agreement insulates them from liability for their bad-faith contractual breaches.[588] But Section 8.1 is not, as Defendants contend, an "exculpatory clause covering all Board Members that precludes liability for breach of contract."[589] Although an operating agreement may limit or eliminate liabilities of a member or manager "for breach of contract and breach of duties (including fiduciary duties),"[590] Section 8.1 of the Second Amended LLC Agreement contains no such language. It does not refer to the limitation of liability for breach of contract or even use the words "breach" or "contract."[591] A case cited by Defendants provides the specificity required, i.e., exculpation "for monetary damages for breach of any duty set forth in the Act."[592]

233. As with other terms in the limited liability company agreement, provisions modifying liabilities must be drafted carefully to achieve desired results.[593] Defendants knew how to carefully craft language, they just chose not to in the Second Amended LLC Agreement. The

Also in Ray, the exculpatory provision referred to exculpation "to the maximum extent permitted under the Act," Id., at 10, but Section 8 of the Second Amended LLC Agreement does not refer to the Delaware LLC Act at all. It only refers vaguely to "applicable law" despite the fact that the drafters knew how to refer to the Delaware LLC Act because it is a defined term under the agreement, defined as the "Act.." Exh. 48 – Second Amended LLC Agreement at 10.(App. 539-559).

inadequacy of Section 8.1 as an all-encompassing safe harbor is highlighted by the triage Defendants later attempted in Section 8.1 of the Second Amendment to the Second Amended LLC Agreement (in violation of their fiduciary duties), where they expressly included exculpation "for breach of fiduciary duty."[594] The amount of time and effort Defendants went to examining this issue and trying to find a way around the law to exculpate themselves is astonishing, especially in ultimately failing to do so.[595]

234. Defendants' brief does not address either the applicable statutory language or the absence of an express limitation of contractual liability in Section 8.1. Defendants' cherry-picked words "any act" cannot mean that the Board Member Group is insulated from any and all liability for any and all acts. If that were the case, the specific limitation of liability for "mistakes of judgment" would be superfluous because "mistakes of judgment" necessarily include some act or inaction. Courts do not interpret contracts to render terms meaningless.[596]

235. Further, even if Section 8.1 were interpreted to limit liability beyond "mistakes of judgment," which it should not be, under Delaware law an exculpatory provision "may not limit or eliminate liability for any act or omission that constitutes a bad faith violation of the implied contractual covenant of good faith and fair dealing."[597] It is exactly those types of bad-faith, non-exculpated breaches that HERA alleges here (e.g., stripping all of a company's assets for personal gain), so Section 8.1 could not provide the Board Group Members with the safe harbor they seek, even if it purported to limit all contractual liability for any act whatsoever, which it does not.

L. HERA Properly Pleads Its Claim for Breach of the Second Amended LLC Agreement

236. As discussed above, Count 8 alleges that the Board Member Group breached the HERA Company Agreement in a number of ways.[598] Defendants contend, even under the plaintiff-friendly notice-pleading standard on a motion to dismiss, that HERA failed to state a claim for breach of Sections 3.4, 3.5, and 11.1.[599] Defendants do not challenge the adequacy of HERA's claim insofar as it relies on Sections 2.1, 4.1, 5.1, 5.2, or 5.6.[600]

237. HERA stated a claim for breach of Section 3.4. According to Defendants, Section 3.4 "required HERA to establish and maintain capital accounts for each member" and "the Complaint pleads no facts to establish that HERA failed to establish and maintain those capital accounts."[601] To the contrary, HERA pleads that Section 3.4 was breached because the Board Member Group "participated and/or acquiesced to a scheme to misallocate expenses, net income, and net losses to individual member Capital Accounts."[602] Those are factual, non-conclusory allegations of conduct—i.e., the misallocation of expenses, income, and losses and related failure to maintain proper capital accounts—that are more than sufficient to meet the notice-pleading standard.[603]

238. HERA stated a claim for breach of Section 3.5. Defendants contend that "the Complaint pleads no facts alleging … HERA failed to correctly allocate net income and loss among accounts."[604] But, as with Section 3.4, HERA pleaded those facts: the Board Group Members "participated and/or acquiesced to a scheme to misallocate expenses, net income, and net losses to individual member Capital Accounts."[605] Because the Board Member Group engaged in that conduct, they failed to allocate Net Income and Net Loss pro rata in accordance with each vested Series A Preferred Unit holder's Capital Account balance and therefore breached Section 3.5. This is not a conclusory allegation. To the contrary, it is an allegation of specific conduct that resulted in the violation of an enforceable contract provision. Nothing more is required at the pleading stage.

239. HERA stated a claim for breach of Sections 11.1(a), (b), (d), (e), (f), (g), and (h). Defendants argue that HERA failed to plead facts sufficient to state a claim for breach of Sections 11.1(b), (d), (g), and (h) (without challenging the sufficiency of the claim as to Sections 11.1(a), (e), or (f)).[606] As for Section 11.1(b), Defendants argue that the claim is deficient because HERA "does not plead that its assets were listed on Highland's books."[607] That is exactly what HERA alleges: the Board Group Members "allow[ed] the Plaintiff[']s assets to be listed on the books of another entity, Highland Capital's for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis."[608] The allegation relied on by Defendants (¶78) supports HERA's allegation; it is not a basis for a defendant-friendly inference on a motion to dismiss. Similarly, as to Section 11.1(d), Defendants argue that "HERA does not allege that Defendants commingled company funds or assets."[609] But, again, HERA alleges that the Board Member Group allowed HERA's "funds to be commingled with affiliates, Highland Capital's for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain, and Honis."[610] Defendants next argue that, for Section 11.1(g), "HERA alleges no facts about the frequency of board meetings."[611] HERA need not plead the frequency of board meetings with specificity to allege that the Board Member Group "fail[ed] to hold regular board meetings."[612] That allegation is sufficient to state a claim of breach of the obligation to "hold regular board meetings."[613] Finally, Defendants' argument that "HERA alleges no facts to suggest the company paid its liabilities and expenses with any funds other than its own," in violation of Section 11.1(h), should be rejected. HERA pleaded that the Board Member Group failed to limit HERA "to paying its own liabilities and expenses."[614] HERA also pleaded that its funds and assets were "purportedly used: (1) to pay for substantially all of Highland Capital's attorneys' fees incurred in the Texas Litigation pursuant to the Expense Allocation Agreement dated February 1, 2013; (2) to pay for all of Plaintiff's attorneys' fees incurred in in trying to wrongfully prevent Daugherty from receiving his share of the Plaintiff's assets; and (3) to transfer and register substantially all of its assets to Highland Capital for nothing."[615] Furthermore, HERA pleaded that Highland Capital purported to have loaned Plaintiff the cash necessary to repay its own legal expenses owed to Highland Capital because Plaintiff did not have sufficient funds after transferring all of its assets to Highland Capital back on April 30, 2013.[616] Having sufficient facts alleged, the entirety of Count 8 should proceed.

M. HERA Properly Pleads Its Claim Against the Outside Attorneys for Breach of Contract in Count 15

240. In Count 15, HERA alleged that Outside Attorneys breach their contract with HERA by (1) charging excessive attorneys' fees, (2) causing HERA to incur unnecessary legal expenses, (3) producing improper invoices in the Texas action, (4) making misrepresentations about those invoices, (5) sharing confidential information with other attorneys who did not represent HERA, and (6) misrepresenting to courts that over $14 million of invoices were properly allocated to HERA when they were in fact for the benefit of Highland.[617]

[614] FAC ¶ 291.
[615] FAC ¶ 79.
[616] FAC ¶ 96.
[617] FAC ¶¶ 369-77.

241. In support of their motion to dismiss Count 15, the Outside Attorneys argue that Count 15 is deficient because HERA did not identify the contract(s), identify breached provisions of the contract(s), the circumstances under which the contract(s) were formed, the parties to the alleged contract(s), or how the alleged acts constitute a breach of contract.[618]

242. As an initial matter, the circumstances under which a contract is formed is not an element of a contract claim,[619] so that argument should be rejected. As for the other elements, the FAC satisfies the pleading standard. The contract, plainly, is the engagement letter between HERA and the various attorneys. Such a contract can be express or implied-in-fact.[620] In this case it was both. At the pleading stage, HERA is not required to plead its evidence. HERA has provided notice of its claim that its contractual counterparties, through their alleged acts, breached their contractual obligations to perform legal services for the benefit of HERA.

243. Defendants' secondary argument that the claim should be dismissed because "HERA does not allege that any of these [individual attorneys] contracted directly with HERA" should also be rejected. At the pleading stage it is premature to determine all the terms of an implied-in-fact contract between HERA, its law firms, and its individual attorneys, but it is reasonable to infer that the financial harm imposed on HERA and the improper sharing of HERA's confidential information breached the attorneys' express and implied duties to represent the client in a loyal, professional, and competent manner. Defendants' authority that an individual attorney cannot collect fees from a client[621] does not mean that individual attorneys are immunized for their own acts in violation of an express or implied contract created between them and their client.

N. HERA Properly Pleads Its Claims for Breach of the Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

1. Count 9

244. The Highland Defendants argue that Count 9 of the FAC (breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing against the Board Member Group Defendants) should be dismissed because the allegations in Count 9 mirror those in Count 8 (breach of contract against the Board Member Group Defendants). Plaintiff concedes that to the extent the allegations in Count 9 overlap those in Count 8 which are governed by the contract, those allegations do not survive.[622] However, the allegations in FAC paragraphs 301 and 302 of Count 9 regarding Ellington acting as a HERA board member[623] and the Board Member Group allowing Dondero to use Plaintiff's relationship with Daugherty to further his vendetta against Daugherty causing Plaintiff to incur unnecessary legal expenses and loss,[624] are not governed by the contract such that the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing is invoked to "protect the spirit of the agreement."[625] These acts are so "fundamental" that the parties did not feel a need to negotiate them.[626]

2. Counts 10, 11, 12, and 13

245. Plaintiff withdraws Counts 10 and 13 (breaches of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing) against the Highland Capital Officers and Employees group. However, Counts 11 and 12 allege breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing against Dondero/ERA. Dondero formed ERA in February 2013 as a Delaware limited liability company to act as the manager of HERA, also a Delaware limited liability company. Accordingly, their relationship is governed by Delaware law.

246. Dondero/ERA purported to act as the manager of Plaintiff under the Third Amended LLC agreement, which purported to give Dondero/ERA the authority to act in its sole discretion.[627] Delaware courts have recognized the necessity of implying contract terms to ensure the parties' reasonable expectations are fulfilled."[628] Regarding corporate entities, the implied covenant functions to protect stockholders' expectations that the company and its board will properly perform the contractual obligations they have under the operative organizational agreements.[629] Part of a manager's proper performance of its contractual obligations is to use the discretion granted to it the company's organizational documents in good faith.[630] Thus, a manager may be liable for breaching the covenant when its conduct frustrates the "overarching purpose" of the contract by taking advantage of its position to control implementation of the agreement's terms.[631]

247. Here, Plaintiff alleges that Dondero/ERA's conduct in stripping and transferring Plaintiff's assets thwarted the overall purpose of Plaintiff, which was to hold and receive assets.[632] In fact, the conduct was diametrically opposed to Plaintiff's overall purpose. It is clear from the agreement that had the parties thought that Dondero/ERA would strip Plaintiff of its assets, they would have agreed to prohibit such acts. Accordingly, Plaintiff is entitled to invoke the covenant of good faith and fair dealing against Dondero/ERA.[633]

O. HERA Properly Pleads Its Unjust Enrichment Claims

248. Unjust enrichment allows a plaintiff to recover money or property given to a defendant when the defendant has obtained a benefit from the plaintiff by fraud, duress, or taking undue advantage, or to recover when a contemplated agreement is unenforceable, impossible, not fully performed, thwarted by mutual mistake, or void for other legal reasons.[634] Outside Attorneys argue unjust enrichment is not a stand-alone cause of action, but rather a theory of recovery. However, the Texas Supreme Court has stated otherwise.[635]

249. The Highland Defendants disingenuously argue that the FAC contains no allegation that one party has obtained benefit from another party by fraud, duress, or the taking of an undue advantage. The FAC alleges at least 50 times that the various Defendants benefitted from their fraudulent acts, including, but certainly not limited to:

> Highland Capital and its partners, including Dondero, Okada, the Defendant trusts, Ellington, Boyce, Britain, Dougherty, Honis, Parker, had taken the tax benefits of these expenses with the assistance of Surgent, Leventon, Girard, Waterhouse, Swadley and Klos as though they were their own, despite knowing that the obligations to pay were allocated to Plaintiff.[636]

P. HERA Properly Pleads Defendants' RICO Violations

251. HERA asserts a claim for violation of the federal Racketeering Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"), 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c), against the Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group and the Board Member Group (together, the "RICO Defendants").[643] While the numerous events giving rise to this RICO claim are complex, the premise of the racketeering activity is simple: the RICO Defendants owed duties to HERA but instead of facilitating their duties, they looted the company for their own benefits and to punish its largest shareholder, Daugherty, then made numerous actionable misrepresentations and wire transfers to cover it up.

[643] The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group was employed by Highland, and most had been designated with a "Key Man," "Principal" and "Manager" role for Restoration Capital, HERA's largest investment. The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group Defendants is comprised of Dondero (President and CEO of Highland; "Key Man", "Principal" and "Manager" of Restoration Capital (FAC ¶ 28)), Okada (CIO and EVP of Highland; "Key Man", "Principal" and "Manager" of Restoration Capital (FAC ¶ 29)), Boyce, Collins (head of HR at Highland until 2021, and tasked with acting on behalf of HERA's board (FAC ¶ 46)), Honis, Ellington, Leventon (ACG for Highland 2009-2020 (FAC ¶ 31)), Girard (counsel at Highland from 2011-2017 (FAC ¶ 33)), and Waterhouse (CFO at Highland until his termination in 2021 (FAC ¶ 45)). Each of the Board Member Group defendants held board of director and/or general counsel roles for Highland. Additionally, many held management roles with Highland's affiliates and subsidiaries. The Board Member Group is made up of Boyce (board member of HERA, partner at Highland and Head of Private Equity for HERA's interest in Restoration Capital (FAC ¶ 39)), Britain (board member of HERA and partner at Highland (FAC ¶ 40)), Dameris (board member of HERA and managing director of Highland (FAC ¶ 38)), Dougherty (board member of HERA and partner at Highland (FAC ¶ 43), Ellington (general counsel and other roles from 2010 until fired for cause in January 2021 (FAC ¶ 30)), and Honis (board member of HERA , Partner of Highland, "Key Man" of Restoration Capital (FAC ¶ 41)).

252. HERA was, at all relevant times, a wholly owned subsidiary of Highland Capital, created to retain and incentivize Highland Capital's employees.[644] Highland Capital's business investments soured during the 2008 financial crisis, and it began making risky business decisions to compensate.[645]

253. In approximately 2012, the RICO Defendants began a series of maneuvers designed to strip HERA of its valuable assets and to transfer expenses of Highland Capital and its affiliates to HERA, without exchange for consideration.[646] This was done to benefit Dondero, the Board Members, and the Officers and Employees through financial buy-outs and purported indemnification in exchange for dereliction of their fiduciary duties.[647] The fraudulent scheme states a RICO claim, because the RICO Defendants used mail and wire fraud to deprive HERA of money, property, and other benefits and assets.[648]

254. To assert a RICO claim, the FAC must allege sufficient facts to support an inference that "(1) a person [engaged] in (2) a pattern of racketeering activity, (3) connected to the acquisition, establishment, conduct, or control of an enterprise."[649] The RICO Defendants do not dispute that the FAC satisfies elements (1) and (3) of a RICO claim, identifying them as "persons" who are "connected to the acquisition, establishment, conduct, or control of an enterprise."[650] Instead, the Motion focuses only on the two components of the second element, whether the FAC adequately alleges a pattern of racketeering activity. It does.[651]

[651] The RICO Defendants further argue that HERA fails to plead the existence of the required RICO enterprise under 28 U.S.C. § 1962(C). This is incorrect. To establish an association-in-fact enterprise, the relationship of the enterprise may be formal or informal, where the parties operate as a "continuing unit." State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Giventer, 212 F. Supp. 2d 639, 650 (N.D. Tex. 2002). The enterprise (1) must have an existence separate and apart from the pattern of racketeering, (2) must be an ongoing organization and (3) its members must function as a

255. A "pattern of racketeering activity" has two components: (1) predicate acts—the requisite racketeering activity, and (2) a pattern of such acts.[652] The first component — "racketeering activity" — consists of two or more predicate offenses, defined by the statute to include acts violating federal wire or mail fraud statutes.[653] To meet the second component these racketeering activities must form a "pattern" by being both "related to" and posing a threat of "continued criminal activity."[654] These acts cannot be "isolated events," but must be undertaken for "the same or similar purposes."[655] "Relatedness" requires that the acts have the "same or similar purposes, results, participants, victims, or methods of commission."[656] "Continuity" requires showing "a closed period of repeated conduct or an open-ended period of conduct that 'by its nature projects into the future with a threat of repetition.'"[657] "A closed period of conduct may be demonstrated 'by proving a series of related predicates extending over a substantial period of time.'"[658] The FAC satisfies each component's requirement.

256. "Though [the RICO pleading] burden requires specificity, a 'complainant need not, however, state all facts pertinent to a case to satisfy the requirements of Rule 9(b)."[659] As We recognized in Turkette that the evidence used to prove the pattern of racketeering activity and the evidence establishing an enterprise 'may in particular cases coalesce.'"). Here, the enterprise is clear: each of the RICO Defendants was an acting representative of Highland Capital, one of its affiliates, or its investments. In those capacities, the RICO Defendants were hierarchically organized and held duties outside their intentional acts in furtherance of the RICO scheme. County of El Paso, Tex. v. Jones, 2009 WL 4730303, at *22 (W.D. Tex. Dec. 4, 2009) (association-in-fact sufficiently alleged where defendants' main objective was to secure contracts and agreements and did so through commission of predicate acts). Like Jones, the RICO Defendants' primary purpose was in their roles as officers, directors, managers, and "key men" of the affiliated businesses they represented. However, the allegations also demonstrate that—as permitted under BP Am—their concerted efforts across multiple layers of corporate structure to further the scheme demonstrate the existence of an "enterprise."

detailed below, the FAC sets out a detailed explanation of the RICO Defendants' scheme to defraud and adequately alleges a claim for RICO.

1. The FAC States a Claim That RICO Defendants Committed Predicate Offense of Wire and/or Mail Fraud

257. The predicate act of wire fraud under 18 U.S.C. § 1343 requires: (1) a scheme to defraud; (2) the use of, or causing the use of, wire communications in furtherance of the scheme; and (3) a specific intent to defraud."[660] The elements of mail fraud under 18 U.S.C. § 1341 are the same but with "use of the mails."[661] An email, telephone call, or other message may satisfy the "wire communications" element.[662] The "scheme to defraud" element requires proof that the defendant "made some kind of false or fraudulent material misrepresentation."[663] Wire communications "that conceal or delay detection of an ended scheme can be considered essential to the scheme."[664] "It is not necessary that a wire transmission contain a falsehood for purposes of establishing wire fraud; rather, it must only promote the scheme in some manner."[665] "Even an interstate email that says 'Meet me at the bowling alley tonight' can serve as the necessary wire if the parties planned the fraud while bowling a few frames that evening."[666]

258. "In alleging a RICO scheme involving mail or wire fraud, it is not necessary to assert that each defendant personally made fraudulent mailings or wires[.]"[667]

259. The RICO Defendants principally rely on out-of-circuit precedent to argue that the mail and wire fraud allegations in the FAC are insufficient and raise the pleading standards.[668] Efron has not been adopted or cited in the Fifth Circuit. Instead, courts in this Circuit have ruled that where the wire transfer itself is not the fraudulent or false act, but is in furtherance of the scheme, plaintiffs are not required to plead the time and contents of each and every wire made.[669] The FAC satisfies this standard because the wire transfers and mailings were in furtherance of a larger scheme to defraud.

260. The FAC details allegations that the RICO Defendants committed false use of mail or wires including improperly transferring money via wire-transfer to hide assets, filing false tax returns,[670] making, approving, or authorizing false filings in multiple courts throughout the country, removing money from the accounts where it was held in escrow, sending false statements via the mail (including resolutions, court papers, letters, notices, and other documents), and using email to hide changes to an Escrow Agreement that had not been authorized or consented to.[671] In addition, the RICO Defendants regularly communicated about the scheme via email.[672] And they used email to hide evidence of their scheme.[673] This activity occurred across state lines, throughout Texas, Delaware, and as far as the Cayman Islands.[674] As a result, the FAC adequately alleges predicate acts.[675]

[670] FAC ¶¶ 100, 289, 99, 381-383, 102-113, 183, 412, 461-463. While it is not presently clear whether the tax returns were submitted by wire or mail, the filing of the false tax returns state a claim for wire or mail fraud in the alternative.

[671] These allegations also satisfy the pleading standards for the predicate act of money laundering. Under 18 U.S.C. § 1956(a)(1)(A)(i), to state a claim for money laundering the FAC must plead the RICO Defendants: (1) knowingly conducting a financial transaction; (2) which involved the proceeds of an unlawful activity; and (3) with the intent to promote or further unlawful activity. U.S. v. Dovalina, 282 F.3d 472, 475 (5th Cir. 2001). The repeated intentional misrepresentations, fraud, transfers, and mishandling of the Escrow Transaction alone states a predicate offense for money laundering. See FAC ¶¶ 84-89.

2. The FAC Adequately Alleges a Pattern of Racketeering Activity

261. The FAC adequately alleges that the RICO Defendants participated in a "pattern of racketeering activity" because the conduct alleged was "related" and "continuous." The RICO Defendants' fraudulent scheme to deprive HERA of valuable assets was undertaken for a common purpose over the course of several years.

i. The FAC Adequately Alleges the Predicate Acts Were "Related"

262. "The relatedness inquiry focuses on the interrelationship of charged RICO predicates in order to ensure that a person is not 'subjected to sanctions for committing two widely separated and isolated criminal offenses.'"[676] Here, the RICO Defendants' fraudulent conduct was part of a long-running scheme and attempted cover up, not a series of isolated incidents, thereby satisfying the relatedness element.

263. To adequately plead a RICO conspiracy, the FAC need not assert "direct evidence" of the parties' agreement to participate. Instead, "proof of such an agreement may rest upon inferences drawn from relevant and competent circumstantial evidence, ordinarily the acts and conduct of the alleged conspirators themselves."[677] In Megatel I, the Court found that RICO allegations had been sufficiently alleged because the defendants had financial incentives to carry out the alleged scheme to defraud, participated in weekly meetings, were in constant contact about the pattern of racketeering, and agreed to participate in the scheme to the benefit of one Defendant and harm to the company.[678] Additionally, the pattern of racketeering activity was adequately plead by describing the ongoing scheme to defraud, over the course of several years.[679] Such is the case here.[680]

264. As with Megatel I and Chazanow, the FAC adequately alleges the contents of the misrepresentations, the role of each of the RICO Defendants in furthering the fraudulent scheme, and the harm that resulted.

265. The RICO Defendants worked together and with their outside counsel to perpetuate their fraud on HERA over the course of approximately 10 years—from 2012 to 2012. They intended to defraud HERA of money and property as well as other benefits and assets.[681] Each of the actions taken over the course of the more than ten years was "related" because it was all part of the larger scheme to defraud HERA, not unrelated incidents targeting unrelated victims. Each of the actions described in the FAC is part of the long-running scheme to benefit the RICO Defendants at the expense of HERA:

- Imposition of the lose-lose clause in the 2012 Amendment, designed to punish both the company and any litigants who bring suits "related to" HERA;[682]
- The Board Members conspired to reject viable settlement options to HERA in favor of low ball offers by Dondero, and rejection of their fiduciary duties to consider the fairness of his offers for the purpose of impairing Daugherty's membership rights. They further attempted to forgive the board members' breaches of duties owed to HERA before they were discovered;[683]
- The RICO Defendants ignored their fiduciary duties by accepting low ball purchase offers to HERA and abdicating their duties to seek other, higher offers, discussing poison pills, standstills, or other corporate defense mechanisms to prevent takeovers, or even met to discuss the offer.[684] (Votes had not even been received by the time board positions had terminated.);
- Under the auspices of the Shared Services Agreement and a Blanket Agreement, Dondero — along with the other Highland Capital Officers and Employees — executed a series of transactions to strip HERA of its assets:
    - Eliminating HERA's corporate purpose while indemnifying Highland Capital and Dondero;[685]

- Allocating Highland Capital's legal expenses to HERA for no consideration and ultimately allocating over $14,000,000 in expenses to HERA for work performed on behalf of other entities;[686]
- The Board Member Defendants rendered HERA insolvent by transferring all of its assets to Highland Capital;[687]
- The RICO Defendants sanctioned, participated in, and authorized the Texas Litigation, brought by Highland Capital against Daugherty, which included strategies to manipulate documents and hide evidence and assets related to the HERA buyout, the escrow and the location of its funds ((detailing events, testimony, witness statements, and malfeasance by RICO Defendants), [688] (detailing scheme to terminate escrow and hide assets); [689] ("Dondero, through Highland Capital, engaged in an asset-stripping campaign designed to render [HERA] judgment-proof[.]"));[690]
- The RICO Defendants further authorized and directed the transfer of assets from other Highland Capital Affiliates (including Highland Crusader Fund and Sentinel to Dondero, Okada, and Ellington controlled entities, and the allocation of the related litigation fees to HERA (despite HERA not being a party to said litigation) (describing Highland Crusader Litigation[691]; discussing transfers orchestrated by Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, Lucas, and others).[692]

- Highland Capital, for whom the RICO Defendants were agents, was found to have forfeited its attorney-client privilege because the acts of its counsel were found to be in furtherance of fraud. The RICO Defendants also concealed the existence of critical contracts and amendments, assets, and discoverable cell phones during litigation;[693] further, several of the RICO Defendants, in addition to Dondero, Ellington, Leventon, and Surgent, specifically authorized and directed these actions.[694]

- Engaging in breaches of fiduciary duties in their roles managing and operating HERA and its indirect assets resulting in financial windfalls where Dondero and Ellington received "facilitating fees" of $11 million and Katz, Hurst and their firms received contrived contingent fees;[695]

- Dondero continued to direct Highland Capital after his dismissal, with the knowledge and participation of Ellington, Leventon, and the other Highland Capital Officers and Employees;[696]

- Highland Capital and its partners, including RICO Defendants Dondero, Okada, Ellington, Boyce, Britain, Dougherty, Honis, and Parker, had received tax benefits as a result of the scheme, with the express intention to avoid passing any tax benefits to HERA holders other than Highland under the direction and assistance of Surgent, Leventon, Girard, and Waterhouse.[697]

266. This scheme to defraud was undertaken with the intended purpose of benefitting the RICO Defendants, including negotiating their own individual buyouts rather than resolve key pending governance issues,[698] benefitting certain Defendants individually (e.g. board members negotiated their own buy-outs and manipulated timing of documents in their favor),[699] hiding malfeasance to avoid further consequences[700] and harming the remaining shareholders[701] (eliminating indemnification and distributions for pass-through taxes to all unit holders). Each of the RICO Defendants participated in the scheme to defraud through their intentional misconduct or through the breach of their fiduciary duties and abdication of any attempts at diligence.[702]

267. The RICO Defendants argue that HERA fails to plead how any of the communications contributed to the stripping of HERA's assets, arguing without citation that this is "problematic."[703] Not only is this statement factually false, but it is also legally untrue. "Once membership in a scheme to defraud is established, a knowing participant is liable for any wire communication which subsequently takes place or which previously took place in connection with the scheme."[704] Each defendant is not required to engage in every aspect of the scheme to be held liable for the fraud.[705] And "a defendant may be liable for fraud without making any

268. As was the case in Next Health, the detailed pleadings about the repeated fraudulent acts connect each RICO Defendant to the fraudulent claims and raise an inference of their knowing participation in the scheme and each personally benefited from the scheme.[708] The FAC details the roles and responsibilities each RICO Defendant had and the detailed allegations of their wrongdoing.[709] The FAC further details exactly what each RICO Defendants' role meant, and how each participated in the larger scheme—from fraudulently altering legal documents[710] to breach of fiduciary duties[711] to allocation of expenses to HERA without consideration.[712] And the FAC lays out how each RICO Defendant benefited from the scheme.[713]

ii. The FAC Adequately Alleges the Predicate Acts Were "Continuous" done in a variety of ways.[715] The FAC satisfies the continuity requirement. "Continuity" under RICO is both a closed- and open-ended concept, referring either to a closed period of repeated conduct or to past conduct that by its nature projects into the future with a threat of repetition.[716] While there is no hard and fast rule regarding the number of months that a fraudulent scheme must occur to satisfy the "substantial period of time" requirement, courts have found it satisfied when the acts continued for thirty-two months.[717] The RICO Defendants' fraudulent scheme satisfies the "continuity" requirement because it lasted for several years, throughout multiple trials (including finding sanctionable conduct in multiple courts), and was not confined to a specific act, event, transfer, or litigation.[718]

270. The RICO Defendants' scheme lasted more than a decade.[719] The long-standing practice of hiding assets, causing HERA to incur indemnification obligations for which it received no benefit, and allocating unrelated expenses to HERA occurred in multiple forums, several cases, and as a pattern and practice of general operations at Highland Capital under the leadership of Dondero, Okada and Ellington.[720]

271. Indeed, unlike Burzynski, the fraudulent activity in this case was not limited to bad acts in relation to a single lawsuit or a single business transaction, but occurred across several court cases involving numerous parties, throughout business operations, shareholder communications, and a pattern and practice of transferring all value out of HERA without consideration and allocating all expenses to HERA, regardless of whether HERA, Highland

Capital, or another Highland Capital affiliate in fact incurred them. Thus, this case asserts the type of long-term criminal activity contemplated under RICO.[721]

Q. HERA Properly Pleads Its Money Had and Received Claim

272. The FAC sufficiently pleads facts and allegations showing that HERA's assets, both cash and non-cash, were stripped away to Highland. In the limited documentation HERA received post-2022, it has found financial statements that show distributions from Highland to specific named defendants. Importantly, HERA owned assets composed of cash and non-cash assets. The cash assets generated interest, and the non-cash assets generated cash upon their monetization and generated interest once converted to cash and then distributed. The attached spread sheets show these cashflow were itemized until HERA's assets were transferred to Highland circa April 30, 2013.[722] The distributions continued but going forward they came from the assets taken from HERA and assigned to Highland books. Dondero, Okada, and their trusts owned Highland from 2013 to 2020 and received comingled distributions in cash from the Highland distribution of HERA assets. In short, the Defendants moved HERA assets to Highland then to themselves, therefore holding money that in equity and good conscious belongs to HERA.

273. Moreover, at the time of the Highland bankruptcy filing, any cash not already distributed to Dondero, Okada and their trusts and the non-cash assets on the books of Highland were trapped pursuant to the automatic stay and were subsequently held in the Claimant Trust for the benefit of creditors. Thus, some of the wrongfully transferred assets that were held up until the time of the bankruptcy stay qualify as money had and received but are now unavailable.

[722] Exh. 73 – Highland Financial Statements and Excel Spreadsheets (App. 792-869).

274. The money had and received claim is properly pleaded and the documents (at least the ones HERA has access to) identify assets that are held wrongfully and who received those assets, thus making dismissal inappropriate.

R. HERA Properly Pleads Its Conversion Claim

275. Reliance on the Written Consent and other actions taken by the Highland Defendants prior to and on January 17-18, 2013, to claim the asset transfer was in HERA's best interest is disingenuous. The asset transfer was not in HERA's best interest, instead it was in the Highland Defendants' best interest because once the HERA assets were stripped away, they went to the benefit of the Highland Defendants.

276. The FAC clearly pleads facts and allegations showing that HERA's assets, both cash and non-cash, were stripped away to Highland.[723] In the limited documentation HERA received post 2022 it has found financial statements that show HERA owned assets composed of cash and non-cash assets. The cash assets generated interest, and the non-cash assets generated cash upon their monetization and then subsequently generated interest once converted to cash and then distributed. The attached spread sheets show these cashflow were itemized until HERA's assets were transferred to Highland circa April 30, 2013.[724] The distributions continued, but going forward they came from the assets taken from HERA and assigned to the Highland books. Dondero, Okada, and their trusts owned Highland from 2013 to 2020 and received comingled distributions in cash from the Highland distribution of HERA assets. In short, the Defendants moved HERA assets to Highland then to themselves, thus converting HERA's assets.

277. Moreover, at the time of the Highland bankruptcy filing, any cash not already distributed to Dondero, Okada and their trusts and the non-cash assets on the books of Highland were trapped pursuant to the automatic stay and were subsequently held in the Claimant Trust for the benefit of creditors. Thus, some of the wrongfully transferred assets that were held up until the time of the bankruptcy stay qualify as assets converted but are now unavailable.

278. Simply put, the FAC sufficiently pleads the following:

- HERA had legal possession of its own assets
- The Highland Defendants through their invalid corporate documents and buy out scheme unlawfully and without proper authorization assumed and exercised control over the HERA assets;[725]
- HERA has demanded its assets back and Defendants refuse to return them.

279. The conversion claim is properly pleaded and the documents (at least the ones HERA has access to), identify assets that are held wrongfully and by whom, making dismissal inappropriate.

S. HERA Properly Pleads Its TTLA Claim

280. Plaintiff sufficiently pleads a claim under the TTLA. First, it is undisputed that HERA had the possessory right to its cash and non-cash assets prior to 2013. Second, the Highland Defendants unlawfully transferred those assets to Highland for their benefit. Third, the loss of HERA's assets is the damage sustained as a result of the unlawful transfers. Highland Defendants argue that HERA's assets were used to pay for attorney's fees pursuant to an agreement between HERA and Highland and were thus transferred to Highland pursuant to the April 30, 2013, Managers Written Consent for Assignment Agreement and Assignment Agreement as Exhibit A attached thereto (signed by Dondero).[726] First, as has been established, the April 30, 2013, Managers Written Consent for Assignment Agreement and Assignment

Agreement as Exhibit A attached thereto is invalid.[727] Second, this "agreement," referred to by the Highland Defendants as a Blanket Agreement, Shared Services Agreement, Blanket Shared Services Agreement, Joint Defense Agreement or Affiliated Agreement, does not exist or, at the very least, has never been produced.

281. Isaac Leventon testified in his deposition in Delaware I that Andrews Kurth provided legal services (and presumably the legal expenses associated therewith) to HERA through a Joint Defense Agreement.[728] Leventon then testified that all expenses incurred by HERA from the Texas Lawsuit were covered by the Expense Allocation Agreement.[729]

282. Ellington, who was Chief Legal Officer, General Counsel and Partner of Highland at the time of his deposition in Delaware I testified that he hired Gruber Hurst to represent HERA pursuant to an existing "shared services agreement or affiliated agreement."[730] Ellington also testified that HERA agreed to pay Highland pursuant to the Expense Allocation Agreement.[731]

283. Ellington also testified in the Delaware I trial that he provided legal services to HERA in his capacity as Chief Legal Officer and General Counsel of Highland pursuant to a shared services agreement.[732] Ellington also refers to a blanket shared services agreement but cannot specifically identify same.[733]

284. Dondero testified in the Delaware I trial that he relied on the Outside Attorneys for advice on the documents and strategy that HERA owed $9,500,000 to Highland for services.[734]

285. Leventon testified in the Delaware I trial that he provided legal services to HERA through a shared services agreement.[735] Leventon also testified that Katz, HUK, Hurst and Abrams & Bayliss all provided legal services to HERA through a joint defense agreement.[736]

286. Notwithstanding multiple examples of sworn testimony regarding the existence of this "agreement," which provides the basis for the Highland Defendants argument that HERA owed Highland money (thus justifying the asset transfer from HERA to Highland), it apparently does not, in fact, exist. Klos, the controller for Highland testified in the Delaware II trial that he oversaw the accounting related to assets and liabilities of HERA and was unaware of any shared services agreement.[737] Moreover, in March 2024, Highland's counsel, John Morris, in response to a request for HERA documents, informed counsel for HERA that neither HERA nor ERA ever had a shared services agreement with Highland.[738]

287. The FAC lays out with specificity how HERA's assets were unlawfully transferred to Highland for the benefit of the Highland Defendants.[739] Furthermore, the Highland Defendants argument against the TTLA claims relies solely on "agreements" that simply do not exist or have not been produced. HERA's TTLA claim should not be dismissed.

T. HERA Properly Pleads Its TUFTA claim.

288. TUFTA "aims to prevent debtors from fraudulently placing assets beyond the reach of creditors[,]"[740] which is precisely what HERA has alleged here. TUFTA allows a creditor to bring a claim not only against the debtor, but also against the first transferee of the assets, any subsequent transferees who did not take in good faith, and persons for whose benefit the transfer was made.[741]

289. Here, HERA has properly alleged the elements of a TUFTA claim, which are: (1) plaintiff is a creditor with a claim against a debtor; (2) the debtor transferred assets after, or a short time before, plaintiff's claim arose; and (3) the debtor made the transfer with the intent to hinder, delay, or defraud the plaintiff.[742] TUFTA defines a creditor as someone who has a claim—that is, "a right to payment or property, whether or not the right is reduced to judgment, liquidated, unliquidated, fixed, contingent, matured, unmatured, disputed, undisputed, legal, equitable, secured or unsecured[.]"[743] HERA alleges it is a creditor by way of the verdicts in the Texas and Delaware litigation,[744] the details of which are set forth in excruciating detail in Sections IV (E)-(G) of the FAC.

290. TUFTA defines a debtor as "a person who is liable on a claim."[745] HERA alleges that Defendants are debtors liable on those claims[746] (the verdicts in the Prior Lawsuits) by way of their participation in the stripping of HERA's assets, as alleged throughout the FAC. And finally, HERA alleges that Defendants transferred the assets with the actual intent to hinder, delay and/or defraud HERA, that they retained possession and control of the assets after the transfer, and they concealed such acts to do so.[747] Defendants are each alleged to have been either a subsequent transferee, a recipient of distributions therefrom, or a party for whose benefit the transfers were made. Those allegations include, but are not limited to:

- Ownership of Highland Capital, to whom Plaintiff's assets were transferred, transferred to Hunter Mountain on or around December 17, 2015, from its then-existing limited partners (i.e., Dondero, Okada, Ellington, Parker, and entities they controlled). Through a complex series of transactions that occurred on December 21, 2015, and December 24, 2015, Dondero and Okada caused Hunter Mountain to become the owner-in name of 99.5% of the economic interests of Highland Capital. Meanwhile, Dondero and Okada caused Hunter Mountain to issue a series of notes and cash, such that Dondero, Okada, and certain entities they controlled (including Dugaboy, Okada Trust #1, and Okada Trust #2) continued to receive the economic benefit of limited partnership distributions made by Highland Capital to Hunter Mountain even after they had purportedly sold their limited partnership interests to Hunter Mountain.[748]
- These interests were assigned to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Hunter Mountain Trust, Ellington and Honis.[749]
- All Defendants hold money that came from assets or distributions from assets that belonged to Plaintiff.[750]
- Distributions were made of all of Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital for the benefit of Dondero and his trusts, Okada and his trusts, Boyce, Britain and Honis.[751]
- Assets and distributions were for the benefit of Dondero, Okada, Boyce, Collins, Honis, Ellington, Leventon, Girard, and Waterhouse (collectively, "Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group")[752]

291. Moreover, in the limited documentation HERA received post-2022, it has found financial statements that show distributions from Highland to numerous Defendants.[753] In short, and as set forth throughout the FAC, Defendants transferred and/or received the benefit of the transfer of HERA's assets. Because HERA adequately pleads the elements of a TUFTA claim, dismissal is improper.

U. HERA Properly Pleads Its Fraud Claims

292. Highland Defendants argue that Plaintiff's fraud claims are not sufficiently pleaded with particularity. This argument is disingenuous, at best. FRCP 9(b) requires the complaint to set forth "the who, what, when, where, and how" of the events at issue.[754] Rule 9(b) does not, however, require the plaintiff at the pleading stage to put every single piece of evidence it has or might obtain during the discovery process in a pleading. This case is not yet at the summary judgment phase. Plaintiff is only required to meet the federal pleading standards, which it does.

293. Plaintiff properly alleges facts upon which the fraud claims are based. Given the limited knowledge Plaintiff has due to Defendants' years-long stonewalling[755] and Daugherty's removal from Plaintiff's board,[756] Plaintiff cannot possibly be expected to know every single detail of Defendants' fraudulent acts, such that it cannot plead what it does not yet know. The FAC does, however, contain enough facts and circumstances constituting fraud. For example, Plaintiff alleges the "who" as the defined defendants "the Board Member Group, The Dondero ERA Management, the Highland Capital Officers, and Employees Group."[757] The facts establishing the "what" include, but are not limited to, these defendants' representations that "$1,210,502.03 in cash, a limited partner interest in Restoration Capital Partners Fund, LP and 1088.42 shares of NexPoint Credit Strategies had been deposited in an escrow account for Plaintiff,"[758] that those assets had been set aside for Plaintiff to pay its obligations, [759] and that the taking of the assets from Plaintiff was validly approved in the purported corporate governance actions of Plaintiff on January 17, 2013, January 18, 2013, February 2013, and April 30, 2013.[760] These allegations also sets forth "when" and "where" of Defendants' fraudulent scheme, further details of which are also set forth throughout the FAC.[761] The FAC also sets forth "how" Defendants' specific representations were later discovered to be fraudulent, i.e., all the assets purported to be held in escrow for Plaintiff, were in fact, not, and what assets remained were swept from Plaintiff.[762]

294. The FAC establishes its fraud claims against the Highland Defendants with requisite specificity. It identifies the "who, what, when, where and how" with specific names and descriptions of various false representations, including exact dates and overt acts taken that constitute a fraud claim. Plaintiff simply cannot plead what it does not know, and since there are facts solely within the possession of Defendants, it is premature to dismiss those claims.[763] Thus, dismissal of Plaintiff's fraud claims is unwarranted.

V. HERA Properly Pleads Its Conspiracy Claims

295. Plaintiff brings claims for conspiracy to commit fraud against the Highland Defendants and the Outside Attorneys with regard to the buyout and 2013 stripping of Plaintiff's assets (Count 16) and the 2016 transfer of escrow assets (Count 17). As set forth in the preceding section, Plaintiff has alleged with requisite particularity the "who, what, when, where and how" of the underlying fraud claims.[764] With regard to the conspiracy, Plaintiff has also alleged a meeting of the minds, describing in great detail the purported corporate actions taken by the Highland Defendants with the assistance and cooperation of the Outside Attorneys, and quoting correspondence among them describing their "meeting of the minds" and the overt acts taken in furtherance of the buyout and 2013 asset stripping[765] and the 2016 transfer of escrow assets.[766]

[766] FAC ¶¶ 101-113 (describing communications and acts taken in furtherance of the 2016 transfer of assets).

296. The Highland Defendants further argue that the individually named defendants were acting in the course and scope of their employment or agency relationship, such that they could not conspire with each other through their employer/principal. However, Plaintiff alleges a conspiracy among (1) the individual employees/officers of Highland, (2) the Board Member Group, (3) Dondero/ERA Management and (4) the Outside Attorneys to defraud Plaintiff. Highland Defendants' argument is simply misplaced.

297. Because Plaintiff properly alleges its underlying fraud claims, and because Plaintiff describes in no less than 25 paragraphs the particulars of Defendants' meeting of the minds and the overt acts taken in furtherance of the conspiracy, Plaintiff's claims for conspiracy to commit fraud must not be dismissed.

W. HERA Properly Pleads Its Tortious Interference Claims

298. HERA has adequately alleged the elements of tortious interference in each of Counts 29, 30, and 31. The elements of tortious interference are the existence of a valid contract subject to interference, defendant's willful and intentional interference therewith, causation, and damage/loss as a result.[767] As set forth throughout this response, the FAC describes in painstaking detail the willful and intentional acts Defendants took that interfered with the Second Amended LLC Agreement to strip Plaintiff of its assets.

299. As to the first element, HERA alleges the existence of a contract subject to interference, specifically its "limited liability company operating agreement," which agreement is referenced and quoted throughout the FAC.[768] Later, HERA alleges that Defendants willfully and intentionally interfered with same by moving Plaintiff's assets into an escrow account held by Abrams & Bayliss,[769] by moving Plaintiff's assets to Highland Capital in 2013,[770] and by moving Plaintiff's assets from an escrow account to Highland Capital again in 2016,[771] the details of which are contained in Sections IV(B)-(G) of the FAC. And finally, Plaintiff pleads the third and fourth elements (causation and damage) by stating in each count that the interference referenced therein "proximately caused" Plaintiff's injury/damages[772] through the loss of its assets.[773] Because HERA has adequately pleaded the elements of tortious interference, dismissal is improper.[774]

TRUSTEE DEFENDANTS SECTION

I. STATEMENT OF FACTS

300. Highland Capital created HERA as an employee-retention tool for Highland Capital's key employees.[775] Highland Capital's business investments soured during the 2008 financial crisis, and it began making risky business decisions to compensate.[776] Those decisions ultimately led to Defendants, through their various connections, ties, or roles within Highland Capital, illegally pillaging HERA of all of its assets, for which HERA now brings suit. Based on their inextricable roles in those activities, HERA brings claims for money had and received, conversion, and violations of the Texas Theft Liability Act against the Trustee Defendants.[777]

301. While the events giving rise to all of HERA's claims are complex (by Defendants' design), the premise of the fraudulent activity is simple: the Board Member Group and Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group[778] (together, the "Non-Trustee Defendants") spurned their [777] "Trustee Defendants" means Nancy Dondero ("Nancy") as trustee of the Dugaboy Investment Trust ("Dugaboy"), Grant James Scott as trustee of the Get Good Trust ("Get Good"), John Honis as Trustee of the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ("Hunter Mountain"), and Lawrence Tonomura as trustee of both The Mark & Pamela Okada Family Trust - Exemplary Trust # 1 ("Okada #1") and the Mark and Pamela Okada Family Trust Exempt Trust #2 ("Okada #2") (collectively the "Okada Trusts") in their capacities as trustees.

[778] Each of the Board Member Group defendants held board of director and/or general counsel roles for HERA or Highland. Additionally, many held management roles with Highland's affiliates and subsidiaries. The Board Member Group is made up of Boyce (board member of HERA, partner at Highland, and Head of Private Equity for HERA's legal duties to HERA and looted the company for their benefit. Worse, in an attempt to disguise their illicit activities, they concocted a scheme to layer their fraud under a vast quilt of smoke and mirrors.

302. In approximately 2011, the Non-Trustee Defendants began a series of maneuvers designed to strip HERA of its valuable assets and to transfer expenses of Highland Capital and its affiliates to HERA, without exchange for consideration.[779] This was done to benefit Dondero, Okada, the Trustees Defendants, the Board Members, and the Officers and Employees through financial buyouts and indemnification in exchange for dereliction of their fiduciary duties.[780]

303. Each Trustee Defendant executed or permitted transactions to transfer or receive funds that ultimately originated or were sourced from (and rightfully belonged to) HERA, and those funds were then funneled through various Highland Capital entities and trusts.[781] Dondero and Okada perpetuated their fraud, with the assistance of the Trustee Defendants, by utilizing their trusts as vehicles to effectuate a multitude of fraudulent transfers to harm HERA.

304. The Trustee Defendants' illicit actions were executed within, effectuated within, and/or directed at the State of Texas. Therefore, the Court should deny the Trustee Defendants' Motion and find each of them subject to the Court's personal jurisdiction.

The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group was employed by Highland Capital, and most had been designated with a "Key Man" role for Restoration Capital, HERA's largest investment. The Highland Capital Officers and Employees Group Defendants are comprised of Dondero (President and CEO of Highland; "Key Man", "Principal" and "Manager" of Restoration Capital, FAC ¶ 28), Okada (CIO and EVP of Highland; "Key Man", "Manager" and/or "Principal of Restoration Capital, FAC ¶ 29), Boyce, Collins (head of HR at Highland until 2021, and tasked with acting on behalf of HERA's board, FAC ¶ 46), Honis, Ellington, Leventon (ACG for Highland 2009-2020, FAC at ¶ 31), Girard (counsel at Highland from 2011-2017. II. ARGUMENT AND AUTHORITIES

A. Legal Standard for Personal Jurisdiction

305. A plaintiff bears the burden of establishing personal jurisdiction but need only establish a prima facie case.[782] Importantly, "[i]n determining whether a prima facie case for personal jurisdiction exists on a motion to dismiss, uncontroverted allegations in the plaintiff's complaint must be taken as true."[783] Additionally, to support a finding of personal jurisdiction, the court may consult both the plaintiff's assertions in the complaint and evidence offered in response to a motion to dismiss.[784] The Trustee Defendants have failed to controvert any of the substantive factual allegations supporting this Court's exercise of personal jurisdiction over them.

306. A federal court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a non-resident defendant "if the state's long-arm statute extends to the defendant and the exercise of such jurisdiction is consistent with due process."[785] Texas's long-arm statute permits jurisdiction to the full extent allowed by the Constitution, and therefore, "the two-step inquiry collapses into one federal due process analysis."[786] Due process requires: (A) minimum contacts with the forum state; and (B) that "exercising jurisdiction is consistent with traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice."[787]

307. A defendant has minimum contacts if that "defendant has purposely availed himself of the privilege of conducting activities within the forum state."[788] Minimum contacts may "give rise to either specific jurisdiction or general jurisdiction."[789]

308. A court may exercise specific jurisdiction "if the cause of action asserted arises out of or is related to those contacts" even where contacts are "singular or sporadic."[790] "In other words, such jurisdiction exists when a nonresident defendant has purposefully directed its activities at the forum state and the litigation results from alleged injuries that arise out of or relate to those activities."[791]

309. "Once a plaintiff establishes minimum contacts between the defendant and the forum state, the burden of proof shifts to the defendant to show that the assertion of jurisdiction is unfair and unreasonable."[792] In determining whether exercising jurisdiction is fair and reasonable, "the court must balance: (1) the burden on the nonresident defendant of having to defend itself in the forum, (2) the interests of the forum state in the case, (3) the plaintiff's interest in obtaining convenient and effective relief, (4) the interstate judicial system's interest in the most efficient resolution of controversies, and (5) the shared interests of the states in furthering fundamental social policies."[793]

B. The Trustee Defendants Have Sufficient Minimum Contacts With Texas

310. All the Trustee Defendants have committed acts sufficient to satisfy minimum contacts with Texas. Indeed, the very nature and character of each of the trusts in the Trustee Defendants' care provide sufficient justification for the Court to exercise personal jurisdiction, whether considered together with its respective trustees' conduct or not.

311. HERA agrees that a trust may only be sued through its trustee.[794] However, a non-resident trustee can establish minimum contacts sufficient for specific jurisdiction with a forum state through his actions directed at the forum state taken as trustee or due to the nature and character of the trust itself which is sufficiently associated with the forum state.[795] A variety of circumstances surrounding the trust and trustee support a court's exercise of specific personal jurisdiction when the facts demonstrate their activities are directed at the forum state. Indeed, purposeful availment is satisfied through a "totality-of-the-circumstances test" where "no single factor . . . is determinative."[796]

312. The key is whether the circumstances surrounding the trust indicate that the trustee-defendant, through his availment, "should reasonably anticipate being hailed into court in the forum state."[797] Courts found the following non-exhaustive circumstances gave rise to jurisdiction over a trustee:

- Settlor resided in the forum state at the time the trust was executed.[798]
- Beneficiaries resided in the forum state at the time the trust was executed or when the trustee accepted the role as trustee.[799]
- Trust holds property, businesses, or any other assets located in the forum state.[800]
- Trustee resided in forum state as of the time they accepted their position as trustee.[801]
- Trustee executed trust-related activities in the forum state.[802]
- Trustee entered into and/or performed contracts on behalf of the trust in the forum state.[803]
- Trustee communicated with the plaintiff, beneficiaries, or others who live in the forum state.[804]

313. In addition to these factors (the "Trustee Jurisdictional Factors"), courts also find that the receipt of illicit funds is a positive factor for finding personal jurisdiction when there are other factors present supporting personal jurisdiction so long as the defendant is not a mere "passive transferee."[811]

314. The Trustee Defendants satisfy more than enough of the above Trustee Jurisdictional Factors, including the Mullins positive-factor, receipt of funds in Texas, for the Court to exercise jurisdiction on that basis alone. Equally, the Court could exercise jurisdiction based on actions taken in their capacities as trustees directed at Texas and central to this litigation.

1. The Nature and Character of the Trusts Sufficiently Tie the Trustees to Texas

315. Each Trustee Defendant is subject to specific personal jurisdiction in their capacity as trustee based on the nature and character of the trusts. As detailed below, all were created by Texas residents, for Texas residents, and hold significant assets in Texas. Thus, the Trustee Defendants availed themselves of jurisdiction in Texas and all should have reasonably anticipated being hailed into court in Texas by accepting the role of trustee for a trust so closely tied to Texas.

i. The Trusts' Business is Conducted From Dallas

316. All the trusts list their principal place of business and address for service of process in Dallas, Texas.[812] Not only do they all operate out of Dallas, but four of the trusts—Dugaboy, Get Good, and the two Okada Trusts—utilize the same address at 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201.[813]

ii. The Trusts' Settlors and Beneficiaries Reside in Texas

317. Four of the trusts were created by Texas residents for beneficiaries who are Texas residents.[814] Dana Breault, a Texas resident and girlfriend of Dondero, is the settlor of Dugaboy.[815] Breault created Dugaboy at the direction of James Dondero in 2010, naming Nancy Dondero as trustee and Dondero as the primary beneficiary.[816] Dondero is the settlor of Get [813] See Id.

[814] While HERA does not possess information concerning the settlor and beneficiary of Hunter Mountain, HERA strongly suspects Texas residents fill these roles given Hunter Mountain was created to hold 99.5% of Highland Capital's shares for the benefit of Dondero, Okada, and their families. See Exh. 82 - Litigation Trustee's Amended Complaint, ¶ 27 (App. 1037); Exh. 86 - Order Requiring Disclosures (App. 1245-1257). Good, and its beneficiaries are his living descendants.[817] At the time Get Good was created, Dondero was a Texas resident; Dondero and his family still reside in Texas.[818] Defendant Mark Okada, a Texas resident, is the settlor of the Okada Trusts.[819] The beneficiaries of Okada #1 are Okada's children, who were/are Texas residents from 2012 to the present, and the beneficiaries of Okada #2 are Okada's siblings.[820]

iii. The Trusts Hold Assets in Texas

318. All the trusts also hold significant assets located in Texas, for example:

Dugaboy	• Wholly owned Texas limited liability companies that owned real property located in Texas: 4312 Belclaire, LLC, owning real property at the same address in Dallas, TX[821] and 3409 Rosedale, LLC, owning real property at the same address in Dallas, TX.[822] • Partnership interest in Highland Capital, a Texas partnership, including a 0.1866% economic interest and 74.4426% voting interest in Highland's Class A partnership interest.[823] • A 99.9% interest in NexPoint Advisors, L.P., a Dallas-based company that also happens to have its principal place of business at 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700.[824] • Ownership in Acis Capital Management GP and Acis Capital Management LP, Dallas-based entities.[825] • Investments managed by Highland Capital, including the Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, L.P. and Highland Multi-Strategy Credit Fund, Ltd.[826]

Get Good	• Limited partnership interest in Highland Capital.[827] • Wholly owned Texas limited liability companies that owned real property located in Texas: 3820 Goar Park LLC, owning real property at the same address in Texas.[828]
Hunter Mountain	• 99.5% of the economic interest in Highland Capital.[829]
Okada #1 and Okada #2	• Collectively, both trusts held a 9% interest in NexBank Capital, Inc., a Dallas-based company.[830] • Held interest in Highland in similar manner to Dugaboy and Get Good.

iv. The Trusts Were Created Under Texas Law

319. Conspicuously, the two Okada Trusts were even created under the laws of Texas – facts that the Trustee Defendants do not deny.[831]

320. In sum, the trusts themselves have a close connection with Texas as they are clothed with multiple of the Trustee Jurisdictional Factors outlined above. Four of them (Dugaboy, Get Good, and the two Okada Trusts) satisfy a minimum of five of the Trustee Jurisdictional Factors. There is no question the Trustee Defendants should have reasonably anticipated being hailed into court in Texas after accepting the role of trustee for trusts so closely tied to Texas.

2. The Trustee Defendants' Conduct Directed at Texas Justifies the Court's Exercise of Personal Jurisdiction

321. Each Trustee Defendant engaged in activities directed at Texas and central to this litigation. Moreover, each of their conduct within Texas surpasses that of a mere passive transferee as they were active participants in the overall scheme to defraud HERA. Two broad categories of activities sufficiently establish minimum contacts for each of the Trustee Defendants with Texas.

322. First, the Trustee Defendants each participated in, and executed a series of transfers and notes designed to fraudulently transfer assets, including those previously transferred from HERA to Highland, away from Highland and into the pockets of Dondero, Okada, their families, and the other defendants. The first of these is a Partnership Interest Purchase Agreement.[832] In this transaction, Dugaboy and the two Okada Trusts, through their trustees, sold their interests in Highland Capital to Hunter Mountain, granting Hunter Mountain a 99.5% stake in Highland Capital.[833] In exchange, Honis, on Hunter Mountain's behalf, executed a note worth $63M.[834] The agreement's forum selection clause names Texas as the venue for all disputes.[835] Critically, Nancy Dondero (Dugaboy), Lawrence Tonomura (Okada #1 and #2), and John Honis (Hunter Mountain) executed this agreement on behalf of their trusts.[836] As a result of this arrangement, Dondero, Okada, and their trusts received numerous distributions from Highland Capital through Hunter Mountain.[837] This transaction, among others, involved assets that rightfully belong to HERA.[838] It demonstrates how the Trustee Defendants collaborated with Dondero and Okada to fraudulently strip HERA of its assets. Whether Trustee Defendants were present in Texas or not for this agreement is of little consequence because the Trustee Defendants cannot argue that they were merely passive transferees when their signatures are plainly visible on the agreement.

323. The Trustee Defendants and Dondero also created various notes to conceal assets Dondero wrongfully stripped from HERA and Highland Capital. Scott (Get Good) and Nancy

(Dugaboy) exchanged a note with Highland Capital which severely undervalued assets used as collateral.[839] The exchange involved Series A interest in the Highland Capital Loan fund, interest in various Highland Crusader funds, and millions of dollars of American Airlines call options.[840] Nancy further executed a note to Trussway Holdings, a subsidiary of Highland Capital and a Houston-based company.[841] The Trussway note was executed under the laws of Texas and has a forum selection clause naming Texas as the venue.[842] At Dondero's request, Nancy executed similar loan forgiveness schemes in Texas on multiple other occasions.[843]

324. Second, the Trustee Defendants voluntarily submitted to jurisdiction in Texas through the Highland Bankruptcy.[844] All the Trustee Defendants participated in the Highland Bankruptcy (which remains pending in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas) through filing proofs of claims and various adversary proceedings. All the trusts, necessarily through their respective trustee, filed proofs of claims in the bankruptcy.[845] Further, the bankruptcy trustee named all the Trustee Defendants as defendants in an adversary proceeding, which alleged the Trustee Defendants also participated in a scheme to fraudulently siphon assets away from Highland.[846] Though purposefully obscured through thoughtful and complex deception, the assets subject to those proofs of claims and the fraudulent transfers, in part, involve many of those that rightfully belong to HERA.

325. Third, the Trustee Defendants frequently focus their attention, efforts, and business/legal dealings at Texas. Honis, once a board member of HERA and a former partner at Highland Capital[847] filed a lawsuit on Hunter Mountain's behalf in Texas state court related to the Acis Bankruptcy.[848] Nancy, for her part, sent official trust communications to counsel in Texas related to the Highland Bankruptcy.[849] And, on Dondero's behalf, Scott routinely performs actions directed at Texas in his role as trustee of Get Good and as trustee for other trusts or roles at various Highland entities.[850] For example, Dondero devised a scheme to claim charitable donations on his tax returns and place assets out of the reach of his ex-wife by relying on Scott as Trustee of Get Good to execute a series of transactions where assets were transferred from Highland through Get Good and into other Highland affiliated entities.[851]

326. Stated plainly, Dondero and Okada should not be permitted to hide assets that rightfully belong to HERA by naming foreign trustees when those trustees are more than mere passive transferees. Indeed, not only were the Trustee Defendants active participants in the scheme to defraud HERA, but the trusts they administered were critical vehicles used to perpetuate that fraud. The Trustee Defendants' involvement in this lawsuit should not surprise anyone, and the Trustee Defendants knew one day they would be hailed into court in Texas for their lengthy history of enabling and sharing Dondero and Okada's bad acts. That they filed this

Additionally, as further evidence of Scott's frequent involvement with Dondero, he is also the trustee of The SLHC Trust—a Dondero-affiliated trust also maintaining an address at 300 Crescent in Dallas and which has ownership and primary voting rights in NexBank Capital, Inc., a Dallas-based company. See id.; see also Exh. 82 - Litigation Trustee's Amended Complaint ¶¶ 18, 21-26, (describing Scott's various roles) (App. 1034-1037). Motion when they are so intricately woven into this fraudulent scheme is simply evidence of their catch-me-if-you-can ploy.

C. The Exercise of Personal Jurisdiction Over the Trustee Defendants is Fair and Reasonable

327. The burden on the Trustee Defendants of litigating in Texas is low. As detailed above, Trustee Defendants regularly conduct business in Texas, both in their capacities as trustees and in their other relationships with Dondero and Okada. Each of the trusts lists Dallas as its official address and have voluntarily been involved in litigation in Texas, including the Highland Bankruptcy.[852] Further, as discussed above, the trusts have settlors, beneficiaries, and assets in Texas that the Trustee Defendants knew or ought to have known would require their participation in trust activities in Texas—including litigation within Texas—that they accepted by agreeing to be trustees.

328. Likewise, Texas has a strong interest in litigating this case. HERA is a Texas-based entity. The harm perpetrated by all the defendants was felt in Texas, and Texas has a strong interest in protecting the rights of one of its citizens and making clear that it will not tolerate unscrupulous actors that seek to exploit its business-friendly atmosphere. Further, much of this dispute centers around activities that took place in Dallas related to Highland Capital, which had its principal place of business in Dallas. Accordingly, much of the evidence and witnesses, including the other defendants, are located in Texas. It follows, therefore, that for the same reasons, HERA also has a strong interest in litigating this case in Texas.

D. Alternatively, Plaintiff Moves for Limited Jurisdictional Discovery

329. While HERA maintains the above sufficiently demonstrates that all of the Trustee Defendants are subject to the Court's personal jurisdiction, should the Court find HERA's arguments unavailing as to any or all of the Trustee Defendants, HERA respectfully requests the Court authorize it to conduct limited jurisdictional discovery against each of the Trustee Defendants regarding the existence, strength, and number of their minimum contacts with Texas before ruling on the Trustee Defendants' Motion.

330. District courts have broad discretion to grant jurisdictional discovery.[853] Jurisdictional discovery is warranted where the movant's motion to dismiss raises an issue of fact as to the court's exercise of personal jurisdiction over the movant.[854] Indeed, the Fifth Circuit has cited with approval the Third Circuit's standard that "if a plaintiff presents factual allegations that suggest with reasonable particularity the possible existence of the requisite contacts… the plaintiff's right to conduct jurisdictional discovery should be sustained."[855] Accordingly, the court may grant jurisdictional discovery upon a plaintiff's prima facie showing of personal jurisdiction over a defendant.[856] The plaintiff seeking discovery must "identify the discovery needed, the facts expected to be obtained thereby, and how such information would support personal jurisdiction."[857]

331. As discussed above, the Trustee Defendants established minimum contacts with Texas through either their acts as trustees directed at Texas or the nature and character of the trusts themselves, which are closely associated with Texas. The FAC's allegations, taken as true, and the evidence attached to this Response show at least a "possible existence" of personal jurisdiction. Accordingly, at a minimum, HERA has established a prima facie basis for exercising personal jurisdiction over each of the Trustee Defendants. Still, to the extent that HERA's currently available evidence leaves doubt as to the sufficiency of minimum contacts, limited jurisdictional discovery directed to each individual Trustee Defendant in their respective capacities as trustee over the named trusts in this litigation would provide the remaining information necessary to prove this Court's personal jurisdiction over the Trustee Defendants.

332. HERA requests the depositions of Dondero, Okada, and each of the Trustee Defendants. Deposition topics would include the background of the trusts, transfers made to and from the trusts executed within, effectuated within, or otherwise involving Texan agents or Texan assets, the amount of control Dondero, Okada, or any other Defendant exercises over any or all of the Trustee Defendants, any communications regarding official trust activities in Texas, and any other assets and/or actions taken on behalf of the trust by each Trustee or their agents in Texas. Such topics would confirm the Trustee Defendants and their respective trusts have sufficient contacts with Texas and have purposefully availed themselves of Texas's laws and benefits through, inter alia, the activities described in the FAC at ¶¶ 52, 59, 66, 71, 78, 79, 96, 98, 105, 112, 115, 142, 147, 149, 157, 160, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 175, 177, 179. Hence, confirming that this Court's exercise of personal jurisdiction would be proper. Moreover, given the scope and complexity of Defendants' illicit enterprise, and because concealment has been the Defendants' game since day one, HERA requests these depositions separate and apart from the time allotted under Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 30(d).

333. Additionally, for each Trustee Defendant and respective trust, HERA requests the production of the trust agreements, trust accountings back to 2010, including the names of individuals involved in record keeping and tax filings, trust voting histories for Highland Capital and any affiliates, Trustee Defendants' travel history to Texas, and documentation regarding any transfers of assets between the trusts and Highland Capital or its affiliates. Such documents would further assist HERA in proving the fraudulent transfers' relationship to Texas and the trustees' involvement in those transfers. These documents would further establish facts that tie the trusts and Trustee Defendants to Texas—thus confirming this Court may properly exercise personal jurisdiction over each of them.

ALTERNATIVE REQUEST FOR LEAVE TO AMEND

334. In the unlikely event that the Court concludes that the FAC fails to sufficiently allege claims against the Defendants, Plaintiff respectfully requests leave to amend the FAC.

CONCLUSION[858]

335. Based on the above Plaintiffs respectfully ask this Court to deny Defendants Motions to Dismiss.

DEFENDANT'S ORIGINAL ANSWER, COUNTERCLAIM AND THIRD-PARTY PETITION

COMES NOW, Patrick Daugherty ("Daugherty") and files this his Original Answer, Counterclaim and Third-Party Petition and would respectfully show the Court as follows:

I.

GENERAL DENIAL

1. Daugherty generally denies each and every allegation contained in Highland Capital Management, L.P.'s ("HCM" or "Defendant") Original Petition and demands strict proof thereof.

II.

COUNTERCLAIM AND THIRD-PARTY PETITION

PARTIES

2. Patrick Daugherty is an individual who resides in Dallas County, Texas.

3. Counterclaim Defendant Highland Capital Management, L.P. has already entered an appearance in this cause. Therefore, no further service of process is required at this time.

4. Third-Party Defendant Sierra Verde, LLC ("Sierra Verde") is a Delaware limited liability company that maintains its principal office in Dallas, Texas and may be served with process through its registered agent, The Corporation Trust Company, Corporation Trust Center, 1209 Orange Street, Wilmington, Delaware 19801.

5. Third-Party Defendant Highland Employee Retention Assets LLC ("HERA") is a Delaware limited liability company that maintains its principal office in Dallas, Texas and may be served with process through its registered agent, The Corporation Trust Company, Corporation Trust Center, 1209 Orange Street, Wilmington, Delaware 19801.

6. Third-Party Defendant James Dondero ("Dondero") is a Texas resident and may be served with process at 3807 Miramar, Dallas, Texas 75205, or 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201, or wherever he may be found.

7. Third-Party Defendant Patrick Boyce ("Boyce") is a Texas resident and may be served with process at 6617 Muirfield Circle, Plano, Texas 75093, or 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201, or wherever he may be found.

8. Third-Party Defendant William L. Britain ("Britain") is a Texas resident and may be served with process at 5603 Caruth Blvd., Dallas, Texas 75209, or 300 Crescent Court, Suite 700, Dallas, Texas 75201, or wherever he may be found.

VENUE AND JURISDICTION

9. This Court has jurisdiction over this matter under the laws and Constitution of the State of Texas. The amount in controversy, exclusive of interest and costs, is within the jurisdictional limits of this Court.

10. Venue is proper in Dallas County, Texas pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 15.002(a)(1) and (a)(2), because all or a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claims in this action occurred in Dallas County, Texas, and all of the Defendants either reside or had their principal place of business in Dallas County, Texas at the time the causes of action accrued.

IV.

DISCOVERY PLAN

11. Discovery is to be conducted pursuant to a Level III Discovery Control Plan Scheduling Order in accordance with Texas Rules of Civil Procedure 190.4.

V.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

12. In April 1998, Daugherty was hired by HCM as a Portfolio Analyst. He reported to Dondero and his duties initially consisted of underwriting and performing credit analysis for a portfolio of corporate loans held by investment vehicles known as collateralized loan obligations

("CLOs"). Daugherty prepared annual self-reviews through 2008, where his yearly performance was evaluated and benchmarked against other employees within the firm. These evaluations reflected his strong performance, and he was promoted several times to more senior positions as his responsibilities and compensation grew. After 2008, Daugherty was no longer required to prepare self-reviews.

13. Through his tenure at HCM, Daugherty was promoted from Portfolio Analyst to Senior Analyst to Portfolio Manager to Senior Portfolio Manager to Team Leader to Head of Distressed to Head of Distressed and Special Situations to Head of Distressed, Special Situations and Private Equity. Daugherty founded HCM's profitable stressed, distressed and private equity lines of business. He also served twice as General Counsel of HCM during his successful career there.

14. During Daugherty's employment, he entered into various agreements with HCM, including an Amended Employment Agreement, effective December 31, 2004, which purports to contain a non-competition provision and various other restrictive covenants (the "Employment Agreement").

15. During Daugherty's annual compensation review, he received a Compensation and Benefits Statement that detailed various forms of earnings and awards granted to Daugherty as a result of his performance at HCM over the previous year. These awards included cash and incentive-based compensation in the form of equity or equity-like options that served to track the performance of reference investments which Dondero and HCM deemed important. The equity and equity-like options were issued under various tax based structures and were generally referred to as the STIP program, the Option-it program and the Vessel program (also known as the LTIP/Vessel program). The LTIP/Vessel programs included HERA and Sierra Verde.

17. The Option-it program consisted of reference positions in the Highland Crusader Fund, L.P., Highland Real Estate Fund 2002-A, L.P., Highland CDO and Structured Product Fund, Highland Equity Focus Fund, L.P. and the Highland Credit Strategies Fund-HCF.

18. The LTIP/Vessel programs included at least two valuable, vested awards for Daugherty: 1) the HERA program (the Amended and Restated Limited Liability Company Agreement between HERA and HCM), which included most HCM employees; and 2) the Sierra Verde program, which included Daugherty's private equity team.

19. The HERA program consisted of limited partnership grants in the Restoration Capital Partners, L.P. ("Restoration"), HE Sugarland Project, LLC., and the Highland CLO Value Fund, L.P.

20. The Sierra Verde vessel, an entity formed in December 2010 to hold and distribute assets, was a program conceived to retain, reward and incentivize Daugherty and his private equity team, which received equity and options in Cornerstone Healthcare Group Holdings, Inc. ("Cornerstone") and Trussway Holdings, Inc.

21. For high ranking employees ("Partners"), HCM also awarded LTIP interests that tracked the performance of the Highland Partnership. This program was separate from the LTIP/Vessel program. The LTIP program (the 2005 HCMLP Long-Term Incentive Plan) is an incentive plan created for non-voting partners in HCM, a partnership controlled by Strand Advisors which is controlled by affiliates of Dondero. Daugherty also had an interest in the Defined Benefit Pension Plan.

22. Contrary to HCM's assertions, which characterize Daugherty as some "unmanageable, erratic and insubordinate" or brain-damaged[1] employee, Daugherty was dedicated, hard-working, healthy and consistently ranked and paid as the top performer through the 2011 bonus year. In fact, Daugherty was held out by Dondero as the model manager which others should aspire to emulate. Dondero regularly praised Daugherty's "warrior" mentality and effective restructuring skills. However, beginning in 2006, Daugherty, in his role of Portfolio Manager, began to disagree with the firm's shift in strategy and risk. He was concerned that the Highland Crusader Fund, L.P. ("Crusader"), started in 2000 by Daugherty and Dondero, had drifted too far from its original mandate and had become an unfocused and levered mix of non-

[1] HCM falsely alleges that Daugherty "recently" admitted to having "two strokes," that left him with "dead spots in his brain." Such statement is a complete fabrication. In January of 2000, Daugherty suffered a Transient Ischemic Attack while working at HCM. The symptoms abated within less than 60 seconds without Daugherty ever losing consciousness. EMS was called to the scene and Daugherty was taken to the hospital for evaluation. Daugherty received a battery of tests that came back inconclusive. After not feeling well a few days later, Daugherty returned to the hospital and underwent a series of tests including numerous blood tests, electrocardiograms, MRIs, CatScans, Carotid Ultrasounds, and a Transesophageal Echocardiogram. It was determined that Daugherty had a Atrial Septal heart defect consisting of a "hole" in his heart about the size of a quarter. The remedy was routine open-heart surgery to patch/repair the hole between the two upper chambers of Daugherty's heart. Daugherty had successful surgery to make the repair in early April of 2000.

HCM was fully aware that Daugherty reported back to work within 10 days of having the surgery and actively participated in leading the Genesis/Multicare bankruptcy and restructuring negotiations. At no time did Daugherty suffer damage to his brain as a result of the 2000 TIA. Daugherty has had no recurrence of TIA. Daugherty has had no adverse neurological or cardiovascular occurrences or tests since 2000. HCM was fully aware that Daugherty received a full release from his cardiologist and neurologist within months of the surgery in 2000. HCM was fully aware of Daugherty's medical releases as he qualified for HCM's Life Insurance and Healthcare coverage programs within a year of the surgery.

core strategies. He was particularly troubled by the fact that Dondero had begun to more actively and unilaterally change the focus and risk profile of Crusader, allocating the vast majority of the fund's assets to Dondero's other "seed" initiatives that were beyond the expertise of HCM and its employees' skill sets. Daugherty voiced these concerns to Dondero on numerous occasions beginning in 2006.

23. From 2006 thru 2008, Daugherty objected to speculative bets being placed on heavily concentrated and leveraged public equities, residential mortgage backed securities ("RMBS"), commercial mortgage backed securities ("CMBS"), treasuries, foreign exchange, life settlement investments, undeveloped residential real estate, timber, and oil and gas investments—all utilizing the assets of Crusader. Daugherty was quite vocal in expressing his growing disapproval of the increased leverage being used in Crusader.

24. In late October 2007, Daugherty pleaded with Dondero to reduce the leverage in Crusader's equity portfolio on the basis that it left no room for error. Despite having positive year-to-date returns, Dondero was not satisfied with the performance, and said that if Crusader could not achieve certain unrealistic return goals by the end of the year, then he would take the firm's capital out of Crusader and invest it elsewhere where he could achieve those returns. Daugherty thought this was wrong and continued to lobby to reduce the leverage in Crusader. Even so, Dondero rejected Daugherty's advice and assigned Dave Semic to reallocate vast portions of Crusader's capital, and increase its overall leverage by shorting treasuries and buying RMBS and CMBS securities on virtually limitless margins.

25. During 2007, HCM also decided to pursue a new distressed for control private equity fund named Restoration. This fund was created based on Daugherty's successful distressed for control track record within Crusader. However, HCM's senior management decided that Daugherty would not be part of the Restoration management team. When Daugherty objected, Mark Okada ("Okada"), HCM's co-founder, explained to him (with Dondero and Jack Yang ("Yang") on the phone) that while they appreciated his contributions to the track record, they had decided to reduce their exposure to Daugherty and feature another manager within HCM, John Honis ("Honis"), despite the fact that Honis had much less involvement with the referenced track record. Daugherty was disappointed with their decision, but agreed to assist in the development of the target strategy and preparation of the marketing materials.

26. Soon after the launch of Restoration, it was apparent that the marketing process was failing miserably. Initially Yang and Okada blamed Honis for having poor marketing skills as cause for the failure. Honis was even directed to enroll in a public speaking course. Yang then briefly took control of the marketing effort for Restoration, but he, too, failed due to his lack of knowledge of the details behind the track record.

27. Ultimately, it was determined that Daugherty needed to be included in the Restoration marketing effort, because he was best suited to handle the in-depth questions that arose from detailed investor due diligence. Daugherty hesitantly accepted the new role as a key man in the revised Restoration platform and spent the second half of 2007 leading Restoration's capital-raising efforts.

28. By the end of 2007, Honis had been functionally removed from Restoration and was replaced with Brett Pope ("Pope"), who was named co-manager with Daugherty. Dondero announced that Daugherty would be in charge of sourcing and restructuring of distressed investments, while Pope would be placed in charge of post-restructured operations and traditional private equity. Neither Pope nor Daugherty favored this arrangement, since the responsibilities were ambiguous and the available capital for each initiative came from the same source.

29. In January 2008, Daugherty informed Dondero of his intent to leave the firm on his anniversary date in April 2008. He offered a 6-month transition period. Also in January, HCM experienced the worst performance of its existence with many funds deteriorating significantly. By March 2008, Pope resigned from HCM. The problems at HCM and the funds it managed had continued to escalate and Dondero asked Daugherty to stay and help him manage through the crisis. Daugherty agreed to stay and assist HCM, even though he would experience significant deterioration in his personal wealth by not having sold out of the various incentive compensation awards he could have liquidated had he resigned as planned. Daugherty worked with Britt Brown and Brian Lording from the accounting team at HCM and began to raise cash for various HCM funds by selling investments, as the firm and its funds entered a severe liquidity crisis. He was also appointed to sole head of the Private Equity Team and Senior Manager of the Restoration Fund.

30. By July 2008, Daugherty was troubled to hear that available cash was flowing out of HCM to support struggling initiatives and affiliates of HCM that were experiencing liquidity crises of their own. He was equally concerned to hear that Dondero refused to de-lever (reducing debt by selling more assets) in anticipation of further deterioration because Dondero had declared to Daugherty, Okada and Kurt Plumer that he was going to "robo trade our way out of this."

31. Daugherty's concerns were validated when later in July/August, Dondero refused to satisfy a prime brokerage capital call with its bank counter party, triggering a breach in the financing line for several of its funds. This led to a daily liquidity crisis, since margin arrangements could be modified by the bank at its sole discretion. Instead of meeting the mandated margin call, Dondero chose not to liquidate the necessary assets and only authorized a partial payment. However, the margin call required 100% satisfaction, and this partial payment resulted in a breach of the loan (total return swap arrangement). On the Friday that the breach occurred, Dondero was happily passing out $100 bills and dinner vouchers to accountants and analysts in attendance, thinking he had done "enough" to comply with the requirement. HCM found out the following Monday that the breach had caused an immediate acceleration in the credit line and that Crusader was now at the mercy of its creditors.

32. In August 2008, Daugherty continued to raise cash in Crusader and other funds for margin calls, as well as for investor redemptions that were due to be paid in early October. Daugherty attempted to reject several purchases into Crusader (e.g., life settlement and real estate investments), but Dondero overruled him, instructing him that he was to make purchases if Crusader had cash to make the trade on that day, regardless of what the future impact on cash would be post looming redemptions. In fact, Dondero instructed Daugherty to respond only with "ok" in response to Dondero's trades if Crusader had cash.

33. Dondero's actions had led to a substantial write down/write-off in the value of Daugherty's and the other employees' previously awarded incentive compensation. By September 10, 2008, Daugherty was out of patience with Dondero's reckless and self-serving actions. He formally submitted his resignation in writing, although he gave 30 days' notice in order to effect an orderly transition. By the last week in September, Daugherty had raised enough cash to meet margin calls as well as make a partial cash payment to prior redeemers in Crusader. By this time, it was apparent that Crusader and the Highland Credit Strategy Fund ("Strat") would have to liquidate by October with a "payment in-kind" distribution of securities and assets to investors, because there simply wasn't enough cash to pay redeemers in full.

34. During the last week in September, Michael Colvin ("Colvin") and Okada came to Daugherty's office to seek his help in preventing Dondero from orchestrating a series of trades that would sell the most liquid investments in Crusader and Strat to the CLOs and then have Crusader take that cash and funnel it into Highland Financial Partners ("HFP"). HFP was another HCM fund which was experiencing a major liquidity crisis, even though Dondero had previously transferred over $100 million in cash to keep it afloat, in return for illiquid notes to be held by Crusader and Strat. Colvin and Okada explained their concerns and objections with the appropriateness of the transactions and Daugherty agreed.

35. Daugherty phoned Dondero, told him of his conversation with Colvin and Okada, and informed him that the trades in question should not be completed. At first, Dondero calmly explained that his intention was to make Crusader, Strat and HFP as illiquid as possible to punish Barclays for raising the margin requirements on HCM's pledge of limited partnership interests to another loan. Dondero then instructed Daugherty to authorize the trades. Daugherty resisted and told Dondero that he would not allow the trades. Dondero grew angry and ordered Daugherty to make the trades, claiming that it was his decision, and telling Daugherty to stay out of the trade approval process. Daugherty then angrily shouted to Dondero that he was not going to approve the trades nor was he going to let Dondero make the trades. Dondero was furious. He told

Daugherty that he was not to "waste any more of his time" and was to immediately "go home until further notice." Daugherty was further instructed by Dondero to inform Boyce, the Chief Administrative Officer, Chief Operating Officer and Chief Financial Officer of HCM at the time, of his absence and was not to discuss the matter with anyone at HCM until further notice.

36. Daugherty followed Dondero's instruction and stayed at home for the remainder of the last week of September 2008. While Daugherty was at home on the mandated leave, the trades were completed. Britain took control of Daugherty's team during this time and directed Daugherty's team at the time the trades were executed. Boyce, as CFO and head of the Pricing Committee, also presided over the execution and settlement of the trades. Daugherty received an email from a Haynes and Boone attorney attempting to formalize closing of the trades and asking Daugherty whether "Crusader approves of these trades." Since Daugherty was on orders from Dondero to keep his views to himself, he simply responded: "I don't think Crusader has a say." The Haynes and Boone representative pressed more directly and asked Daugherty, as Portfolio Manager of Crusader, if he "approves of the trades on behalf of the Crusader investors." To which Daugherty replied: "Jim Dondero is approving these trades on behalf of the Crusader investors."

37. In September 2008, Lehman Brothers failed, causing it to file for bankruptcy. HCM was directly and indirectly impacted by the Lehman collapse because Dondero had invested HCM's and many of its fund's last remaining cash on a desperate bet for Lehman's survival. Additionally, with the fall of Lehman, HCM and the funds it managed lost almost all of their hedges because Lehman was its counter-party and had failed in its obligations when it filed for bankruptcy. As the crisis worsened, asset prices reached new lows, and financial firms were liquidating performing loans at pennies on the dollar. HCM was forced to "put up the gates" to stem withdrawals at Crusader and Strat. Shockingly, Dondero determined that he would not make "payment in kind" distributions to the Crusader and Strat investors. In fact, he declared that he had traded the positions of the funds in such a manner as to render them completely illiquid in order to punish those investors who had redeemed or might attempt to redeem in the future. He used this approach to take advantage of investors who needed immediate liquidity by offering to buy their partnership interests at huge discounts to value. He and Okada purchased these interests into Highland Capital Services, L.P. ("Highland Services"), an entity wholly owned and operated by Dondero, Okada and their affiliates. He further schemed to manufacture a dispute between the "prior redeemers" and the "compulsory redeemers" of the two funds so that he could delay unwinding the fund until the "dispute" was eventually resolved.

38. Many of the Crusader and Strat investors brought suits or threatened to bring suits against HCM for its self-serving actions. The investors were disgusted with HCM's blatant disregard for its fiduciary duties towards them, but were being held hostage with their own money, since Dondero refused to liquidate the portfolio until he received full releases from the investors. These suits were ultimately resolved through settlement negotiations that were finalized in July 2011. Dondero declared the outcome a success and ordered news releases posted to the HCM website so that the investment community and the SEC would see the news.

39. By "putting up the gates," HCM effectively committed to a liquidation of Crusader and Strat, and lost its ability to charge most of its management and incentive fees to those funds. This would play a critical role later in 2012, as HCM attempted to purchase the assets being liquidated from these funds at deep discounts into other HCM-managed funds or into portfolio companies owned by other HCM-managed funds that were paying full fees.

40. Late in 2008, HCM was widely viewed as a firm certain to default. Dondero assigned Yang with the task of negotiating a restructure of HCM's credit facility. The banks were furious to discover that Dondero and Okada had been siphoning tens of millions of dollars out of HCM into their closely-held affiliated account at Highland Services under the guise of repaying their loan to HCM.

41. The banks demanded that the cash be returned immediately or they would put HCM into an involuntary bankruptcy. During a telephonic bank meeting, Dondero refused to return the cash and defiantly proclaimed: "Highland will fail before I fail." To make matters worse, Yang was repeatedly caught lying to the bank group about the status of HCM and its funds (namely Crusader, Strat and HFP) and their redemption activity. The situation deteriorated so badly that the banks would no longer speak with Yang. In January 2009, Boyce asked Daugherty to intervene.

42. Boyce and Daugherty agreed that the payments to Highland Services needed to stop immediately. Daugherty then assumed an active role in negotiations with the bank group. During the process of negotiating with the banks, Dondero and Okada refused to provide collateral pledges to the banks until they were allowed to withdraw tens of millions of additional non-cash assets from HCM. Dondero brought the negotiations to the brink of a midnight bankruptcy filing in June 2009 until he got what he wanted. Dondero ultimately took the incremental amount he demanded from the employee compensation reserve, which had been set aside by the banks in order to retain employees during the crisis. Neither Dondero nor Okada returned the tens of millions of cash they siphoned from HCM during this horrible crisis in late 2008, despite ordering lay-offs of more than 50% of HCM's employees.

43. By the Compensation Review period for February 27, 2009, moral was at an all-time low at HCM. Employees were resigning and being fired en mass. HCM had very little cash and available assets for incentive compensation grants. In fact, Dondero, Okada and Boyce announced that managers were to consider the tax-loss refund checks for prior year's compensation awards that had been written off in 2008 as their "bonus" for 2009. Dondero and Boyce determined arbitrary values for the "2008 Tax Refund" and distributed them to employees in their Compensation and Benefits Statement for 2009. These "awards" were notorious for being inconsistent with what the employees actually received from the Internal Revenue Service.

44. During late 2009, members of Daugherty's private equity team (Lawler, Carl Moore ("Moore"), Callan, and Smith) expressed to Daugherty their concerns regarding the stability of HCM. They were especially concerned about the tens of millions of dollars that Dondero and Okada had siphoned from HCM and what that said about their commitment to HCM. Accordingly, the members of the team presented a proposal that would incentivize them to stay with HCM, while aligning their interests with those of the investors. The plan included options and equity that tracked the performance of certain HCM-managed portfolio companies targeted for the plan. Options were chosen in addition to equity grants, since it was generally HCM's policy to grant option-like compensation programs to reward performance when the stock price of the underlying Company could have sufficient value that would lead to high cash taxes in the year of the grant. Importantly, these options would not create a taxable event for the recipient until they were exercised.

45. The intent of the plan was to provide equity-based incentives to the private equity team that would be realized upon the successful sale of certain portfolio companies managed by the team. Daugherty, together with Moore and Lawler, presented the plan to Dondero for approval. Daugherty explained to Dondero that the plan would act as an incentive to retain the employees on the private equity platform, since much of the value of their existing HCM retention-based incentive compensation had been destroyed as a result of right-offs and the liquidations caused by HCM's numerous margin defaults in late 2008.

46. After a series of discussions between Dondero, Moore, Thomas Surgent ("Surgent") (HCM's in-house attorney and Chief Compliance Officer) and Daugherty, including one where Dondero inserted himself into the program as the largest recipient under the retention plan, Dondero approved moving forward on the plan. He then instructed Daugherty to work with Surgent and Moore to implement the plan. In addition, Dondero gave strict instructions that the plan was not to be mentioned to Boyce, since he believed Boyce would also demand to be included, and he did not want to include Boyce in this particular incentive plan.

47. Surgent then gave instructions to Daugherty and Moore on what processes were required in order to make the plan align with HCM's Compliance Policy. He instructed Daugherty and Moore that any rewards under the plan would be subject to the Turnover Grid (a chart listing what percentage of compensation must be repaid or turned over to certain funds and what percentage of compensation could be retained by HCM employees in compliance with the various fund indenture agreements) applied to HCM employees who received compensation as portfolio company board members.

48. Surgent also instructed Daugherty that independent counsel would need to be retained on behalf of the portfolio companies involved and that the independent board members of the companies involved would have to approve of the plans. In January 2010, Moore retained Matt Lyons ("Lyons") of Andrews Kurth LLP to review the plan and negotiate on behalf of the portfolio companies and the board of directors (the board generally consisted of the Chief Executive Officer, Highland Private Equity personnel and independent board members). Numerous discussions took place between Lyons, Daugherty, Moore, senior executive management and the independent board members. Lyons advised all of the board members, including Daugherty, that all options awarded to executive management, independent board members and HCM employees should have the same strike prices.

49. Over the next several months, Lyons negotiated the various other points and concerns with Moore and Daugherty, who interceded on behalf of Dondero. These negotiations caused numerous delays on finalizing the incentive compensation to the executive teams and the independent board members, but by July 2010, the plans were submitted to the independent board members for final approval.

50. During the board meetings and prior to seeking approval of the independent board members, Lyons detailed the purpose, merits, market standards and fairness for each one of the option incentive grants. Lyons hosted question and answer sessions (with and without HCM representatives present) where all board members had the opportunity to discuss any matters regarding the option plans. Daugherty and the other board members relied heavily on Lyon's advice during these sessions. Finally, a vote for final approval was made with all HCM affiliated board members abstaining from the vote. By the end of July 2010, each portfolio company received final approval to grant the options to the executive management teams, independent board members and the private equity team.

51. In accordance with Dondero's instruction, the HCM employee grants were amalgamated and held in a separate holding entity called Sierra Verde. This was an entity named by Moore and created by Lyons to resemble the HERA vessel which was created to hold equity-based compensation for other HCM employees. Final ownership of Sierra Verde was allocated among the private equity team on December 16, 2010, with Dondero receiving the largest share at 24%. As far as Daugherty was concerned, Sierra Verde was finalized and was just another component of his and the private equity team's deferred compensation package from HCM.

52. HCM began to stabilize in the second half of 2009, although it remained significantly leveraged and had become the target of many large lawsuits. In late 2009, Dondero informed the senior managers at HCM that he intended to position future fund initiatives outside of HCM to avoid having to contribute such interests to the bank group's collateral pool. He sketched a schematic for Daugherty where new "brands" would be created for HCM's future initiatives, with Dondero, Okada and their affiliates retaining 75% via Highland Services. The proposed brands eventually included:

> Tunstall – for stressed and distressed investing in hedge fund, private equity fund and 40act sub-advisory (retail funds) – led by Daugherty;
> ACIS – for structured product and CLOs – led by Mahmoud, later Terry;
> Falcon – for oil and gas investments in private equity funds – led by Britain;
> Canopy – for timber investments in private equity funds – led by Britain;

Highland Funds (now Pyxis) – for various comingled, sub-advisored and equity based 40act funds (retail) – led by Joe Dougherty (no relation to Patrick Daugherty);

Granite Bay – for long-short credit investing – led by Okada and Kaufman with Dondero taking a minority interest;

Brazillian Fund-unnamed at Daugherty's departure to pursue debt investing with Brazilian partners – led by Latimer, later Bramer; and Swiss Fund – unnamed at Daugherty's departure to pursue healthcare venture capital investing based on Gregory and Daugherty's track record in healthcare – led by Gregory.

53. Dondero offered to partner with Daugherty on the Tunstall fund initiative, giving Daugherty 25% of Tunstall Capital Management, LP ("Tunstall Capital"). He also offered Daugherty 5-10% of all of the other management companies (or branded initiatives). The rest of the initiatives were doled out by Dondero to the managers he believed were most critical to their success.

54. In December 2009, Daugherty spoke to Dondero about the desire of several independent board members within the private equity portfolio platform to get better returns on the accumulated cash on their balance sheets. Daugherty suggested a non-leveraged, lower risk fund primarily with senior debt, bonds and highly liquid public equities that would carry no fees. Dondero agreed with the concept but wanted to incorporate a fee structure consistent with the hedge fund standard of 2% management fee and 20% incentive fee. Daugherty was opposed to charging a fee for managing these funds, since the cash balances were owned by companies that were owned by pre-existing funds managed by HCM and so were already being charged such fees or had their fees intentionally terminated (as was the case with Crusader and Strat).

55. Further, because Dondero intended to structure the fund like a hedge fund with monthly marking, both the management fee and the incentive fee would be paid monthly without disclosure to the various fund investors. This contrasted with the Sierra Verde equity/options, which would not be paid until a realization event occurred (e.g. when the companies were actually sold), at which time all distributions would be transparent to fund investors, and any turnover or netbacks against HCM's incentive fees would be made. Dondero agreed to make the incentive fee subject to realization events (actual sales of the investments), but Daugherty was not satisfied because there was no pass-through distribution to fund investors, unlike Sierra Verde. Daugherty thought the new fund idea had died until early January 2010, when Dondero inquired about the progress and instructed Daugherty and Surgent to "get it done."

56. Daugherty enlisted the help of Moore and once again retained Lyons at Andrew Kurth to advise them on the best way to achieve Dondero's demand. On January 26, 2010, Daugherty received an email from Surgent, copying Dondero, Boyce, Clint Gilchrist ("Gilchrist") and Honis, with attachments for documents related to Tunstall Distressed Opportunities Fund, which was later renamed Tunstall Special Opportunities Fund ("Tunstall"). In the email, Surgent instructed Daugherty that Dondero directed that the documents were to be distributed to the board of directors by the end of the day. This was just one of many emails from Surgent to Daugherty pushing to get Tunstall launched. Daugherty continued to resist signing the Tunstall Capital Management, LP ("Tunstall Capital") documents because he was not comfortable with numerous elements of the documents, including the fee structure to be paid to Tunstall Capital to manage Tunstall.

57. Daugherty made his views opposing the structure of Tunstall Capital and the fees paid by Tunstall clear to Dondero during several meetings in Dondero's office. On September 1, 2010, Daugherty learned that all committee members for the portfolio companies had approved the formation of Tunstall and the fees structure.

58. On January 22, 2011, Dondero sent Daugherty another email stating that 75% of Tunstall Capital fees had already been distributed (to Dondero and Okada and their affiliates via Highland Services), and that the remainder must be distributed by February 15, 2011 to Daugherty, and he needed to sign the documents. Daugherty again refused to sign. On March 13, 2011, Daugherty was informed that Tunstall Capital was a part of his compensation for 2010. He received several other emails from Dondero, declaring that he needed to sign the Tunstall Capital documents. Daugherty again refused to sign.

59. Having his past incentive compensation awards virtually wiped out from late 2008 to early 2009, but avoiding a bankruptcy filing for HCM, Daugherty focused on managing his HCM private equity portfolio back to health, and again began to experience significant successes by the end of 2009 and into 2010. HCM stabilized, primarily as a result of hundreds of millions of dollars of gains due to Daugherty's investments and restructuring contributions. Dondero proposed that Daugherty launch a new follow-on fund to Restoration, which had been tremendously successful under his leadership. Daugherty began the marketing process for Tunstall RCP II in early 2011.

60. Daugherty received his Compensation and Benefits letter for 2010 on the last day of February 2011. He was disappointed to see that he was awarded less compensation than the year before, reduced by 50% of the board fees he was allowed to keep pursuant to HCP's Board Compensation Turnover Plan, with a payout over two years instead of one. He was also told that Dondero would not grant him the promised 5-10% ownership interests in any of the new branding initiatives agreed to earlier. Finally, he was again told to sign the Tunstall Capital documents so that he could receive his 25% share and fees earned at that entity. Daugherty expressed his disappointment to Dondero. Dondero explained that Daugherty had to trust him and that he based his decision on Highland 2.0 (a "back to future" attempt at resetting HCM's culture to the earlier days of HCM when Dondero made decisions and awarded or changed compensation purely at his discretion). Daugherty told Dondero that Highland 2.0 would not work for him because he wanted an agreement in writing that clearly defined how he and his team would be compensated. He told Dondero that he would negotiate in good faith thru the end of the summer of 2011, explaining that if they did not have a deal by that time, he would resign from HCM at the end of the summer.

61. In the spring of 2011, Dondero asked Daugherty and David Smith ("Smith") what they thought the ultimate value and recovery would be for Cornerstone equity and bank debt, respectively, and whether Daugherty would be interested in buying some cheap for the Restoration Fund. Daugherty and Smith gave Dondero their views regarding the value of the Cornerstone debt and equity consistent with their presentations that had been prepared on a quarterly and semi-annual basis for investors. Daugherty and Smith presented Dondero with a series of analyses demonstrating what the value of the Company could be once the reimbursement environment had stabilized. Dondero then directed HCM trading personnel to offer to purchase Cornerstone's equity and debt at a significant discount from the valuation offered by Daugherty and Smith.

62. After a couple of weeks had passed, Dondero informed Daugherty and Smith that the seller was actually the committee representative for the Strat Fund, and that they were willing to pursue a sale of their Cornerstone interests for liquidity reasons, so long as the buying party was not affiliated with HCM because they did not trust Dondero's or HCM's pricing motives. More time passed, leading Daugherty and Smith to assume that the trade had died.

63. As summer began, Dondero began to show enhanced interest in how Cornerstone was valued. Daugherty found this strange, since the value used for Cornerstone was basically meaningless because the funds that held the investment did not pay fees based on estimated values; they only paid incentive fees based on realized values (e.g. when the asset was actually sold). Daugherty and Smith had appropriately and conservatively marked the position for many months and had discounted the negative factors that could impact the stock price over the foreseeable future.

64. As Dondero continued to pursue a transaction with the Highland Credit Strat Committee, he directed that a third-party valuation of Cornerstone should be performed. By early August, the new valuation of Cornerstone had been completed, and Smith presented it to Dondero. However, Dondero was not pleased with the new valuation of Cornerstone because it was "not low enough." Smith explained that Cornerstone was already conservatively marked and that he and the third-party valuation expert had already valued Cornerstone at a steep discount compared to its publicly-traded peers. Boyce was put in charge of getting a "better" third-party valuation.

65. While Daugherty was out of the office, Dondero and Boyce directed Smith to present additional and more onerous discounts to the third-party valuation expert. Additionally, Dondero, after being fully appraised of the value of real estate owned by Cornerstone as well as settlement negotiations in Cornerstone's pending litigation, instructed Smith to ignore and to omit any other value from the third-party firm's data package. Dondero and Boyce instructed Smith to make additional value reduction assumptions, including more draconian future reimbursement assumptions and management team discounts that would further reduce the third-party valuation. Finally, Dondero and Boyce received the lower valuation they had sought and presented it to the Highland Credit Strat Committee as proof for the legitimacy of their low bid price.

66. About this same time, Dondero instructed Daugherty and Smith to begin the process of granting another series of options for the Sierra Verde vehicle in order to true-up the dilutive effect of the rights offering promulgated by the Restoration investment into Cornerstone in December 2010, which effectively diluted/reduced the ownership of preexisting holders by approximately 30%. The purpose of the original rights offering was to infuse additional capital into Cornerstone so that it could make strategic acquisitions and acquire hospital real estate assets.

67. By the end of August 2011, Smith reported to Daugherty that Lyons was not comfortable with the mechanics of the second round of equity/option grants and that the request had "numerous problems." Daugherty instructed Moore, who had been the point man on the original Sierra Verde transaction, to take over the discussions with Andrews Kurth, and to advise Daugherty about any problems he discovered. By mid-September, Moore indicated that a second round of equity/option grants was not advisable at the past levels due to the company's material improvement since the last grants. Daugherty agreed with Moore's assessment and informed Dondero accordingly. Dondero disagreed with the assessment and instructed Daugherty to "find a way to get it done." Daugherty said he would try to find a way to complete the transaction, but that it was unlikely.

68. Also during the summer of 2011, Dondero broached the subject of having Daugherty serve as CEO of Cornerstone, while Dondero assumed the role of Chairman of the Board. Dondero told Daugherty that they could each collect the equivalent of a CEO's salary via this arrangement. Daugherty disagreed and explained to Dondero that there could only be the equivalent of one CEO's salary paid, regardless of the split between the CEO and Chairman responsibilities. Dondero then proposed a co-CEO arrangement: Daugherty would manage "operations" and work at Cornerstone three days a week while Dondero would handle "marketing" and work at Cornerstone two days a week. Dondero also informed Daugherty that Dondero would receive 60% of the CEO compensation while Daugherty would receive 40%. Dondero suggested that they would not have to follow the firm's Turnover guidelines as used for board fees. Daugherty disagreed. Dondero gave Daugherty a highlighted copy of the Restoration indenture and told him that HCM's legal/compliance group recommended that they would have to turnover certain compensation mandated by the indentures consistent with the process for board fees earned by HCM employees, but that Dondero thought it was a "grey area" and would let Daugherty decide. Daugherty showed the highlighted document to Moore and told him he did not think there was any way to keep all of the compensation as Dondero suggested. Moore agreed, and Daugherty informed Dondero that he concurred with HCM's legal/compliance department's conclusions that Dondero's approach was not permitted. Dondero and Daugherty were elected as co-CEO's of Cornerstone during the last week of August 2011. Daugherty resigned by the end of September and never collected any compensation for his services as co-CEO of Cornerstone.

69. In early September 2011, Dondero informed Daugherty of his intent to issue a second rights offering for NexBank Capital, Inc. ("NexBank Capital"). NexBank Capital is a holding Company controlled by Dondero, Okada and their affiliates, and is the sole shareholder of NexBank Capital, SSB). Daugherty and other senior HCM and affiliate employees had been granted shares in NexBank Capital pursuant to their Compensation and Benefits award for 2004. After Todd Travers and Davis Deadman left HCM and its affiliates in 2010, Dondero ordered the first rights offering to raise capital for NexBank Capital. Dondero disputed with Travers and Deadman regarding the "fair value" and lack of arms length process for the rights offering. Dondero guided the valuation experts' price lower so that he could cheaply dilute existing holders who were unwilling to participate under Dondero's leadership. Existing holders that were HCM employees were expected to be "loyal" and participate or suffer reprisals in their 2011 bonuses. Travers and Deadman were removed from the board and subsequently diluted. Daugherty reluctantly participated and was named to the NexBank Capital board of directors in early 2011. When Dondero informed Daugherty of his intent to launch a second rights offering in September 2011, Daugherty protested. This time, Dondero launched an even lower value for the rights offering and did not even bother to retain a third-party valuation expert. Dondero assured Daugherty that he would benefit because his purpose was to increase the ownership of current HCM employees like Daugherty and decrease the ownership of those former employees perceived as "disloyal" to the firm. He specifically identified Travers and Deadman as being his targets for dilution. Daugherty and other senior ranking HCP employees declined to participate.

Daugherty later learned that Amit Wahlia, who did not participate, was subsequently demoted and reassigned to report to a more junior HCM employee, Trey Parker, in early 2012.

70. Daugherty worked from Montana during the Summer of 2011, and spent most of his weeks on the road attempting to raise funds for Tunstall RCP II, a second distressed for control private equity fund. From March 2011 to September 2011, Daugherty was also in the process of negotiating his future compensation package with Dondero that would keep him at HCM through the investment period of Tunstall RCP II, which was about 5 years. Daugherty made it clear to Dondero in March 2011 that he intended to leave HCM if a new arrangement could not be worked out. He also told Dondero that he would not remain at HCM through the first close on Tunstall RCP II without an agreement that committed him to the firm for the investment period of the Tunstall RCP II Fund. Dondero assured Daugherty that he would provide him and his team with more autonomy and a market-based deal by the end of the summer.

71. Dondero offered Daugherty a Compensation and Benefits Statement that was delivered to Daugherty by Brian Collins on September 26, 2011. The statement included a series of inducements that included cash and bonuses, 25% of the management fees in Tunstall RCP II, the 40% share of the CEO compensation from Cornerstone, full retention of portfolio board fees as allowed by HCM compliance, 15% of a future REIT (assuming it was launched) and 25% of the before-mentioned Tunstall Capital management fees.

72. Daugherty had concerns about some of the components of the compensation offer, namely the co-CEO role at Cornerstone and the Tunstall Capital fees. However, before he could address these issues, Dondero retracted the REIT award and inexplicably rescinded the entire offer on September 27, 2011. When Daugherty called Dondero to protest, he was told "Fuck you! Quit!" When he later tried to discuss the matter by email, Dondero sent him a response (with a copy to Boyce) telling him: "[You] will get no agreement in writing" and "[You] will trust or you will leave."

73. By this point, Daugherty was already very frustrated by the proposition of having Dondero as a co-CEO of Cornerstone, since he regularly missed entire board meetings and corporate dinners for Cornerstone and other portfolio companies in which he served as board member. He was also tired of having his job made more complicated by constantly having to find solutions to Dondero's self-dealing and conflicts of interest. Further, he was generally disgusted by Donderos's attempts to manipulate mark-downs so that he could take advantage of his own investors. Daugherty was unwilling to tolerate Dondero's latest attempt to re-trade his commitment to Daugherty's compensation and bonus terms and was totally fed up with the entire HCM culture, which pitted senior managers against one another in order to incite negative comments and backstabbing to justify paying each less. Daugherty submitted his letter of resignation on September 28, 2011.

74. The day following his resignation and pursuant to his 30-day notice, Daugherty reported to work and attended a meeting in Boyce's conference room to present his thoughts and recommendations on each investment within his portfolio and each member of his team. Boyce and Britain were in attendance. Daugherty again brought up the problems with issuing a second round of equity/option grants for Cornerstone to the Sierra Verde entity. He also told all in attendance that the lawyers at Andrews Kurth, as counsel to Cornerstone and the board, were unlikely to approve of the supplemental issuance demanded by Dondero and that the idea should not be pursued. He continued to give his views on other portfolio positions and personnel.

75. After the meeting, Boyce and Britain conspired to deprive Daugherty of his earned compensation by converting and modifying contracts and vessels which Daugherty had vested ownership in. They both disliked Daugherty and each stood to gain by acquiring power and prestige with his departure. Throughout 2011, Boyce inserted himself into the affairs of Daugherty's team and created problems and tensions in order to undermine Daugherty. Boyce and Britain also led the implementation of Highland 2.0, which was used to reduce Daugherty's influence at the firm and over his team.

76. On September 30, 2012, Boyce and Britain began interrogating many of the members of Daugherty's private equity team regarding the initial Sierra Verde grants and the formation of that vessel. Boyce was livid to learn that he had not been included in the Sierra Verde transaction and that its value was now substantial. In fact, Boyce and Britain focused much of their attention in the days following Daugherty's departure on investigating and confronting private equity team members with the fact that their equity/option grants could now be worth more than what Boyce and Britain had received in total compensation for 2010.

77. Their accusations were self-serving and wholly ignored the fact that the Sierra Verde grant process began in 2009, when all security levels were much lower because of the global financial crisis against a context where HCM itself had defaulted on its bank loans and had contemplated filing for bankruptcy. Their investigation ignored the fact that these grants were approved by the independent board members on behalf of each company following a process that was dictated by outside counsel at Andrews Kurth and by HCM counsel, Surgent, on behalf of the HCM-managed funds. In fact, Britain boasted that he intended to never speak to Daugherty again upon hearing of his resignation. This obviously made it difficult for Britain to determine the reason for Sierra Verde's creation and the purpose and process behind it.

78. Several of the private equity team members, including Moore, Lawler, Smith and Callan, reported to Daugherty that Boyce and Britain were determined to unwind the Sierra Verde vessel and presented it as a rogue transaction promulgated by Daugherty. Never once did Britain or Boyce seek Daugherty's explanation for the genesis, scope and intent of the plan. They later discovered that Dondero had mandated the plan in 2009 and that Surgent had given the Legal Department's approval for the plan -- with Lyon's blessing.

79. On October 2, 2011, Dondero reached out to Daugherty to have drinks at Nicola's Restaurant telling Daugherty: "Life is too short for it to be anything but a pleasant exchange between two battle-hardened warriors." They met at Nicolas's on October 6, 2011. In that meeting, Dondero discussed, in great detail, how he recently discovered his wife's infidelity. He suggested that other wives of HCM employees had not been faithful to their husbands as well, while assuring Daugherty that his wife had remained faithful.

80. Dondero then offered, as evidence of his wife's unfaithfulness to their marriage, about 20 pages of emails and text messages between his wife and her alleged lover. He explained to Daugherty that he had spent about three sleepless days reading almost 20,000 emails and texts raided from various tracking sources he had through his connections with certain branches of the intelligence community. Dondero explained that the emails and texts covered every communication his wife had over their five-year marriage. He also mentioned that he had used sources that were illegal in order to obtain the information and had committed about 20,000 misdemeanors in the process.

81. In the meeting, Dondero went on to explain that at the time of Daugherty's resignation, he was in the process of reviewing these communications and that initially, a cell phone number he identified as belonging to Daugherty kept recurring, causing him to think Daugherty may have been having an affair with his wife as well. Dondero admitted that it was not until the following week when he was able to match up phone numbers with messages that he had been able to determine that his wife was communicating with Daugherty's wife, primarily regarding children's activities.

82. Dondero then attempted to entice Daugherty to come back to HCM by re-offering him the options of Cornerstone that had previously been held in the Sierra Verde vessel, which had been illegally dissolved after Daugherty's departure. He also offered Daugherty the full CEO position at Cornerstone, conditioned upon Daugherty's agreement that Dondero could alter his compensation as he felt appropriate and that his private equity team members could be reassigned as Dondero determined to be necessary. Dondero also told Daugherty that he would continue to lead the marketing effort for the Tunstall RCP II Fund. He dangled other incentives before Daugherty in order to attempt to entice him to return, including his right to maintain his board positions at MGM Studios and Safety-Kleen Systems, Inc.

83. Daugherty was understandably unnerved by this entirely bizarre conversation. He thanked Dondero for the offer, but respectfully declined. As Daugherty prepared to leave, Dondero asked that Daugherty think it over and get back to him with a final answer later. The following morning, Daugherty reported to work and was soon greeted by Boyce who remarked that he had heard the meeting with Dondero "went well" and that Daugherty would be staying at HCM under the revised offer proposed by Dondero. Daugherty informed Boyce that while the meeting was civil, he had no intention of remaining at HCM under the new terms or under any other terms. Boyce left Daugherty's office with a surprised look on his face.

84. On October 12, 2011, Boyce informed Daugherty that Dondero had originally instructed him to find a way to get out of paying Daugherty under Sierra Verde the day after Daugherty resigned. Boyce, in an attempt to play "good cop," then assured Daugherty that he would try and get him the value of his Sierra Verde holdings. Boyce's efforts were hollow, since he did not like Daugherty. Boyce considered Daugherty a threat and envied Daugherty's senior position within the firm. Boyce desperately wanted to lead the private equity group managed by Daugherty. When Daugherty informed Boyce that he was unwilling to accept Dondero's revised offer, Boyce aggressively lobbied to have Daugherty removed from the office immediately.

85. When Daugherty returned to the office on October 17, 2011, Boyce had Brian Collins, Head of Human Resources, present Daugherty with three documents relating to HCM's separation offer: (1) Sierra Verde Consent – a document to be signed by the Board of Directors of Sierra Verde agreeing to have the vessel dissolved; (2) Cornerstone Separation Agreement - a document dictating that Daugherty was no longer co-CEO and Chairman of Cornerstone, and that he would be paid $600,000.00 over the following 18 months in exchange for his continuing duty to consult and cooperate relating to Cornerstone matters; and (3) HCM Separation Agreement – with new and more restrictive terms and release provisions from Daugherty's 2004 Employment Agreement. At this meeting, Daugherty stated that he wanted his compensation awards and that he was exercising any rights to be paid such awards. Daugherty received a compensation spreadsheet explaining his remaining payouts.

86. Daugherty was also informed by various HCM employees that Dondero had hastily called a brief meeting with Restoration investors the previous Friday and had informed them that Daugherty had resigned from the firm because he had "flaked out" and "wanted to go to Montana because he didn't know what he wanted to do with his life." Dondero also told Julie Silcock at Houlihan Lokey that Daugherty had "taken a one year leave of absence."

87. Within days of being asked to vacate HCM's offices, Daugherty received immediate pressure from Surgent, Collins and Dondero to sign the new separation documents, which he refused to do. He also noted that the documents he was given instructed him to seek the advice of legal counsel, which he had not had a chance to do. On October 20, 2011, Daugherty asked Collins if the offer was an all or nothing deal and whether he had to execute all three documents in order for any one of them to be effective. Collins replied that he did.

88. Daugherty also inquired of Surgent why Sierra Verde was being unwound and dissolved. Surgent told him it was an "improper transaction" and was not permitted under the relevant indenture documents. When Daugherty asked how it was that this was just being discovered now, especially since Surgent was involved in the Sierra Verde approval and formation process dating back to 2009, Surgent did not respond. Daugherty said he was willing to entertain substitute consideration if there was a legitimate mistake, but that he was confused as to how it was now determined that the indenture did not permit Daugherty and the private equity team to receive options on the performance of Cornerstone and Trussway – especially since a payment could only be realized upon a successful sale of the company, with full disclosure to the funds' investors. Further, if the Sierra Verde vessel was improper, Daugherty could not understand how it was permissible for him to receive monthly payments by Cornerstone equaling $600,000.00 under the proposed Cornerstone Separation Agreement, when there was no connection to Cornerstone's performance and the payments would not be visible to the fund's investors. Surgent again did not respond.

89. Daugherty further inquired about how the rest of his private equity team was being compensated. Surgent refused to answer Daugherty's question, other than to say that his former private equity team had been taken care of. Finally, Daugherty asked Surgent how it was deemed that the performance-driven option program under Sierra Verde was considered impermissible but the Tunstall fees were considered permissible. Surgent did not respond.

90. Daugherty later discovered that the Cornerstone independent board members had not been informed of the Sierra Verde unwind and were completely unaware that there was a compensation dispute with Daugherty. Dondero left voice messages with Daugherty telling him he needed to sign the documents and offering to update him on "what it's like to be married to a tramp wife."

91. On October 27, 2011, Dondero sent Daugherty an email notifying him that HCM had changed the documents and that all of the new documents would have to be signed. Surgent, Collins and Dondero attempted to schedule another meeting to discuss the new documents on October 28, 2011. Daugherty declined to discuss the matter further with HCM and referred the matter to his attorneys.

92. In January 2012, Daugherty was informed that Dondero, Boyce, Britain and Honis were schedule to host an investor committee update for the Crusader Fund. Daugherty was listed in the presentation materials as having left HCM for "lifestyle" reasons. Dondero explained to those in attendance that Daugherty left HCM due to "lifestyle" reasons, that he was "burned out," that he was only willing to "work 30 hour weeks," and that he had effectively spent the summer of 2011 on vacation in Montana. Dondero, Boyce, Britain and Honis knew these remarks were wholly untrue, misleading and defamatory in nature. To the contrary, Daugherty was actively managing the various funds and investments and people that reported to him, and was aggressively marketing the new Tunstall RCP II Fund. Dondero was fully aware of, and indeed specifically approved of, Daugherty's request to work from a base in Montana during the summer of 2011 since so much of his time was spent on the road attending board meetings and marketing Tunstall RCP II in places like Dallas, Chicago, Boston and New York. In fact, Daugherty maintained an approximate 57 hour per week average approved by Dondero through the day of his resignation.

93. The Crusader investors did not trust Dondero because of the misrepresentations, broken promises and activities that took place with the management of their fund since 2008. Many of them knew Daugherty to be blunt, honest and hard working, and found it suspicious that he would leave HCM for "lifestyle" reasons. They insisted on having access to Daugherty to conduct an exit interview. Dondero and HCM complied with this demand and included Daugherty's email and contact information in the same presentation materials that listed Daugherty as having left for "lifestyle" reasons.

94. In late January 2012, Daugherty participated in exit interviews with certain fund committee members and detailed his views on the prospects and liquidity for the various fund investments and his reasons for leaving HCM. Daugherty presented his views in the same manner and thoroughness that he had done while conducting quarterly and semi-annual updates consistent with his responsibilities at HCM.

95. Apparently, Daugherty's views were materially inconsistent with information and advice provided by Dondero, Boyce and Britain regarding the companies in the Fund. Daugherty gave a very strong review of one of the fund's largest investments, noting that discussions were taking place at the board level to sell one of the Fund's companies to a private equity firm or take it public in an IPO (Initial Public Offering) in the third quarter of 2012, which would likely more than double the price of the stock. Britain and Dondero had presented a completely different scenario to these investors, telling them there were no plans for a liquidity event.

96. Britain and Dondero had recommended that these investors sell their shares into a HCM-endorsed tender that the portfolio company was pursuing at the direction of Dondero and Britain at half of the expected IPO/sale price. The investors were told this was their only foreseeable option for liquidity, while Dondero and Britain were simultaneously campaigning to block the company from pursuing the IPO or outright sale. Dondero and Britain knew this would transfer more value to themselves and to HCM, since other HCM-managed funds were paying full management fees and incentive fees to HCM and this would increase one fund's percentage ownership of the company at the expense of another fund's investors. The net effect of their scheme allowed higher fee paying funds to increase their ownership and take part in the higher price liquidity event later, while funds that had suspended fees to HCM would sell out at depressed levels. Additionally, Dondero and Britain were actively trying to acquire shares in the company from an investment bank for their personal accounts, while instructing the fund's investors to tender (sell) their shares.

97. Daugherty was asked by the committee to give his views on value and future prospects of another portfolio company. Daugherty told the group that the bank debt was easily worth 100% on the dollar, and that the equity would likely be worth two and maybe three times its current market price. Daugherty mentioned that EBITDA had significantly improved and there was a significant potential value from a proposed settlement.

98. In contrast, Daugherty learned that Dondero and Boyce had presented a far lower and bleaker value picture. In addition, among other things, they omitted any reference to the EBITDA improvement. Instead, they focused their analysis on the trailing reported quarterly EBITDA numbers and contraction by trading multiples of industry peers. Daugherty later learned that Dondero and Boyce were attempting to buy the debt and equity in this company from other Highland fund investors at deep discounts.

99. This pattern of abuse and self-dealing continues through the acts of Dondero, Okada, Britain, Boyce and Surgent. Recently, these same principals threatened investors to agree to being bought out at .75 cents on the dollar on their entire holdings in a fund, or run the risk of having their covenants stripped and being made silent partners if HCM was able to raise enough cash to buy over 50% of the partnership. Simply put, HCM is attempting to raise cash from new investors in order to steal the assets of its old investors by claiming that they are "distressed."

100. In response to a request from Dondero on Christmas Eve 2011, Daugherty agreed to meet Dondero for drinks on February 2, 2012. Daugherty had been subpoenaed by Rebecca Dondero to testify in the Dondero's divorce that morning, but the hearing had been postponed.

Dondero again chose Nicola's Restaurant to meet. During the meeting, which lasted about an hour and a half, Dondero explained to Daugherty how evil his wife was and why he was determined to pay her nothing in the divorce. Daugherty advised Dondero to pay his wife the $5 million stipulated in their prenuptial agreement because she would always be the mother of his children and would always have primary custody of them. Daugherty also advised Dondero that it wasn't good for the kids to see their father disparaging their mother in public as a "whore." Dondero said he was leery about the cost of litigation, but was following his lawyer's advice that "if his wife got all of the money up front, it would be too easy to just leave the kids with a nanny and go party in Aspen." Dondero further commented that he could also trade custody for more cash compensation at a later date.

101. Dondero then briefly mentioned Daugherty's unresolved compensation issues and acknowledged that Daugherty was treated poorly during his exit from HCM. Daugherty expressed his opinions about the real value of Sierra Verde and its underlying investments. Dondero mentioned his appreciation for Daugherty's most recent investments/restructurings and the positive impact they had on the firm's performance (MGM, Safety-Kleen, Rotech and Graceway Pharmaceuticals just to name a few). Dondero further stated that he would try to get Daugherty's compensation issues resolved quickly.

102. Daugherty awoke the next morning to a phone message requesting that he call Dondero back. The message had been left around 9:00 p.m. the previous night. Daugherty called Dondero around 7:30 a.m., and Dondero proceeded to interrogate Daugherty as to why Rebecca Dondero was seeking his testimony. Daugherty explained that he did not know, but that he was subpoenaed and was required to produce any emails between him and Dondero in 2011, any financial information of HCM, any partnership documents, and to surrender his cell phone. Dondero then attempted to help Daugherty remember how he should testify regarding his wife, suggesting that it was Daugherty's idea that he pay his wife nothing and that Daugherty had referred to Dondero's wife as a whore. Daugherty denied Dondero's manipulated version of the facts and reminded Dondero that he had encouraged him to seek marriage counseling in September 2011. Dondero became annoyed and hung up on Daugherty.

103. On February 9, 2012, Dondero phoned Daugherty and left him a message, again offering to pay him $600,000.00 from Cornerstone with a "consulting contract" in exchange for seizing his Sierra Verde shares. He also offered to purchase Daugherty's shares in Nexbank Holdings for $40 per share, compared to a recent rights offering price of $30 per share, as long as Daugherty would cease communications with former investors and executives of companies affiliated with HCM's funds.

104. Daugherty reminded Dondero that he was very familiar with the appropriate value for Cornerstone, since he had presided over the investment in various capacities as Chairman, Executive Chairman and CEO since 2008. Daugherty refused to accept Dondero and Boyce's valuation. Dondero raged at Daugherty, claiming it was his mark that was used for valuation purposes, but Daugherty reminded Dondero that it was his and Boyce's valuation, since they were the ones who ordered Smith to have the company revalued by a third-party firm while Daugherty was working from Montana.

105. Dondero then angrily proclaimed that he had spoken to someone at Concorde who told him they were not pursuing the Strat sale because Daugherty had given them HCM's confidential information and had told them not to do so. This was not true. Concorde representative served on both the Crusader committee and the Strat committee, and were thus informed of Daugherty's views of Cornerstone during the exit interview granted by HCM. Concorde independently determined not to sell to Dondero or his affiliates, despite numerous attempts by Dondero to induce a sale through the summer of 2011.

106. In the last week of February 2012, Dondero instructed certain HCM employees, as board members of the HERA program, to amend the governing documents. The amendments would allow the entity to terminate the payments and ownership interests if the board, in its sole discretion, determined that a former employee violated the terms of the confidentiality provisions in HCM's employment agreement. Dondero also instructed the board members to amend the governing documents to cause any former employee to forfeit his interest if he or she ever brought suit against HCM. This effectively made it impossible for anyone to enforce collection under the rewards program. These actions took place even though Daugherty was fully vested in the program and received a 2011 W2 from HCM claiming it as income for Daugherty and an expense for HCM.

107. In the first week of March 2012, Dondero, Okada, Boyce and Britain called a mandatory meeting among HCM professionals to inform them that there would soon be litigation with Daugherty, and that anyone caught communicating with Daugherty for any reason would be fired on the spot. They were also told that anyone who helped HCM provide damaging testimony or dirt on Daugherty would be well-regarded by management, and any misdeeds or failings of the past would be forgiven.

108. On March 19, 2012, Daugherty received a letter from counsel for HCM alleging broad, ambiguous and unsupported violations of various agreements, and claiming that Daugherty had therefore forfeited "compensation and other payments and distributions" that he was entitled to under "any policy, plan, or agreement with Highland or any of its affiliates." Such conduct constitutes an anticipatory repudiation of the parties' agreements.

109. On April 4, 2012, Daugherty testified, pursuant to a subpoena issued by Rebecca Dondero, in Dondero's divorce proceedings, currently pending in a Family District Court in Dallas County. At the hearing, Daugherty testified that he believed Highland was stable and solvent. He also testified that while he was having drinks with Dondero, Dondero told Daugherty that he was going to get his net worth down to as little as possible in order to avoid paying his wife the $5 million that she was entitled to pursuant to the couple's prenuptial agreement. During the hearing and after Daugherty had testified, Dondero stated, off the record, that he would "destroy" Daugherty. Two weeks later, Plaintiff filed its Original Petition.

V.

GENERAL CAUSES OF ACTION

110. For each cause of action herein, Daugherty re-alleges and incorporates by reference each and every allegation and statement contained in the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

A. REQUEST FOR DECLARATORY JUDGMENT AS TO THE EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT

111. Pursuant to Section 37.001 of the Texas Civil Practice & Remedies Code, et seq., Plaintiff requests that the Court determine the rights of the parties with regard to the Restrictive Covenants contained in Section 5.3 of the Employment Agreement. Plaintiff seeks a declaratory judgment that the non-solicitation and non-competition covenants are overly-broad and unenforceable and not reasonably tailored to protect the business interests and good will of HCM and are accordingly, unenforceable under Section 15.50 of the Texas Business & Commerce Code.

B. BREACH OF THE EMPLOYMENT AGREEMENT AGAINST HCM

112. Pursuant to the Employment Agreement, Daugherty was entitled to participate in any bonus, option or similar incentive compensation plan, including the LTIP, the HERA Plan, Sierra Verde and HCM's Defined Benefit Pension Plan. Daughtery's termination under the Employment Agreement was a "Voluntary Termination—Non-Competing Business," as dictated by Section 4.5 of the Employment Agreement, which requires HCM to honor any amounts or rights to which the employee would be entitled to under any other written agreements with HCM.

113. Section 4.5 of the Employment Agreement further required HCM to pay Daugherty severance pay dependent upon his execution of a separation agreement and release "substantially in the form" as Exhibit "A" to the Employment Agreement. In further breach of the Employment Agreement, HCM presented Daugherty with a General Release and Separation Agreement on October 27, 2011 which did not resemble, in any respect, Exhibit "A" to the Employment Agreement.

114. By reason of the foregoing acts and conduct of HCM, and breach of numerous agreements, including the Employment Agreement, Daugherty has been damaged in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court.

C. DEFAMATION AGAINST HCM AND DONDERO

115. In connection with Daugherty leaving his employment with HCM, HCM and Dondero published false statements of fact regarding Daugherty stating, among other things, that Daugherty was "burned out" and had left for "lifestyle" reasons. HCM and Dondero made such statements knowing them to be false, and published them to third parties intentionally with actual malice or reckless disregard for the truth and/or created an unreasonable risk that the defamatory statements would be communicated to third parties.

116. HCM and Dondero's actions constitute defamation per se, because the nature of the defamatory statements related to Daugherty's professional character, reputation or standing. HCM and Dondero's defamation of Daugherty proximately caused damage to Daugherty in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court.

VI.

SIERRA VERDE CAUSES OF ACTION

117. For each cause of action herein, Daugherty re-alleges and incorporates by reference each and every allegation and statement contained in the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

A. BREACH OF CONTRACT AGAINST SIERRA VERDE AND DONDERO

118. On December 16, 2010, a Limited Liability Company Agreement ("Agreement") was entered into by Sierra Verde and certain Members, including Daugherty, who were holders of units. Pursuant to the Agreement, Dondero was named the Manager of Sierra Verde and given "sole right, power and authority to manage, direct and control all of the business and affairs" of Sierra Verde.

119. After Daughterly left his employment at HCM, and in an illegal and unilateral breach of the Agreement intended to cause harm to Daugherty and to deprive him of his valuable ownership interests in Sierra Verde, Sierra Verde and Dondero took steps to purportedly unwind and dissolve Sierra Verde.

120. Sierra Verde and Dondero further breached the Agreement by failing to give Daugherty, as a holder of units, his entitled vote, as required by Section 3.3 of the Agreement.

121. Sierra Verde and Dondero failed to deliver to Daugherty, as a holder of units, the quarterly reports required by Section 3.5 of the Agreement, again in breach of the Agreement.

122. Sierra Verde and Dondero engaged in other acts amounting to blatant, illegal breaches of the Sierra Verde Agreement, including but not limited to, the improper delegation of power and authority to Dondero as Manager and the failure to properly distribute cash and assets of Sierra Verde to Daughtery, as a holder of units, upon the dissolution of Sierra Verde.

123. By reason of the foregoing acts and conduct of Sierra Verde and Dondero, Daugherty has been damaged in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court.

B. OPPRESSION OF A MINORITY SHAREHOLDER AGAINST SIERRA VERDE AND DONDERO

124. At all relevant times, Daugherty was a minority holder of units in Sierra Verde. Sierra Verde and Dondero, as Manager, have engaged in conduct that constitutes oppression of Daugherty, a minority shareholder, including but not limited to the following: (i) unwinding and dissolving Sierra Verde; (ii) failing to provide Daugherty with required quarterly reports; (iii) committing multiple breaches of the Sierra Verde Agreement; (iv) failing to provide Daugherty with his voting rights under the Agreement; and (v) failing to distribute any property or other assets to Daughtery in accordance with his ownership interests.

125. The actions of Sierra Verde and Dondero served to substantially defeat the expectations of Daugherty, as a member of Sierra Verde with a minority ownership. Daugherty's expectations were both reasonable under the circumstances and central to his decision to continue in the employ of HCM. Further, the actions of Sierra Verde and Dondero were burdensome, harsh, and wrongful conduct amounting to a lack of probity and fair dealing in the affairs of Sierra Verde to the prejudice of Daugherty. Sierra Verde and Dondero visibly departed from the standards of fair dealing on which Daugherty was entitle to rely.

126. By reason of the foregoing acts and conduct, Daugherty has suffered damages in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court.

C. BREACH OF FIDUCIARY DUTY ON BEHALF OF SIERRA VERDE

127. At all relevant times, Daugherty was a holder of units in Sierra Verde, and may thus pursue a derivative action if Sierra Verde refuses to pursue action against Dondero.

128. As a majority shareholder and an officer of Sierra Verde, Dondero owed fiduciary duties of due care and loyalty to Sierra Verde.

129. Dondero engaged in unfair business transactions with respect to Sierra Verede, including: (i) unwinding and dissolving Sierra Verde; (ii) fraudulently inducing holders of units in Sierra Verde to agree to unwind Sierra Verde based upon false statements of fact; (iii) attempting to coerce Daugherty to agree to unwind Sierra Verde; (iv) failing to provide Daugherty with required quarterly reports; (v) committing multiple breaches of the Sierra Verde Agreement; (vi) failing to provide Daugherty with his voting rights under the Agreement; and

(vii) failing to distribute any property or other assets to Daughtery in accordance with his ownership interests.

130. Specifically, Dondero breached his duties of (i) candor; (ii) loyalty and utmost good faith; (iii) refraining from self-dealing; (iv) integrity of the strictest kind; and (v) full disclosure.

131. The transactions decreased the value of Sierra Verde's shares and caused damages to Sierra Verde and its unit holders.

D. IMPROPER WITHHOLDING OF CORPORATE BOOKS AND RECORDS

132. Defendant is a minority holder of units and has demanded to inspect Sierra Verde's books and records. Defendant's purpose for inspecting the company books and records is reasonably related to his ownership of a minority holder of units. Dondero refused to allow Daugherty access to the books and records; thus, they violated Tex. Bus. Corp. Act, Art. 2.44(B) and damaged Sierra Verde and its unit holders. Daugherty hereby requests that the Court compel Dondero to open the books and records of Sierra Verde to Daugherty for inspection and to award Daugherty his reasonable attorneys' fees pursuant to Tex. Bus. Corp. Act, Art. 2.44(B).

E. CONVERSION AGAINST SIERRA VERDE AND DONDERO

133. Daugherty, as a holder of units in Sierra Verde, owned, possessed, or had the right to immediate possession of his property.

134. Sierra Verde and Dondero, in engaging in the above described intentional conduct, wrongfully exercised dominion and control over Daugherty's personal property in a manner inconsistent with Daugherty's exclusive rights to the property. This conversion of Daugherty's property was willful, malicious and in conscious disregard of Daugherty's rights.

135. Consequently, Daugherty suffered damages in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court. Further, Daugherty is entitled to an award of exemplary damages sufficient to punish Sierra Verde and Dondero and to serve as a deterrent to such conduct in the future.

F. UNJUST ENRICHMENT AGAINST SIERRA VERDE AND DONDERO

136. Sierra Verde and Dondero illegally received and retained benefits from Daugherty when they wrongfully dissolved and maintained the property and assets of Sierra Verde. The benefits obtained by Sierra Verde and Dondero were not gratuitous, and Sierra Verde and Dondero will be unjustly enriched if allowed to retain the benefits.

137. As a direct and proximate result of unjust enrichment, Daugherty has sustained damages in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court.

G. BREACH OF FIDUCIARY DUTY AGAINST DONDERO

138. As Manager of Sierra Verde, Dondero controlled Sierra Verde. In engaging in the wrongful conduct described above, Dondero breached fiduciaty duties owed to Daugherty as a minority holder of units in Sierra Verde. A special relationship of trust and confidence exists between Daugherty and Dondero. Specifically, Dondero breached his duties of (i) candor; (ii) loyalty and utmost good faith; (iii) refraining from self-dealing; (iv) integrity of the strictest kind; and (v) full disclosure. Dondero's breaches of these duties has materially harmed Daugherty and unlawfully benefited Dondero and Sierra Verde.

139. Daugherty is entitled to recover damages sustained by him as a result of Dondero's breach of fiduciary duty. In addition to actual damages, Daugherty is also entitled to recover exemplary damages because Dondero intentionally and maliciously violated the fiduciary duties he owed Daugherty.

VII.

HERA CAUSES OF ACTION

140. For each cause of action herein, Daugherty re-alleges and incorporates by reference each and every allegation and statement contained in the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

A. BREACH OF CONTRACT AGAINST HCM AND HERA

141. On October 26, 2009, a Limited Liability Company Agreement ("Agreement") was entered into by HERA and HCM and other members of the board of HERA, including Daugherty. The purpose of the HERA Plan was to receive and hold assets contributed by HCM and to distribute proceeds of those assets from time to time to create a retention initiative. Daugherty was granted units of ownership in the HERA Plan. The unilateral decision of HCM and HERA to amend the Agreement to divest Daugherty of his valuable ownership interest constitutes a material breach of the Agreement.

142. As a result of this breach of contract, Daugherty has been damaged in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court.

B. SHAREHOLDER OPPRESSION AGAINST DONDERO, BOYCE AND BRITAIN

143. Dondero, as well as, Boyce and Britain, who were members of HERA's board of directors, which is effectively controlled by Dondero, engaged in oppressive conduct by unilaterally amending the Agreement to suspend distributions for any holder of units who commenced litigation, initiated a dispute or made a claim related to HERA or its management or members. This conduct substantially defeated the expectations of Daugherty, as a member of the HERA Plan with a minority ownership. Daugherty's expectations were both reasonable under the circumstances and central to his decision to join HCM. Further, these defendants engaged in burdensome, harsh, and/or wrongful conduct and a lack of probity and fair dealing in the company's affairs to the prejudice of Daugherty. Defendants visibly departed from the standards of fair dealing on which Daugherty was entitled to rely.

144. As a direct and proximate result, Daugherty has suffered damages in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court.

C. DERIVATIVE CLAIM FOR BREACH OF FIDUCIARY DUTY

145. At all relevant times, Daugherty was a member of HERA with a minority ownership.

146. As members of HERA's Board of Directors, Dondero, Boyce, and Britain owed fiduciary duties of due care and loyalty to Sierra Verde.

147. Dondero, Boyce, and Britain enganged in unfair business transactions with respect to HERA by unilaterally amending the Agreement to suspend distributions for any holder of units who commenced litigation, initiated a dispute or made a claim related to HERA or its management or members, making it impossible for anyone to enforce collections through the rewards program.

148. By engaging in the aforementioned conduct, Dondero, Boyce, and Britain breached their duties of (i) candor; (ii) loyalty and utmost good faith; (iii) refraining from self-dealing; (iv) integrity of the strictest kind; and (v) full disclosure.

149. The transactions decreased the value of ownership in HERA and caused damages to HERA and its members.

D. CONVERSION AGAINST HERA, HCM, DONDERO, BOYCE AND BRITAIN

150. Daugherty owned, possessed, or had the right to immediate possession of his property, including his interests in HERA.

151. These Defendants wrongfully exercised dominion and control over Daugherty's personal property in a manner inconsistent with Daugherty's exclusive rights to the property. Daugherty suffered injury in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court. Defendants' conversion of Daugherty's property was willful, malicious and in conscious disregard of Daugherty's rights. Consequently, Daugherty is entitled to an award of exemplary damages sufficient to punish HERA, HCM, Dondero, Boyce and Britain and to serve as a deterrent to such conduct in the future.

VIII.

LTIP CAUSES OF ACTION

152. For each cause of action herein, Daugherty re-alleges and incorporates by reference each and every allegation and statement contained in the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

A. BREACH OF CONTRACT AGAINST HCM

153. Effective January 1, 2005, HCM established a long-term incentive program for selected key employees, including Daugherty. The LTIP was established to create positive morale and teamwork, to attract and retain key talent and to encourage achievement of common goals. Daugherty was granted long-term incentive units in the LTIP. HCM's unilateral decision to divest Daugherty of his valuable ownership interest in units held by him constitutes a material breach of the parties' agreement.

154. As a result of this breach of contract, Daugherty has been damaged in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court.

B. CONVERSION AGAINST HCM

155. Daugherty owned, possessed, or had the right to immediate possession of his property, including his interests in the LTIP.

156. HCM wrongfully exercised dominion and control over Daugherty's personal property in a manner inconsistent with Daugherty's exclusive rights to the property. Daugherty suffered injury in an amount in excess of the minimum jurisdictional limits of this Court. HCM's conversion of Daugherty's property was willful, malicious and in conscious disregard of Daugherty's rights. Consequently, Daugherty is entitled to an award of exemplary damages sufficient to punish HCM and to serve as a deterrent to such conduct in the future.

IX.

ATTORNEYS' FEES AGAINST HCM, DONDERO, SIERRA VERDE AND HERA

157. Daugherty seeks recovery of the costs and reasonable and necessary attorneys' fees incurred in connection with this action pursuant to Sections 37.009 and 38.001 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code.

X.

REQUEST FOR DISCLOSURE

158. Pursuant to Rule 194 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure, HCM, HERA, Sierra Verde, Dondero, Boyce and Britain are hereby requested to disclose the information or material described in Rule 194.2. This is a continuing duty and requires supplementation in accordance with the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure.

PRAYER

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Daugherty respectfully requests that this Honorable Court grant the following relief:

Upon trial of this cause, that the Court make an award in favor of Daugherty and against HCM, HERA, Sierra Verde, Dondero, Boyce and Britain for the following:

a. Actual damages and exemplary damages;

b. A declaratory judgment that the covenants not to compete are unenforceable under Section 15.50 of the Texas Business & Commerce Code;

c. Reasonable and necessary attorneys' fees and costs incurred; prejudgment and post judgment interest as allowed by law; and,

d. Any and all further relief the Court deems just and equitable.

Respectfully submitted,

APPELLANT'S AMENDED DESIGNATION OF ITEMS TO BE INCLUDED IN THE RECORD ON APPEAL AND STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES PRESENTED

Pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 8009(a) and Docket No. 4366, Appellant Patrick Daugherty ("Daugherty") hereby submits his amended designation of items to be included in the record on appeal and statement of issues to be presented in connection with his appeal from the Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement Between the Highland Entities and the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket

[1] Highland's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (8357). The headquarters and service address for Highland is 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1850, Dallas, TX 75201.

No. 4297] (the "HMIT Settlement Order").[2] See Notice of Appeal [Docket No. 4310, as amended at Docket No. 4327].

Statement of Issues on Appeal

1. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in its approval of the HMIT Settlement Order [Docket No. 4297], which permits payment to Class 10 creditors before all Class 8 and Class 9 claims have been paid in full when the plain language of the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. 1808], the Court's Confirmation Order [Dkt. 1943] and the Claimant Trust Agreement [Dkt. 3817-4] require full payment plus applicable interest to all Class 8 and Class 9 creditors before any Class 10 or Class 11 claims can vest.

2. Whether the Bankruptcy Court abused its discretion by approving the HMIT Settlement Order [Docket No. 4297] when the settlement is not fair, reasonable, or in the best interests of the estate as the Debtor, through its principals, is forgoing the recovery of millions in material value to the estate in exchange for, inter alia, self-serving releases of its principals.

Designation of Record

Daugherty respectfully designates the following items to be included in the appellate record pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 8009(a):

000001 1. Amended Notice of Appeal for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj11 [Dkt. 4327].

000011 2. Notice of Appeal for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj11 [Dkt. 4310].

000026 4. Docket Sheet for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj1 kept by the Bankruptcy Clerk.

5. Documents listed below for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj11:

[2] Unless otherwise defined herein, all capitalized terms shall have the meaning ascribed to them in the HMIT Settlement Order.

OMNIBUS REPLY IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER PURSUANT TO BANKRUPTCY RULE 9019 AND 11 U.S.C. § 363 APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH THE HMIT ENTITIES AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS CONSISTENT THEREWITH

The Movants hereby submit this reply (the "Reply") in support of their Motion for Entry of an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement with the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 4216] (the

[1] Highland's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (8357). The headquarters and service address for Highland is 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1850, Dallas, TX 75201.

"Motion")[2] and in opposition to (i) Patrick Daugherty's Objection to Motion for Entry of an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement with the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 4229] (the "Daugherty Obj.") filed by Patrick Daugherty ("Daugherty"); (ii) Preliminary Objection of the Dugaboy Investment Trust to the Motion for Entry of an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement with the HMIT Entities [Docket No. 4230] (the "Dugaboy Obj.") filed by The Dugaboy Investment Trust ("Dugaboy"); and (iii) Objection of the Dallas Foundation and Crown Global Life Insurance Ltd. to Motion for Entry of an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement with the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 4231] (the "Crown Obj." and together with the Daugherty Objection and the Dugaboy Objection, the "Objections") filed by The Dallas Foundation (on behalf of Empower Dallas Foundation and The Okada Family Foundation), and Crown Global Life Insurance, Ltd. (collectively, the "Purported Beneficiaries," and together with Daugherty and Dugaboy, the "Objectors"). In further support of the Motion, the Movants state as follows:

I. PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. The Objectors' lack of any meaningful economic interest in the outcome of the Motion or substantive connection to, or interests in, the Movants calls into question their motives. Dugaboy, James Dondero's family trust, has no allowed Claims or Interests, is subordinated to HMIT, and would be hopelessly out-of-the money even if its unvested Class 11 Interest were ever allowed. Daugherty's allowed Class 8 and Class 9 Claims have been paid in full, and his disputed Class 8 Claim has been fully reserved at an agreed-upon amount for years. And the Purported Beneficiaries are complete strangers to this case, cannot be heard, and are being bankrolled by Dondero—both here and in their litigation in the Cayman Islands. Nor does any Objector articulate how the Settlement Agreement adversely affects its alleged Claims or Interests in the Highland estate. Rather, the Objectors point to perceived inconsistencies with the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement to argue how Class 9 Claim holders—all of whom have either been paid or consented to the Settlement Agreement—are somehow negatively affected.

[2] All capitalized terms used but not defined herein have the meanings given to them in the Motion.

2. None of the Objectors has a cognizable pecuniary interest in the estate; none of the Objections has merit.

3. To the contrary, the Settlement Agreement is in the best interests of Highland's estate—and particularly holders of Class 9 Claims. It will (i) stop costly and time-consuming litigation; (ii) dispose of certain illiquid Estate assets; (iii) dispose of the Estate Claims and certain Causes of Action; (iv) resolve all disputes concerning HMIT's Class 10 Interests; and (v) protect against and prevent future value-destructive litigation. As a result, if approved, the Settlement Agreement will bring the Movants substantially closer to fully consummating the Plan. The Objections—transparent efforts to keep the litigation machine running—are frustrating, familiar, and tired.

4. The Court should overrule the Objections, approve the Motion, and allow the estate to move towards completion of the Plan and dissolution of the Trusts.

II. REPLY

A. The Objections Are Meritless

5. As discussed in the Motion, under applicable Fifth Circuit precedent, a bankruptcy court may approve a compromise or settlement as long as the proposed settlement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interest of the estate. See, e.g., In re Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d 530, 540 (5th Cir. 2015). In making this determination, courts review the following factors: (i) probability of success in the litigation, with due consideration for the uncertainty of law and fact;

(ii) complexity and likely duration of the litigation and any attendant expense, inconvenience and delay; and (iii) all other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise, including (a) "the paramount interest of creditors with proper deference to their reasonable views" and (b) whether the settlement is the product of arm's length bargaining and not of fraud or collusion. Official Comm. of Unsecured Creditors v. Cajun Elec. Power Coop. (In re Cajun Elec. Power Coop.), 119 F.3d 349, 356 (5th Cir. 1997) (citations omitted); see also Age Ref. Inc., 801 F.3d at 540; Conn. Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. United Cos. Fin. Corp. (In re Foster Mortg. Corp.), 68 F.3d 914, 918 (5th Cir. 1995). Settlements, like the Settlement Agreement which contemplates the transfer and release of estate assets or claims, are further authorized under section 363(b) if "'supported by an articulated business justification, good business judgment, or sound business reasons.'" Gluckstadt Holdings, L.L.C. v. VCR I, L.L.C. (In re VCR I, L.L.C.), 922 F.3d 323, 327 (5th Cir. 2019) (quoting Cadle Co. v. Mims (In re Moore), 608 F.3d 253, 263 (5th Cir. 2010)).

6. Each element is satisfied here, and the Objections should be overruled.

B. Dugaboy Objection

7. Dugaboy asserts (i) the Settlement Agreement violates the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement because it allows payments on HMIT's Class 10 Interest notwithstanding that HMIT's Class 10 Interest has not vested and will not vest under the terms of the Settlement Agreement; (ii) there is insufficient evidence to support the relief requested in the Motion; and (iii) the mutual releases in the Settlement Agreement are overly broad and could (somehow) release claims that Dugaboy or its affiliates have against the Highland Entities or the HMIT Entities. The Dugaboy Objection should be overruled.

1. The Settlement Agreement Does Not Violate the Plan or Claimant Trust Agreement

8. Dugaboy argues HMIT cannot receive anything on account of its Class 10 Interest until the Claimant Trustee files a "GUC Payment Certification" pursuant to Section 5.1(c) of the Claimant Trust Agreement. Dugaboy Obj. ¶ 10. Dugaboy is wrong. Upon the filing of a GUC Payment Certification, Contingent Trust Interests vest, and allowed interests in Class 10 and Class 11 gain rights under the Claimant Trust Agreement. That is all. Section 5.1(c) does not prohibit (or even address) the allowance of a Class 10 Interest—which is entirely separate from vesting—nor does it prohibit settlements agreed to by all affected parties that further the intent of the Plan and Claimant Trust, i.e., monetizing assets and making distributions.

9. The Claimant Trust Agreement (CTA §§ 2.2(a)-(b), 3.2(a)-(b), 3.2(c)(iv)) and the Litigation Sub-Trust Agreement (LTA §§ 2.2, 3.2(a)-(b), 3.2(c)(v)) expressly authorize the Claimant Trustee and Litigation Trustee to resolve and settle Claims and to implement those settlements. The Plan also permits Claimants and Equity Interest holders (including those in Class 9 and Class 10) to accept "other less favorable" treatment. Plan, Art. III.H.9, 10. Here, the documentary evidence proves that the holders of the remaining Class 9 claims consented to the proposed payments being made to HMIT before payment in full on their Class 9 Interests to bring this case closer to completion. Docket No. 4255, Ex. 59. For its part, HMIT has agreed that its Class 10 Interest will not vest; it will not have rights under the Claimant Trust Agreement; and it will voluntarily provide broad Litigation Protections in exchange for the consideration being provided to it under the proposed Settlement Agreement. Parties' willing waiver of their rights and acceptance of reduced rights otherwise provided for by a plan as part of a settlement agreement is neither atypical nor frowned upon. It is encouraged.

10. More specifically, holders of Class 9 Claims—the only parties with a pecuniary interest in the payments to HMIT—signed consents agreeing that (i) Daugherty's Class 9 Claim could be paid in full (which payment occurred on or about May 20, 2025) and (ii) HMIT could receive certain payments under the Settlement Agreement before their Class 9 Claims are paid in full.[3]

11. In sum, all parties economically affected by the Settlement Agreement have knowingly and voluntarily waived rights in order to settle with HMIT because the settlement resolves existing litigation, limits future litigation, and creates a scenario where those parties may receive their final distributions.

2. Sufficient Evidence Supports Approval of the Motion

12. Dugaboy contends the Movants failed to offer evidence sufficient to support their Motion and has requested significant discovery. In response, the Movants expeditiously produced more than 4,000 pages of documents to Dugaboy (and others) and made four witnesses available for deposition. As will be shown at the hearing, the evidence overwhelmingly supports approval of the Motion.

3. The Release Is Neither Vague nor Overbroad

13. Finally, Dugaboy alleges the releases in the Settlement Agreement are vague and overbroad and could limit Dondero's ability or the ability of the legion of entities controlled by him to sue the estate. Dugaboy cites no language to support its assertions and is wrong. The release is a broad, mutual release, but it is a standard provision necessary to effectuate the intent of the settlement and which does not release any purported claims of Dugaboy against any party.

C. Daugherty Objection

14. Like Dugaboy, Daugherty alleges the Settlement Agreement violates the Plan and Claimant Trust Agreement as well as the absolute priority rule. Daugherty also alleges the

[3] All Class 8 Claims—other than Daugherty's disputed Claim—have been fully resolved and paid in full. Daugherty's disputed Class 8 Claim has been fully reserved for in accordance with the Plan and in an amount ($2,650,353) plus interest Daugherty agreed to years ago. Finally, all Claims junior to Class 8 have been fully resolved and paid.

Settlement Agreement is contrary to the estate's interests because it settles litigation rather than propagates it. Daugherty is wrong on both counts.

1. The Settlement Agreement Does Not Violate the Claimant Trust Agreement, the Plan, or the Bankruptcy Code

15. First, as set forth above, the Settlement Agreement does not violate the Plan or Claimant Trust Agreement. It effectuates a settlement among the affected parties; Daugherty is not an affected party. His allowed Class 8 and Class 9 Claims have been paid in full, and his disputed Class 8 Claim has been fully reserved in an amount he agreed to and in accordance with the Disputed Claims Reserve requirements in the Plan (Plan, Art. I.B.49, I.B.50, VI.E; Docket No. 4255, Exhibits. 58, 60-63).[4] Nevertheless, Daugherty asserts no settlement with HMIT can be reached until his disputed Class 8 Claim has been resolved to Daugherty's satisfaction. Given the status of Daugherty's claims, that assertion is wholly without basis.

16. Second, the Settlement Agreement does not implicate the absolute priority rule because that is a requirement for plan confirmation; it does not apply to a settlement occurring nearly four years after the Plan Effective Date.

17. Ultimately, Daugherty's objection is a transparent attempt to create leverage in the negotiation of his Class 8 Claim.[5]

2. The Settlement Agreement Is in the Estate's Best Interests

18. Daugherty also argues the Settlement Agreement is not in the best interests of the [4] Daugherty cannot unilaterally increase the amount reserved for his Class 8 Claim. Under the Plan, the "Disputed Claims Reserve Amount" can be increased, in pertinent part, (i) with Highland's agreement or (ii) by an order of this Court disallowing, in whole or in part, or estimating Daugherty's Class 8 Claim. Plan, Art. I.B.50. Highland will not agree to increase Daugherty's Disputed Claim Reserve Amount. In fact, Highland filed a complaint to disallow, subordinate, or estimate Daugherty's Class 8 Claim. Adv. Pro. No. 25-03055. In response, Daugherty moved to dismiss, seeking to delay adjudication of that Complaint indefinitely. Daugherty is bound by his actions and cannot refuse to adjudicate his Claim while simultaneously demanding that his Disputed Claims Reserve Amount be increased.

[5] The evidence will show Daugherty recently threatened to sue Highland's employees and object to the Motion if Highland did not pay him $20 million.

estate because Highland should sue HMIT to recover "hundreds of millions of dollars." See, e.g., Daugherty Obj. ¶ 26. Daugherty misconstrues the economics of the estate and the terms of the Claimant Trust Agreement and Plan. In the absence of a settlement, the Litigation Trustee's claims against HMIT were a potential source of cash that might have been needed to pay senior claims and obligations, including indemnification obligations. With the settlement of HMIT's Class 10 Interest—which represents 99.5% of Highland's prepetition equity—and resulting limitation of future litigation, the need for litigation funding is reduced, making further distributions possible. In any event, Daugherty fails to explain why he cares about the settlement or how it affects him. Rather, the facts are undisputed: Daugherty's disputed Class 8 Claim is fully reserved, and the reserve is fully funded. Any amounts recovered from HMIT through litigation would never have flowed to Daugherty. They would have been used to pay senior obligations, whatever remained of Class 9, and then returned to HMIT as payment on its Class 10 Interest.

D. Crown Objection

19. As an initial matter, the Purported Beneficiaries are not parties in interest under 11 U.S.C. § 1109 and have no right to appear or be heard with respect to the Motion. As the Purported Beneficiaries admitted during their depositions:

- They have (i) never appeared in Highland's bankruptcy case; (ii) never filed a claim against Highland in its bankruptcy case; (iii) no claims or interests in Highland or the Claimant Trust; and (iv) have never had an interest—direct or otherwise—in Highland.
- Neither Highland nor the Claimant Trust owes any Purported Beneficiary any duty—contractual, fiduciary, or otherwise.
- They had no direct interest in HMIT before the reorganization discussed in the Crown Objection.
- They had no interest—direct or indirect—in HMIT after the reorganization.

- If the Settlement Agreement is consummated, the Purported Beneficiaries would have no claims against Highland or any Movant related to the Settlement Agreement or otherwise.

- Their concern is not the Settlement Agreement before the Court but whether they will share in the cash and assets HMIT will recover if the Court grants the Motion.

Based on their deposition testimony and other evidence, the Purported Beneficiaries are strangers to these proceedings with no interest in the Motion or Settlement Agreement.

20. Even under the most capacious interpretation of what constitutes a "party in interest" under Bankruptcy Code § 1109, and even assuming 11 U.S.C. § 1109 applies four years post-confirmation, the Purported Beneficiaries do not have a sufficient interest in the relief requested in the Motion—either before or after the reorganization described in the Crown Objection—to object to the Motion. According to the Supreme Court, the ability to be heard under Section 1109 requires an entity to have a "direct financial stake in the outcome." Truck Ins. Exch. v. Kaiser Gypsum Co., 602 U.S. 268, 277–78 (2024) (quoting 7 COLLIER ON BANKRUPTCY ¶ 1109.01 (16th ed. 2023)). A "direct financial interest" requires "an actual interest in the controversy, as distinguished from a nominal party"—i.e., a "pecuniary interest … directly affected by the bankruptcy proceeding." Id. at 278, n.3. "Where a proposed plan 'allows a party to put its hands into other people's pockets, the ones with the pockets are entitled to be fully heard and to have their legitimate objections addressed.'" Id. at 282 (quoting In re Global Indus. Techs., Inc., 645 F.3d 201, 204 (3d Cir. 2011)). The Movants have no interest in the Purported Beneficiaries' pockets. The Purported Beneficiaries are interlopers falling well outside the Supreme Court's definition of "party in interest" under Section 1109.[6] They epitomize the "truly peripheral parties" lacking any "direct interest" to whom the Supreme Court denies the ability to be heard. Id., 602 U.S. at 284. Because the Purported Beneficiaries do not have sufficient interest in the relief requested in the Motion or in the bankruptcy case under Section 1109, the Court should strike the Crown Objection and decline to hear their arguments pertaining to the Motion.[7]

21. Substantively, the Crown Objection is meritless. The Purported Beneficiaries argue the Motion must be denied or stayed because Mark Patrick allegedly violated his fiduciary obligations to the Purported Beneficiaries. On this basis, the Purported Beneficiaries conclude that the Settlement Agreement could be jeopardized by protracted costly litigation.[8] In so arguing, the Purported Beneficiaries conflate whether Patrick's corporate restructuring was a breach of his fiduciary duty with whether Patrick had the authority to execute the Settlement Agreement. Whether the Purported Beneficiaries or the Cayman liquidators (who, tellingly, are not before this Court) have claims against Patrick is not a question of corporate authority and is irrelevant to whether Highland can meet its burden under Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363. Regardless, the evidence will demonstrate that Patrick is authorized to enter into the Settlement Agreement and that he required no one's consent to do so.

[6] This would be true even if the restructuring outlined in the Crown Objection were reversed and the Purported Beneficiaries retained their remote interest in HMIT. Truck Insurance left undisturbed a long line of cases holding that "a shareholder of a party in interest is not, by virtue of its equity holding, itself a party in interest." In re AIO US, Inc., 2025 Bankr. LEXIS 1369, at *29 (Bankr. D. Del. June 6, 2025); see also, e.g., In re Refco, 505 F.3d 109, 117 (2d Cir. 2007); In re Vantage Drilling Int'l, 603 B.R. 538, 545 (D. Del. 2019).

[7] Ignoring the Movants' written request (Docket No. 4255, Ex. 120), the Purported Beneficiaries also failed to file a disclosure statement as required by Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 2019, which is independent grounds to refuse to permit the Purported Beneficiaries to be heard and to assess sanctions against them. FED. R. BANKR. PROC. 2019(e)(2)(A)-(C).

[8] The Purported Beneficiaries also conceded during their depositions that (i) Dondero is funding their pursuit of the Crown Objection and (ii) they had not even read the Settlement Agreement. The Purported Beneficiaries also testified, among other things, that (i) HMIT had the corporate authority to enter into the Settlement Agreement and (ii) they had no reason to believe the Settlement Agreement was not the product of good faith and arm's length negotiations or that the terms of the Settlement Agreement were unfair to either side.

WHEREFORE, for the reasons set forth above and in the Motion, the Movants respectfully request that the Court overrule the Objections and grant the Motion.

WHEREUPON,

JULIE DIAZ,

being first duly sworn or affirmed to testify to the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Good afternoon, Ms. Diaz. Can you hear me okay?

A. I can.

Q. My name is John Morris. I'm an attorney for Highland Capital Management, and we're here to take your deposition today in connection with the Dallas Foundation's objection to a certain settlement.

Are you aware of that?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Have you ever been deposed before?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Okay. So just some quick ground rules so we're on the same page.

I'm going to ask a series of questions, and it's very important that you allow me to finish my question before you begin the answer.

Is that fair?

A. Yes.

Q. I will try to allow you to finish your answer before I begin a question; but if I fail to do so, will you let me know that?

A. Yes, I will.

Q. If I ask a question that you don't understand, will you let me know that?

A. I will.

Q. If you need a break at any time, I'm happy to accommodate you; but I just ask that you not seek a break while a question is pending unless you need to consult with your lawyer about privilege questions.

Is that fair?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you affiliated with the Dallas Foundation?

A. Yes. I am the president and CEO.

Q. When did you become the president and CEO of the Dallas Foundation?

A. Formally, April 1st, 2024. Prior to that, I was interim CEO; and have been with the foundation for six years.

Q. Are you familiar with the company called Highland Capital Management, LP?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Are you aware that Highland Capital Management, LP, filed for bankruptcy back in 2019?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Are you aware that the Dallas Foundation recently filed in the bankruptcy court an objection to a proposed settlement between certain Highland affiliates and certain affiliates of Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Are you aware of the parties to the settlement agreement that the Dallas Foundation has objected to?

A. Can you clarify that question.

Q. Can you identify the parties on the Highland side that are -- that executed the settlement agreement that the Dallas Foundation objected to?

A. No.

Q. Can you identify the parties -- withdrawn.

Are you aware that there are parties -- are you aware that Hunter Mountain Investment Trust is a party to the settlement agreement?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Are you aware that a gentleman named Mark Patrick signed the agreement on behalf of the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?

A. I'm aware of his involvement.

Q. But you're not aware as you sit here right now that Mr. Patrick signed on behalf of Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?

A. No.

Q. Can I refer to Hunter Mountain Investment Trust as "HMIT" for purposes of the deposition?

A. Yes, you may.

Q. Are you aware that there are other entities that are affiliated with HMIT that are also party to the settlement agreement?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Can we generally refer to all of the affiliates of HMIT and HMIT itself as "the HMIT entities" for purposes of today's deposition?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you review the Dallas Foundation's objection before it was filed?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Were you responsible for authorizing its filing?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware that the objection was filed on behalf of an entity called Empower Dallas Foundation?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar with that entity?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. What is the Empower Dallas Foundation?

A. Empower Dallas Foundation is a supporting organization that is sponsored by the Dallas Foundation. It's a grant-making organization that's been in existence for at least 10 years.

Q. Do you know who formed Empower Dallas Foundation?

A. Yes. I'm aware that it came from Jim Dondero.

Q. What do you mean that it came from Jim Dondero?

A. Well, that the donation was made from Mr. Dondero.

Q. Did Mr. Dondero make a donation to Empower Dallas Foundation?

A. Yes.

Q. And does Empower Dallas Foundation fund the Dallas Foundation?

A. Technically, it is a -- we are a -- it is a supporting organization of the Dallas Foundation, which is an IRS entity for which it makes grant recommendations that then flow to a donor-advised fund that then the Dallas Foundation effectuates, basically, the grant.

Q. Do you know if the Dallas -- did I step on your words?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if the Dallas -- withdrawn.

Do you know if Empower Dallas Foundation had any contractual obligation to make donations to the Dallas Foundation?

A. I believe that through its charitable status, it is required to make contributions on a regular basis. And we also have governance that oversees activity within all of our charitable funds.

Q. Is there an agreement of any kind between the Dallas Foundation and Empower Dallas Foundation?

A. Yes. We have a fund agreement.

Q. And under that fund agreement, is the Dallas Foundation entitled to receive contributions from Empower Dallas?

A. Yes. I don't know the technical language offhand.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Dondero plays any role in the management of Empower Dallas Foundation?

A. What do you mean by "management"?

Q. Does he have any involvement in --

A. Yes. As any fundholder, he would have involvement in making recommendations for grants he would like to put into the community, as all of our fundholders do.

Q. Does he play any other role, to the best of your knowledge, with respect to the Empower Dallas Foundation?

A. No.

Q. Are you familiar with --

A. Oh, sorry. May I correct myself?

The Empower Dallas Foundation does have its own governance, of which he is president of the foundation. I'm the vice president. And we have a treasurer. As with all of our supporting orgs, the Dallas Foundation has majority oversight.

Q. The Dallas Foundation has majority oversight of Empower Dallas Foundation?

A. Yes.

Q. And how does it exercise that oversight?

A. In voting.

Q. And who gets to vote?

A. The officers: the president, the vice president, and the treasurer.

Q. Of which entity?

A. Of the supporting organization, the Empower Dallas Foundation.

Q. Can you identify who those people are.

A. Jim Dondero is the president; I'm the vice president; and our CFO, Torrey Littleton, is the treasurer.

Q. How about the Okada Family Foundation? Are you familiar with that?

A. Oh, excuse me -- sorry.

I'm -- I need to correct myself. That is for Empower Dallas, because we have two funds I'm confusing. Empower Dallas Foundation, I am the president; Torrey is the treasurer; and we have a secretary.

For consent agendas, Jim Dondero plays an individual member role.

Q. Ma'am, what are you reading right now?

A. I'm looking at the structure of our supporting organizations.

Q. Can you just hold that up for me so I can see what you're looking at.

A. It literally lists that for all of them.

Q. Do you have any other documents with you today?

A. Just my notes.

Q. Can I ask you to put those away for now.

A. Oh, sure.

Q. How about the Okada Family Foundation; is that another supporting organization?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And do you know if Mr. Dondero has any involvement with that entity?

A. It does not have any involvement with that entity.

Q. Okay. Do you know if Mr. Dondero played any role in the Dallas Foundation's decision to object to the proposed settlement between the Highland entities and the HMIT entities?

A. Did not have any role.

Q. Did you ever speak to him about the objection?

A. I have spoken to him in the last six months.

Q. Did you ever speak with him about the objection?

A. No.

Q. Did you speak with him about any of the facts that are set forth in the objection?

A. No.

Q. Was Mr. Dondero a source for some of the facts that are set forth in the Dallas Foundation's objection?

A. No.

Q. Did Mr. Dondero or anyone acting on his behalf provide any information to the Dallas

Foundation that the Dallas Foundation used in its objection?

A. Repeat the question.

Q. Did Mr. Dondero or anybody you believe was acting on his behalf provide any information that the Dallas Foundation used in its objection?

A. I'll abstain from answering that.

Q. Excuse me?

A. I'd rather not answer that question.

Q. I appreciate that, but you have to.

A. Well, there's a lot of context around the formation of where we are today. So I have been engaged with our counterpart over the last six years, so I have a lot of information from working through our grant-making and the management of the assets over the past six years.

So in that same vein, I've learned a lot from many interested parties.

Q. Okay. So I ask you to listen carefully to my question, because it's rather precise.

Do you know if Mr. Dondero or anybody you believed was acting on his behalf provided the Dallas Foundation with any information that is -- that was used to prepare the objection?

A. No.

Q. Are you familiar with the objection?

A. I am familiar. I authorized it and read it.

Q. And it's your testimony that Jim Dondero wasn't the source of any information that's in that objection. Is that fair?

A. That is fair.

Q. Do you know where the idea of filing the objection originated?

A. I don't.

Q. Do you know whose idea, who came up with the idea to object to this -- withdrawn.

Do you know whose idea it was to object to the Highland/HMIT settlement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Okay. Actually, Ms. Diaz, before you answer, just want to caution you that as long as it's not conveying advice of counsel, you can answer the question.

A. You'll have to repeat that. I don't understand that.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you know who came up with the idea of objecting to the proposed Highland/HMIT settlement?

A. I believe it came out of discussions in another settlement.

Q. What settlement are you referring to?

A. In the Cayman Islands.

Q. What settlement is that?

A. Well, it has to do with the three large supporting orgs and an entity called DAF Holdco.

Q. Which three large supporting orgs are you referring to?

A. Kansas City Foundation; Santa Barbara Foundation; Highland Dallas Foundation; and really in a small way, North Texas Community Foundation. All --

Q. And I apologize. What did you just refer to those entities as? Supporting organizations?

A. Yes.

Q. The Kansas -- and you called it the Kansas City --

A. Foundation.

Q. -- Foundation, the Santa Barbara Foundation and the Dallas Foundation? And those are three additional supporting organizations of the Dallas Foundation?

A. Sorry. We have three -- four community foundations; right? Dallas Foundation, Santa Barbara Foundation, Kansas City Foundation, and North Texas Community Foundations.

The three -- Kansas City, Dallas and Highland -- I'm sorry -- Dallas, Kansas City, and Santa Barbara all have supporting organizations that were the result of contributions from Highland Capital in 2011.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Dondero has any relationship to the Dallas, Kansas City, or Santa Barbara Foundations that you just identified?

A. My understanding is they have -- he has the same structure of supporting org with Kansas City, Santa Barbara, and Dallas.

Q. Is he the president of each, to the best of your knowledge?

A. Yes.

Q. And are those the entities that commenced the Cayman Islands proceedings, to the best of your understanding?

A. Yes.

Q. Is it your understanding that Mr. Dondero directed those entities to do so?

A. No.

Q. Who directed those entities to do so, to the best of your knowledge?

A. CEOs of the organizations.

Q. And who are they?

A. Debbie Wilkerson is the CEO of Kansas City. Jackie Carrera is the CEO of Santa Barbara. Rose Bradshaw is the CEO of North Texas Community Foundation, although she did not enter in, in the formal filing. They have a very de minimis role in the asset.

Q. Are you aware that Mr. Dondero filed a declaration or an affidavit in the Cayman Islands in support of the Community Foundation's litigation that they commenced?

A. I did see that.

Q. Did you read it?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did you see any familiarity between that declaration and the Dallas Foundation's objection?

A. I think there were some similarities because of the nature of the activities that have been happening.

Q. Did you learn, when you read

Mr. Dondero's declaration in the Cayman Islands, that he's actually funding that litigation on behalf of the supporting organizations?

A. No, that's not when I learned that.

Q. That's not when you learned it or -- withdrawn.

Are you aware that he's funding that litigation?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you learn that he was funding that litigation?

A. Before we got into litigation.

Q. Is he funding this litigation on behalf of the Dallas Foundation?

A. Yes, he is.

Q. And how much money did he provide for the funding of this litigation?

A. We have not agreed on an amount. As with any of our fundholders', legal expenses will get paid through by the fund. So that's a very common business practice. And it would go until the legal issues ceased.

Q. But he's made a commitment to fund -- to personally fund the expenses of the Dallas Foundation in connection with this litigation; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of any particular reason that that's not disclosed in the Dallas Foundation's objection?

A. I'm not aware.

Q. Why did the Dallas Foundation file the objection on behalf of Empower Dallas Foundation?

A. Well, we filed the objection on behalf of both Empower and Okada Family Foundation, in essence, because the person who has been overseeing the activity ceased to communicate with us as of last fall. And there were enough irregularities in our communication and accounting leading up to then some pretty dramatic changes in valuations that raised a red flag for us.

Q. Who is the person that you're referring to?

A. Mark Patrick.

Q. And did the Empower Dallas Foundation ask the Dallas Foundation to file this objection on its behalf?

A. As fiduciaries of all of our charitable assets, we oversee the activity; and when there is any irregular activity, we investigate.

Q. I appreciate that. I'm just asking you if the Empower Dallas Foundation asked the Dallas Foundation to file the objection on its behalf.

A. Well, since I am representative of the Empower Dallas Foundation, I don't have to ask anybody except ourselves to do that.

Q. And did you confer with Mr. Dondero about that decision?

A. I think we informed him.

Q. Did he review a copy of the objection before it was filed?

A. Not to my knowledge, no.

Q. Are you aware that the Dallas Foundation also filed the objection on behalf of certain segregated accounts held at Crown Global Life Insurance Limited?

A. Yes.

Q. Can I refer to Crown Global Life Insurance Limited as just "Crown Global"?

A. Yes.

Q. And can I refer to the segregated accounts that are identified in the Dallas Foundation's objection as "the segregated accounts"?

A. Yes.

Q. And are you familiar with those segregated accounts?

A. At a high level.

Q. What's your understanding at a high level of what those segregated accounts are?

A. That the Crown Global assets are really insurance annuities that pay out to the fund; and that's the source of income for charitable purposes.

Q. Where does the income from the annuity flow to?

A. Flows to the supporting organizations.

Q. And then the supporting organizations have the proceeds from the annuity available for the foundations; is that fair?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you know who took out these insurance policies or these annuities? Which of the -- withdrawn.

Can you identify the supporting organization that funded the purchase of the annuities?

A. Empower Dallas Foundation and Okada Family Foundation.

Q. And is the cash that is thrown off from the annuities -- withdrawn.

To the best of your understanding, is the cash that's thrown off from the annuities the sole source of income for Empower Dallas Foundation and the Okada Foundation?

A. That's my understanding.

Q. Is it your understanding that the Dallas Foundation has not received anything of value from Empower Dallas Foundation or the Okada Family Foundation other than proceeds from the annuities?

A. That's my understanding.

Q. Do you know why the Dallas Foundation filed the objection on behalf of the segregated accounts at Crown Global?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did the Dallas Foundation file its objection on behalf of the segregated accounts?

A. As I said earlier, because there had been activity and essentially a write-down of 40 percent of value, we were concerned that there were activities within Crown Global for the organizations that support that that we did not have any, you know, access to, vision or communication around.

Q. Does the Dallas Foundation have any relationship with Crown Global?

A. Yes.

Q. As it pertains to -- what relationship does the Dallas Foundation have with Crown Global?

A. Well, I don't understand on a transactional, but we get quarterly reports from them. They obviously send the proceeds to us. I mean, they are a fiduciary to us in the same way we are to others.

Q. Crown Global is?

A. Yeah.

Q. With respect to the disbursement of proceeds from the annuity?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So the proceeds from the annuity don't go to Empower Dallas or the Okada Family Foundation; they get remitted directly to the Dallas Foundation.

Do I have that right?

A. No. They go -- they go to the supporting organizations. But in our governance that -- I refer to both as -- it flows into our finance office, and then they get allocated to the foundations.

Q. You mentioned that there was a 40 percent write-down in value. Is that with respect to the annuities?

A. I don't know all of the transactions that led up to that. But what we understood, there were a few -- sorry.

There are a few requests for us to approve that we didn't understand and sent them to our counsel, and then got the first-quarter report for March 30th, and it was significantly lower and we didn't know why.

So in asking for that, we found out there was a decline.

Q. And is that -- is it your understanding that it's the decline in value -- withdrawn.

Is it your understanding that it's the unexplained decline in value that caused the Dallas Foundation to file the objection on behalf of the segregated accounts?

A. Yes.

Q. Did anybody ask the Dallas Foundation to file the objection on behalf of the segregated accounts?

A. No.

Q. Can you identify the owner of the segregated accounts on behalf of -- on whose behalf the Dallas Foundation filed the objection?

Withdrawn. Too many words.

Do you know who owns the segregated accounts?

A. No. I won't guess.

Q. Are you aware that the owner of the segregated accounts is Crown Global?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And so is that your understanding, that Crown Global --

A. Yes.

Q. -- owns the segregated accounts?

A. Yes.

Q. Did anybody from the Dallas Foundation seek Crown Global's consent and approval before filing the objection on behalf of the segregated accounts?

A. Yes.

Q. Yes?

And who at Crown Global gave the authorization, if you know?

A. Mr. -- the CEO and their chief legal, Hernandez -- Paul --

ATTORNEY OKIN: Let me interrupt here too, John. You're acting as though the objection was filed solely by the Dallas Foundation. We represent two clients here. We represent the Dallas Foundation and Crown Global.

And you're putting Ms. Diaz in a position where I think she thinks she has to justify having -- Crown Global's actions when they -- we represent them as well.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Well, as I read the pleading that you filed, it said the Dallas Foundation -- I won't --

ATTORNEY OKIN: I think that's a --

ATTORNEY MORRIS: I'll ask the questions, and we'll --

ATTORNEY OKIN: Take a look at our signature block. It says clearly that we're doing it on behalf of the Dallas Foundation and Crown Global.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Ms. Diaz, do you know if the Dallas

Foundation ever appeared in the Highland bankruptcy case before it filed this objection?

A. I do not believe so.

Q. To the best of your knowledge, the Dallas Foundation never filed a claim against Highland in the Highland bankruptcy case; correct?

A. No.

Q. To the best of your knowledge -- withdrawn.

Have you ever heard of the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. No.

Q. So is it fair to say that you have no reason to believe that the Dallas Foundation has any interest in the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. No. That is not -- that's not fair to claim.

Q. So is it your testimony that you believe the Dallas Foundation has a direct or indirect interest in the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. What you asked me was had we ever participated and did we then have any result from it.

I don't know the answer to that question.

Q. I apologize if my questioning wasn't clear to you. Let me try again.

To the best of your knowledge, the Dallas Foundation has never appeared in the Highland bankruptcy case until it filed the objection that we're talking about today; correct?

A. I don't know the answer to that.

Q. But to the -- you have no knowledge that they ever did; is that fair?

A. I have no knowledge.

Q. Okay. And you have no knowledge that the Dallas Foundation ever filed a claim against Highland in the Highland bankruptcy case; correct?

A. I have no knowledge of that.

Q. And you have no knowledge that the Dallas Foundation has any interest of any kind in the Highland Claimant Trust; correct?

A. I do not agree with that statement.

Q. What knowledge do you have that the Dallas Foundation has an interest in the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. Because of the relationship between Hunter Mountain and how it feeds up to Crown Global and, therefore, the supporting organizations.

Q. It might be my fault that I'm not being clear, but I'm really just focused on Highland right now. Has nothing to do with Crown Global --

A. Okay.

Q. -- or Hunter Mountain; it's just Highland.

A. Okay.

Q. Are you aware that as a result of the bankruptcy, an entity Called the Highland Claimant Trust was formed?

A. I was not, no.

Q. Okay. So if you weren't aware that an entity called the Highland Claimant Trust was formed, is it also fair to say you have no knowledge that the Dallas Foundation has an interest in the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. Okay.

Q. Okay. And does the Dallas Foundation have any contractual relationship with Highland Capital Management, LP?

A. No.

Q. Has the Dallas Foundation ever had a contractual relationship with Highland Capital Management, LP, to the best of your knowledge?

A. No.

Q. Does the Dallas Foundation have any contractual relationship with an entity called the Highland Claimant Trust, to the best of your knowledge?

A. No.

Q. And to the best of your knowledge, has the Dallas Foundation ever had a contractual relationship with an entity called the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe, as you sit here today, that Highland Capital Management, LP, owes any duties or obligations to the Dallas Foundation?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. You can answer.

A. Can you ask the question again.

Q. Sure.

As you sit here today, do you have any reason to believe that Highland Capital Management, LP, owes any duties or obligations to the Dallas Foundation?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. As you sit here today, do you have any reason to believe that Highland Capital Management, LP, ever had any duties or obligations that it owed to the Dallas Foundation?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Are you aware that if the settlement agreement between the Highland entities and the HMIT entities is approved, the HMIT entities will receive cash and other assets pursuant to the terms of the settlement agreement?

A. I'm assuming that there is assets within the agreement.

Q. Have you reviewed the settlement agreement yourself, Ms. Diaz?

A. No.

Q. Are you generally familiar with the terms of the settlement agreement?

A. At a high level.

Q. What's your understanding at a high level?

A. That once the settlement is complete, that Hunter Mountain will receive assets of some size that will flow up to Crown Global.

Q. Do you know if the requirement that the assets flow up to Crown Global is part of the settlement agreement that's before the Court and that the Dallas Foundation is objecting to?

A. That was our understanding.

Q. From the agreement itself?

A. I have not seen the settlement agreement.

Q. So you authorized an objection to a settlement agreement that you haven't seen; is that fair?

A. That's fair.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the Dallas Foundation has a right to recover any of the assets you just described that HMIT will receive if the settlement is approved by the Court?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Can you repeat the question.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the Dallas Foundation has a right to recover any portion of the assets that HMIT will receive if the settlement agreement is approved by the bankruptcy court?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. My job is to protect the charitable assets under our organization's fiduciary compliance role; and so if there is any opportunity for assets to either be diminished or not move forward, it's my job to ensure that I've done everything I can to recover them.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. But do you have an understanding as to whether or not -- withdrawn.

I think you just testified that it's your understanding at a high level that HMIT will receive certain assets if the settlement agreement is approved.

Do I have that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have an understanding that the Dallas Foundation is entitled to receive all or any portion of the assets that HMIT would receive under the settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I don't know that.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. You don't know that?

A. (Shakes head.)

Q. Have you asked anybody whether the Dallas Foundation has a right to recover any portion of the assets that HMIT will receive under the settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Before you answer that, Ms. Diaz, I'll just remind you: Other than disclosing any of your conversations with counsel for you or for the foundation.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. But you can answer the question.

A. You'll have to ask the question again.

Q. No problem. I appreciate that.

Did you ever ask anybody whether the Dallas Foundation had a right to receive any of the assets that HMIT will receive under the settlement agreement?

A. Like somebody-who in your question?

Q. Anybody. Did you ever ask the question of anybody? Let's just start with "yes" or "no."

A. Yes.

Q. And who did you ask?

A. I'll strike that, because it would be -- I couldn't tell you definitively I did that.

Q. Did Mr. Dondero tell you that the Dallas Foundation had a right to the assets that HMIT was going to receive under the settlement agreement?

A. No.

Q. And you don't recall asking that question of anybody; is that fair?

A. The only person I talked to this -- about these assets to is Mark Patrick.

Q. And did Mr. Patrick tell you that the Dallas Foundation had a right to recover any of the proceeds under the HMIT/Highland settlement agreement?

A. I don't know.

Q. Have you ever received any documents that lead you to believe that the Dallas Foundation has an ownership interest in any of the assets that HMIT will receive under the settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. My understanding is that through the Hunter Mountain settlement, that those assets flow into the Atlas fund that I know Mark Patrick was managing. So indirectly.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Is there a document that you reviewed that leads you to believe that the assets HMIT receives will go to the Atlas fund?

A. No.

Q. Can you identify with any specificity which Atlas entity you have in mind that's expected to receive the proceeds from the HMIT/Highland settlement?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if the Atlas entity that you just identified, does that have any obligation to disburse any of the assets it may receive from HMIT?

A. I don't know.

Q. Okay. Let's -- do you have any reason to believe that the Dallas Foundation will be impacted in any way if the settlement between Highland and the HMIT entities is approved?

A. As I said, because the Crown Global is to disburse money that it receives from Atlas, then there would be an impact. That's why we filed the objection.

Q. Is it fair to say that the Dallas Foundation's concern is what happens to the assets that HMIT receives after the settlement is approved and it's not with the agreement itself?

A. I can't answer that.

Q. If Mark Patrick hadn't done anything to change any of the structure that's described in the Dallas Foundation's objection such that the Dallas Foundation's expectations as set forth in its objection were met, would the Dallas Foundation have any reason to object to this settlement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Objection; form.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Isn't the problem here that you're concerned about what happens to the money after it's received by HMIT?

A. I'm concerned that the case that's pending in the Cayman Islands shows that $300 million of charitable assets have vanished and that the same type of behavior is happening in Crown Global and impacts those funds to the tune of $25 million.

Q. But that has nothing to do with Highland.

Fair enough?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you have any basis to say that Highland has any involvement in anything you just described?

A. Well, I'm not a lawyer and, technically, I don't know how to answer that. But Highland has been involved from day one.

Q. Involved in what?

A. The original contribution to set up the supporting orgs with those shares; like I said, I -- all the different legal entities -- GPs, LPs, et cetera -- I leave you all to track.

Q. If the Court approved the settlement and Mark Patrick decided to give all of the proceeds to the Dallas Foundation, would the Dallas Foundation have any reason to object to the settlement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I think we'd want to know more.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. What would you want to know?

A. What are the assets that we would be receiving? What would the structure be?

Q. Well, the assets are set forth in the settlement agreement; right? So there's no mystery about the assets.

Fair enough?

A. I don't know that. I don't know -- are they -- is it cash? Is it securities? What are the nature of the -- I would want to know a lot more before accepting all things like that.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global ever appeared in the Highland bankruptcy?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if the segregated accounts ever filed a notice of appearance in the Highland bankruptcy?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global ever filed a claim against Highland in the Highland bankruptcy?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if the segregated accounts ever filed a claim against Highland in the Highland bankruptcy?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global has an interest in the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. No. No, I don't know.

Q. Do you know if the segregated accounts have an interest in the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global has any contractual relationship with Highland?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global has any contractual relationship with the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. No.

Q. I'm going to take Mr. -- I think it's Mr. Littleton's deposition next.

A. Yep.

Q. Do you know if he is affiliated with Crown Global in any way?

A. No. He's an employee of the Dallas Foundation.

Q. Thank you.

Do you know if Crown Global has any right to recover any of the assets that HMIT and the HMIT entities may receive under the settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Have you asked that question of anybody?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Other than your lawyers, you can answer that, Ms. Diaz.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Please --

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Was the answer "no," Ms. Diaz?

A. Ask the question again, please.

Q. Have you ever asked anybody whether Crown Global had the right to receive any of the assets that Highland will convey to HMIT under the settlement agreement?

A. No.

Q. We're using the phrase "HMIT entities" to mean the entities on whose behalf Mark Patrick signed the settlement agreement; right? Are we on the same page?

A. That's what you're telling me.

Q. Okay. Are you familiar with any of those entities?

A. Tell me what they are.

Q. Are you familiar with any of the Rand entities?

A. I'm familiar with Rand.

Q. And what's your familiarity with Rand?

A. Certainly it was another vehicle that flowed through to Atlas. And when Mr. Patrick came to see me last October, told me that there might be some issues with Rand and that structure might be changing. That's vague.

Q. Let's stick with the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust.

Are you aware of any assets that the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust owns today?

A. No.

Q. Was it your understanding that Mr. Patrick controlled Rand?

A. Yes.

Q. And is it your understanding that he controls Rand today?

A. Yes.

Q. And going back to Hunter Mountain Investment Trust, you're not aware of any assets that that entity holds today; correct?

A. No.

Q. Were you --

A. I'm assuming Rand is one of the assets, I guess.

Q. Were you ever -- did you ever know -- were you ever aware of any asset that HMIT owned?

A. Well, Atlas.

Q. It's your understanding --

A. Yeah, I feel like I'm being quizzed on Hunter Mountain Trust.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Let me interrupt here. John, two things.

One, if you want to show her an org chart so she can actually see these entities in a way that actually would help her remember them. Nobody can possibly keep them in their mind cold.

And, second, Ms. Diaz is not going to be our witness on this Hunter Mountain structure and the Rand structure. You can keep asking her questions about it and testing her memory on it, but I don't think you're going to find that the answers are going to be any different.

Mr. Littleton will talk to these issues, yes. I can't promise you he'll be able to answer every one of your questions. But to the extent you want somebody with the Dallas Foundation's knowledge of the workings of that structure, he's the one to ask about that.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: I'll continue to ask the questions, but I appreciate that.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation ever received anything of value from any of the HMIT entities?

A. Crown Global.

Q. Crown Global is not an HMIT entity. So I'm asking you to just focus on the entities that Mark Patrick controlled, the Rand entities, the Atlas entities and Hunter Mountain.

Did any of those entities ever give anything of value to the Dallas Foundation?

A. Not directly that I'm aware of, no.

Q. Did any of those entities ever have any business dealings with the Dallas Foundation?

A. Only in the relationship with Crown Global.

Q. Do you have any understanding as to whether any of the HMIT entities owes any duties or obligations to the Dallas Foundation today?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Objection to form.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. I understand there was some corporate reorganization earlier this year. I think that's described in the Dallas Foundation's objection.

Is that just generally fair?

A. As it relates to Mr. Patrick?

Q. Yes.

A. (Nods head.)

Q. Okay. Do you have any reason to believe that before Mr. Patrick effectuated those changes, that any of the HMIT entities owed any duty or obligation to the Dallas Foundation?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Objection to form.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Are you aware that HMIT filed a couple of years ago a motion in the bankruptcy court for permission to bring certain claims against Highland Capital Management and a gentleman named James Seery?

A. No.

Q. Nobody ever told you that; is that fair?

A. Fair.

Q. Are you aware that Highland contends that the settlement agreement that it has entered into with the HMIT entities is the product of good-faith, arm's-length negotiations?

A. Am I aware? No.

Q. Do you have any knowledge of the nature of any negotiations between the Highland entities and the HMIT entities?

A. I'm aware that it's been going on for four years.

Q. I'm just talking about the settlement agreement now.

A. Okay.

Q. Do you have any knowledge of any facts concerning the negotiation of that particular settlement agreement?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any knowledge of any facts that might suggest that the settlement agreement was not the product of good-faith, arm's-length negotiations?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the proposed settlement is unfair to Highland Capital Management, LP?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. You can answer, ma'am.

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know whether the proposed settlement is unfair to the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. I don't know.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. You don't have a view on that; is that fair?

A. Yes.

Q. And is it fair that in connection with the preparation and the filing of the objection -- withdrawn.

The Dallas Foundation, in its objection, does not contend that the settlement is unfair to Highland Capital Management; is that correct?

A. I don't know.

Q. You reviewed and authorized the filing of the objection; isn't that right, ma'am?

A. Right.

Q. And you're familiar with the document that you authorized to be filed; fair?

A. Yes.

Q. And based on your recollection, do you recall the Dallas Foundation making any assertion or claim that the settlement agreement was unfair to Highland Capital Management, LP, or any of its affiliates?

A. The claim was that it was unfair to the supporting organizations.

Q. And how is the settlement agreement unfair to the supporting organizations?

A. Because we would -- well, what we claimed is that because of our lack of transparency of the flow of those funds and the changes in the fund recently, that the supporting organizations were losing their assets and any potential future assets.

Q. Is there any other basis that you're aware of by which the Dallas Foundation contends that the settlement agreement is unfair to it?

A. No.

Q. Does the Dallas Foundation contend that the settlement agreement is unfair to Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?

A. I don't know.

Q. As the person who authorized the filing of the objection on behalf of the Dallas Foundation, do you have any reason to believe that the terms of the settlement are unfair to the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?

A. I do not.

Q. Are you aware that under the settlement agreement, the HMIT entities and the Highland entities are releasing each other from all liabilities except for the liabilities arising under the settlement agreement?

A. I'm assuming that's what the settlement is intended to do.

Q. And the Dallas Foundation doesn't have any concern about the scope of the mutual releases; is that fair?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Objection to form.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. As the person who authorized the filing of the objection on behalf of the Dallas Foundation, do you recall there being any statement in the objection where the Dallas Foundation expressed any concern at all about the scope of the mutual releases that are in the settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form. The document speaks for itself. I mean, if you want to show it to her and ask her to find it, that's fine.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. You can answer, ma'am.

A. I don't --

Q. I'm sorry?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. Okay. Thank you.

Are you aware of any facts that could give rise to a claim by the Dallas Foundation against any Highland entity?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Repeat the question.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Are you aware of any facts that would support a claim by the Dallas Foundation against Highland Capital Management, LP, or the Highland Claimant Trust?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you understand the basis for the Dallas Foundation's objection?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you articulate that for me. What's your understanding of the basis of the Dallas Foundation's objection?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Our objection --

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Pardon me? What's that, ma'am?

ATTORNEY OKIN: I said I object to the form of the question.

Go ahead. You can answer.

A. Our objection is based on -- and I've said this before -- the fact that there's been irregular significant erosion of the assets to date by the party who seems to control a lot of the liquidity flows and oversight of the assets.

And so with the backdrop of all of the work we're doing in the Cayman Islands to recover 300-plus million dollars, this seemed not insignificant to protect the $25 million for these two supporting organizations.

So as this happens on Wednesday, what we've learned is that every opportunity we can to slow down decisions that are made give us time to understand where -- what is happening with these charitable assets and where they are.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Mark Patrick does not have the authority to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of each of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form of the question.

A. I don't know what authority he has to enter into that.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you have any facts that you can share with me that suggest that Mr. Patrick does not have the legal authority to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of any of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form of the question.

A. I don't.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Is it your understanding that Mr. Patrick was required to obtain the Dallas Foundation or Crown Global's consent before entering into this settlement agreement?

A. I think what we would have appreciated and what had been our business as usual was information prior to and during anything that involved the assets under our aegis.

Q. Do you know if any of the HMIT entities had an obligation or duty to provide information to the Dallas Foundation or Crown Global before entering into the settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form of the question.

A. I don't --

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. I'm sorry. Ms. Diaz, you don't know?

A. I don't contractually know that. But whether it's authority that he was given or assumed, he should have communicated with us.

Q. Should he have communicated with you before filing a lawsuit against the Highland -- withdrawn.

Do you believe that Mr. Patrick should have communicated with the Dallas Foundation before filing a lawsuit on behalf of Hunter Mountain Investment Trust against Highland, Mr. Seery, and others?

A. I don't know.

Q. You don't have a view on that; is that fair?

A. Fair.

Q. I apologize if I asked this, but do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Patrick was required to obtain either the Dallas Foundation's or Crown Global's consent before entering into the settlement on behalf of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form of the question.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the Dallas Foundation or Crown Global has -- withdrawn.

Do you know if the Dallas Foundation has a direct ownership interest in any of the HMIT entities that are party to the settlement agreement?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global has a direct ownership interest in any of the HMIT entities that are party to the settlement agreement?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation has an indirect ownership interest in any of the HMIT entities that are party to the settlement agreement?

A. Indirect ownership?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form of the question.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Did you ever ask anybody?

A. No.

Q. No?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global has an indirect ownership interest in any of the HMIT entities that are party to the settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form of the question.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation has any right to control any of the HMIT entities?

A. No.

Q. No, you don't know; or, no, they don't have that right?

A. No, we don't have that right.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global has the right to control any of the HMIT entities?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation has the right to approve transactions that are entered into by any of the HMIT entities?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global has the right to approve any transaction that's entered into by any of the HMIT entities?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global or the segregated accounts has any right to control any of the HMIT entities?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if Crown Global or the segregated accounts has any right to approve transactions that any of the HMIT entities might enter into?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if any of the HMIT entities were required to obtain the segregated accounts' consent before entering into the settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form of the question.

A. I don't know.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Okay. We're going to put up on the screen -- Nathan, can you please put up on the screen the Dallas Foundation's objection.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. And while we wait, Ms. Diaz, I will tell you that, you know, the good news with COVID -- or at least one piece of the good news -- is that we learned to do these remote depositions so people don't have to travel and it's much less expensive for clients.

The bad news is that I'm not in the room with you and we have to put documents on the screen, and sometimes that can be a little bit cumbersome.

The Dallas Foundation's objection is fairly lengthy. This is not a test at all. I am going to point to certain parts of the objection. But if you believe that you need to see any other portion of the document, will you let me know that so that I give you a chance to be fully informed?

A. Yes.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Okay. I think it's towards the end, Nathan, paragraph 32.

This will be -- let's just call it Highland 1.

(Whereupon, Exhibit Highland 1 was marked for identification and is attached hereto.)

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. So we've got up on the screen paragraph 32 of the objection. And the third sentence states, "Unfortunately, it does not appear, however, that joint official liquidators are parties to or have authorized the settlement."

Do you see that?

A. I see it.

Q. Okay. Are you aware that joint official liquidators were appointed by a Cayman court?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the entity over which the joint official liquidators were appointed?

A. I've met with them.

Entity?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Ms. Diaz, maybe you need the question repeated. You seem to be confused by the wrong part of it.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Thank you, Matt. That's fine. That's fine. I'll ask the question again.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Can you identify the entity that's the subject of the Cayman Islands liquidation proceeding?

A. Yes; the DAF Holdco.

Q. Are you aware that all of the HMIT entities are Delaware corporations? Withdrawn.

Are you aware that all of the HMIT entities were formed under the laws of the State of Delaware?

A. Sounds familiar.

Q. And have you ever communicated with the joint official liquidators?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you do that?

A. Two weeks ago.

Q. Did you make them aware of Highland's motion to have the settlement between the Highland entities and the HMIT entities approved?

A. I'd have to look at my calendar.

Q. Do you need your calendar to refresh your recollection as to whether or not you informed them of the Highland settlement motion?

A. I would want to make sure that the day I met with them is clear in my mind as to this versus when we've talked to them.

Q. Fair enough.

A. As you can imagine, there's been a lot of detail around all of these cases.

Q. Sure. And I don't mean to be disrespectful at all, ma'am. I apologize if you took it that way.

Do you recall ever making the joint official liquidators aware of the Dallas Foundation's objection to the settlement motion?

A. As I said, I don't know if we've made them aware of the objection, except as it relates to ancillary activity that we're concerned about regarding Mark Patrick.

So this was filed on June 9th, and I would want to make sure that I spoke with them before or after that; and I don't have that.

Q. Do you know if anybody provided a copy of the Dallas Foundation's objection to the joint official liquidators?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Did you ever consider doing that?

A. I will after today.

Q. Do you know if anybody asked the joint official liquidators to make an appearance in this case?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Did you ever ask the joint official liquidators to appear in this case?

A. We've already precluded that we don't know whether I've actually talked to them about this case, so that's moot; right?

Q. Okay. Do you believe that Mr. Patrick was required to obtain the joint official liquidators' authorization before entering into the settlement agreement?

A. I don't know that.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form of the question.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. I'm sorry, ma'am. What did you say?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Did you have any reason to believe that Mr. Patrick was required to obtain the joint official liquidators' consent before entering into this settlement agreement?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the joint official liquidators have any authority to reject the proposed settlement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. A little bit further down, towards the bottom of this paragraph, there's a reference, it says that the Court-appointed fiduciary, quote, may -- withdrawn.

It says:

"Indeed, many of Mr. Patrick's actions, including the insertion of newly created entities into the fund's structure for the apparent purpose of diverting charitable assets, will now be subject to the scrutiny of an independent, Court-appointed fiduciary and may be subject to clawback or other avoidance actions in the Cayman liquidation or such other tribunal as has jurisdiction."

Do you see that?

A. No. You need to scroll down on the --

Q. It's just at the end of paragraph 32 here. It's the last sentence of 32.

A. And so what's your question?

Q. I just want to make sure that you and I are on the same page, because I'm going to ask some questions about this sentence.

A. Yeah.

Q. You're not an expert in Cayman Islands law; fair?

A. Fair.

Q. You're not a lawyer, are you?

A. Nope.

Q. You're not an expert on clawback or other avoidance actions, as that phrase is used in the Dallas Foundation's objection in paragraph 32; fair?

A. Fair.

Q. Do you have any understanding as to what facts must be established to succeed in a clawback or other avoidance action?

A. Repeat the question.

Q. Do you have any understanding as to what facts somebody needs to prove in order to succeed on a clawback or other avoidance action?

A. Not in a corporate setting.

Q. Is there any other type of setting that would pertain to the Dallas Foundation's claims against Mr. Patrick?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Do you have a view as to the likelihood that the Dallas Foundation might succeed in clawing back or asserting another avoidance action to set aside the settlement agreement if it's approved by the bankruptcy court?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. And you don't have a view; is that fair?

A. No, I just really don't know --

Q. If we could --

A. -- whether we will.

Q. Okay. You would have to speculate; is that fair?

A. Yes.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Can we scroll down to paragraph 33, please.

ATTORNEY OKIN: John, how much longer do you anticipate going? We talked about these being an hour and a half.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Correct. And we started at exactly 2:37 New York time. I expect to finish at 4:07 New York time.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Are we doing additional questions from anybody else?

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Mr. Phillips, do you have any questions?

You're on mute, sir.

We'll be done in the 90 minutes.

ATTORNEY PHILLIPS: Not at this time.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Okay. Thank you.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. So in paragraph 33, it says at the end, quote: "Even if approved by this Court, consummation of the settlement is not likely to buy the peace the debtor now seeks."

Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware of anything in the Dallas Foundation's objection that suggests the Highland parties have done anything wrong here?

A. Repeat that question.

Q. Is there anything in the Dallas Foundation objection that you read and authorized to be filed that suggests that any of the Highland parties have done anything wrong?

ATTORNEY PHILLIPS: I'm going to object to that question because you said that she read and authorized it to be filed.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: I apologize. I apologize. Thank you.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Let me start again, Ms. Diaz.

Do you recall whether there's anything in the Dallas Foundation objection that asserts that any of the Highland parties have done anything wrong in connection with the entry into the settlement agreement?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Are you aware of any facts that cause you to believe that any of the Highland entities did anything wrong in negotiating and entering into the settlement agreement?

A. I don't know.

Q. If you're not aware of any facts suggesting that Highland has engaged in wrongdoing, do you know why the Dallas Foundation has informed the Court that consummation of the settlement is not likely to buy the peace the debtor now seeks?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I'll abstain from answering that.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. That's not a thing, respectfully.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: If -- Matt, if you want to just help your witness out.

ATTORNEY OKIN: You want me to give her the answer?

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Well, there's no abstention, so you have to answer the question, ma'am.

ATTORNEY OKIN: As best you can answer it, Ms. Diaz, answer it. If you can't answer it, tell him you can't answer it.

A. And I'll just say, when you say "Highland," you want to be more specific?

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Sure. Highland Capital Management, LP, the Highland Claimant Trust or the Highland Litigation Subtrust.

A. And so repeat the question.

Q. Okay. If you don't have any facts suggesting that they've done anything wrong, why did the Dallas Foundation inform the Court, at the end of paragraph 33, that consummation of the settlement is not likely to buy the peace the debtor now seeks?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. You can answer.

ATTORNEY OKIN: If you can answer it.

A. Again, I'll just repeat that the peace that the debtor seeks will be tainted because of the harm that will come to the Dallas Foundation.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Anything else?

A. No.

Q. Is the Dallas Foundation considering bringing any claims against Highland, the Highland Claimant Trust or any of its fiduciaries?

A. (No audible response.)

Q. I'm sorry, ma'am. Did you answer?

A. I did. I said, "No."

Q. Thank you.

In paragraph 34 --

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Yeah, right there. Thank you Nathan --

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. -- it says, quote: "There is ample evidence that Mr. Patrick has acted and is acting well outside the scope of his authority and fiduciary obligations."

Have I read that correctly?

A. Yes.

Q. Focusing solely on the settlement agreement, do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Patrick is acting outside of the scope of his authority in entering into the settlement agreement on behalf of each of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. And I don't know.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Focusing solely on the settlement agreement, do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Patrick is breaching his fiduciary obligations by entering into the settlement agreement on behalf of each of the HMIT entities?

A. I don't know.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Can we scroll up to paragraph 16, please.

Do you see paragraph 16 concerns material nonpublic inside information?

A. Yes.

Q. And was Mr. Dondero the source of the information in this particular paragraph?

A. No.

Q. Who was?

A. My attorneys.

Q. That's how you learned about it; is that fair?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see there's a reference to a put option in the last line of this paragraph?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you generally familiar with that put option?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you know who the counterparty is for that put option?

A. No, I don't.
Q. You don't know?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever ask?
A. I'm sure when we --
ATTORNEY OKIN: Louis, you're not on mute, by the way.
BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:
Q. Go ahead, Ms. Diaz. I'm sorry.
A. I'm sure when we received the contribution, we asked. And you can ask our CFO that question.
My understanding from the original call in Labor Day weekend to our attorney was that we should call the put. That was a 10-year, I believe, and this would have been at year 7; and we didn't understand why he would be calling to ask that. And ...
Q. Has the Dallas Foundation exercised the put as of today?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. Why not?
A. We stopped all activity because this, again, was the beginning of, why is somebody doing that, not giving us the information, not talking to us directly; and that -- and at advice of counsel, we -- we have been very careful with any of our activities to date.

Q. And do you know what material nonpublic inside information Mr. Patrick supposedly misused?

A. I'll just tell you the quote he gave us, which was Jim Dondero's spiraling out of control and you need to do this because nothing appears to be what it is.

Q. He didn't tell you who -- withdrawn.

Is that your basis for alleging that he had material nonpublic inside information --

A. I'll -- well, I guess, I can't abstain. I don't know.

Q. Do you have any other --

A. If my --

Q. I'm sorry.

A. Well, if my attorney says, "Don't do that," we don't do it.

Q. I appreciate that. I don't quarrel with you. I'm just trying to learn facts here.

Can you identify any information that you believe Mr. Patrick had that constitutes material nonpublic inside information, as that phrase is used in the Dallas Foundation's objections?

A. Right.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Hold on, John. I assume you're not -- I assume we're talking about information that's no longer nonpublic?

ATTORNEY MORRIS: If -- if you all want to mark this -- I don't know what it is, Matt, so I can't say. And it's not my information either. So I'm happy to mark it confidential if you really prefer.

ATTORNEY OKIN: I -- I don't even know if she knows the answer to the question.

A. I don't know the answer to that. But I will tell you that we quickly got a call from Skyview saying that Mark Patrick was no longer employed there and that that was confidential, yeah, insider information.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Oh, so somebody at Skyview told you that; is that fair?

A. That's fair.

Q. And who was that at Skyview?

A. Well, it was an attorney for Skyview.

Q. Was it D.C. Sauder?

A. No. A woman.

Q. Okay. So a female attorney at Skyview told you that Mark Patrick had been terminated and that he had material nonpublic inside information.

Do I have that right?

A. That they were investigating him and understood that we had called the -- he had called -- told us to call the put option.

Q. Okay. But as you sit here today, you're not able to tell me what material nonpublic inside information Mr. Patrick supposedly had; fair?

A. Fair.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Ma'am, thank you so much. I appreciate your time.

Matt, thank you for a professional deposition.

We'll see you all, I guess, in a little bit for the next deposition.

Thanks, folks.

THE COURT REPORTER: Do you want a copy of the transcript?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Yes, rushed, please. Whenever John gets it.

ATTORNEY PHILLIPS: Yes, expedited, like everybody else.

THE COURT REPORTER: Mr. Lang, do you want a copy of the transcript?

ATTORNEY LANG: Yes, please.

(Whereupon, at 3:08 p.m. Central Time, the proceedings concluded.)

WHEREUPON,

TORREY LITTLETON,

being first duly sworn or affirmed to testify to the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, was examined and testified as follows:

EXAMINATION

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Actually, I just want to start by apologizing to the witness that I did not tell him that Sunday depositions were casual. Thanks for dressing up.

A. I appreciate it. No worries.

Q. And for some of us, Mr. Littleton, every day is Sunday unless we're going to court.

It's nice to meet you, sir.

A. Same here.

Q. Can you hear me okay, sir?

A. Yes, I can hear you.

Q. Okay. Good afternoon. My name is John Morris. I'm an attorney at a law firm who represents Highland Capital Management, LP, and the Highland Claimant Trust. And we're here today for your deposition in connection with the Dallas Foundation's objection to a certain proposed settlement agreement between Highland and some affiliates and some entities that are controlled by Mark Patrick.

Do you understand that?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever been deposed before, sir?

A. No. This is my first time.

Q. Okay. It's not -- just relax. It's a -- it's a formal process, but it's not a complicated process. I'm going to ask you a series of questions, and it's very important that you let me finish my question before you begin your answer. Okay?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It's important that I allow you to finish your answer before I begin my next question; and if I fail to do that, will you let me know?

A. Yes, sir, I will.

Q. Do you understand that your testimony today is being transcribed by Gail, the court reporter?

A. Yes.

Q. So everything you and I say is going to be written down verbatim, or that's the goal anyway.

Do you understand that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Okay. If there's a question that I ask that you don't understand, will you let me know and I'll try to rephrase it?

A. Yes.

Q. From time to time your lawyer might object to some of my questions. It will give -- it's formal, legal stuff, lawyer stuff. It gives me a chance to think about whether there's a legal infirmity in my question, and it gives me an opportunity to rephrase it if I want.

But unless he directs you not to answer, I'm going to ask you to answer the question anyway. Okay?

A. Okay.

Q. Just so you're not surprised by the process.

If you need a break for any reason at any time, let me know, and I'll try to accommodate you as long as a question is not pending. Okay?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you affiliated with the Dallas Foundation, sir?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. In what capacity?

A. I am the CFO here at the Dallas Foundation.

Q. How long have you been the CFO of the Dallas Foundation?

A. I've been the CFO here since January 1st of 2022, but I've been with the organization for 13 years.

Q. And what are your duties and responsibilities as the CFO?

A. As the CFO, my main duty is to ensure the proper oversight and fiduciary stewardship of our charitable assets. That means having fiduciary oversight of our investments, our financial reporting, any legal aspects that may impact the foundation in any capacity.

I also serve as a board director as relates to some of our supporting organizations, part of our conversation here today with Empower Foundation and the Okada Family Foundation.

Q. Are you a lawyer?

A. No, sir.

Q. Are you familiar with a company called Highland Capital Management, LP?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you aware that that entity filed for bankruptcy a number of years ago?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Are you aware that that entity used to be controlled by a gentleman named Jim Dondero?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. Are you aware that the Dallas Foundation recently filed an objection in the bankruptcy court overseeing Highland's bankruptcy and the objection pertaining to a proposed settlement agreement between Highland and certain affiliates and certain entities that are controlled by Mr. Patrick?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you review that objection before it was filed?

A. Yeah, I read through the objections. But for the most part, I rely on our legal team to give us a summary and kind of walk us through some of the pertinent details.

Q. Are you familiar with the entities that Mr. Patrick signed that agreement on behalf of?

A. Yeah; I believe it's the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust.

Q. Right. And you're aware that in addition to the Hunter Mountain -- can we refer to Hunter Mountain Investment Trust as "HMIT" today?

A. Yes.

Q. And are you aware that certain affiliates of HMIT are also party to the settlement agreement that is the subject of this proceeding?

A. I am.

Q. And can we refer to HMIT and those affiliates that are party to the agreement as "the HMIT entities"?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. It's going to make our day a little bit quicker and a little bit easier.

A. Sure.

Q. Do you know who approved the filing of the objection on behalf of the Dallas Foundation?

A. Yeah, so it was approved by President Julie Diaz.

Q. Anybody else?

A. Then our legal team helped us kind of put together the objection.

Q. Do you know, have you ever met Jim Dondero?

A. I have never met him personally, no.

Q. Have you ever spoken with him?

A. I think I was on one conference call with him one time that I can recall.

Q. Okay. Do you know if he had any role in the preparation of the Dallas Foundation's objection?

A. I didn't have any exposure with Mr. Dondero. So, no, I do not know.

Q. Do you know where the idea of filing the objection originated? Like, whose idea was it?

A. Yes -- yes.

Q. Whose idea was it to file the objection?

A. Well, it's a combination of the Empower and Okada Foundation boards. Just looking at some of the investment activity that transpired through the first quarter, we had some concerns about the activity. And a portion of that activity was the sale of Hunter Mountain interests through the Rand PE Fund I that ultimately rolled up to the Atlas, LP Fund, which impacted the economic value of the portfolio that's held by Crown Global.

Q. That's why the -- let's unpack that a little bit. I asked where did the -- who came up with the idea of objecting? Let's take that first.

A. Sure, sure. Yeah, I think it was the board of the foundations, so primarily Julie Diaz and myself just kind of thinking through the activity that we became aware of.

Q. And Mr. Dondero is a member of the board; right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And it's just the three of you; correct?

A. That's correct.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. The Dallas Foundation's objection refers to certain litigation pending in the Cayman Islands.

Are you aware of that?

A. Yes.

Q. Are you aware that Mr. Dondero is funding that litigation on behalf of the supporting organizations that commenced it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you're aware that he's funding this litigation on behalf of the Dallas Foundation; correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Do you know why Empower Dallas Foundation and the Okada Family Foundation didn't just file the objection in their own name rather than having the Dallas Foundation do it for them?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I think we looked it as the Dallas Foundation is the supporting organization of the two entities. And we felt that the Dallas Foundation and our president, Julie Diaz, we just decided to file it under the foundation based on a recommendation from our legal counsel.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Are you aware that the objection is also filed on behalf of Crown Global Life Insurance, Limited?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. And what is Crown Global Life Insurance, Limited?

A. The Crown Global Life Insurance, Limited, is an issuer of insurance annuities.

Q. What -- what role does it play with respect to the Dallas Foundation?

A. Yeah, so it plays a role more so with the Empower Dallas and Okada Family Foundation. They each hold policies with Crown Global through the insurance annuities. So the legal contract is between Empower Dallas and Okada Family Foundation with Crown Global.

Q. And -- and is the withdrawn.

Does the annuity pay dividends or make other distributions?

A. Yeah, it makes distributions to the fund as fixed payments through the contract, yes, sir.

Q. And do those fixed payments go directly from Crown Global to Empower Dallas and the Okada Family Foundation respectively?

A. That's correct.

Q. And do you know what the annuities are invested in?

A. I don't know the actual underlying investments. I know the annuities have within them the Atlas IDF, LP Fund, and that they -- what ultimately rolls up is the Rand Fund I, the Beacon Mountain and the Hunter Mountain, HMIT, ultimately rolls up.

Q. And is -- are the annuities the sole source of Empower Dallas and the Okada Family Foundation's income, to the best of your knowledge?

A. That's correct, yes, sir.

Q. And does a portion of that income then flow up to the Dallas Foundation?

A. Well, the income doesn't flow to the Dallas Foundation. What does happen is, as Empower and the Okada Family Foundations make recommendations, those recommendations flow to the Dallas Foundation, to the corresponding donor-advised fund; and then ultimately those donor-advised funds make the grants out to the community.

We typically don't get any of the income through the Crown Global vehicle -- the Dallas Foundation doesn't get any income through the Crown Global vehicle.

Q. Is there anybody in the room with you right now?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any device on other than the computer that we're sharing right now?

A. No. I have a fan on. Is it causing feedback?

Q. No, but I have a fan on too. Maybe it's --

A. Okay. Sorry. Yeah. Sorry about that.

Q. Do you have any notes or anything that you're reading from or that you're looking at?

A. No, sir, no.

Q. Okay. So there are these annuities. How did those annuities get funded? Do you know?

A. Yes. So back in 2015, I believe, in November of 2015, we funded the annuities with about $29 million. So contributions from -- I think it was about $22 million from the -- Mr. Dondero, and then I believe another $7 million from Mr. Okada, which ultimately were sent over to Crown Global to invest in the annuities.

Q. And under the annuities, they pay fixed amounts to both supporting organizations?

A. Yes, sir, that's correct.

Q. And is there any market risk that the supporting organizations have, or is this a -- is it your understanding that it's a contractual obligation of Crown Global to pay that fixed amount for some duration?

A. Yeah, I believe Crown Global takes the risk. They have to pay a fixed amount through the obligation. I believe they take an M&E expense, which compensates for the risk.

Q. What's that last piece? I missed --

A. The M&E expenses, it's part of their -- we receive their statements quarterly. They have an administrative fee that they take, and then they have what they call an M&E expense, which it was explained a while back that's a percentage that they take to compensate for the risk associated with insurance annuities.

Q. And is the annuity tied to a -- is it a fixed period of time, or is it tied to a particular event?

A. That, I cannot answer.

Q. Okay. But is it fair to say that the supporting organizations paid money to Crown Royal -- Crown Global -- it's getting late. Sorry.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Sounds good.

THE WITNESS: No. Sounds good, yeah.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Let me restate the question.

Is it your understanding that the supporting organizations paid money to Crown Global; and in exchange, they got annuities which produced a fixed stream of income for a period of time in the future? Is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. And that the assets -- the segregated accounts themselves are owned by Crown Global; correct?

A. I believe the Atlas IDF Fund, I believe Crown Global has partnership interests in that particular fund. I don't think they have any ownership of the other underlying segregated accounts. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Do the segregated accounts hold anything other than the annuities? Withdrawn.

Do the segregated accounts hold the annuities?

A. The segregated accounts, not to my knowledge do they hold the annuities. What I believe hold the annuities is the Atlas IDF, LP Fund holds the annuities.

Q. But Crown Global is the one who takes the risk with respect to the investments in the annuities; correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And do they take the risk as well with respect to the value of Atlas, for example?

A. Yes, they do take the risk with the value of Atlas.

Q. So whether Atlas is worth a dollar or a billion dollars, Crown Global has the same obligation to the supporting organizations to pay the fixed stream of income that it agreed to when it sold the annuity to them; correct?

A. That's my understanding.

Q. Okay. So that regardless of the value of the segregated accounts, the supporting organizations are guaranteed to receive the exact same amount of money over time as long as Crown Global complies with its obligations in the annuity contract; correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation ever appeared in the Highland bankruptcy before it filed this objection?

A. No, sir, I don't believe we did.

Q. And as the CFO, is it fair to say that you know that the Dallas Foundation never filed a claim in the Highland bankruptcy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you also know that the Dallas Foundation does not have an interest in the Highland Claimant Trust that was formed as part of the plan of reorganization?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Withdrawn. Let me lay a little bit of foundation.

Are you familiar with an entity called the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Does the Dallas Foundation have, directly or indirectly, any interest in the Highland Claimant Trust?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. What I could say is that it depends on the settlement with relationship with Hunter Mountain and indirectly with the roll-up that the beneficial interest to Empower and Okada Foundation and how that settlement impacts the economic interest there. I think that's where the Dallas Foundation could indirectly have some interest. While we're not the sole ownership of the Crown Global policy, we do have a relationship with Empower Dallas and the Okada supporting organizations.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Well, you don't have an interest in what, did you say? The annuities?

A. We do have an interest in the annuity contracts.

Q. The Dallas Foundation didn't fund the annuity contracts; correct?

A. No, we did not fund them. But --

Q. And the Dallas Foundation doesn't own the annuity contracts; correct?

A. No, we don't own the annuity contracts. But what we do is we do have a fiduciary responsibility for any relationship that they financially to protect, preserve and to grow these charitable assets. And, ultimately, the supporting organizations, they roll up into our financial statements.

Q. Is it your understanding that Crown Global has a duty to distribute -- withdrawn.

Is it your understanding that Crown Global has a duty to make distributions to the Dallas Foundation?

A. No, sir. They make distributions to Empower and Okada supporting organizations.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Crown Global owes any duty at all to the Dallas Foundation with respect to the annuities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. There's no direct responsibility from Crown Global to the Dallas Foundation. But because of our relationship with Okada and Empower, there is an indirect relationship there, that we have an interest.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. And let's go beyond the annuities.

Do you know whether Crown Global has any direct duty to the Dallas Foundation for any reason?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I'm going to say not directly.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Thank you.

Does the Dallas Foundation carry on its balance sheet any interest in the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation has any contractual relationship with Highland Capital Management or the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. No, sir, we don't.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe today that Highland Capital Management or the Highland Claimant Trust owes any duties or obligations to the Dallas Foundation?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I wouldn't say there was any duties or obligations to the Dallas Foundation. But I do think we have, again, some interest in the settlements and how the funds originally were supposed to flow up to Empower and Okada.

Empower and Okada, they roll up to the Dallas Foundation's financial statements. So I think there is some indirect interest in Highland Capital Claimant Trust and the decisions that are being made as it relates to the settlement.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. I'm going to respectfully move to strike and ask you to listen carefully to my question --

A. Yes, sir.

Q. -- and this will go very smoothly.

Do you have any reason to believe that Highland Capital Management or the Highland Claimant Trust owes any duties or obligations to the Dallas Foundation?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Objection; form.

THE WITNESS: My apologies.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Go ahead.

A. No, sir.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Are you aware that if the settlement between the Highland entities and the HMIT entities is approved, that the HMIT entities will receive cash and other assets as set forth in the agreement?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the Dallas Foundation has a right to receive any of the cash or other assets that would be delivered to HMIT if the settlement is approved?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Like I say based on the facts is that the interest in HMIT were sold for a million dollars. So I believe the current structure as of now, the two supporting organizations would not receive any settlements. They would not have any economic benefit of the settlement payout.

Based on the historical structure, yes, I would have said yes. We had interest in that settlement that would ultimately impact the fair market values for Empower and Okada.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Are you familiar with the fair market value of Empower and Okada?

A. So the fair market value is through the insurance annuity. So based on the --

Q. I'm sorry. Through the insurance what?

A. It's the insurance through Crown Global, so they produce a fund statement on a quarterly basis. We use that to state the fair market value.

Q. And is the fair market value based on anything other than the projected future income stream that you described earlier?

A. I believe there is impact related to some of the sub accounts. One thing we do know is in February of 2025, we saw the fair market value increased by 918,000 due to the sale of Rand's interest in Hunter Mountain. So we do believe there are other assets that impact the fair market value.

Q. But that's the fair market value of the annuities; is that right?

A. The sale of the Rand -- the interest in the Hunter Mountain, the Rand?

Q. Yeah, yeah. Is what you're describing the fair market value of the annuities that flows up to the supporting organizations?

A. I believe we have a couple of investments that are within the Crown Global structure. I think you have insurance annuities, and then you have other assets that are also within that structure through the Atlas platform. The way I understand it, the Atlas platform allows for other alternative investments to be wrapped within the insurance annuities.

Q. Did the supporting organizations have an ownership interest in Crown Global?

A. Yeah. They hold the policy, right? The supporting organizations hold the policy through Crown Global, so absolutely.

Q. And the policy that you're referring to are the annuity policies?

A. The annuity policies, that's correct.

Q. And, again, just for clarity, it does not matter to the supporting organization what the value of the assets that are held by Crown Global is; what matters is the agreed-upon future flow of distributions; fair?

A. That's fair, yes, sir. Yes.

Q. Are you familiar at all with the structure of the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. Not with the Highland Claimant Trust, no. I'm familiar with the structure of the -- the Rand structure here as relates to the Empower Dallas, and then I'm familiar with the DAF Holdco structure.

Q. Are you familiar with the HMIT structure?

A. I'm familiar -- I know how the structure flows up to the Atlas IDF Fund.

Q. Have you reviewed any of the governing documents for HMIT or any of the Rand funds or any of the Atlas funds? Have you ever reviewed the governing documents?

A. At a high level, I took a glance at the governing documents to get an understanding of the flow. I've seen organizational flow charts to kind of give me an idea of who owns what and how does it roll up ultimately to Crown Global.

Q. Do you have any knowledge as to what, if any, role Crown Global played in the Highland bankruptcy?

A. No, sir.

Q. So we've talked about the Rand and the Atlas entities and Hunter Mountain, and we've referred to those that signed on to the agreement as "the HMIT entities"; right?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know why each of the HMIT entities was created? Do you know what purpose they served?

A. You know, I know that they create some vehicles that allow some different types of investments. I would imagine -- I don't know why the structures were created the way they were. We don't have that kind of insight. That's just an assumption.

Q. Can you identify any assets that HMIT owns today?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were you ever able to identify any assets that HMIT owned?

A. No.

Q. In your duties as the CFO for the Dallas Foundation, did you ever make an inquiry as to what assets HMIT owned?

A. We made an inquiry to the Atlas structure unsuccessfully over the years because they were able to get to the underlying assets to have a clear understanding of the holdings; so, no, I couldn't tell you that I was successful in understanding the underlying assets.

Q. So you've been the CFO for three years now --

A. Yes, sir.

Q. -- and a half?

But you were with the organization for about six; right?

A. For 13, 13 total.

Q. Thank you.

So you've been with the organization long before Mark Patrick ever had any role with respect to the HMIT entities; right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. At any time that you've been with the Dallas Foundation, were you ever informed as to the assets that were held by HMIT?

A. No, sir.

Q. No; right?

A. That's correct -- no.

Q. Do you know today what assets are held by any of the HMIT entities?

A. No, sir.

Q. At any time during your tenure at the Dallas Foundation, were you ever informed as to what the assets were that any of the HMIT entities owned?

A. No, sir.

Q. Okay. And did you ever think that, as part of your duties and responsibilities working for the Dallas Foundation, that you needed to know that information?

A. Absolutely. Yeah, we inquired on multiple occasions to get our auditors comfortable with the investment vehicle.

Q. And you were never able to get that information, is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. And that was true for the entire time of your tenure at the Dallas Foundation?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. In the course of your duties, did you ever communicate with anybody who was acting on behalf of HMIT?

A. I had some communications with Mark Patrick, but I don't think he was over HMIT at the time. I don't know. So it's kind of hard to understand the transfer of a trustee or ownership or oversight those accounts had.

So at a high level, he was probably the person I tried to communicate with if we had any questions around the valuations.

Q. But it wasn't necessarily because he was wearing the HMIT hat; it was because he wore a lot of hats. Is that fair?

A. That's fair, yes.

Q. During the course of your tenure at the Dallas Foundation, did you ever once say to yourself, I need to speak to the guy who's the head of HMIT?

A. No, we've never said that.

Q. Okay. Did you ever say to yourself at any time during your tenure at the Dallas Foundation, I need to speak to the head of any of the HMIT entities?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation ever received anything of value from HMIT directly?

A. I can't say directly, no. I just assumed it had rolled up. It was -- we had some value through the structure, I would imagine.

Q. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation ever received anything of value directly from any of the HMIT entities?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know if any of the -- withdrawn.

Do you have any reason to believe that any of the HMIT entities owes a duty or obligation to the Dallas Foundation today?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form.

A. I believe that there's going to be impact to our economic interest in Crown Global. I do believe there's a fiduciary obligation to the Dallas Foundation to have communication if there are investment decisions that are being made that's going to impact that economic interest, positive or negatively.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Sorry. I may not have heard it clearly.

But do you believe that Highland Capital Management or the Highland Claimant Trust owes a fiduciary duty to the Dallas Foundation?

A. Sorry. No. No. No. I thought you said HMIT. Sorry.

Q. You know what? I probably did. Let's do that.

A. Yeah.

Q. Did you believe -- do you believe that any of the HMIT entities owes a fiduciary duty to the Dallas Foundation?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Again, I'll just restate what I said.

If it's starting to impact the economic interest for the value of the Crown Global policies, I do think there's a fiduciary obligation to have a conversation to inform of any investment decisions that are being made that could have significant impact to that value.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Are you aware that HMIT filed a motion in the bankruptcy court a couple of years ago seeking permission to file a lawsuit against Highland Capital Management and others?

A. Yes, sir, I am aware of that.

Q. You are.

Did HMIT seek the Dallas Foundation's approval before filing that motion?

A. No, sir, not that I'm aware of.

Q. Do you believe that HMIT was required to seek the Dallas Foundation's approval before filing that lawsuit?

A. Again, I think it -- I don't know if "seek approval" is the right language I would use. But I do think informing the Dallas Foundation, that this could impact the economic interests of Empower and Okada Foundation.

Q. And nobody ever told you that; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. How did you learn about the lawsuit that HMIT commenced against Highland and others a couple of years ago?

A. Well, as we kind of got -- one, it was kind of some news that was -- that came about through some other research. Currently, as of today, we have our legal team working, pulling together facts so they kind of reiterated some of the facts that could impact the overall case. So I will just lean on our legal team to kind of bring us up to speed on this fact-finding.

Q. Do you know who authorized the filing of that motion?

A. From HMIT?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form. Which motion do you mean, John?

ATTORNEY MORRIS: The same one we're talking about, the motion for permission from the bankruptcy court to sue Highland and other parties.

ATTORNEY OKIN: The one he told you he didn't even know about what was filed.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Hey, Matt, he did tell me. He actually did tell me --

ATTORNEY OKIN: He told you he heard about it after, but go ahead.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. So...

A. Yes, sir, I believe it was Mr. Mark Patrick that filed them.

Q. That authorized the filing of that lawsuit?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you think he did anything wrong in doing that?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. What I can say is that it has impact -- it can potentially have some impact on the -- it's convoluted. I can't say he did anything wrong with filing that motion. But if it's going to impact the Empower and Okada Foundation, which is why I'm here today, is to represent those supporting orgs, you know, I think we have interest in the decisions that he's making, right?

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. But we can agree that he never sought nor obtained the Dallas Foundation's approval to file that motion; correct?

A. Yes, sir, we can agree.

Q. And can we also agree that you only heard about that lawsuit after it was commenced or after the motion was filed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. Have you read the settlement agreement that is the subject of the Dallas Foundation's objection?

A. Yeah, I've got some high-level facts related to the settlement agreement. We had a legal team kind of -- again, we leaned on them to kind of pull out some of the important facts that could impact the Empower and Okada Foundation.

Q. Do you know generally what HMIT is proposing to give and receive under the settlement agreement?

A. Yes, sir, generally, I do know. I believe they're trying to release liability on some of the claims. I think that's part of the settlement agreement. I'm also aware that there are future payouts that will be made to Hunter Mountain.

Q. And are you aware of other assets that Hunter Mountain might receive if the settlement agreement is pursued?

A. Yes.

Q. And what other assets are you aware of?

A. I know there's a large sum of assets, you know, in the -- 300 million, I think that's the amount of it that I don't recall. But I couldn't go verbatim.

Q. It's not your understanding that there's $300 million worth of anything that's related to that agreement --

A. Oh, yeah, yeah, yeah. But, yeah, it's not -- it's not there -- I was thinking about there was some data around -- I apologize if I'm getting my facts confused.

Q. That's okay.

A. Yeah, actually, there's a -- as it relates to the Empower and Okada, I believe there was an impact of roughly 23-plus million dollars, potentially.

Q. But that has nothing to do with Highland; correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And it has nothing to do with this settlement agreement; correct?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Well, I think if it has impact, ultimately, again, to Empower and Okada, again, we sold our interest in Highland Capital Management -- or Hunter Mountain for a million dollars. So based on what we know is if there is a payout of $23 million, Empower and Okada, we won't benefit from it.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. So is it fair to say that the Dallas Foundation's concern is not with the terms of the settlement agreement itself but with the disposition of the assets that Hunter Mountain will receive if the settlement agreement is approved?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Well, the only thing I would say about that is we have individuals making some questionable decisions and, you know, with charitable assets. I believe Highland Dallas has entered into a settlement agreement with this individual. I think that's -- that's what I could say is somewhat problematic.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. What's problematic?

A. Oh, we have an individual that's shifting around charitable assets out of the responsibility of Empower and Okada; right? And, you know, Highland Capital has entered into an agreement with this individual. I think we all understand the facts that are at play.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the settlement agreement was not the product of an arm's-length, good-faith negotiation between adverse parties?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I can't say anything. Yeah, I wasn't a part of those conversations, so I can't opine.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. And you don't have any facts that would suggest that the settlement agreement is anything other than the product of good-faith, arm's-length negotiations; correct?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form.

A. I wasn't part of the conversation, so I can't opine. But what I can state is that I believe there's significant impact to the Okada and Empower Dallas Foundation.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. And that's as -- not as a result of the settlement agreement, but as a result of what the Dallas Foundation contends was the restructuring that Mr. Patrick engaged in earlier this year; fair?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. For the most part, I'd say that's fair.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Do you have any concerns that the settlement agreement is not the product of arm's-length, good-faith negotiations?

A. I'd have to restate that, again, we have an individual who's moving around charitable assets. And, again, I think we understand the facts of restructuring, and the agreement was made to settle with this individual. So from our standpoint, again, it impacts the two supporting organizations that we are here representing.

So I think there's two things at play. The negotiations that you had with this individual, I can't opine whether or not that it wasn't done in good faith; but the impact of that settlement agreement does impact Okada and Empower Dallas.

Q. And that's because as a result of Mr. Patrick's restructuring, the Dallas Foundation is concerned that it may not have -- it may not receive as much as it would have indirectly had the restructuring not taken place; fair?

A. That's fair.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Do you have any reason to believe that the proposed settlement is unfair to Highland Capital Management, LP?

A. Yeah, I don't have any reason to opine, no.

Q. Okay. Do you have any reason to opine as to whether or not the proposed settlement agreement is unfair to the Highland Claimant Trust?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any reason to opine that the proposed settlement agreement is unfair to the Highland Litigation Subtrust?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you have any reason to opine that the settlement agreement is unfair to Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?

A. No, sir. We can make good-faith settlements, given that there are facts that certain organizations or entities could be impacted, given what we've already talked about, what Mark Patrick has done with the restructuring.

Q. So two things can be true, at the same time --

A. Two things can be true.

Q. Two things can be true at the same time; right, sir? The settlement agreement can be a fair and reasonable settlement that's the product of arm's-length and good-faith negotiations; while at the same time, the Dallas Foundation can still have concerns over the disposition of the assets that Hunter Mountain receives as a result of this restructuring; fair?

A. I think for the most part, that's fair. The only caveat I would add to that is if I'm negotiating with an individual that we know is causing harm to other organizations, I just say maybe we don't care about that. But from our standpoint, we do.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the proposed settlement is unfair to any of the HMIT entities?

A. No, sir.

Q. Are you aware that under the settlement agreement, the HMIT entities are releasing the Highland parties from any liability other than that which arises out of the settlement agreement itself?

A. Yeah. I believe that was a part of the settlement. That's why we have the settlement. Yeah.

Q. Do you have any concern about the scope of the releases that the HMIT entities are providing?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. You can answer, sir.

A. No, sir; only as it impacts, how does it impact or potentially can impact lost income for Okada and Empower.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the granting of the releases in the proposed settlement agreement by the HMIT entities will have any impact at all on the supporting organizations?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Again, I think there's an economic interest in what does the settlement -- the loss of income streams to Empower and Okada, which we believe is true.

///

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. I'm just focused on the releases now.

A. Sure.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the releases that the HMIT parties are granting under the proposed settlement will have any economic impact on the supporting organizations?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No, sir.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Are you aware of any facts that could give rise to a claim by the Dallas Foundation against Highland?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Can you elaborate on that a little bit for me.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Sure.

So I'm just -- I'm wondering if you know of any facts that might give rise to a claim or a cause of action by the Dallas Foundation against Highland Capital Management.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Not directly, no, sir.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Are you aware of any facts that might give rise to a claim or cause of action that the Dallas Foundation could assert against the Highland Claimant Trust?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No, sir, not directly, no.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you understand the basis for the Dallas Foundation's objection to the proposed settlement?

A. Absolutely, yes, I do.

Q. Can you describe for me in your own words what your understanding is of the basis of the objection.

A. Yeah. We are aware that we sold Rand PE Fund, which rolls up to the Atlas IDF Fund, sold its interest in the Hunter Mountain for a million dollars; and we believe that we have significant future economic payments that would be paid out to Hunter Mountain that Empower and Okada would no longer benefit from.

Q. Is it fair to say that the Dallas Foundation is concerned, not with the terms of the settlement agreement itself, but with the possibility that it may not get its fair share of the consideration that the HMIT entities are to receive under the settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Yeah, for the most part, that's the key -- that's our concern.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Do you understand that Mark Patrick has entered into the settlement agreement with the Highland entities on behalf of each of the HMIT entities?

A. That's my understanding.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the governing documents for the HMIT entities did not authorize Mr. Patrick to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of each of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. You know, what I would say to that is, you know, regardless of the governing documents, I do believe there's a fiduciary obligation that Mr. Patrick had to the supporting organizations, to inform us of any significant investment decisions that could impact the economic interest in the Crown Global vehicle.

So I just believe that, you know, just like any trustee investment advisor/control person, those are just normal conversations that we expect to have; and we not did not have that in this situation.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Anything else?

A. No, sir.

Q. Okay. You don't believe that Mr. Patrick was required to obtain the Dallas Foundation's consent before entering into the settlement agreement; fair?

A. That's fair.

Q. And you don't have any reason to believe that the Dallas Foundation has any right or ability to prevent Mr. Patrick from entering into the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities; fair?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. You know, I think there's two things can be true again. I think there's documentation which I haven't seen, but, again, there's a fiduciary obligation to the interested parties, I believe, just as any relationship with an investment advisor or control person.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. And in your view, does the fiduciary duty that you believe Mr. Patrick had as the representative of the HMIT entities, does that extend anywhere beyond the duty to inform?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Well, I'm just trying to think about -- you know, we advised $650 million of assets under management. We have advisors all the time, before they make any decisions on the sale of investments, we're informed about it. They kind of let us know if it's going to have impact to our portfolios. And that's just an expectation that we have of any investment advisor or control person.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. I appreciate that you have that expectation. Do you have an expectation that the HMIT entities needed to obtain the Dallas Foundation's consent before entering into the settlement agreement?

A. I'm not a legal person. But I would imagine if you have the documentation legally, I don't know if you had to get our consent. It's more so just a fiduciary obligation.

Q. And, legally, do you have any reason to believe that the Dallas Foundation has a legal right over transactions that Mark Patrick, in his capacity as the representative of any of the HMIT entities, wanted to enter into?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. As an interested party, I think we have an ability to have conversations to see if this decision was made that negatively impacted the supporting organizations. I think we do have a right there to really understand why this decision was made. Why are we selling the interest for a million dollars? Why now? Why is the timing that happened now? Because if nothing happened, what we know is we would have benefited from the settlement payouts.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Does the Dallas Foundation have a direct ownership interest in any of the HMIT entities?

A. Not a direct ownership, no, sir.

Q. Does the Dallas Foundation have any indirect ownership interest in any of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Not directly. The Dallas Foundation does not.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. So no direct interest -- withdrawn.

No direct ownership interest and no indirect ownership interest; fair?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. We do have an interest in -- because the assets roll up to our balance sheet overall, they would present an audited financial statement. So we do have to understand the fluctuations in market value to explain not just to our board but to our auditors what's happened. So we do have indirect interest.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. And none of the HMIT entities appear as an asset on the Dallas Foundation's balance sheet; correct?

A. Not directly. But if they roll up and they feed into the Atlas IDF Fund, right, and then the Atlas IDF Fund, which is a part of the Crown Global annuities, feeds into our balance sheet, there is an indirect interest in HMIT.

Fair to say?

Q. Does any Atlas entity appear on the Dallas Foundation balance sheet?

A. Yeah, through the Crown Global annuity. So if you look at the Crown Global statement, it lists an Atlas LP as the investment vehicle.

Q. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation has any right to control any of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No, we can't directly control the HMIT entities.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you know if the Dallas Foundation has any right to approve or disapprove of any potential transaction that an HMIT entity was contemplating entering into?

A. Yeah, so with the Atlas IDF Fund, what I can say is the Empower and Okada, they do have the opportunity to consent.

We had some notes that were -- there were some notes that Mark Patrick wanted to sell in February. We had to get the consent of Crown Global in order to sell these notes; and we had -- we opined with Crown Global to withdraw consent, right?

So he did reach out to Crown Global for consent in which the Empower and Okada had an opportunity to provide our recommendation.

Q. Let's focus on the settlement agreement.

Do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Patrick was required to obtain the consent of the Dallas Foundation before he signed it on behalf of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Patrick was required to obtain the consent of the supporting organizations before entering into the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No, sir.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Patrick was required to obtain the consent of Crown Global before entering into the proposed settlement agreement on behalf of each of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No, sir.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that Crown Global has any right to control any of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Not that I'm aware of, no.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that -- we're going to move on.

So we're going to put up on the screen the Dallas Foundation's objection.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. It will just take a moment for my colleague to do that.

While he's doing that, let me just tell you that this can be a little bit of a cumbersome process. I'm doing this by Zoom. If there's any aspect of the document that you recall that you think you need to review to refresh your recollection or to put it in context, will you just let me know that so that I give you a full and fair opportunity to answer the questions?

A. Yes, sir.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Okay. Can we go to paragraph 32, please.

(Previously marked Highland Exhibit 1 introduced by counsel.)

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. So I've put up on the screen, Mr. Littleton, the portion of the Dallas Foundation's objection that was filed in this case.

And you're familiar with that document; is that right?

A. Yeah. I couldn't repeat it back to you verbatim, but I understand some of the high-level facts in this objection.

Q. You give me comfort when you say that. You should not be able to repeat verbatim what this document is. So --

ATTORNEY OKIN: And, Mr. Littleton, although he didn't say it this time, he did say it in the prior one: If you need to see any more of this in order to be able to answer his questions, be sure to point that out.

THE WITNESS: Absolutely.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: I actually did say that. That's okay.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Did you say that this time? I know you said it last time.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Sorry, I must be putting you to sleep.

ATTORNEY OKIN: That's a possibility.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Looking at the third line, I'm just going to read this quote: "Unfortunately, it does not appear, however, that joint official liquidators are parties to or have authorized the settlement."

Do you see that sentence?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know the entity over which the joint official liquidators were appointed?

A. Yes, sir. It's the DAF Foundation Holdco.

Q. And that's in the Cayman Islands; is that right?

A. Yes, sir; that's correct.

Q. Are you aware that all of the HMIT entities are Delaware organizations?

A. Yes, sir; that's correct.

Q. Have you ever communicated with the joint official liquidators?

A. No, not officially. We do have a planned communication this week.

Q. Do you know if anybody acting on behalf of the Dallas Foundation has ever informed the joint official liquidators of Highland's motion to have the settlement agreement approved?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know if anybody acting on behalf of the Dallas Foundation has provided a copy of the objection that's on the screen to the joint official liquidators?

A. Not that I'm aware of, sir.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe, as you sit here today, that the joint official liquidators have any knowledge of the settlement agreement that is going to be before the Court on Wednesday?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I can't directly say.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. You haven't had any communications with anybody in the world at any time that led you to believe that the joint official liquidators were informed of the proposed settlement agreement or the Dallas Foundation's objection; fair?

A. That's fair, sir.

Q. Okay. Do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Patrick was required to obtain the authorization of the joint official liquidators before entering into this settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No, sir, I can't. I can't speak to that.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Can you speak to whether or not the joint official liquidators have any right to veto or prevent the HMIT entities from entering into the settlement agreement?

A. Again, I'm not a legal person, so I can't really opine on the official capacity of the joint liquidators and what they're capable of doing and not doing. So I'm going to have to say, no, I can't answer that question.

Q. Further down in the paragraph it states that:

"Indeed, many of Mr. Patrick's actions, including the insertion of newly created entities into the fund's structure for the apparent purpose of diverting charitable assets will now be subject to the scrutiny of an independent, Court-appointed fiduciary and may be subject to clawback or other avoidance actions in the Cayman liquidation or such other tribunal as has jurisdiction."

Have I read that correctly, sir?

A. Yes, sir, you have.

Q. Okay. You're not an expert in Cayman Islands law; correct?

A. No, sir.

Q. I think you said earlier you're not a lawyer. Right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Do you have any understanding as to what facts must be established in order to succeed in a clawback or avoidance action?

A. It would just be assumption of mine that I would have, whether it's a breach of contract, discovery of various actions decision-making. But, no, I can't give you a legal opinion.

Q. Do you have any view at all as to likelihood that the supporting organizations or the Dallas Foundation might succeed in clawing back or succeeding in other avoidance actions to set aside the settlement agreement if it's approved by the Court?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

And I'll also just remind you, Mr. Littleton, to the extent it's implicated, don't go into attorney-client privileged information that you may have received.

A. Yeah, I can't -- I can't answer your question, Mr. Morris, on that one.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Is it fair to say you'd have to speculate as to whether or not -- let me just finish the question.

Is it fair to say that you would have to speculate as to whether or not the Dallas Foundation or anybody else might succeed in clawing back or avoiding the settlement agreement if it's approved by the Court?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. It would be my opinion. It would be speculation of how I feel, given the facts that I've seen and just some of the impact that we've seen on our supporting organizations; and I would just leave it there.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Okay. If we could scroll up to paragraph 33, please.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. The last sentence of paragraph 33 says: "Thus, even if approved by this Court, consummation of the settlement is not likely to buy the peace the debtor now seeks."

Do you see that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you have any reason to believe that the Highland parties have done anything wrong in entering into this proposed settlement agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. You know, what I would say is we have an individual, in Mr. Patrick, that's moving around charitable assets; and we -- Highland Capital or the Highland entities have settled -- have made a settlement agreement with this individual, knowing some of the facts of how the charities are being negatively impacted. That's -- that would be my comment there.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. I'm not asking about the impact on the charitable foundations, and I'm not asking about Mr. Patrick. I'm just asking if you have any facts that lead you to believe that Highland has engaged in any wrongdoing with respect to negotiation and entry into the proposed settlement agreement.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form. He answered your question.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. You can answer, sir.

A. No, sir. I'll just leave it as I stated. That was my answer.

Q. All right. So I didn't hear any facts, so you don't have any facts. Is that fair?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form; argumentative. Come on, John.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Matt, I'm being --

ATTORNEY OKIN: You asked him if they did anything wrong. He told you they did something wrong by -- (Indiscernible cross-talk.)

THE COURT REPORTER: I'm sorry. I can't understand you both when you are talking at the same time.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Mr. Littleton, are you aware of any facts that cause you to believe that the Highland parties have done anything wrong in entering into this agreement?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Again, I would just state that we have an individual who is moving around charitable assets, and I think we all are aware of the facts of what has taken place. Now, whether we want to consider that as anything wrong, in quotations, that's up for opinion.

In terms of "facts" facts, I can't -- no, I'm going to say, no, I don't have facts that I can with share you, Mr. Morris.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. And you don't even have any facts that suggest Highland had any role in moving the assets around that you just described; fair?

A. Yeah, I don't understand that Highland has moved around the assets. But I think when you're making a deal knowing that the individual that I'm settling with has done some things that are questionable, you know, I think that discussion can be up for debate, whether -- you know, charities are being impacted; significant dollars are not going to be going out to the community; there's a lot of uncertainty with these assets.

And we all know the facts. The facts are clearly outlined.

Q. Do you know why the Dallas Foundation contends that: "Even if approved by the Court, consummation of the settlement is not likely to buy the peace that the debtor now seeks"?

What's the basis for that, if you have any understanding at all?

A. That one there, sir, I'm not going to be able to answer that one for you.

Q. Are you aware of any potential claims that the Dallas Foundation is considering bringing against Highland Capital Management or the Highland Claimant Trust?

ATTORNEY OKIN: I'm going to instruct him not to answer that. To the extent that he would be aware of those, that would be --

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Why don't we just do "yes" or "no," Matt. Okay?

ATTORNEY OKIN: No. I think -- I think whether or not there are any claims and whether we're considering any claims is attorney-client privilege. It's not a "yes" or "no" or detail; it's a not answer.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: I'll ask him on Wednesday.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Okay.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Let's go to -- yeah, paragraph 34 says that "there is ample evidence that Mr. Patrick has acted and is acting well outside the scope of his authority and fiduciary obligations."

Do you see that?

A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. Okay. I want to focus solely on the negotiation and execution of the settlement agreement.

Focusing --

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Focusing solely on the settlement agreement, do you believe that Mr. Patrick acted outside of the scope of his authority to negotiate and enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of each of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form of the question.

A. Again, I think it's something that I've stated a few times now. Two things can be true. I think we've already agreed on that.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Which two things can be true here?

A. The good-faith conversation with the settlement; but at the same time, it could have a consequential impact on the Okada and Empower Dallas supporting organizations.

Q. Okay. Do you believe -- do you have any reason to believe that Mr. Patrick acted outside of his fiduciary obligations with respect to his negotiation and execution of the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form. Are you asking him personally or the organization that filed this?

ATTORNEY MORRIS: It's not a 30(b)(6) witness. I know the difference.

ATTORNEY OKIN: Just so we're clear.

A. Yeah, I do think there was a fiduciary obligation to inform and have a conversation with the interested parties.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. So, again, it's a duty to inform but nothing more; is that fair?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. Yeah, yeah, again, I think it's, you know, something that we all expect to have, again, with our investment advisors, control persons, trustees.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Okay. Can we go to paragraph 16, please.

Do you see paragraph 16 refers to material nonpublic information?

A. Yes, sir. I see it.

Q. Do you know what material nonpublic information is being referred to there?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever ask anybody?

A. No. I didn't want to get involved in that conversation, no, sir. I did not ask anybody.

Q. Do you know where -- withdrawn.

Do you know the Dallas Foundation's source of information that enabled it to state, upon information and belief, that the information provided was obtained by Mr. Patrick through his employment at Skyview and constituted MNPI?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. No, sir, I was not -- no.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. You don't know where that information came from?

A. No, sir.

Q. The next sentence refers to a put option.

Do you see that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did the foundation have a put option?

A. Yeah, the Highland Dallas Foundation had a put option agreement with the Dugaboy Investment Trust. I think we had 1.5 million shares of NexPoint Hospitality Trust. I think it was a contribution that was given in 2019 with the 7-year put option.

Q. And is that option now expired?

A. I believe it converted into a different investment vehicle now.

Q. So the Dallas Foundation never exercised that option; correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Why not?

A. We didn't have a -- we didn't feel we had any reason to exercise the put option.

Q. Did you ever do any analysis to try to determine what the economic impact would be on the Dallas Foundation if they actually exercised that put option?

A. We had some conversations with our internal investment advisor, and at the time his recommendation was not to make any changes or call the put option.

Q. Who was that advisor?

A. Madden & Associates at the time -- excuse me. Madden Asset Management.

Q. Do you have the shares to exercise the put today?

A. To be honest, Mr. Morris, there's a little bit of discovery we have to understand now that the shares have converted. I believe they converted to a different vehicle in April of this year.

Q. Are you aware that the Dallas Foundation lost $9 million by not exercising the put option before it converted?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. I think we -- so we do have some information that we just need to understand thoroughly about what's happened now that the assets transferred into a different vehicle.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Well, you're the CFO; right? And I think you said that your duty is to be responsible for the foundation's assets; right?

A. That's fair; yes, sir.

Q. Were you aware that the put was going to convert before it actually converted?

A. I was not aware of that. I was not informed of that.

Q. Were you ever told what the value would be to the Dallas Foundation if the Dallas Foundation exercised the put?

A. Yeah, I believe you're correct, it was in the ballpark range of $9 million.

Q. So is it fair to say that had the Dallas Foundation exercised the put, then it would have recovered $9 million?

A. Yeah, I think that's fair, yeah.

Q. What's the value of the shares that it received upon conversion? Do you know that?

A. No, I don't know that. We were just notified recently that the shares had converted.

Q. Is one of the reasons that you didn't exercise the put option is because Dugaboy, Mr. Dondero's family trust, was the counterparty?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to the form.

A. No, sir, that wouldn't be the reason.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Do you think Mark Patrick breached his fiduciary duty by telling the Dallas Foundation that it should consider exercising a put that was worth $9 million?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. You know, I think there was information that was not privy to individuals, so I don't know if we could rely on that information to make a decision.

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. This was a put that was owned by the Dallas Foundation; do I have that right?

A. The Highland Dallas Foundation, supporting organization.

Q. And what's the relationship between the Dallas Foundation and the Highland Dallas Foundation?

A. Very similar to the relationship between Empower Dallas and Okada Dallas. The Highland Dallas Foundation is the supporting org that we have indirect oversight of.

Q. And if the Highland Dallas Foundation had exercised the put, would that have inured to the benefit of the Dallas Foundation?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Object to form.

A. It ultimately would have. What it would have benefited was the supporting organization to allow for more impactful grant-making. So you would have had $9 million of liquidity that could be pushed out into the community.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Okay. How much time do I have left, Matt? I know you're watching.

ATTORNEY OKIN: I lost track, I was so enraptured by your questions.

18 minutes.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: You wouldn't be the first one.

Why don't we take a short break here. I've got 18 minutes left. If we could just take a five-minute break.

(Recess taken from 4:42 p.m. to 4:49 p.m.)

BY ATTORNEY MORRIS:

Q. Mr. Littleton, I think you answered this. If I did, I apologize.

Can you confirm for me that you've never communicated with the joint official liquidators?

A. Yes, sir. That is correct, other than emails to set up a conversation.

Q. Conversations that you did not participate in; is that right?

A. Yeah, just for -- yeah, just for some questions they wanted to ask of the Dallas Foundation's finance team.

Q. But did you participate -- so you spoke with the joint official liquidators' finance team?

A. No. They wanted to set up a call. That's the only time -- the only communication I've had.

Q. And you haven't had that call yet; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that call is going to be scheduled for sometime in the future; fair?

A. Yes, sir.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: I have no further questions.

ATTORNEY PHILLIPS: No questions.

ATTORNEY OKIN: All right.

ATTORNEY MORRIS: Mr. Littleton, thank you very, very much for your time and patience.

Matt, thank you for arranging this on short notice.

Gail, do you need anything else from anybody?

THE COURT REPORTER: Okay. I have copies for Mr. Morris, Mr. Lang, Mr. Okin, and Mr. Phillips.

Anybody else?

ATTORNEY OKIN: Gail, we do want to read and sign both transcripts.

(Whereupon, at 4:50 p.m. Central Time the proceedings concluded.)

Counsel to Patrick Daugherty

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

In re:	§	Chapter 11
HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.,[1]	§	Case No. 19-34054 (SGJ)
Reorganized Debtor.	§

APPELLANT'S AMENDED DESIGNATION OF ITEMS TO BE INCLUDED IN THE RECORD ON APPEAL AND STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES PRESENTED

Pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 8009(a) and Docket No. 4366, Appellant Patrick Daugherty ("Daugherty") hereby submits his amended designation of items to be included in the record on appeal and statement of issues to be presented in connection with his appeal from the Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement Between the Highland Entities and the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket

[1] Highland's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (8357). The headquarters and service address for Highland is 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1850, Dallas, TX 75201.

No. 4297] (the "HMIT Settlement Order").[2] See Notice of Appeal [Docket No. 4310, as amended at Docket No. 4327].

Statement of Issues on Appeal

1. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in its approval of the HMIT Settlement Order [Docket No. 4297], which permits payment to Class 10 creditors before all Class 8 and Class 9 claims have been paid in full when the plain language of the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. 1808], the Court's Confirmation Order [Dkt. 1943] and the Claimant Trust Agreement [Dkt. 3817-4] require full payment plus applicable interest to all Class 8 and Class 9 creditors before any Class 10 or Class 11 claims can vest.

2. Whether the Bankruptcy Court abused its discretion by approving the HMIT Settlement Order [Docket No. 4297] when the settlement is not fair, reasonable, or in the best interests of the estate as the Debtor, through its principals, is forgoing the recovery of millions in material value to the estate in exchange for, inter alia, self-serving releases of its principals.

Designation of Record

Daugherty respectfully designates the following items to be included in the appellate record pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 8009(a):

000001 1. Amended Notice of Appeal for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj11 [Dkt. 4327].

000011 2. Notice of Appeal for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj11 [Dkt. 4310].

000022 3. The Judgment Order or Decree appealed from: Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement Between the Highland Entities and the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 4297].

000026 4. Docket Sheet for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj1 kept by the Bankruptcy Clerk.

5. Documents listed below for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj11:

[2] Unless otherwise defined herein, all capitalized terms shall have the meaning ascribed to them in the HMIT Settlement Order.

Reserve shall be released to the Claimant Trust to be used for other purposes consistent with the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement.

C. Priority Tax Claims

On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the later of (i) the Initial Distribution Date if such Priority Tax Claim is an Allowed Priority Tax Claim as of the Effective Date or (ii) the date on which such Priority Tax Claim becomes an Allowed Priority Tax Claim, each Holder of an Allowed Priority Tax Claim will receive in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, such Allowed Priority Tax Claim, at the election of the Debtor: (a) Cash in an amount equal to the amount of such Allowed Priority Tax Claim, (b) payment of such Allowed Priority Tax Claim in accordance with section 1129(a)(9)(C) of the Bankruptcy Code; or (c) such other less favorable treatment as agreed to in writing by the Debtor and such Holder. Payment of statutory fees due pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1930(a)(6) will be made at all appropriate times until the entry of a final decree; provided, however, that the Debtor may prepay any or all such Claims at any time, without premium or penalty.

ARTICLE III.
CLASSIFICATION AND TREATMENT OF CLASSIFIED CLAIMS AND EQUITY INTERESTS

A. Summary

All Claims and Equity Interests, except Administrative Expense Claims and Priority Tax Claims, are classified in the Classes set forth below. In accordance with section 1123(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code, Administrative Expense Claims, and Priority Tax Claims have not been classified.

The categories of Claims and Equity Interests listed below classify Claims and Equity Interests for all purposes including, without limitation, confirmation and distribution pursuant to the Plan and pursuant to sections 1122 and 1123(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code. The Plan deems a Claim or Equity Interest to be classified in a particular Class only to the extent that the Claim or Equity Interest qualifies within the description of that Class and will be deemed classified in a different Class to the extent that any remainder of such Claim or Equity Interest qualifies within the description of such different Class. A Claim or Equity Interest is in a particular Class only to the extent that any such Claim or Equity Interest is Allowed in that Class and has not been paid, released or otherwise settled (in each case, by the Debtor or any other Entity) prior to the Effective Date.

B. Summary of Classification and Treatment of Classified Claims and Equity Interests

Class	Claim	Status	Voting Rights
1	Jefferies Secured Claim	Unimpaired	Deemed to Accept
2	Frontier Secured Claim	Impaired	Entitled to Vote
3	Other Secured Claims	Unimpaired	Deemed to Accept
4	Priority Non-Tax Claim	Unimpaired	Deemed to Accept
5	Retained Employee Claim	Unimpaired	Deemed to Accept
6	PTO Claims	Unimpaired	Deemed to Accept
7	Convenience Claims	Impaired	Entitled to Vote
8	General Unsecured Claims	Impaired	Entitled to Vote
9	Subordinated Claims	Impaired	Entitled to Vote
10	Class B/C Limited Partnership Interests	Impaired	Entitled to Vote
11	Class A Limited Partnership Interests	Impaired	Entitled to Vote

C. Elimination of Vacant Classes

Any Class that, as of the commencement of the Confirmation Hearing, does not have at least one Holder of a Claim or Equity Interest that is Allowed in an amount greater than zero for voting purposes shall be considered vacant, deemed eliminated from the Plan for purposes of voting to accept or reject the Plan, and disregarded for purposes of determining whether the Plan satisfies section 1129(a)(8) of the Bankruptcy Code with respect to such Class.

D. Impaired/Voting Classes

Claims and Equity Interests in Class 2 and Class 7 through Class 11 are Impaired by the Plan, and only the Holders of Claims or Equity Interests in those Classes are entitled to vote to accept or reject the Plan.

E. Unimpaired/Non-Voting Classes

Claims in Class 1 and Class 3 through Class 6 are Unimpaired by the Plan, and such Holders are deemed to have accepted the Plan and are therefore not entitled to vote on the Plan.

F. Impaired/Non-Voting Classes

There are no Classes under the Plan that will not receive or retain any property and no Classes are deemed to reject the Plan.

G. Cramdown

If any Class of Claims or Equity Interests is deemed to reject this Plan or does not vote to accept this Plan, the Debtor may (i) seek confirmation of this Plan under section 1129(b) of the Bankruptcy Code or (ii) amend or modify this Plan in accordance with the terms hereof and the Bankruptcy Code. If a controversy arises as to whether any Claims or Equity Interests, or any class of Claims or Equity Interests, are Impaired, the Bankruptcy Court shall, after notice and a hearing, determine such controversy on or before the Confirmation Date.

H. Classification and Treatment of Claims and Equity Interests

1. Class 1 – Jefferies Secured Claim

- Classification: Class 1 consists of the Jefferies Secured Claim.

- Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the Effective Date, each Holder of an Allowed Class 1 Claim will receive in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, such Allowed Class 1 Claim, at the election of the Debtor: (A) Cash equal to the amount of such Allowed Class 1 Claim; (B) such other less favorable treatment as to which the Debtor and the Holder of such Allowed Class 1 Claim will have agreed upon in writing; or (C) such other treatment rendering such Claim Unimpaired. Each Holder of an Allowed Class 1 Claim will retain the Liens securing its Allowed Class 1 Claim as of the Effective Date until full and final payment of such Allowed Class 1 Claim is made as provided herein.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 1 is Unimpaired, and the Holders of Class 1 Claims are conclusively deemed to have accepted this Plan pursuant to section 1126(f) of the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, the Holders of Class 1 Claims are not entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan and will not be solicited.

2. Class 2 – Frontier Secured Claim

- Classification: Class 2 consists of the Frontier Secured Claim.

- Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the Effective Date, each Holder of an Allowed Class 2 Claim will receive in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, such Allowed Class 2 Claim: (A) Cash in an amount equal to all accrued but unpaid interest on the Frontier Claim through and including the Effective Date and (B) the New Frontier Note. The Holder of an Allowed Class 2 Claim will retain the Liens securing its Allowed Class 2 Claim as of the Effective Date until full and final payment of such Allowed Class 2 Claim is made as provided herein.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 2 is Impaired, and the Holders of Class 2 Claims are entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan.

3. Class 3 – Other Secured Claims

- Classification: Class 3 consists of the Other Secured Claims.

- Allowance and Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the later of (i) the Initial Distribution Date if such Class 3 Claim is Allowed on the Effective Date or (ii) the date on which such Class 3 Claim becomes an Allowed Class 3 Claim, each Holder of an Allowed Class 3 Claim will receive in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, its Allowed Claim 3 Claim, at the option of the Debtor, or following the Effective Date, the Reorganized Debtor or Claimant Trustee, as applicable, (i) Cash equal to such Allowed Other Secured Claim, (ii) the collateral securing its Allowed Other Secured Claim, plus postpetition interest to the extent required under Bankruptcy Code Section 506(b), or (iii) such other treatment rendering such Claim Unimpaired.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 3 is Unimpaired, and the Holders of Class 3 Claims are conclusively deemed to have accepted this Plan pursuant to section 1126(f) of the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, the Holders of Class 3 Claims are not entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan and will not be solicited.

4. Class 4 – Priority Non-Tax Claims

- Classification: Class 4 consists of the Priority Non-Tax Claims.

- Allowance and Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the later of (i) the Initial Distribution Date if such Class 4 Claim is Allowed on the Effective Date or (ii) the date on which such Class 4 Claim becomes an Allowed Class 4 Claim, each Holder of an Allowed Class 4 Claim will receive in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, its Allowed Claim 4 Claim Cash equal to the amount of such Allowed Class 4 Claim.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 4 is Unimpaired, and the Holders of Class 4 Claims are conclusively deemed to have accepted this Plan pursuant to section 1126(f) of the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, the Holders of Class 4 Claims are not entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan and will not be solicited.

5. Class 5 – Retained Employee Claims

- Classification: Class 5 consists of the Retained Employee Claims.

- Allowance and Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the Effective Date, each Allowed Class 5 Claim will be Reinstated.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 5 is Unimpaired, and the Holders of Class 5 Claims are conclusively deemed to have accepted this Plan pursuant to section 1126(f) of the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, the Holders of Class 5 Claims are not entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan and will not be solicited.

6. Class 6 – PTO Claims

- Classification: Class 6 consists of the PTO Claims.

- Allowance and Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the later of (i) the Initial Distribution Date if such Class 6 Claim is Allowed on the Effective Date or (ii) the date on which such Class 6 Claim becomes an Allowed Class 6 Claim, each Holder of an Allowed Class 6 Claim will receive in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, its Allowed Claim 6 Claim Cash equal to the amount of such Allowed Class 6 Claim.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 6 is Unimpaired, and the Holders of Class 6 Claims are conclusively deemed to have accepted this Plan pursuant to section 1126(f) of the Bankruptcy Code. Therefore, the Holders of Class 6 Claims are not entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan and will not be solicited.

7. Class 7 – Convenience Claims

- Classification: Class 7 consists of the Convenience Claims.

- Allowance and Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the later of (i) the Initial Distribution Date if such Class 7 Claim is Allowed on the Effective Date or (ii) the date on which such Class 7 Claim becomes an Allowed Class 7 Claim, each Holder of an Allowed Class 7 Claim will receive in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, its Allowed Class 7 Claim (1) the treatment provided to Allowed Holders of Class 8 General Unsecured Claims if the Holder of such Class 7 Claim makes the GUC Election or (2) an amount in Cash equal to the lesser of (a) 85% of the Allowed amount of such Holder's Class 7 Claim or (b) such Holder's Pro Rata share of the Convenience Claims Cash Pool.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 7 is Impaired, and the Holders of Class 7 Claims are entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan.

8. Class 8 – General Unsecured Claims

- Classification: Class 8 consists of the General Unsecured Claims.

- Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the Effective Date, each Holder of an Allowed Class 8 Claim, in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, such Claim shall receive (i) its Pro Rata share of the Claimant Trust Interests, (ii) such other less favorable treatment as to which such Holder and the Claimant Trustee shall have agreed upon in writing, or (iii) the treatment provided to Allowed Holders of Class 7 Convenience Claims if the Holder of such Class 8 General Unsecured Claim is eligible and makes a valid Convenience Class Election.

  Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, after the Effective Date and subject to the other provisions of this Plan, the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trust, as applicable, will have and will retain any and all rights and defenses under bankruptcy or nonbankruptcy law that the Debtor had with respect to any General Unsecured Claim, except with respect to any General Unsecured Claim Allowed by Final Order of the Bankruptcy Court.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 8 is Impaired, and the Holders of Class 8 Claims are entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan.

9. Class 9 – Subordinated Claims

- Classification: Class 9 consists of the Subordinated Claims.

  Treatment: On the Effective Date, Holders of Subordinated Claims shall receive either (i) their Pro Rata share of the Subordinated Claimant Trust Interests or, (ii) such other less favorable treatment as to which such Holder and the Claimant Trustee may agree upon in writing.

  Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, after the Effective Date and subject to the other provisions of this Plan, the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trust, as applicable, will have and will retain any and all rights and defenses under bankruptcy or nonbankruptcy law that the Debtor had with respect to any Subordinated Claim, except with respect to any Subordinated Claim Allowed by Final Order of the Bankruptcy Court.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 9 is Impaired, and the Holders of Class 9 Claims are entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan.

10. Class 10 – Class B/C Limited Partnership Interests

- Classification: Class 10 consists of the Class B/C Limited Partnership Interests.

- Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the Effective Date, each Holder of an Allowed Class 10 Claim, in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, such Claim shall receive (i) its Pro Rata share of the Contingent Claimant Trust Interests or (ii) such other less favorable treatment as to which such Holder and the Claimant Trustee shall have agreed upon in writing.

  Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, after the Effective Date and subject to the other provisions of this Plan, the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trust, as applicable, will have and will retain any and all rights and defenses under bankruptcy or nonbankruptcy law that the Debtor had with respect to any Class B/C Limited Partnership Interest Claim, except with respect to any Class B/C Limited Partnership Interest Claim Allowed by Final Order of the Bankruptcy Court.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 10 is Impaired, and the Holders of Class 10 Claims are entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan.

11. Class 11 – Class A Limited Partnership Interests

- Classification: Class 11 consists of the Class A Limited Partnership Interests.

- Treatment: On or as soon as reasonably practicable after the Effective Date, each Holder of an Allowed Class 11 Claim, in full satisfaction, settlement, discharge and release of, and in exchange for, such Claim shall receive (i) its Pro Rata share of the Contingent Claimant Trust Interests or (ii) such other less favorable treatment as to which such Holder and the Claimant Trustee shall have agreed upon in writing.

  Notwithstanding anything to the contrary herein, after the Effective Date and subject to the other provisions of this Plan, the Debtor, the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trust, as applicable, will have and will retain any and all rights and defenses under bankruptcy or nonbankruptcy law that the Debtor had with respect to any Class A Limited Partnership Interest, except with respect to any Class A Limited Partnership Interest Allowed by Final Order of the Bankruptcy Court.

- Impairment and Voting: Class 11 is Impaired, and the Holders of Class 11 Claims are entitled to vote to accept or reject this Plan.

I. Special Provision Governing Unimpaired Claims

Except as otherwise provided in the Plan, nothing under the Plan will affect the Debtor's rights in respect of any Unimpaired Claims, including, without limitation, all rights in respect of legal and equitable defenses to or setoffs or recoupments against any such Unimpaired Claims.

J. Subordinated Claims

The allowance, classification, and treatment of all Claims under the Plan shall take into account and conform to the contractual, legal, and equitable subordination rights relating thereto, whether arising under general principles of equitable subordination, section 510(b) of the Bankruptcy Code, or otherwise. Under section 510 of the Bankruptcy Code, upon written notice and hearing, the Debtor the Reorganized Debtor, and the Claimant Trustee reserve the right to seek entry of an order by the Bankruptcy Court to re-classify or to subordinate any Claim in accordance with any contractual, legal, or equitable subordination relating thereto, and the treatment afforded any Claim under the Plan that becomes a subordinated Claim at any time shall be modified to reflect such subordination.

ARTICLE IV.
MEANS FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF THIS PLAN

A. Summary

As discussed in the Disclosure Statement, the Plan will be implemented through (i) the Claimant Trust, (ii) the Litigation Sub-Trust, and (iii) the Reorganized Debtor.

On the Effective Date, all Class A Limited Partnership Interests, including the Class A Limited Partnership Interests held by Strand, as general partner, and Class B/C Limited Partnerships in the Debtor will be cancelled, and new Class A Limited Partnership Interests in the Reorganized Debtor will be issued to the Claimant Trust and New GP LLC – a newly-chartered limited liability company wholly-owned by the Claimant Trust. The Claimant Trust, as limited partner, will ratify New GP LLC's appointment as general partner of the Reorganized Debtor, and on and following the Effective Date, the Claimant Trust will be the Reorganized Debtor's limited partner and New GP LLC will be its general partner. The Claimant Trust, as limited partner, and New GP LLC, as general partner, will execute the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement, which will amend and restate, in all respects, the Debtor's current Limited Partnership Agreement. Following the Effective Date, the Reorganized Debtor will be managed consistent with the terms of the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement by New GP LLC. The sole managing member of New GP LLC will be the Claimant Trust, and the Claimant Trustee will be the sole officer of New GP LLC on the Effective Date.

Following the Effective Date, the Claimant Trust will administer the Claimant Trust Assets pursuant to this Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement, and the Litigation Trustee will pursue, if applicable, the Estate Claims pursuant to the terms of the Litigation Sub-Trust Agreement and the Plan. The Reorganized Debtor will administer the Reorganized Debtor Assets and, if needed, with the utilization of a Sub-Servicer, which administration will include, among other things, managing the wind down of the Managed Funds.

Although the Reorganized Debtor will manage the wind down of the Managed Funds, it is currently anticipated that neither the Reorganized Debtor nor the Claimant Trust will assume or assume and assign the contracts between the Debtor and certain Related Entities pursuant to which the Debtor provides shared services and sub-advisory services to those Related Entities. The Debtor believes that the continued provision of the services under such contracts will not be DALLAS, TEXAS - JUNE 25, 2025 - 9:38 A.M.

THE CLERK: All rise. The United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division, is now in session, the Honorable Stacey Jernigan presiding.

THE COURT: Good morning. Please be seated.

MR. LANG: Good morning, Judge.

THE COURT: All right. We have Highland settings this morning, Case No. 19-34054. We have two motions: a motion to extend the duration of the Plan Trust, and then a motion under Rule 9019 to approve a settlement between the estate entities and Hunter Mountain entities.

All right. So, lots to get to. Let's quickly get appearances from the participating parties in interest this morning.

MR. MORRIS: Good morning, Your Honor. John Morris; Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones. I'm joined by my colleagues Jeffery Pomerantz, Gregory Demo, and Hayley Winograd. And we represent the Highland Capital Management Claimant Trust and Highland Capital Management, LP.

THE COURT: Okay. Good morning. Other appearances?

MR. LOIGMAN: Good morning, Your Honor. Robert Loigman from Quinn Emanuel. We represent the Highland Litigation Trustee, Marc Kirschner.

THE COURT: Good morning.

MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Good morning, Your Honor. This is Deborah Deitsch-Perez from Stinson representing the Dugaboy Trust on the motion to extend the duration of the Trust.

THE COURT: Good morning.

MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Good morning.

MR. LANG: Michael Lang for Dugaboy Investment Trust on the 9019 motion.

THE COURT: Good morning.

MR. LANG: Good morning.

MR. PHILLIPS: Good morning, Your Honor. Louis M. Phillips and Amelia L. Hurt; Kelly Hart Hallman -- Kelly Hart Pitre, Louisiana trade name, I don't know why -- appearing on behalf of Hunter Mountain Investment Trust and the Hunter Mountain entities in connection with the 9019 motion.

THE COURT: Good morning.

MR. YORK: Good morning, Your Honor. Drew York along with Joshua Smeltzer and Drake Rayshell from Gray Reed on behalf of Patrick Daugherty with regard to the 9019 motion.

THE COURT: Good morning. Ms. Schmidt?

MS. SCHMIDT: Erin Schmidt on behalf of the U.S. Trustee.

THE COURT: Good morning.

MR. CURRY: Good morning, Your Honor. David Curry from Okin Adams on behalf of The Dallas Foundation and Crown Global Life Insurance, Ltd.

THE COURT: Good morning.

All right. Well, let me ask. I'll start with Mr. Morris, given these are your motions. Do you have any agreements about how you're going to proceed? I'm wondering, first off, are we going to have joint presentations, joint evidence on both motions, or are we going to take one at the time?

MR. MORRIS: Good morning, Your Honor. Thank you very much for hearing us yesterday. It's kind of a big day in the case. We have a milestone that we hope will greatly advance the prosecution of this case, and, frankly, what remains to be done to complete the wind-up of Highland.

There are two motions before the Court. The first is the motion to extend the Trusts. That was filed at Docket No. 4213. We're going to address that one first, Your Honor, because we have a resolution and a stipulation. There's only one objecting party. That was the Dugaboy Investment Trust. And early this morning we reached an agreement whereby Dugaboy is going to withdraw its objection, with prejudice, subject to a stipulation that we will file with the Court but that contains the following terms.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: Number one, Dugaboy agrees to withdraw its objection to the motion, with prejudice.

Number two, the Trusts expect to dissolve by August 11th, 2026, so that no further extension of the duration of the Trusts will be necessary.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: And number three, Dugaboy hereby preserves and does not waive its right, if any, to object to any further attempts to extend the date by which the Trusts must be dissolved or to extend the duration of the Trusts.

THE COURT: Wait. I don't understand that third one. Could you repeat it?

MR. MORRIS: It's a reservation of rights.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: And so Dugaboy preserves and does not waive its right, if any, to object --

THE COURT: Well, okay. I'm sorry. Maybe I zoned out or heard something different.

MR. MORRIS: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: I thought number two of the agreement was August 11th, 2026 would be it; there would be no further extensions.

MR. MORRIS: It's a statement of expectation. It's not a representation. It's not a warranty. We do not believe today, based on the facts and circumstances that we know of, that a further extension will be necessary, but we're not waiving the right to seek it if circumstances change or something unforeseen happens. And all Dugaboy is saying is that, okay, we reserve the right, if any, to object.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: It's that simple.

THE COURT: Okay. It's sort of confusing, right?

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: Perhaps. If you have any questions, let me try and clarify.

THE COURT: Well, I guess I'll just start with Ms. Deitsch-Perez. Would you come to the podium? We've got I don't know who on the camera, but we want to make sure everyone hears.

MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Okay. I'll take a stab at --

THE COURT: Do you confirm what you heard and do you have any clarification of Points 2 and 3?

MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Maybe I can make it clear. I confirm that is the stipulation that we agreed upon, and I think all that was intended is the Trusts and the Debtor are saying they expect to be done by August 11, 2026, so that they will not need to make this motion again, but they could not and would not promise that they will be done by then. So Dugaboy is withdrawing the objection to this particular extension but is not waiving the right to object to a further request for an extension. And that's the sum of it. Does that make sense to Your Honor?

THE COURT: It does.

MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: Okay.

THE COURT: I'm hoping it'll be over by August 11th, 2026, and we'll see where we are at that time.

Well, one of my reasons for a slight bit of confusion is, in reading the 9019 settlement that is before the Court, I saw that there were some future installments payments, if you will, to HMIT, I think up through 2029, maybe.

MR. MORRIS: Sure.

THE COURT: So I was --

MR. MORRIS: So let me clarify.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: The only thing that we said that we expect to happen as of, you know, by August 11th, 2026 is that the Trusts will be dissolved. But that is not the end of their life. It is a process. Once you file for dissolution, then you have to complete the wind-down. And completing the wind-down will require the completion of all litigation. It will -- right?

All we're talking about is dissolving the Highland Claimant Trust and the Highland Litigation Subtrust so that what remains after that is the Indemnity Trust. And the Indemnity Trust will be fully funded and will be prepared to go forward. And if we ever get to a point when there's no further litigation, the corpus of that will be distributed to whatever stakeholders are entitled to it at that time.

But when we talk about being done by next year, it doesn't mean the case will be over. It simply means that the Claimant Trust and the Highland Litigation Subtrust will be dissolved. But they still have to complete the wind-up.

THE COURT: Okay. Gotcha.

MS. DEITSCH-PEREZ: And Dugaboy is reserving its rights to object to -- if something is happening that seems improper or untoward or they're seeking additional relief, obviously, we're not waiving the unknown now.

THE COURT: Okay. Gotcha. All right. Well, I appreciate the resolution of these issues. I assume no other party in interest is going to weigh in since we only had a Dugaboy objection.

MR. MORRIS: That was the only objection we had. I'm prepared to, if Your Honor thinks it's necessary or appropriate, or both, to make a very short proffer. A proffer.

THE COURT: Okay. I'll accept that proffer at this time.

MR. MORRIS: Okay. So, Your Honor, we filed on the docket at No. 4253 Exhibits 1 through 65, and we supplemented our exhibit list at Docket No. 4271 with two additional documents, which are Exhibits 66 and 67. We don't believe there's any objection to any of those documents, and we would respectfully move for their admission into evidence.

THE COURT: All right. Could you repeat the numbers once again?

MR. MORRIS: Yes, Your Honor. So, for the motion for an order further extending the duration of the Trusts, we have two docket entries that contain Highland's exhibits. The first is Docket No. 4253, and that has Exhibits 1 through 65.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: And then we supplemented at 4271 with Docket -- with Exhibit Numbers 66 and 67.

THE COURT: All right. I presume there's no objection to these exhibits.

All right. They are admitted.

(Claimant Trust's Exhibits 1 through 67 are admitted into evidence.)

JAMES P. SEERY, JR., PROFFER OF TESTIMONY

MR. MORRIS: Okay. So, Your Honor, if called to testify, James P. Seery, Jr., the Claimant Trustee of the Highland Claimant Trust, would testify as follows.

At Exhibits 63 and 64, Highland filed excerpts of the Litigation Trust and the Litigation Subtrust -- the Claimant Trust and the Litigation Subtrust, and each of those excerpts contain Section 9.1, respectively. That's the section of the Trusts that deal with the extensions that may be necessary from to the original three-year term. And Mr. Seery would testify that he's familiar with those provisions and that he understands the requirements of those provisions include, among other things, the requirement that all objections to claims and equity interests have been resolved and that all assets that the Trustee believes might yield sufficient value to the estate have been sold.

Mr. Seery would also testify that the Highland estate has a number of assets in its possession today, certain of which will be conveyed to Hunter Mountain if the 9019 motion is approved.

Among those assets, Mr. Seery would testify that, in accordance with the proposed settlement agreement, which is at Exhibit 17, in Paragraph 5(b), the Court will see reference to what's known as the Dugaboy Note. The Dugaboy Note is an asset of the estate that will go to Hunter Mountain if the 9019 motion is approved. If it's not approved, then Mr. Seery would testify that he's got to find another way to dispose of it. But it is an asset with a face amount today of about $17 million, so it has substantial value.

There is a note from Hunter Mountain. That also will be disposed of as set forth in Paragraph 4(a) of the proposed settlement agreement. That note is going to be used to reduce the allowed amount of Hunter Mountain's Class 10 claim if the settlement is approved. But that note is also an asset of the estate. It's worth over $60 million. I believe it actually might be in the fifties. But somewhere in the $50 to $60 million range. And that's an asset that needs to be disposed of.

The estate has a contingent right to receive certain funds under its settlement with Mr. Okada, and it has the Kirschner Litigation. All of these assets will be disposed of. They're very illiquid assets, I'd call them, and it would be very helpful to the estate in moving this case forward if the 9019 motion is approved.

There are other assets that the estate has that will not be monetized by August 11th and which therefore require the extension of the Trusts. Mr. Seery would testify, if called to the stand, that the pursuit of the sale of these assets will yield proceeds that justified the continued pursuit of their monetization. They include interests in Highland CLO Funding, Ltd. Documents pertaining to that can be found at Exhibits 21 and 25.

The Claimant Trust also owns shares in Highland Capital Management Korea, Ltd. Documents relating to that asset can be found at Exhibits 18 through 20. That's an asset that, if Mr. Seery were to testify, he would say that he has been actively engaged in trying to liquidate that asset, but it's not going to be completed by August 11th.

There's also a note that is due from Highland Capital Management Korea, Ltd. That can be found at Exhibit 67. That's another asset that Mr. Seery has concluded and would testify to that he thinks is valuable for the estate but will not be monetized by the end of this extension period.

And then there's the bad faith award that the estate obtained against HCRE, which remains on appeal. The appeal of that order can be found at Exhibit 15. And there's no further cost, really, to waiting for the Court's decision, but that is an asset of the estate that remains to be monetized.

So there's two buckets of assets, one of which, hopefully, if the 9019 motion is approved, will go to HMIT and that will be helpful. But there's another bucket of assets that are not implicated by the HMIT settlement that will not be monetized before August 11th that Mr. Seery would testify we need a little bit more time and that's why we're going to extend the Trusts.

Mr. Seery would also testify, finally, that there are claims and equity interests that remain unresolved. They include Mr. Daugherty's Class 8 claim. As Your Honor is probably aware at this point, Highland has objected to that claim. It seeks to disallow, subordinate, that particular claim. Otherwise, have it monetized for purposes of winding up the estate.

Mr. Daugherty has moved to dismiss that complaint. That's his right. But our scheduling order already takes us past August 11th.

And then, finally, we've got Dugaboy's Class 11 interest, which has not yet been allowed. If the 9019 motion is approved today, we do expect to move quickly to get to that point so that we can finish that up. But we don't foresee that being completed before August 11th, either.

So, in sum, Mr. Seery would testify that, from his perspective, the estate still has assets that are valuable to the estate that will not be monetized by August 11th, and there are still one claim and one equity interest that need to be resolved in order to satisfy the test, you know, to get to the dissolution.

So that would be the sum total of his testimony. That's the completion of the proffer. And unless Your Honor has any objections, we're prepared to move to the next motion.

THE COURT: I have a couple of questions.

MR. MORRIS: Sure.

THE COURT: But first I'm going to go ahead and swear in Mr. Seery --

MR. MORRIS: Great.

THE COURT: -- to affirm this, as well as swear him in for what I'm sure will be future testimony today.

MR. MORRIS: Sure.

MR. SEERY: Would you like me to come --

THE COURT: Well, you can just stand in place. Just make sure we hear you.

(The witness is sworn as to both his proffer and future testimony.)

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

All right. My question is probably for you.

THE WITNESS: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: Just confirm my understanding. We have one claim and one --

MR. MORRIS: Equity interest.

THE COURT: -- equity interest to resolve? Mr. Daugherty's Class 8 claim and the Dugaboy what would be Class 11 interest?

MR. MORRIS: That is correct.

THE COURT: Did I hear that correctly, Mr. Seery?

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

And then my other question is, once again, a clarification. I pulled out of your attachments to your motion to extend the Exhibit B, Unresolved Pending Litigation.

MR. MORRIS: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: And at the time this was filed, May 8th, 2025, it showed nine pending matters at all court levels. And I think two of them now are finished. I'm sorry. This is a long question. But maybe I'm wrong. The first two matters, the recusal matter that was at the Fifth Circuit, as well as the gatekeeper appeal, which I know a motion to stay the mandate was at the Supreme Court, both of those are finished now? Done?

MR. MORRIS: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. So the nine pending matters is now down to seven. And if the Court were to approve the 9019 today, I understand that, well, it looks like, at a minimum, two more would go away?

MR. MORRIS: Precisely.

THE COURT: We have an appeal at the District Court, what we call the Claims Trading Appeal, where Highland had sued -- I'm sorry, Hunter Mountain had sued Highland and others regarding the claims trading issue, I'll call it. So that would go away?

MR. MORRIS: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And then let me see what else. I've marked all over my chart.

MR. MORRIS: And then I believe Hunter Mountain's motion for leave to file a complaint in the Delaware Chancery Court --

THE COURT: Ah.

MR. MORRIS: -- to remove Mr. Seery will also be dismissed with prejudice --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: -- if the 9019 motion is approved.

THE COURT: Okay. So, that, yes, Hunter Mountain v. Seery, the Court issued a stay on that being able to go forward in Delaware.

MR. MORRIS: Precisely.

THE COURT: So that would go away.

So, of the nine matters listed, we're down to five. But I'll hear, I guess, about this later with Mr. Seery, the big what I would call Kirschner adversary against lots of defendants which has been abated for a long, long time now. Hunter Mountain would basically receive that lawsuit with those claims? The claims against it go away? And I don't know what we'll hear, I don't know what Hunter Mountain will do with that big adversary, but maybe it doesn't know yet. I don't know.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: So, --

MR. MORRIS: Not a question we've concerned ourselves with, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. So that, again, I'm kind of recapping everything.

(Counsel confer.)

MR. MORRIS: Go ahead, Your Honor.

THE COURT: So, again, I'm looking at the chart. If anyone wants to know what I'm looking at, it's at Docket No. 4213-2, filed May 8th. We're down to the HCRE --

MR. MORRIS: Appeal.

THE COURT: -- appeal.

MR. MORRIS: Uh-huh. Which is fully briefed and we're just waiting for a decision.

THE COURT: Okay. So that bad faith decision may or may not stick, but it's hanging there on appeal.

MR. MORRIS: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: We're down to a Dugaboy -- what we called the Imaging Motion. Or no?

MR. MORRIS: Correct. I guess that's been stayed, but that's out there.

THE COURT: We have the valuation motion of Dugaboy, but I don't know, is it going to be moot after today? I don't know what I'm going to hear today as far as the evidence.

MR. MORRIS: So, that has -- great question -- two plaintiffs in that lawsuit, HMIT and Dugaboy.

THE COURT: Oh, that's right. So --

MR. MORRIS: HMIT is going to dismiss it with prejudice. Dugaboy will still have an active complaint.

THE COURT: Appeal.

MR. MORRIS: My hope is that --

THE COURT: It's an appeal of --

MR. MORRIS: Yes.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: My hope is that, because we produced so much valuation information to HMIT, which we then had to make available to Dugaboy because that's the way discovery works, that they'll withdraw that complaint.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: I'm going to make that plea right on the record here, because they've now gotten everything they've asked for. But that's their decision to make, and it's out there. But HMIT is withdrawing itself as a party to that lawsuit, but it does remain in Dugaboy's lap.

THE COURT: Okay. So those potentially three things?

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: Plus the Daugherty matter?

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Seery, did I miss something?

THE WITNESS: One clarification, Your Honor. My apologies. One clarification. In the Class 11 subordinated interests, there's a Dugaboy capital account of $740,000. There's also the Strand capital account -- both of these are controlled by Mr. Dondero -- of $994,000. And then Mr. Okada and his affiliates have a combined capital account of $248,000. So we'll -- I said just Dugaboy, but it's actually Dugaboy, Strand, and then Okada and two family trusts of his.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: And if the 9019 motion is granted, --

THE WITNESS: It's in the footnote. It's in the footnote in the motion.

THE COURT: Yes. I actually had that in my notes.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: So I glossed over Class 11 just being Dugaboy. There are Strand and Okada.

All right. So I appreciate that clarification. We're down hopefully to very little litigation. But we have no control over higher courts, when they have time to look at it.

MR. MORRIS: Or future litigation, now that the gatekeeper has been curtailed.

THE COURT: Okay. All right.

Anyone wish to say anything about this motion to extend?

All right. Well, based on the pleadings, the argument, the evidence, I do think it is necessary and appropriate and reasonable to extend the duration of the Highland Trusts through August 11th, 2026. The relief is something that is contemplated as a possibility under the trust documents. Moreover, I think the Court has some authority under Bankruptcy Rule 9006(b) and Bankruptcy Code Section 105 to grant this relief.

The evidence shows there are unliquidated assets and some unfinished litigation that must be resolved before the Trust is in a position to wind down. So, again, I think it's necessary, prudent, and in the best interest. The motion is granted, and the Court duly acknowledges the comments with regard to the stipulation of Dugaboy and the estate. All right.

MR. MORRIS: Thank you very much. So, may I move to the 9019 motion?

THE COURT: You may.

MR. MORRIS: Okay. With respect to the 9019 motion, there were originally three Objecting Parties: the Dugaboy Investment Trust, Patrick Daugherty, and The Dallas Foundation and an entity called Crown Global.

I'm pleased to report, and I think Your Honor may already be aware, that a settlement has been reached to dispose of The Dallas Foundation and the Crown Global objection. There is a written agreement to that effect that effectuates that. And I'd like to just turn the podium over to Mr. Phillips. Louis Phillips represents the HMIT Entities. I know Mr. Curry is here on behalf of the objecting parties, The Dallas Foundation, but I think -- I think I'll let Mr. Phillips address, you know, the specific terms of the resolution of that objection.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. And I will say that my staff reached out yesterday to -- I don't know if it was Mr. Curry or someone in your office -- wanting to know have you delivered exhibit notebooks. And it was at that point my staff heard, well, we've resolved.

MR. CURRY: We had just finished.

THE COURT: Okay. All right. So I'm happy to hear what the resolution is.

MR. PHILLIPS: Good morning, Your Honor. Louis M.

Phillips on behalf of the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust and the named parties therein.

We had a written stipulation that has been signed by my firm, by Mr. Curry's firm, by the Pachulski firm, and by the Quinn Emanuel firm that is to be submitted to the -- is to be filed on the record. It also contains a reference to a settlement agreement that will be attached. But we will read the stipulation into the record, if Your Honor would allow me to.

THE COURT: All right. You may.

MR. PHILLIPS: And Mr. Curry is here, and he can tell me whether or not I have read correctly, but I think I have it.

THE COURT: Okay. All right.

MR. PHILLIPS: (reading) Now, wherefore, it is jointly -- hereby jointly stipulated and agreed as follows. The Foundation Parties -- Mr. Curry's clients -- withdraw The Foundation Objection, which is a defined term in the stipulation, with prejudice, in accordance with the terms of the term sheet annexed hereto as Attachment 1. And Attachment 1 will be attached to the stipulation.

Paragraph 2. The Foundation Parties, the HMIT Entities -- that's Hunter Mountain Entities and the Movants; that is, Mr. Morris' client and Quinn Emanuel on behalf of the Litigation Subtrust -- agree that the following language shall be contained in the proposed order on the 9019 motion. And that's clearly the proposed order. This is not dependent upon the motion being granted. Notwithstanding anything in the settlement agreement or the 9019 order to the contrary, none of The Dallas Foundation, EDF, Okada Family, or Crown (The Foundation Parties) are or will be included in the definition of HMIT Releasors or Highland Releasors. For the avoidance of doubt, however, any attempt by The Foundation Parties to assert a claim against an HMIT released party by, through, or under, including derivatively a Highland entity, or against a Highland released party by, through, or under, including derivatively an HMIT entity, is barred by this order and the settlement agreement.

That is the sum and substance of the stipulation. The settlement agreement we don't think needs to be read to the Court because it's a signed settlement agreement that will be attached as Attachment 1 to the stipulation. And I believe I read it correctly.

THE COURT: Mr. Curry, did he read it correctly?

MR. CURRY: Mr. Phillips did read it correctly, Your Honor. And thank you.

And we want to thank Trustee's counsel and Mr. Phillips for working with us to address some very real concerns. And through the stipulation, we still have some work to do, but we have the time to do it, and maybe move it to where we can actually get it resolved.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, there are some things I am concerned -- well, I should say, all I really feel the need to go into is you're releasing your objection, your clients are, and all of the parties here, parties to the proposed settlement and the estates, the Debtors, Hunter Mountain, are agreeing that your clients are not releasors under the 9019 settlement if the Court approves it.

MR. CURRY: Correct, Your Honor. Unless and except our clients were to attempt to assert a released claim against a released party, and that's what the "provided, however" was to clarify.

MR. PHILLIPS: And this doesn't affect the estate at all. It basically affects the HMI -- the Hunter Mountain entities. But the language that we have read in the stipulation has been agreed to and is contained within the order that will be proposed.

THE COURT: Okay. You said it better than I said it. The estate is releasing claims --

MR. PHILLIPS: I can't believe that, Your Honor, but thank you.

THE COURT: Well, the estate is releasing claims that it has --

MR. PHILLIPS: Correct.

THE COURT: -- or in Trusts have -- I shouldn't have said the estate. It's the Trust entities and what's left of the Reorganized Debtors are releasing any claims they have against Hunter Mountain in the proposed settlement --

MR. PHILIPS: Yes.

THE COURT: -- if it's approved. But any direct claims of your clients are not --

MR. CURRY: Well, direct claims that our client has or derivative claims, for example, against Hunter Mountain that are derivative through Hunter Mountain.

THE COURT: Okay. All right.

MR. PHILLIPS: Yeah.

MR. CURRY: Yeah. That was the -- what we were trying to make sure.

THE COURT: Yes. All right. Well, and when I said this is all I care about, what I mean is I don't even know who the heck Crown Insurance is.

MR. PHILLIPS: Correct.

THE COURT: There was a very interesting party in interest objection asserted by the Debtor. And I've learned a lot about a lot of entities during all these years, but that was a new one on me. I understood that it's somewhere in the framework of the --

MR. PHILLIPS: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: -- Charitable DAF.

MR. PHILLIPS: Let's say it's somewhere in the universe, Your Honor.

THE COURT: The universe? Okay.

MR. PHILLIPS: The universe. Not necessarily the Charitable DAF or Hunter Mountain.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. PHILLIPS: But in the universe.

THE COURT: Well, but the point is, we've announced anything relevant to --

MR. PHILLIPS: Correct.

THE COURT: -- the Reorganized Debtor, --

MR. PHILLIPS: Correct.

THE COURT: -- Claimant Trust, Subtrust.

MR. PHILLIPS: And the motion -- and the objections of all these entities are withdrawn with prejudice.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. CURRY: And Your Honor, the one thing that I will note, part of our agreement, and it's in the signed term sheet that you'll see, is that we've agreed that if there's a dispute over the settlement to withdraw our objection, this Court will have at least concurrent jurisdiction to resolve that dispute, because it is a settlement to resolve an objection to a core proceeding.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

MR. PHILLIPS: And we have agreed and we do agree that the Court has jurisdiction. It has jurisdiction.

THE COURT: Okay. For what that is worth.

MR. PHILLIPS: Well, that's what we can agree to.

THE COURT: All right. I appreciate that.

Anyone wish to say anything about what's been announced?

All right. Well, I accept this resolution and withdrawal of --

MR. PHILLIPS: Okay. We will be filing --

THE COURT: -- the objection.

MR. PHILLIPS: We will be filing, at the close of this hearing, this stipulation, and we will be clicking whatever ECF box request that the Court so ordered on the stipulation.

THE COURT: Okay. We will be on the lookout for that.

All right. Well, Mr. Lang, you stood up on behalf of Dugaboy.

MR. LANG: I just want to make the Court aware of a letter that was sent last night that involves this from the Caymans, from Grant Thornton.

MR. PHILLIPS: We object.

MR. LANG: I just want to make the Court -- they were asking for a 45-day that the Joint Liquidators --

MR. PHILLIPS: We object to this, Your Honor. That's not a part of the record. This is a person from outer space. Not outer space, but the Cayman Islands. And it's a letter that we --

THE COURT: Coming from someone --

MR. PHILLIPS: It looks like a letter --

THE COURT: -- who is called Yosemite Sam, I understand, outside of court.

MR. PHILLIPS: Yeah. Yeah. I didn't want to bring that up, but Mr. Morris --

THE COURT: Okay. Well, it's stuck in my brain forever now.

MR. PHILLIPS: -- says it's his favorite cartoon character, so it must be okay.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, okay, I don't want to make light. I think this goes back to what I was saying about there are certain things I care about and certain things I don't care about. And I read from the pleadings, I haven't heard evidence but I've read from the pleadings that there is a lot going on in the Cayman Islands with regard to what I call the Charitable DAF structure or Hunter Mountain.

MR. LANG: Yes.

THE COURT: Parties in that universe. And I don't plan to exercise any control or jurisdiction over that, so I'm hesitant to hear what it is you want to present. I don't know, maybe on cross-examination of Mark Patrick today it may or may not be relevant. But what is it --

MR. LANG: All they ask for is a 45-day basically abeyance or continuance of the decision on the 9019, to allow them to investigate and weigh in on it.

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor?

MR. LANG: They're Joint Liquidators. That's -- I'm just making the Court aware of the request.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, they're not here to articulate that. So I respect your wanting to be transparent and whatnot, but I'm not going to let it stop me from going forward today. Okay.

MR. LANG: Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, if I may be excused, that's our position with respect to the withdrawal. We appreciate Your Honor's attention. Thank you.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

MR. CURRY: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Anyone else wish to weigh in?

All right. Well, I do, as I was saying, accept the withdrawal of The Dallas Foundation and related entities' objection to the 9019 settlement.

So does that leave only the Daugherty objection to the settlement? Well, and the Dugaboy.

MR. MORRIS: And the Dugaboy, yes.

THE COURT: And Dugaboy, of course.

MR. MORRIS: That's right.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: So, --

THE COURT: So how did you want to proceed?

MR. MORRIS: So, the way I propose to proceed, Your Honor, I have an opening statement to make --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: -- with a PowerPoint presentation to present. I would propose that, as the Movant, I go first. Then we can hear from Dugaboy, we can hear from Mr. Daugherty, and then we can put Mr. Seery on the stand.

Assuming that there is no challenge to Mark Patrick's authority to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of all of the HMIT entities, I would not plan on calling either Mr. Dondero or Ms. Deitsch-Perez, who are under subpoena here, because the challenge to authority was really coming from The Dallas Foundation. Their objection has now been withdrawn. So as long as Mr. Daugherty -- well, really, as long as Dugaboy doesn't challenge Mr. Patrick's authority to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities, I think we'll just put on the one witness and be done.

THE COURT: All right. Just so we know what lies ahead, --

MR. MORRIS: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: -- I don't think that Dugaboy objected to Mr. Patrick's authority. I do recall it was just The Foundation.

MR. LANG: There was no objection on the -- there was no objection.

THE COURT: Okay. And same with Mr. Daugherty? No objection about the authority of Mark Patrick to enter into the settlement?

MR. YORK: There was no objection.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MORRIS: All right. May I proceed?

THE COURT: You may proceed.

MR. MORRIS: Okay. So, may I approach, Your Honor? I've got a --

THE COURT: You may. Is this a PowerPoint? And everyone else has it, correct?

(Pause.)

THE COURT: You may proceed.

MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor. John Morris; Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones; for Highland Capital Management, LP and the Highland Claimant Trust.

Before I begin, Your Honor, I'd like to move my exhibits into evidence because I will be referring to them in my opening.

THE COURT: All right. So I think I said on Monday the first thing I was going to ask, and I've already blown that, was did you all have good faith discussions regarding admission of each other's exhibits? And I did see Mr. Lang filed a day or two ago his list of objections. It looked like you were like you were down to about nine or eleven exhibits you were objecting to.

(Counsel confer.)

THE COURT: Out of 123 designations, which I think probably grew overnight to --

MR. MORRIS: Oh, okay. Well, --

MR. LANG: I just have to make clear for the record.

MR. MORRIS: You go ahead and do that.

MR. LANG: Your Honor, I've been told that Dugaboy does challenge the authority. It is not in our objection.

MR. PHILLIPS: It's not in his --

THE COURT: Well, can I ask why it was not in your objection?

MR. LANG: I do not know. I was not counsel of record when the objection was filed. I do not know what was known or not known at that time.

THE COURT: So, --

MR. LANG: So I guess we just seek leave to --

THE COURT: -- if you did not have him on -- was Mark Patrick on your exhibit list? I don't think he was, right?

MR. LANG: He was not.

THE COURT: Okay. So how would you address that? Again, we've had, I know, some back and forth over who was going to represent Dugaboy on this matter.

MR. LANG: Yes.

THE COURT: I remember the substitutions and whatnot. But --

MR. LANG: We found out late last night that The Foundation was resolving their issue, and that kind of left us in a position.

THE COURT: So what are you saying? You all were relying on --

MR. LANG: Well, the issue had --

THE COURT: -- The Foundation to carry the flag on this one?

MR. LANG: They had raised the issue. They were pursuing the issue. We went through discovery and they were pursuing it. It was already in front of the Court.

THE COURT: All right. What would you like to say, Mr. Morris?

MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, this is more than disappointing. The fact of the matter is Mr. Dondero is funding both the Cayman Islands litigation as well as The Dallas Foundation's prosecution of the objection. The fact that The Dallas Foundation settled doesn't open the door to Mr. Dondero to assert objections that he's never asserted before.

I will tell you what will happen. If Your Honor allows this, I will have to call Mr. Dondero and Ms. Deitsch-Perez to the stand to offer evidence under subpoena that they personally acknowledge and understand, because Mr. Dondero's signature is on documents that were signed in the year 2025, that Mr. Patrick is authorized to represent HMIT. I really didn't want to do that. But if they want to pursue it, I'll have to do my job.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. LANG: And I want to clarify one thing.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. LANG: And it goes back to something we already discussed, which is the authority issue is derived from the Cayman Island Joint Liquidators' appointment on May 6th, 2020. And so how that changes the authority, it's -- I think the issue is does he have authority, like Mr. Morris --

THE COURT: All right. Well, before I comment, Mr. Phillips, it's your client representative that we're talking about here. What do you say?

MR. PHILLIPS: Very disappointing, but -- and further revealing the limits of my imagination. There is no objection to authority. There's no evidence of record of objection to authority. There's no evidence even in The Dallas Foundation's papers about authority. Dugaboy did not raise objections to authority. Daugherty did not raise objections to authority. And Mr. Morris was willing to release Ms.

Deitsch-Perez and Mr. Dondero from subpoena in connection with an order that this Court entered that Hunter Mountain objected to. And outside the Court, the evidence will establish, the evidence submitted by Mr. Morris will establish that Hunter Mountain, through authority of Mr. Patrick, objected to Ms. Deitsch-Perez signing on behalf of Hunter Mountain because she did not seek approval and did not have authorization to sign a stipulation before this Court.

Subsequently, after signing the stipulation and entry of the order, we suggested that we would not deal with Ms. Deitsch-Perez, we would only deal with unconflicted counsel, and we dealt with unconflicted counsel to make an agreement with HCLOM and another of Mr. Dondero's entities to avoid filing a motion for reconsideration before this Court based on the fact that, as we have suggested in the motion that we didn't file, Hunter Mountain's approval was not real.

So Mr. Morris has these people under subpoena because we signed an agreement that Mr. Dondero signed to avoid the filing of a motion for reconsideration before this Court, recognizing that Mr. Patrick had authority for Hunter Mountain to sign the agreement. And so that's the purpose of his subpoena.

But our position is there's no suggestion in pleadings by Dugaboy or Daugherty that challenge the authority of Mr. Patrick to execute on behalf of any of the Hunter Mountain entities. And the one party who, without suggesting an evidentiary basis, but that's fine, they say maybe they did have an evidentiary -- we -- and they withdrew their objection.

THE COURT: Okay. Let me --

MR. MORRIS: Okay. I'm sorry. Just really --

THE COURT: Thirty second.

MR. MORRIS: Really quickly.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. MORRIS: The letter that Mr. Lang just referred to from the Joint Official Liquidators, addressed to us, asking for an extension of time, doesn't even challenge Mr. Patrick's authority to act today on behalf of the HMIT entities to enter into the settlement agreement. The Joint Official Liquidators wrote to us last night, and they don't say what Mr. Lang is now saying.

MR. PHILLIPS: And the only thing I would say is we got a letter by email from somebody who says, I am who I am. It came through email PDF. We don't challenge the authority. But we would respectfully request -- we're not there. We've made no appearance. We don't challenge the authority. But please wait -- ask the Court to wait the 45 minutes -- 45 days for us. We got a letter. PDF. We don't know who sent it.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. PHILLIPS: It wouldn't be admissible even if someone tried to introduce it as evidence.

THE COURT: Okay. Let me just say a few things here. This has felt like a very strange sideshow, I'm going to say. When I read The Foundation's objection, I was, again, scratching my head, who in the heck is Crown Insurance? I know who Dallas Foundation is because there have been charts submitted to me in the past, and I know it's part of the I'm going to say Mr. Phillips' client set over the months, the Charitable Foundation structure. But I'm like, how in the heck do these people have standing? Okay? I have to always consider standing. That's every trial judge's first obligation, does this party have standing? Not a creditor. Not an equity holder. But somehow I guess they're going to explain through evidence how they're a person aggrieved by the proposed settlement.

So that's why I kind of -- hopefully, it doesn't sound flippant -- thought this sounded like a sideshow, because this is a stranger, really, to weigh in.

Okay. So now I'm hearing that a party in interest, which Dugaboy is -- I guess some might argue that, but I think they're affected by the settlement, so that makes them a party in interest -- you're making the same argument. And it's because of a rotation of counsel you didn't make it sooner.

Okay. So I'm just trying to be transparent here, tell you what the Court is thinking. I guess what the Court is thinking is Mark Patrick is the client representative, so I'm told by the Movants on the 9019, and you, Mr. Phillips, he's the party representative for Hunter Mountain.

MR. PHILLIPS: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I don't, I guess, know what harm there is, except a longer hearing, in, okay, put him on the stand to testify about the bona fides of the settlement. It's more evidence. But if you all want to call Mr. Dondero, I'm going to require that.

MR. MORRIS: Your Honor?

THE COURT: I mean, as a counterbalance, since it's appearing from the pleadings to be --

MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, respectfully, Mr. Patrick is not on their witness list. He's not on our witness list.

THE COURT: Wasn't he on somebody's witness list?

MR. MORRIS: He was on The Dallas Foundation's witness list.

THE COURT: Oh.

MR. MORRIS: He's not on their witness list. He's not on our witness list. He should not testify today because they're raising an issue that they didn't raise ever before. This is improper. They should just be shut down here.

THE COURT: I think probably you should be shut down. But I kind of go back and forth, what's the harm in having the representative, the person I'm told is the representative of Highland?

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor?

THE COURT: I could limit it to one hour. And the flip side is that Dondero himself, as I guess the representative of Dugaboy, would have to also take the stand, limited to one hour.

MR. PHILLIPS: I'd like to make one note, Your Honor, about the documents that Mr. Morris has introduced. That document list -- and I don't have the numbers in front of me -- but part of the presentation and the reason Mr. Patrick is not on the Movants' motion -- witness and exhibit list, the documents that have been introduced are all of -- include all of the documents evidencing Mr. Patrick's authority as the control person of the entire Hunter Mountain group.

THE COURT: Which they've stipulated.

MR. PHILLIPS: Which they've stipulated to.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. MORRIS: And to be clear, Your Honor, they can be found at Exhibits 70 through 104. We've got 34 documents in evidence that establish that Mr. Patrick is authorized to act on behalf of each of the HMIT entities. All that's going to happen is we're now going to spend time dealing with an issue that you already described as a sideshow, and we're going to do it for a party who didn't put Mr. Patrick on a witness list, who hasn't objected on this basis, and we've got a mountain of evidence that shows that he's completely authorized to do this. I just --

MR. PHILLIPS: To which there's no objection.

MR. MORRIS: And you can also look, Your Honor, at Exhibit 69. That's the agreement that Mr. Dondero signed with Mr. Patrick after he got outed for authorizing Ms. Deitsch-Perez to sign a document on behalf of HMIT without Mark Patrick's knowledge or approval. He signed that. Six months ago. And we're going to have a trial here over whether Mark Patrick is authorized to act on behalf of HMIT?

A VOICE: That was long ago.

MR. MORRIS: This is not -- this is not --

THE COURT: We're not going to have a trial. And I fully acknowledge that I am possibly abusing discretion by allowing this. We have our rules, and our rules were not complied with, and it does feel a little bit like ambush. Okay?

But on the flip side of it, it doesn't seem entirely unreasonable to have the representative, the purported representative of Hunter Mountain, who is the counterparty, if you will, to this very major settlement, take the stand. And I'll limit it. And, again, I condition it on Mr. Dondero, the ultimate beneficiary of the Dugaboy Trust, as it's been represented to me in prior filings, --

MR. MORRIS: Correct.

THE COURT: -- he'll have to stay an equal amount of time on the stand. Okay?

MR. MORRIS: Okay.

THE COURT: Okay. Hang on. I've got my smarter staff member handing me a note. Okay.

(Pause.)

THE COURT: Okay. Well, so that's how we're going to stand.

Now, I am going to address Mr. Daugherty here. We're not going to let Mr. Daugherty cross-examine Patrick. Clearly, his objection has been around, and he never said anything about --

MR. YORK: Certainly not as to authority. However, we should be able to examine him as it relates to the portion of the objection that goes to whether the settlement is in the best interest, given the claims that are being -- the Kirschner claims that are being transferred by Highland to the HMIT entities.

THE COURT: All right. Well, you all are going to have to share your 30 minutes.

MR. YORK: That's fine.

THE COURT: Okay? We're giving 30 minutes to Debtor entities, Highland entities, and Hunter Mountain entities collectively, and 30 minutes to Dugaboy and Daugherty collectively. Okay? So, I'm going to have my law clerk timing you like you're on the clock.

MR. MORRIS: Okay.

THE COURT: Okay?

MR. MORRIS: May I proceed?

THE COURT: You may proceed.

MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor. So, appearing at Docket 4255 is the Movants' exhibit list, with Exhibits 1 through 123. At Docket 4277 are Exhibits 124 and 125. And at Docket 4280, we've got Exhibit 126.

The Movants respectfully move into evidence all of those documents, with the exception of Exhibits 124 and 125 on Docket No. 4277. Those are the transcripts of The Dallas Foundation representatives, and since we have reached an agreement and The Dallas Foundation has withdrawn their objection, we are not going to offer those two transcripts into evidence as part of the record in this matter.

But Exhibits 1 through 123, and Exhibit 126, we move into evidence.

THE COURT: All right. And as I thought we were going to start talking about a moment ago, Mr. Lang objected to 11 of these 123 designations. Do those still remain? If they do, we're just going to see if they want to be I think offered --

MR. LANG: No, I think we've --

THE COURT: -- the old-fashioned way, but I think that might be more efficient. I have, in your objection, which is at Docket 4273, you objected to Numbers 10, 12, 13, 57 and 59, and then 64 through 69. Eleven items.

MR. LANG: Mr. Morris clarified that 12 and 13 are one document. But I still, I think that, again, for purposes of the authority issue, Exhibit 13 we don't think is relevant.

MR. MORRIS: Exhibit 13, Your Honor. We'll just take them one at a time.

THE COURT: Yes, go ahead and address it.

MR. MORRIS: Is relevant because it's simply a document that was provided to Highland by Hunter Mountain as part of the negotiations. And we've been asked to produce all of the documents related to the negotiations. This is one of the documents that we received.

THE COURT: Okay. And do I understand 12 and 13 are actually the same thing, or --

MR. MORRIS: Yeah. Well, 12 is the email, 13 is the attachment.

THE COURT: Okay. I overrule the relevance objection. Those will be admitted.

(Claimant Trust's Exhibits 12 and 13 are admitted into evidence.)

MR. LANG: 57.

MR. MORRIS: 57 is also a part of the settlement documents. It's, I think, an email exchange between Mr. Seery and UBS, which was one of the Class 9 claimants, and we had to obtain their consent and that's part of the process of getting to the settlement agreement.

MR. LANG: I think the objection is it doesn't include the attachment.

MR. MORRIS: It's got all -- it's got numerous attachments on it.

MR. LANG: To 57?

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

MR. LANG: Mine did not.

MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, we'll withdraw the exhibit.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: Okay.

THE COURT: 59. Well, you didn't address #10.

MR. LANG: Oh, sorry.

THE COURT: That was the first one.

MR. LANG: Yeah.

MR. MORRIS: We'll withdraw #10.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MORRIS: Okay.

THE COURT: So, 59?

MR. MORRIS: 59? Your Honor, I'm not surprised they object, because it's at the core of the Court's ability to authorize this settlement.

MR. LANG: We withdrew that.

MR. MORRIS: Oh, you withdrew that?

MR. LANG: Withdrew.

MR. MORRIS: Oh, okay. They withdrew that.

THE COURT: Okay. So, 59 will be admitted.

(Claimant Trust's Exhibit 59 is admitted into evidence.)

MR. MORRIS: And then I think the last is 64 to 69.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. MORRIS: We were actually prepared to withdraw those exhibits because we didn't think there was a challenge to authority. Now that there's a challenge to authority, we're going to offer all of those in because they're highly relevant to the acknowledge of Mr. Patrick's authority.

THE COURT: All right. And your objection was solely to relevance?

MR. LANG: The objection was relevance because they predate the May 6th issue in the Caymans, which is what caused the entire structure to -- the authority from the top down to be questioned.

THE COURT: All right. Well, you can cross-examine if you want on those items.

MR. LANG: Okay.

THE COURT: But I find they're relevant so they will be admitted, 64 through 69.

(Claimant Trust's Exhibits 64 through 69 are admitted into evidence.)

[Court Edit: Claimant Trust's Exhibits 1 through 9, 11 through 56, 58 through 123, and 126 are admitted into evidence.]

THE COURT: All right. And as far as the exhibits of Dugaboy, I think it was just the plan and settlement agreement were all that had been designated. Correct?

MR. LANG: Yes.

MR. MORRIS: No objection.

THE COURT: So, no objection. Those will be admitted.

(Dugaboy Investment Trust's exhibits are admitted into evidence.)

THE COURT: And Daugherty's exhibits?

MR. YORK: Yes, Your Honor. So, Mr. Morris and I conferred yesterday about both sides' exhibits. And my understanding is we've reached an agreement that both sides' exhibits are not objected to. And so therefore we'd move to admit Daugherty's as well.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. YORK: 1 through 42, I believe, it is.

THE COURT: All right. So you confirm?

MR. MORRIS: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. The Court will admit all of Daugherty's 1 through 42, and they appear at Docket Entry 4266.

(Patrick Daugherty's Exhibits 1 through 42 are admitted into evidence.)

THE COURT: All right. Opening statements.

OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF THE CLAIMANT TRUST

MR. MORRIS: All right. Good morning, Your Honor. John Morris; Pachulski Stang Ziehl & Jones; for Highland Capital Management, LP and the Highland Claimant Trust.

If we can go to the first slide, Your Honor. This is a 9019 motion. It's not a terribly high bar. What the Movant has to show here is that the settlement agreement was the product of arm's-length, good-faith negotiations, and effectively that it's in the best interests of its stakeholders.

THE COURT: Did you want this put on the screen, or does everyone have a hard copy?

MR. MORRIS: Counsel have a hard copy.

THE COURT: Oh, okay.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah. The evidence is going to show, and there really is no dispute, that the settlement agreement is the product of arm's-length, good-faith negotiations. Mr. Seery is going to testify that the negotiations began in late March and they concluded on May 19th. Exhibits 2 through 57, with the exception of the one or two I just withdrew, reflect the parties' negotiations. Mr. Seery is going to testify that the negotiations were conducted by Zoom, by phone call, there was one in-person meeting, there was many, many email exchanges that are reflected in the exhibits.

Mr. Seery is going to testify about the substance of the negotiations at a high level. Originally, we had sought to have one agreement with Hunter Mountain and the DAF entities. Mr. Patrick was not comfortable with that. He wanted to run them separately. And there was a DAF agreement that was ultimately entered into but that nobody believed required court approval.

So, once that got completed and one of the Fifth Circuit appeals got dismissed as a result, we moved to the Hunter Mountain discussions. Those discussions were robust. There were issues about the timing of the effectiveness of certain of the benefits under the proposed agreement. Highland wanted the releases, for example, to be effective upon signing. Mr. Patrick was unwilling to agree to anything without this Court's approval.

So there were changes that were made over time in terms of the timing of the transfer of the consideration. There were discussions and negotiations and bids and asks about the amounts that would be paid, when they would be paid, the circumstances under -- that they would be paid. There was an enormous amount of information that was exchanged pursuant to a confidentiality agreement that now became public because it's relevant to the Debtors' burden or the Claimant Trust's burden to carry the day here.

That information included claims information, the trust agreement itself, budgets, asset/liability valuation information, forecasted expenses, because HMIT rightly wondered, you know, what's going to happen to the money? Is it going to be gone before it got its agreed-upon share? So, you know, there will be, I think, indisputable evidence at the end of the day that the settlement is the product of arm's-length, good-faith negotiations.

If we move to the next slide, the evidence will also show that the proposed settlement is indisputably in the best interest of the Highland entities and their stakeholders. Upon court approval, all of the pending litigation that Your Honor identified earlier will be dismissed with prejudice, thereby greatly reducing litigation risk and attendant costs.

The stakeholders will also benefit from the allowance of the HMIT claim at a fixed amount of $337 million. And we will explain -- Mr. Seery will explain to the Court how that number was arrived at.

The estates and their stakeholders will also benefit because, under the proposed settlement, as I indicated earlier, Highland will be able to monetize or otherwise dispose of a number of illiquid assets, including the Dugaboy Note and the estate claims in the Kirschner Litigation. And perhaps most importantly to the estate, we are getting very, very broad what we refer to as litigation protections from all of the Hunter Mountain entities. It includes not only a release but a covenant not to sue as well as, you know, we could go through it, but -- but we believe that even if Mr. Dondero or somebody else obtains control of Hunter Mountain, unless somebody sets aside this agreement, those protections are going to inure to the benefit of the Trusts, the Indemnity Trust and all of its stakeholders until the end of time, and nobody is ever going to be able to set this agreement aside because it was negotiated in good faith, it was the product of arm's-length negotiations, and it's fair and reasonable to both sides.

So those litigation protections are paramount and they provide another indicator of the benefits that the Claimant Trust is going to receive.

The next slide, Your Honor, is a demonstrative exhibit, although, as always, we have citations to the very specific documents that are now in the record. Mr. Seery will describe for you at a high level how the allowed claim of HMIT was calculated, and it's really just based on the limited partners' capital accounts as of the petition date. And I'll just leave it at that for the moment. There's no magic to it. It's objectively reasonable. It's mathematics. There's really no subjectivity that I'm aware of that goes into this. It's just, hey, let's look at the tax returns, let's look at the financial statements, and let's look at the partnership agreement, and let's see how the capital account was structured as of the petition date. And that's how you get to, really, $396 million less the amount of the Dugaboy Note. I mean, the HMIT note.

The next slide. With the settlement, the transfer of the Kirschner Litigation is in the best interests of the Movants. I think Mr. Daugherty somehow suggests that really the best thing to do would be to prosecute that litigation. We respectfully disagree. In the Debtors' business -- in the Claimant Trust's business judgment, that would be exactly the wrong thing to do when you are settling with HMIT.

And why is that? When we commenced the Kirschner Litigation a number of years ago, the Kirschner Litigation represented a potential source of funding for indemnification expenses, and at that time, for the payment in full to creditors.

By 2023, 2024, with the success of the Highland team's monetization of assets, the need to pursue and monetize the Kirschner claims became less clear, so we put it on ice. And we voluntarily stayed the litigation to conserve resources.

The settlement with HMIT changes everything. The claims are as valid today as they were yesterday, as they were before we signed the agreement, as they were when we commenced the action. But they have very different value to Highland when you're settling with HMIT. And that's why we're prepared to transfer the claims today.

Why? Because at this point, unlike when we commenced the action, Class 8 has been paid in full except for Mr. Daugherty's fully-reserved claim, right, in an amount that he agreed to for years and that he ratified and reaffirmed three different times in three different stipulations. That's the only thing that remains in Class 8.

THE COURT: And remind me of the dollar amounts on reserve.

MR. MORRIS: It's approximately $2.5 million. I can --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: It's -- the dollar amount is specifically set forth --

(Pause.)

MR. MORRIS: It would be, I believe, in Exhibit 60, --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: -- is the original tolling agreement. And in Paragraph 1 it has the very specific dollar amount. And then in Exhibits 62, 63 -- 61, 62, and 63, those are amendments to the tolling agreement that fully incorporated the original tolling agreement, including the reserve amount. So that amount has been there for years. Nobody has ever said anything about it. Nobody has ever tried to adjust it. Nobody has ever identified a change in circumstances that would suggest a change was appropriate. But here we are.

So, why is it different and why does the Kirschner Litigation not have so much value to us when we're settling with Class 11? Because Class 8 has been paid in full. Class 9 has been paid 80 percent. If the HMIT settlement is approved, it will receive another 10 percent. So that all that remains is 10 percent of the Class 9s.

And most importantly, Your Honor, with the settlement with HMIT and the Claimant Trust's receipt of the litigation protections, the need for indemnification expenses is going to be greatly reduced. We can give the money where it belongs because all we'll have left is Mr. Dondero and Dugaboy. It really will literally be the only thing. And we need a lot to deal with that, but not as much as we needed when we had to deal with them and HMIT.

And at the end of the day, once you're settling with HMIT, prosecution of the claims would only benefit HMIT, so why should we undertake the expense of doing that?

Is that clear to Your Honor?

THE COURT: It is.

MR. MORRIS: It is? So, it's -- this has nothing to do -- and you're going to hear questions of Mr. Seery, did you value the Kirschner claims? Are you giving them away for free? No, we didn't value them, because once you're settling with HMIT it doesn't really matter. Once you have the litigation protections, once you know that HMIT is never going to be an adversary of yours, the monetization of the Kirschner claims would insure to their benefit because they will have an allowed claim of $330 million. So even if we sued and even if we got a hundred million dollars, that's going to go to them. Why would we pick up the tab today? A very different scenario than when we prosecuted the case, when the case was commenced.

So, really, really, in the estate's best interest to get value for those claims. The value is reflected in the totality of the agreement. The Court really should look at the body of the consideration that's being received, including the litigation protections.

If we can go to the next slide, Your Honor. As long as we're on the topic of Mr. Patrick's authority, Mr. Seery is going to testify to the work that he did to satisfy himself that Mr. Patrick was duly authorized to act on behalf of each of the HMIT entities in this case.

The next slide here shows an excerpt from the Hunter Mountain Trust Agreement. It's Paragraph 7. And it says, among other things, the Administrator -- who is Mark Patrick -- shall be duly authorized, from time to time, in his sole discretion, to manage the business and affairs of the Trust.

It continues by saying that the Administrator, Mr.

Patrick, shall also have the power to settle, compromise, submit to arbitration, or to submit to any court having jurisdiction in any matter, any matters that are in dispute.

So, you know, this is just one document. It's the Hunter Mountain document. We focus on the Hunter Mountain document because that's the only one of the HMIT entities that has a stake in the Claimant Trust. But, again, Your Honor, if you just -- Mr. Seery will, at a high level, confirm that Exhibits 70 through 104 are documents that definitively establish that Mr. Patrick has the authority to enter into each of these agreements on behalf of the HMIT entities.

Not only that, but he will describe, if asked by you or anybody cross-examining him, why nobody has the ability to interfere with the effectuation of his authority. He doesn't have to get anybody's consent. He doesn't have to -- right? This is all just crystal clear. And whatever entity far up the chain may exist, Your Honor should just think of as a shareholder. And if Coca-Cola came in here and they wanted to do a 9019 motion, a shareholder can't come in and stop Coca-Cola from doing that. If they don't like what Coca-Cola is doing, go file a derivative suit. Go sue Coca-Cola in another court at another time. Not that I'm inviting litigation against Mr. Patrick, but by analogy, this is what we're talking about.

There is no restriction on Mr. Patrick's authority. The settlement is fair and reasonable. He has authority under the governing documents to do what he has done here, and that is act in the best interests of the HMIT entities. And so this is just one page. Mr. Seery will explain, you know, just the work that he's done to satisfy himself.

The next slide, Your Honor, there's objections about how somehow the settlement agreement violates the plan or the absolute priority rule, all of that. It's not accurate. I'll just leave it at that in terms of how I characterize it.

The next slide is excerpts of -- I think it's the plan of reorganization, Your Honor. And I think we admitted the plan last night. That's Exhibit 126. And they're -- these excerpts are really important because what they show is that Classes 9 and 10 have the indisputable right to accept less favorable treatment. And that's what they've done. Okay? And I think it's Article III, Section H, Subparts 9 and 10. Holders of Class 9 and 10 interests have the right to accept less favorable treatment.

And if we can go to the next slide, I'll just briefly describe the less favorable treatment that these stakeholders have in fact accepted. As permitted by the plan, holders of Class 9 claims consented to the payment in full of Mr. Daugherty's Class 9 claim and the Class 10 distributions, in accordance with the settlement agreement, before their Class 9 claim is paid in full.

And that's Exhibit 59. It may be among the most important documents that have been admitted this morning. Exhibit 59 is the consent of the Class 9 holders other than Mr. Daugherty to accept lesser treatment.

So there's no violation of the plan at all. HMIT is also accepting less favorable treatment than it might otherwise be entitled to if it ever successfully prosecuted its claim. It has less favorable treatment because it's agreeing that it's not a Claimant Trust beneficiary, that its rights are limited to the rights that are given to it under the settlement agreement and nowhere else. It's accepting less favorable treatment because it's agreeing that the Highland entities owe no duty of any kind to any HMIT entity except as provided for in the settlement agreement. It's accepting restrictions on its ability to transfer its Class 10 interests -- more less-favorable treatment -- as a condition to the first and second distributions. They have agreed that they are subject to Mr. Seery's determination that the Highland entities are not at that time under any Threat. "Threat" is a defined term, and it has to do with litigation.

And so if Mr. Seery, in his sole discretion, believes that he needs to conserve resources because he remains years in the future under threat of litigation, he's not going to make the payments to HMIT, and HMIT is okay with that because they understand.

And, of course, in the end, they're accepting less favorable treatment because they're granting to the Claimant Trust the litigation protections.

All stakeholders have been paid in full except for the 10 percent of Class 9 and Mr. Daugherty's Class 8 claim. That claim is the subject of an objection, and as I just walked Your Honor through, it has been fully reserved in an agreed-upon amount for years.

There was some questioning during Mr. Seery's -- one of Mr. Seery's I think three depositions in the last week -- about why he didn't offer Mr. Daugherty the same treatment that he offered to the other Class 9 holders because Mr. Daugherty had about an $800,000 Class 9 claim. Your Honor will see in Exhibit 58 that that claim was paid in full, and Mr. Seery will explain that he found negotiating with Mr. Patrick to be difficult, number one. And number two, it was an amount of money that the estate could afford. And so the other Class 9 claims are substantially bigger, so rather than going through the process of attempting to negotiate with Mr. Daugherty, he just paid it in full. The Claimant Trust had every right to do that. And Mr. Daugherty should not be heard to complain that he actually got everything that he could have ever been entitled to.

THE COURT: And --

MR. MORRIS: Uh-huh?

THE COURT: I don't mean to get you off-track.

MR. MORRIS: That's all right.

THE COURT: But Class 9 claimants, I'm trying to remember who else was in that class. Was it a UBS --

MR. MORRIS: UBS.

THE COURT: -- claim?

MR. MORRIS: Exactly right.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: And then affiliates of Stonehill and Farallon.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: Because they had purchased --

THE COURT: They had Class 9 --

MR. MORRIS: They had purchased originally I think it was Josh Terry, and the Redeemer Committee may have had a piece. No, no. No, no, no. HarbourVest. HarbourVest had a piece. Right? So, HarbourVest sold their claim, including the Class 9 claim. Josh Terry sold his claim, including his Class 9 claim. Then there's UBS, who still holds a piece of their claim, and Mr. Daugherty. So, UBS, if you look at Exhibit 59, you'll see the signatures of UBS and the affiliates of Stonehill and Farallon, who all agreed to accept lesser treatment.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: So, at the end of the day, Your Honor, the last slide is a slide that I didn't intend to present, frankly, because I didn't ever believe that there was going to be a challenge to authority by anybody other than The Dallas Foundation. But as long as we have it attached, we might as well see it.

As you can see, Your Honor, in the lower right-hand corner, you can see Hunter Mountain is owned by Beacon Mountain, which is owned by CLO Holdco. Like, there is no -- and Mr. Patrick controls it. And it's really on the other side of the ledger, in the DAF house, so to speak, that any of The Dallas Foundation got interested.

Dugaboy is not even on here, by the way. Like, Dugaboy is nobody. The people in here who are now going to challenge the authority of Mr. Patrick, no, not on here. And they're going to do it, they're going to do it without ever having given us notice.

I know Your Honor made your ruling and we'll deal with it, but I don't know if Your Honor was aware of this: They're not on here.

Your Honor, at the end of the day, this is a really, really easy call to make from our perspective. We have been waiting for this moment for years. Finally, a responsible person understands that the way to preserve value is to put the sword down.

Mr. Patrick, I don't know what happened between him and

Mr. Dondero. I don't care. I have no knowledge of that. But clearly he is exercising independence. And that's why we're here, because we finally have somebody who says, you know what, give me everything I can possibly get and I will stop fighting. I wish other people would say that, because then this case would be over. Then the case would really be over.

But getting to a settlement with the Class 10 interest holder who is going to have an allowed claim of $337 million, such that any value in the future is going to go to HMIT, I hope that that -- you know, this is an easy call to make, Your Honor.

I have nothing further at this time, but I look forward to putting Mr. Seery on the stand and making sure that Your Honor has, you know, an adequate, sufficient, overwhelming basis, frankly, to approve this motion.

THE COURT: Okay. I don't mean to stifle you, but --

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- anything more for an opening statement? Mr. Phillips, I'm doing friendlies and then friendlies.

OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF THE HUNTER MOUNTAIN ENTITIES

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, just briefly. Louis M. Phillips on behalf of the Hunter Mountain entities.

We fully embrace and concur with everything that Mr. Morris has told the Court. From our perspective, and the reason that -- and you'll see, the documents include all of the back and forth -- we required the Court approval before the effectiveness of any releases, litigation protections, et cetera, for exactly the reason that we needed the Class 9 to agree. And we obtained -- the Highland entities obtained the approval of the Class 9 creditors to our treatment, and I think that the bona fides of this settlement and the value of the settlement and our -- what we are giving in the settlement is, I think, established beyond even the slightest bit of question by the fact that the Class 9 creditors and the Oversight Board of the Claimant Trust all agreed that it was important enough to the estate to get this settlement with Hunter Mountain Investment Trust that they agreed to allow Hunter Mountain Investment Trust to receive the money set forth in the settlement upon the approval. And we have agreed that, notwithstanding appeal rights of some people who really don't have the right to be here, but that's going to be determined by Your Honor, we're not worried about that. We are giving our releases. And the releases are effective upon approval by this Court. We are not requiring any type of final unappealable order that doesn't -- that waits for years before the releases are effective.

Very importantly, it seems to me, from Your Honor's perspective, and I'm reluctant to suggest that I know about that, but our releases are given upon the approval by this Court of the settlement. They're not -- if the settlement is reversed on appeal, our releases stay.

So the Class 9s that are above the Class 10 have voted, and they have approved, and Mr. Seery is going to testify about that. And we think that in and of itself is a monumental accomplishment. And we appreciate everything Mr. Morris has said. We agree with everything Mr. Morris has said. We agree with everything Mr. Morris has said about the absence of true objection. We agree with everything Mr. Morris has said about the fallacy of suggesting that Mr. Seery had to value the Hunter Mountain -- the Kirschner Litigation proceeds, of which would come to us.

The idea that we need to worry about how much Mr. Dondero entities can pay in connection with the Kirschner Litigation so that we could value the Kirschner Litigation based on what Mr. Dondero can pay, so that to suffice with an objection by Dugaboy maybe that there was no value given. I mean, that's all backwards. Value was given as described by Mr. Morris and will be established by the evidence submitted by Mr. Seery's testimony and the documents that are already in evidence.

And that is it from our standpoint, Your Honor. Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you. All right. I'll hear from the Objectors. Daugherty's counsel, are you going to go first?

OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF PATRICK DAUGHERTY

MR. YORK: Thank you, Your Honor. If I may approach.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. YORK: Good morning, Your Honor. Drew York on behalf of Mr. Daugherty.

We're here today regarding the 9019 and Mr. Daugherty's objection. The 9019 motion should be denied. If you turn to the third slide in there, we say that Highland -- Highland, I'm referring to Highland collectively for the Movants -- attempts to put the cart before the horse. So really what's going on here, Your Honor, is we're just asking the Court to follow the rules of the road that it set forth in the plan, the confirmation order, and, frankly, even Highland to follow the terms of the settlement agreement it entered into with Mr. Daugherty.

None of that is happening here as a result of this proposed settlement that's being presented to you today for consideration.

The first problem with the motion and the proposed settlement is that it violates the absolute priority rule, it violates the express terms of the Court's plan, the confirmation order, as well as the Claimant Trust Agreement, because it attempts to fund the contingent Class 10 claims without first resolving, let alone satisfying, Mr. Daugherty's remaining Class 8 claim.

And then, secondly, the settlement agreement does not satisfy the Jackson Brewing factors because it prioritizes the HMIT insiders over the estate creditors, including Mr. Daugherty, and it forfeits potential recovery that would go to the benefit of those to creditors to appease litigation pressure.

So, first, I'm going to talk about why the settlement violates the plan, the confirmation order, and the Trust Agreement.

As everyone is aware, the HMIT entities are asserting a Class 10 claim.

If you turn to the next page, as Mr. Morris has acknowledged and admitted here today, Mr. Daugherty has a remaining Class 8 claim. And, importantly, Your Honor, because Mr. Morris and Highland continue to argue that that claim is fully reserved, I would point out that in the settlement agreement between Mr. Daugherty and Highland the parties characterized that claim as a contingent unliquidated claim. A contingent unliquidated claim. And in fact, they went so far, Highland did, in its adversary complaint on the next slide, Your Honor, to again refer to it as an unliquidated and contingent claim that is dependent on the final outcome of the 2008 audit, including the magnitude of any adjustments.

And so Highland cannot come into this courtroom and on the one hand argue that that claim is fully reserved, and at the same time admit that it is a contingent unliquidated claim that is subject to a myriad of adjustments depending upon the outcome of that audit.

And in reality, when you look at the tolling agreement, there is nothing that the parties said that that was a fully reserved claim at all. That's simply not what they agreed to. They just simply put a number in there, which was put into the reserve account at the time. But it did not constitute a fully reserved claim at all.

Nor has Highland pointed to anything -- in the plan, the confirmation order, or the Claimant Trust Agreement -- that allows Highland to come in and violate those documents by simply saying that we fully reserved for Mr. Daugherty's claim.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, we're going to hear the evidence, but as I understood it, it was an agreed reserved amount. And I asked earlier, was it $2.5 million or -- I feel like it was an agreed amount plus even some interest, acknowledging there might be time. I don't remember every detail from this case, but I'm just telling you that's what my memory is. Am I correct?

MR. YORK: The --

THE COURT: Mr. Daugherty agreed, here's what we'll agree is enough to set aside for our ultimately potentially allowed claim, x amount plus interest? Can you confirm?

MR. YORK: What the tolling agreement provides is that Mr. Daugherty agreed to provide the tolling of the objection deadline. Okay. And Highland then agreed to put $2.56 million into the reserve.

And what the footnote says in the tolling agreement, Exhibit 60, is that the estimated amount of that claim as of -- and let's be clear about this -- as of October 23rd of 2020, was $2.56 million and change. And that's it. And I'm happy to have my colleague, Mr. Smeltzer, who is a tax attorney and deals with these issues all the time, can come up and explain why, at the end of the day, this is still a contingent unliquidated claim and it's subject to a myriad of factors that make it that that amount that Highland has set aside is not necessarily going to be a fully-reserved amount.

That is why the parties have -- had called it both in the settlement agreement and the tolling agreement, and Highland has continued to call it -- characterize it in its adversary complaint as a contingent unliquidated claim. So --

THE COURT: Okay. It's hard to wrap my brain around it. It's a claim that I understood really couldn't be liquidated with certainty until this potential audit of 2008 is final, and there was some discussion of how close to it being final was it. But I guess -- well, I don't know where I'm going here except to say this could be a contingent unliquidated claim for a -- you know, it's already, what, 17 years?

MR. YORK: Based -- from when the tax return was filed? I think that's correct, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, this is what the adversary is about, right? I guess they're finally saying it should be estimated, liquidated, pursuant to the Bankruptcy Code and we'll be done.

MR. YORK: Correct. In violation of the terms of the settlement agreement between Mr. Daugherty and Highland. Yes, that's --

THE COURT: Wait. Wait. What?

MR. YORK: So, the settlement agreement between Daugherty and Mr. Highland provides --

THE COURT: Mr. Highland?

MR. YORK: I'm sorry. I apologize. Between Mr. Daugherty and Highland --

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. YORK: -- provides that the -- as long as the IRS audit has not had a final -- there's not a final determination, --

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. YORK: -- then any litigation concerning the validity or the amount of Mr. Daugherty's claim is stayed and cannot be brought before the Court. And that's exactly what their adversary complaint did, which is -- because they admit in their adversary complaint --

THE COURT: Well, okay. I won't pursue this anymore. But what's an estate to do? They're getting criticized for the Trust going on too long. Not by your client, but -- and meanwhile you want, I mean, 2032, are we still going to be waiting on the IRS?

MR. YORK: I don't know because we don't have any insight into what the IRS audit is.

THE COURT: Well, it's been 17 years.

MR. YORK: I understand, Your Honor.

THE COURT: So, --

MR. YORK: But the bottom line is this. The plan -- that Highland entered into the terms of that settlement agreement.

THE COURT: I'm going to say it right now. I'm not keeping this estate open until 2032. I just, I was --

MR. YORK: I presume that --

THE COURT: -- kind of flippantly throwing that out there.

MR. YORK: And --

THE COURT: But this happens in bankruptcy cases a lot, where you've got a contingent unliquidated claim, and there are provisions in the Bankruptcy Code to say what can be done in that scenario. The Court can estimate or liquidate.

MR. YORK: Understood. Your point to me was -- before was that's why Highland brought the adversary complaint, and I was simply pointing out that, pursuant to the express terms of the agreement that Highland reached with Mr. Daugherty, Highland was -- is not allowed to bring the adversary complaint to challenge the validity or amount of Mr. Daugherty's claim so long as the IRS audit has not been -- had a final determination. That's exactly what's going on here with the adversary complaint that they have filed.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. YORK: Okay. So I think Your Honor is familiar with the terms of the plan, the Fifth Amended Plan and the subordination. But specifically we have two issues. One begins with the Claimant Trust Agreement in Section 5.1(c), which provides that the equity holders shall not have any rights under the agreement unless and until the Claimant Trustee files with the Bankruptcy Court a certification that all of general unsecured creditor beneficiaries have been paid indefeasibly, in full, including, to the extent applicable, all accrued and unpaid postpetition interest, consistent with the plan, and all disputed claims have been resolved.

That has not happened here and it cannot happen because, for one, Mr. Daugherty's unresolved Class 8 claim, and also the remaining Class 9 claims, as I think you'll hear from Mr. Seery. And so there are no rights that can be given to the HMIT entities pursuant to -- as a Class 10 holder, an allowed Class 10 holder, pursuant to the Claimant Trust Agreement. So the proposed settlement violates the Claimant Trust Agreement's express terms.

It also violates the Court's confirmation order that was entered at -- specifically on Page 45 of the order, in Subparagraph (a): The holders of the equity interests -- which would be the Class 10 and Class 11 equity interests -- that are junior to the claims in Class 8 and Class 9 will not receive or retain under the plan, on account of such junior claim interest, any property, unless and until the claims -- the claims, not the allowed claims, but the claims -- in Class 8 and Class 9 are paid in full, plus applicable interest.

That's exactly what the settlement that is proposed here is designed to do.

And if you turn two pages in, you'll see that in addition to the assignment of the Kirschner claims, what we're also having under this proposed settlement are interim cash distributions that would be made to the HMIT entities, interim cash distributions that theoretically could be made before the resolution of Mr. Daugherty's Class 8 claim, which would be in violation of the plan, the Claimant Trust Agreement, and the confirmation order.

And that is, as best as they put in their agreement, that's approximately $23 million in cash that would be paid out theoretically in those interim distributions.

One of the things that Mr. Morris said in his opening was that they did not -- Mr. Seery did not negotiate with Mr. Daugherty because he was difficult to deal with. Well, that's surprising, Your Honor, considering, on the other hand, Mr. Morris says to the Court that there were repeated tolling agreements or amendments to the tolling agreement that were entered into by Mr. Daugherty willingly and voluntarily to benefit Highland.

And what really happened when Mr. Morris says that there were good-faith arm's-length negotiations, well, there may have been good-faith, arm's-length negotiations between the HMIT entities and Highland, but what happened here was that Highland actually sought to ice out Mr. Daugherty from all of this completely.

And how did that happen? Well, the evidence is going to show that Highland reached out to the other Class 9 creditors over a month in advance of the motion being filed, sought their consent to the proposed settlement, told them that Mr. Daugherty was not going to be a part of it, told them that Mr. Daugherty's Class 8 claim was going to have an adversary complaint filed against it, told them that once that adversary complaint was granted and the claim was disallowed, then those funds would waterfall down to Class 9, so the Class 9 creditors would get that -- those funds that theoretically are part of Mr. Daugherty's Class 8 claim.

So at no point in time prior to the filing of the adversary proceeding, or even prior to the filing of the motion for approval of this proposed settlement, did Highland ever contact Mr. Daugherty to attempt to discuss any of this, because they simply wanted to ice him out.

THE COURT: Okay. I'm going to hear evidence. I don't mean to cut you off, but --

MR. YORK: Sure.

THE COURT: -- I was told that Mr. Daugherty was paid $800,000 --

MR. YORK: With respect to his --

THE COURT: -- on his Class 9 claim.

MR. YORK: Correct.

THE COURT: Is that not true?

MR. YORK: So, the day --

THE COURT: Is that true?

MR. YORK: It is true. The day after the motion for entry of the proposed settlement was filed, Mr. Demo sent a letter to my office that was a payoff --

THE COURT: I just wanted to -- I don't need to know every detail.

MR. YORK: Yes. Sure.

THE COURT: Has he been paid?

MR. YORK: His Class 9 claim was paid in full the day after the proposed settlement was filed.

THE COURT: Okay. So what is the asserted amount of his Class 8 claim?

MR. YORK: We -- again, both sides do not know because they do not have --

THE COURT: What was the asserted amount in the proof of claim that's been reserved for, the Class 8 proof of claim? What was the asserted amount?

MR. YORK: It was listed as contingent unliquidated. And as I understood it, and Your Honor --

MR. MORRIS: No. I think it's approximately $1.7 million, Your Honor.

MR. DAUGHERTY: That's not true.

THE COURT: $1.7 million?

MR. DAUGHERTY: No.

THE COURT: I would look it up, but I don't know if we --

MR. DAUGHERTY: Your Honor, I'll tell you. It was like $1.45 million, and then the interest to October, which was like another $1.3 million. I'm estimating it. But the total is around $2.6 million, $2.7 million at October/November 2020. Up to that point.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, that's kind of a weird process here for an opening statement. But I'm asking because, you know, I always try to stray people into let's be pragmatic whenever I can. And a pragmatic approach here might have been, if your client didn't think the reserve was big enough, you all could have a discussion about, oh, instead of $2.56 million, it now should, I don't know, $3 million, whatever you say the number is. And there could have been a give and take, instead of all these people showing up in the court and having an all-day hearing.

So I'm just trying to understand that. And you're saying, okay, violation of the absolute priority, when your client took a full payment on his Class 9 claim without Class 8 being quite paid in full. I'm just trying to be pragmatic here. What would it take to make Mr. Daugherty happy? Again, that's just the bankruptcy judge speaking on Chapter 11 world that's trying to get to a pragmatic result.

MR. YORK: We're happy to have that discussion with the other side. We were -- we --

THE COURT: Well, what --

MR. YORK: Yes.

THE COURT: You can't tell me right now? You're here ready to go to battle over this settlement, and I'm trying to figure out what might happen here that would make you all withdraw your objection. And that's what we do in Chapter 11. If there's a way we can pragmatically resolve things, we do.

MR. YORK: Sure.

THE COURT: And it just, I'm picking on you because we're talking about a $2.5 or so million claim in a situation where people are wanting the estate wrapped up and it's holding hundreds of millions of dollars, I guess.

MR. MORRIS: Not that much, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Not that much anymore. Not that much anymore. A lot has been paid out. But a lot more than $2.56 million, shall we say.

MR. YORK: Understood, Your Honor. And I'm happy to have a conversation with Mr. Morris and see if we can reach a number that's agreeable to accept as, you know, the reserve.

THE COURT: How hard could that be? I don't mean to be --

MR. YORK: Happy to do so. Sure.

THE COURT: How hard could that be, when we're talking about he's been paid $800,000 on his Class 9 ahead of his Class 8, which, to understand your argument, would be an absolute priority rule problem. But, you know, --

MR. YORK: Correct. We indicated that --

THE COURT: -- no picking and choosing what is problematic here. And we're talking about $2.56 million is set aside, and we're talking about the prospect of liquidating it and paying whatever is appropriate way before the IRS is finished. Maybe. I don't know. So how hard could it be to figure out --

MR. YORK: I'm sure we can -- we can have a conversation real quick and try to see if we can --

THE COURT: Okay. Well, it'll have to be during a break, --

MR. YORK: Sure. Happy to.

THE COURT: -- because we're plowing ahead. Okay. Anything else on your opening statement?

MR. YORK: The only other thing I would point out with respect to the best interests of the estate is that the -- as part of the settlement, the Class 9 holders and the Class 10 holders are actually getting more favorable treatment than Mr. Daugherty's Class 8 claim because of the mutual releases that they're getting pursuant to the terms of the proposed settlement, including the fact that the Class 9 written consent holders who are all -- all have served on the board here are getting those releases as well under the proposed settlement.

THE COURT: It's not a release by your client.

MR. YORK: No, I understand that. I understand that. But they're getting mutual releases from each other on litigation that Highland has -- the Claimant Trust, excuse me, has -- Trustee has, you know, consistently said that they had all of those parties, all of those defendants, dead to rights on.

So, that's all I have.

THE COURT: Okay. I really, I'm trying to focus on people's standing. Your client has standing. He has a proof of claim that's unresolved. But I'm just trying to understand the economic impact, I guess, on your client. And all I'm hearing is, I don't know, that maybe he thinks more than $2.56 million ought to be reserved. I mean, I'm --

MR. YORK: Given the passage of time, and also given the fact that it's still undetermined as to what's going to happen with that audit and what the penalties might be, considering that the amount that was --

THE COURT: But, again, this is bankruptcy-land. We can't wait around 20 years, 30 years. The Bankruptcy Code contemplates we can at some point estimate --

MR. YORK: Sure.

THE COURT: -- a contingent unliquidated claim.

MR. YORK: I understand.

THE COURT: So I -- all right. Thank you.

MR. YORK: Thank you.

THE COURT: And Mr. Lang?

OPENING STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF THE DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST

MR. LANG: We're down to three issues, one of which is the scope of the release, which I think we can work out with Mr. Morris, just to make sure people are carved out, being Dugaboy.

The second issue is the use of the dollar value from the capital account as the basis for the Class 10 claim versus using the -- well, they're using it on the petition date versus using it -- the current capital account balance or the percentage interest of 99.5 percent, because that prevents the class, as structured, class level (inaudible). And so we have an issue with why they're using the capital account as the basis for the allowed claim, when the plan is silent on how that equity interest is to be valued.

Does that make sense?

THE COURT: Okay. You have a problem with the valuation methodology used here, which was taking the capital account balances from --

MR. LANG: On the petition date.

THE COURT: -- on the petition date?

MR. LANG: Versus using the ownership percentage of the equity on, as repeatedly stated, 99.5 percent of Highland is owned by HMIT, .5 is owned by the Class 11.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, I'm not sure what -- I guess you'll cross-examine Mr. Seery on different possible methodologies.

MR. LANG: Yes.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. LANG: And so then the third one is the authority issue on Mr. Patrick's authority to enter into the settlement agreement and the transfer of the Dugaboy Note to Mr. Patrick's entity, HMIT.

THE COURT: All right. And, again, I'll just clarify my understanding. Dugaboy -- this came up earlier -- itself has a .1866 percent Class A limited partnership interest?

MR. LANG: I think that's approximately right. Not exact. Is that Mr. Morris' sheet?

THE COURT: It was in several pleadings.

MR. LANG: Okay. Yeah.

THE COURT: Okay. So the question will be, should that be valued at $740,000 or something different?

MR. LANG: More -- there's $65 to $70 million in assets in the estate. There's $20 million in Class 9 debt, is what Mr. Seery -- unpaid Class 9, is what Mr. Seery testified to.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. LANG: So it's $45 to $50 million would be left after payment of the Class 9. And if they use the ownership percentages, Class 11 gets some money. If they use a $333 million capital account, Class 11 gets nothing.

THE COURT: Okay. I presume that's a material difference, and I'm going to hear about that.

MR. LANG: Yes.

THE COURT: Okay. And then I guess my other thoughts on his interest -- I say his; it's Dugaboy. We tend to equate Dugaboy with Mr. Dondero since we've heard he and his family are the hundred percent beneficiaries. There I guess is a note that is addressed in the settlement.

MR. LANG: Yes.

THE COURT: I called it the $24.2 million note in my --

MR. LANG: That was --

THE COURT: -- preparation, but it's down to --

MR. LANG: Seventeen-ish.

THE COURT: -- $17 million or whatever. So, right now, Highland is a payee on that note, as well as Get Good Trust, and Hunter Mountain under the proposed settlement gets to substitute in as a co-payee.

So I guess I'm just trying to, in my brain, figure out all the, just like I was doing with Mr. Daugherty, the economic impact of this settlement on your client. And have I just addressed the two things in your view?

MR. LANG: Yes.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. LANG: I believe so.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

All right. Can we start with evidence? At some point, we'll break for lunch, but we'll figure out as we go. I don't want to be inconvenient to people if people have ordered lunch or something.

MR. MORRIS: We are going to be finished with Mr. Seery on direct well before lunch.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: Or by lunch, for sure.

THE COURT: It's 11:30.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: So, all right.

MR. MORRIS: I do -- I would be remiss if I didn't point out that Mr. Lang just raised yet another issue, the calculation of the allowed amount of HMIT's Class 10 claim. Nowhere in his pleading. Again, hearing about this for the first time as I'm standing here. He raised three issues, only one of which is in their pleading, only one of which I ever heard about from Dugaboy, and that is the scope of the release.

THE COURT: Okay. I don't know if it makes a material difference or not. I am not a mathematician. But --

MR. MORRIS: So Highland -- the Movants call Mr. Seery.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Seery, if you could approach the witness box. I swore you in earlier for purposes of all testimony today, so you are under oath.

MR. SEERY: Thank you, Your Honor.

JAMES SEERY, CLAIMANT TRUST'S WITNESS, PREVIOUSLY SWORN

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q Good morning, Mr. Seery.

A Good morning.
Q Do you have three binders in front of you?
A I have four binders in front of me.
Q Okay. I just want to make sure you have ours.
A I think -- yes, sir.
Q The fourth has the last few exhibits that we filed on the docket.

Should we wait for Mr. Edmond?

THE WITNESS: That would be good.

THE COURT: Yes. I just noticed. Okay. The recording is always going, so never fear.

(Pause.)

THE COURT: All right.

THE WITNESS: Apologies, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Oh, I didn't see what happened. Was there a spill episode?

And please, if people need breaks, let me know. I sometimes go long without appropriate breaks, so let me know, anybody, if we need to break for bathroom.

MR. MORRIS: May I proceed, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. MORRIS: All right.

BY MR. MORRIS:
Q Are you comfortable, Mr. Seery?
A Yes.

Q I want to actually start a little unscripted with the argument that was just made on behalf of Mr. Daugherty. Did you listen to that?
A I did, Your Honor. Yes, I did. I'll speak to Your Honor. Yes, I did, Your Honor.
Q Did Mr. Daugherty have a Class 9 claim?
A He did have a Class 9 claim.
Q And what was the value of the Class 9 interest that he held?
A It was approximately $3.7 million.
Q And who are the other Class 9 claim holders?
A There are three -- I'm sorry, there are four other Class 9 holders. There is Muck Holdings, LLC. There is Jessup Holdings, LLC. There is UBS AG. And there's UBS Securities, LLC.
Q Okay. And if you can turn to Exhibit 58, which is in Volume 1.
A VOICE: Mr. Morris, what was the exhibit number?
MR. MORRIS: It's 58.
A VOICE: Thank you.
MR. MORRIS: You're welcome.
BY MR. MORRIS:
Q Do you have that in front of you, sir?
A Yes.
Q What is that?

A That is a distribution notice to Mr. Daugherty from the Highland Claimant Trust with the eighth distribution. And I believe this would be related to his Class 9 claim. It may be some 8 -- some Class 8 as well. But March 25 is -- I'm sorry, May 25, my eyes are not that great for close up, this is just related to the payoff of his Class 9 claim. So he'd had a $3.7 million. This was the last -- final payment, so he's been paid in full on his Class 9 claim.

Q So do I have this right, that before you sent this $800,000-plus to him, he had already received $2.9 million on account of his Class 9 claim?

A That's approximately correct, yes.

Q And how many different distributions were made to Mr. Daugherty on account of his Class 9 claim before this last one?

A Two -- two or three. I believe the way we had phrased and put 8 is our total distributions including 8 and 9. So he had a larger Class 8 claim as well. I think it was approximately $8.25 million. That's been paid in full. His Class 9 claim was getting paid in full by this one.

Q Okay. And did Mr. Daugherty receive these prior distributions -- withdrawn. Did the other holders of Class 9 claims also receive pro rata their Class 9 distributions at the same time as Mr. Daugherty?

A Yes. The distributions were pro rata.

Q Okay. Did Mr. Daugherty ever return any of the Class 9 checks that he received and say, oh my goodness, it violates the plan and the absolute priority rule and everything else because his Class 8 claim hasn't been paid in full?

A No, he did not.

Q Did he -- did he suggest that UBS or Muck or Jessup should return their checks that they received on account of their Class 9 claims because his Class 8 claim had remained unresolved?

A No, he did not.

Q Okay. Let's go to the reason that we're really here today, the agreement itself. Did you negotiate the settlement on behalf of the Highland entities?

A Yes, I did.

Q Can you describe for the Court how that came about?

A In December, we had a hearing on -- this is a little bit convoluted, I apologize -- but in December we had a hearing on the HCLOM claim in court, and we settled that claim as a $10 million Class 10 interest.

We moved into the new year and we heard some -- at some point that HMIT disagreed with that settlement, even though HMIT had signed that settlement as acceptable to it in form and substance. And the reason was because HMIT had been the only Class 10 -- not allowed, but the only Class 10 interest in -- under the plan, and defined that way, and we had agreed pursuant to the plan to put HCLOM in there.

And although HMIT had signed in form and substance acceptable by its attorney, we learned that Mark Patrick had not been consulted and that attorney had simply -- because we were in the room -- had gone in and gotten permission from Mr. Dondero to approve that settlement in form and substance. We didn't know it at the time.

That went away pretty quickly, and we understood that somehow it got resolved.

Shortly after that, sometime I believe in January or early February, there was contact between HMIT counsel and our counsel about a potential settlement. And we had two issues, really, with Mr. Patrick, who controlled two separate entities. There's the DAF entities he controlled and there's the HMIT entities. And we wanted to make sure -- and we had disputes with both of them. We had a Fifth Circuit appeal coming up in DAF and HMIT. And so we were contacted and said, okay, we're willing to settle this if we can get to a place that makes sense to us. And so that was the commencement of those negotiations.

Q And can you describe -- how long did the negotiations last?

A Well, there was negotiation around the NDA, which took some time, and I think we probably got that finalized at around the middle to end of March. And then we began negotiations in earnest during April. And we took pretty much the full month to get these negotiations done, maybe a month and a half.

Q Can you describe for the Court just how the negotiations were conducted?

A Well, initially, we ensured that the ground rules would be set. We didn't want to waste our time and expense if we weren't going to reach agreement around particularly litigation protections, because that's essential to us, and having any settlement required that.

Secondly, we then -- from their side, they wanted information. So, pursuant to that NDA, which was rather robust, we provided substantial information.

We then had a -- I believe one or two Zoom calls, and then a face-to-face meeting, and then subsequently a number of Zoom calls with our counsel -- usually, these were always with counsel -- so, our counsel, their counsel, principals, my team, Mr. Patrick and his team, to go through each of the items that we exchanged. And then we worked through a framework to -- back and forth on that to a term sheet, to a negotiated structured settlement along the lines of the one you see.

Q And did the parties exchange information as part of the process?

A Yeah. As I explained, we, under our NDA, we gave a lot of information. We got information back from Mr. Patrick, Mr. Phillips, their teams, about the structure of their entities, how we could interact with them, who was responsible for each entity. And that caused us to, frankly, move from just HMIT to a couple other entities to make sure we had full protection.

Q Did you provide information concerning assets, budgets, expenses, and the like?

A Yeah. The detailed information we provided, it was pretty extensive. So we gave a high-level view of our budget, assuming that we had a settlement with them. We have an asset list that we keep and where each asset was located. So, dollars amounts, what kind of form it was in, whether it was cash, whether it was U.S. Treasuries, whether it was, you know, equity interests. Some couple other assets, as Mr. Morris explained in the opening, had not yet been disposed of. And the valuations we put on those assets.

Q Can you turn, I guess, to any volume, and let's just look at the exhibit list. Are you generally familiar with the documentation concerning the negotiations?

A Yes.

Q Can you confirm that Exhibits 2 through 57 are the emails and information that were disclosed between the Highland side and the HMIT side during the negotiations?

A Yes. And I -- I could look through 2 through 57 now, but

--

Q Yeah.

A -- I have looked through them before, and this is the information back and forth. We generally exchanged, other than at the face-to-face meeting, we exchanged information on Zoom calls as well, but when we get documents we gave them counsel-to-counsel.

Q Okay. And did you instruct me to produce all of the communications with the HMIT side in connection with the discovery requests that were served in this case?

A Yes. We had discovery requests that we went through in detail and reviewed them, and we produced in accordance with those requests.

Q Are you aware of any document that we didn't produce that reflects the parties' negotiations of this agreement?

A No, not at all.

Q Can you describe for the Court the general deal points that were negotiated? Withdrawn. Who was your counterparty to these negotiations?

A The principal on the HMIT side is Mr. Mark Patrick. He had his team. And I was responsible on our side with my team.

Q And can you just describe for the Court what the primary negotiating points were between the two teams?

A Yeah. Number one for us was dismissal of outstanding litigations. So we needed, with prejudice, dismissal of those litigations. Otherwise, why are we bothering?

Number two, we wanted to make sure that we had litigation protections. These have been around since -- we came up with them during our mediation. They're really important to us. They set up a structure where we can actually count on the estate and the principals of the estate and the indemnified parties of the estate not being attacked. So that was essential to us.

In exchange, we had to fix their claim and allow it in an amount pursuant to the plan, which requires us to fix an amount. And that's the Class 10 interest that they have, which is senior to the Class 11 interests under the plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement.

And then the way the Trust is set up in the plan, it's a waterfall. They -- we advocated for getting everything for us upfront and putting everything for them at the back. They, understandably, didn't like that as much and wanted distributions upfront. So we negotiated around those terms. And I think those are the biggest terms.

We had some assets that we were -- we were -- difficult to monetize that we also were happy to dispose of in this way, with a credit, you know, towards their claim amount.

Q Did you -- and I may have missed this; I apologize if I did -- but did you also negotiate the amounts and the timing of the distributions that would be made to the HMIT entities?

A Yeah. That's what I alluded to, where we -- we had hoped to get everything for us upfront, give them everything later. I think it's the Wimpy 'For a hamburger you give me today, I'll gladly pay you Tuesday' structure. That didn't like that as much, so we did work on timing. And that did bring into consideration the other Class 9 holders and timing with respect to payments to the Class 9.

Q Was the topic of the allowed amount of HMIT's Class 10 interest the subject of negotiation?

A The topic of the allowed --

Q Did you discuss how the amount of its allowed interest would be calculated?

A Oh, yeah, that was a, you know, a critical part of the -- or, you know, essential part of the structure. What's the allowed amount they're going to get? The plan requires an amount fixed for that class. We had already had a $10 million HCLOM amount allowed into that class. So we needed to fix that amount.

Q So let's transition to that particular topic, the calculation of HMIT's Class 10 interest. Are you familiar with the methodology that was used to arrive at the Class 10 amount?

A Yes.

Q Can you tell me the process, before we get to the methodology itself? Like, what work was done to figure that out?

A Well, the structure of limited partnership is that the equity account is treated as what's called a capital account. Each limited partner in a limited partnership has a capital account that tracks their equity interest. As a default rule, it's the amount that a limited partner can expect to get on a sale of the partnership or a liquidation of the partnership. So we used the capital account that had been maintained continuously by Highland to set their capital account amount.

I think the partnership agreement talks about 99-1/2 percent for HMIT. It doesn't talk about dollars because that's kept in the accounting for the partnership. And that amount was consistently kept by Highland up to the petition date. And even after the petition date in the monthly operating reports.
Q If you take a look back at the exhibit list, I would direct your attention to Page 12 of 15. Actually, it starts at the Page 11. At the bottom, it's got the heading, Capital Account Amounts. Are you familiar with Exhibits 113 through 118? And if you need to look at the exhibits, take your time.
A Oh, I'm sorry. I thought you told me 15.
Q No. One -- I did. I mentioned Page 15. But we're just looking at Exhibits 113 to 118.

THE COURT: 113 to what?

MR. MORRIS: 18.

THE COURT: Okay.

THE WITNESS: Um, --

MR. MORRIS: If you look at the index, Your Honor, at the bottom of Page 15 -- 11, you'll see a heading, Capital Accounts --

THE COURT: Right.

MR. MORRIS: -- Amounts. And then that captures Exhibits 113 to 118.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q Are those the documents that you and your team relied upon in order to calculate the amount of the allowed Class 10 interest for HMIT?

A These are some of them. I don't know if you have the tax returns in here and the K-1s. Oh, here they are. 115.

Q Yeah. That's 115?

A Yeah. You've got the K-1s for 2018, which fix an amount. Those are signed by Mr. Dondero, and they give the amounts to each partner. And then you've got the adjustments, because those are done in -- they're 2018 year-end. They were done in September of 2019, about a month before the filing.

Q And is that Exhibit 116?

A It's 115 and 116. I believe that's -- 116 is 2019, I believe, and that would have been signed postpetition by -- I believe that was signed by Waterhouse.

Q Okay.
A So it sets out the K-1. The numbers that we have are slightly different because they're in the -- they're not middle of the year, but they're for the petition date of 10/16/19. And there are -- there's economic activity that happens during the year, that you take the year-end from '18 and you have economic activity that would affect, pursuant to the partnership, the capital account of each partner during that year, fixed it on the petition date, and then it's been forward since.
Q Did you apply any of your own subjective views or beliefs in the calculation of the amount of the Class 10 interest held by HMIT?
A No. This was math.
Q And did you hear Dugaboy's counsel suggest in the opening that there was a different methodology that perhaps you could have used, a pro rata methodology, instead of the methodology you used?
A I heard what he said, but it doesn't make any sense. You can't fix an amount that way.
Q And do you understand that Dugaboy, under the partnership agreement, is subordinated to HMIT?
A Dugaboy is subordinated under the partnership agreement for certain distributions. But importantly for our purposes, they're subordinated under the plan. So the Class 11 interests are explicitly subordinated to the Class 10 interests, in both the plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement.

Q Did the Debtor consider putting Dugaboy and HMIT in the same class? Back when the plan was being formulated?

A I -- I don't recall.

Q Do you recall why they're in separate classes?

A They -- they're in separate classes because HMIT had a senior -- a right to senior distributions under the partnership agreement. We set it up that way. Nobody objected to it. That was part of the confirmed plan and the confirmed order.

Q Thank you very much. Let's talk for just a moment about Mr. Patrick's authority. Before entering into the settlement agreement, did you do anything to satisfy yourself that Mr. Patrick had the authority to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of each of the HMIT entities?

A Yes.

Q What did you do to satisfy yourself?

A Well, as a default rule, I always look at the agreements that I'm going to enter into and the organizational docs. And we did do that. We looked at each of the organizational docs to --

Q Let me stop you there for a second. Are those the documents that are in the exhibit list from 70 through 104?

A I'd have to check the actual numbers, but --

Q If you just look at the exhibit list.
A Oh.
Q It's at the front. You'll see on Page 8 of 15 of the exhibit list there's a heading, --
A Yes.
Q -- E, Patrick Authority, and then I'm asking you if you are aware of what Exhibits 70 through 104 are?
A Yes. So, these, these are -- there's a number of organizational documents that we looked and made sure that Mr. Patrick had authority.

We also knew from our own files that Mr. Patrick, you know, previously had different interests assigned to him, and we know from Mr. Patrick and documents he's given us that John Honis, who was a former controller of some of -- controlled some of these entities and a friend of Dondero's who previously worked at Highland, is on some retail boards, in 2022 transferred those interests to an entity controlled by Mr. Patrick.

Moreover, Mr. Patrick was here in court as the HMIT Administrator, trying to sue the Highland estate. He testified on behalf of HMIT as the Administrator. And the documents are very clear that the Administrator has full control of these entities.

Q We've heard some argument about a Cayman Islands proceeding. Are you generally aware of what's happening in the Cayman Islands?

A I hesitate to say generally aware. I'm aware that there's a proceeding in the Cayman Islands about involving a blocker corp. And there's disclosure in this Court about what that entity is. It's a blocker corp. in the Caymans that prevents the ultimate charitable entities -- and I put that in quotes -- to -- from receiving UBTI, which is Unrelated Business Income. And in that case, they would have to pay tax on it, and the idea is that they don't want to pay taxes and they don't pay taxes. So that corp. apparently is in some sort of proceeding. That's on the DAF side. That is not on the HMIT side.

Q Okay. So, based on the work that you did and the documents that you reviewed, did you form a view as to whether or not Mr. Patrick is authorized to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of each of the HMIT entities?

A Yes.

Q And what view did you reach?

A He has complete authority over each of these entities. They run up to entities that he controls or he owns. And he's had that, and it's the structure that was set up a long time ago, and any changes to that structure are just consistent with the documents that let him do these things. And the proceeding in Cayman, whatever that is, has no impact on Mr. Patrick's authority over these entities or any of the entities in this chain.

Q Did you see anything in the diligence that you conducted that required Mr. Patrick to seek anybody's authority, consent, or approval before entering into the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities?

A No. And we could go through each document. He has complete authority on each of these entities. And even the objections that were filed that were withdrawn from The Dallas Foundation, they have no -- it's absolutely clear that they have no rights to deal with at all the management of each of these entities. They don't have an ownership interest in it. Crown issued an annuity policy that's a variable policy. They have no rights.

Q All right. Let's turn to the agreement itself. Can you tell the Court why you believe that the settlement agreement is in the Claimant Trust's best interests?

A Number one, this case has been going on for a full five years. We have spent tens of millions of dollars dealing with vexatious and frivolous litigation and attacks. The opportunity to settle with a Class 10 holder and allow their claim under the terms of the settlement is extremely valuable because it moves us much, much closer to a potential resolution of this case, which we would all love to resolve.

Number two, it's fair value for the estate. We are making sure, while we're paying some money out in front, we have triggers on the backend payments to ensure that the Indemnity Trust has enough assets to protect parties if there are unforeseen litigations. And I can almost bet there'll be at least one or two of those. So it's really, really valuable in that respect.

Three, it cuts down tremendously on what future expenses could be. Because we have gotten these litigation protections, we've basically walled off a potential avenue to be attacked. And I think the structure of this deal is valuable, not only to the fiduciaries and folks who have been responsible for managing this process and who are indemnified by the Claimant Trust or HCMLP, it also enables us to, down the road, pay off the Class 9s and ultimately make distributions to the Class 10s.

Q Is one of the other benefits to this agreement is that it enables the Claimant Trust to dispose of certain illiquid assets?

A Well, that's a -- that is a benefit, because we do have to resolve these claims and dispose of these assets, and we're not in a position to hang around until 2030 or more to do that.

So we've got the Kirschner claims, which would go to HMIT. Again, the way that the waterfall is set up, to the extent that they have value, they are very expensive to pursue. We've spent a ton of money setting them up. We've produced seven million documents, pages, and received zero in return. We stayed them because we didn't think we needed them for the Class 8 and 9 and it was prudent to do so, and the question was would we need them for indemnification. So disposing of those claims now at this time as part of this settlement, where that value would go to Class 10 anyway, is very valuable.

Q Had you made any efforts prior to entering into this agreement to monetize or otherwise sell the Dugaboy Note?

A Yes.

Q Can you describe for the Court what your efforts were in that regard?

A So, we set out to try to monetize the Dugaboy Note. I contacted -- we put together what we call a teaser, laying out what we knew about Dugaboy, at least up until the time that Dugaboy was no longer part of our computer system. Laid out what we thought the assets were. There's not a lot of public information. Laid out the amortizing of the note. It's a 3.2 percent-ish, 3.26 percent note, I believe, goes to 2047, '46 on the amortization, 2047. And then presented that to I think it's five different investors in distressed funds. Had no interest whatsoever. One investor laughed at me, which I understood that he was aware of the parties and the principals and the collection efforts that would be difficult on that note.

The note is performing, because if it hadn't performed I would have accelerated on the first second and we would have collected the whole thing. But we've seen that show in the other Notes Litigation. And so we didn't -- we didn't get any reception.

We also reached out to Mr. Dondero, in writing, through D.C. Sauder, and made them an offer and tried to get them to respond, and they indicated they had no interest in the note.

Q Turning back to the exhibit list, if you can turn your attention to Page 11 of 15 of the exhibit list, is Section F, Exhibits 105 through 112, the documents that reflect the note and your efforts to dispose of the note?

A Yes.

Q And let's take a look at Exhibit 112 quickly, since that involves Mr. Dondero. Can you just tell the Court what this exhibit is?

A Yes. This is an exchange between D.C. Sauder, Matt McGraner, both of whom work for Dondero, and Dave Klos, our CFO. I'd authorized Dave to make an offer to them to see if we could get cash for the Dugaboy Note. And as you see right below the reply from Mr. Klos, which is -- this is friendly, but Mr. Sauder's indication that they have no interest.

Q Okay. So Highland offered to sell the Dugaboy Note to Mr. Dondero or entities controlled by him, and that offer was rejected without a counteroffer. Do I have that right?

A That's correct.

Q Okay. Let's finish up here. Are you familiar with the objections of Dugaboy and Mr. Daugherty that the settlement somehow violates the plan because it's making distributions to Class 10 before junior classes are paid in full?

A Yes. I'm familiar with those.

Q Do you believe the settlement violates the plan?

A Not at all.

Q And why is that?

A The plan specifically contemplates that -- I don't think it's -- we showed the 9 and 10s, but I think it's any claimant could take less than is being offered by the plan. What we did very specifically is go to the Class 9 claimants and discuss with them this opportunity to settle with HMIT and what it would take, which included some, as I described earlier, payments upfront.

After being fully informed -- they asked a lot of questions, they pushed back quite a bit, as you can expect that they would -- and we reached agreement with those Class 9 claimants in writing to approve the structure of the deal and the settlement and the concurrent payments, as well as the final small payment to Mr. Daugherty on behalf of his Class 9 claim.

Q Could I trouble you to turn to Exhibit 59, please, Mr. Seery?

A I've got it.
Q Are you familiar with that document?
A I am, yes.
Q Can you explain to the Court what that document is?
A This document is the written consent that we entered into with the Class 9 claimants, approving the settlement agreement as well as the payment to Mr. Daugherty.
Q Okay.
A And -- and -- so these -- the payment to Mr. Daugherty would have been non-pro rata, so they agreed to that. And the concurrent payments under the settlement agreement to Class 10 were agreed to by the Class 9 claim holders.
Q So looking at Page 2 at the top, do I have this right, that Mr. Daugherty's original Class 9 subordinated claim was in the amount of $3.75 million, and that with the payment described in this document his claim was paid in full?
A That's correct, yes.
Q And did he complain that he was getting paid in full but the other Class 9 holders were not?
A No. That had never been his complaint.
Q Did he complain that he was getting paid in full on his Class 9 claim but his Class 8 claim remained unresolved?
A No. I think that, as indicated before in my testimony and indicated here, this was the last payment, the 781. Before that, he'd received almost $3 million on account of his Class 9 claim. And pro rata with the other Class 9 claimants.

Q I think you mentioned that your understanding is that, under the plan, creditors can elect to receive less favorable treatment than the plan otherwise provides. Is that right?
A That's correct. And I think that's a pretty standard provision in virtually every plan that I see.
Q Can we just grab that for a second? It's the last exhibit, 126, which is probably in the skinny binder, if you have one.
A Yes. Do you want me to go to the section?
Q Yeah. Just one minute. I want to make sure the judge is with us. Give her a second.
MR. MORRIS: Are you with us, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. MORRIS: Okay.
BY MR. MORRIS:
Q So if you can turn to Page 23 of Exhibit 126. Does Section 9, under Treatment, Romanette (ii), is that the provision that you were just describing that gives Class 9 holders the ability to receive such other less-favorable treatment as to which such holder and the Claimant Trust may agree upon in writing?
A That's correct.
Q And the same is true with respect to the Class 10 claims, at the top of Page 24?

A That's also correct, yes.
Q All right. And so was the consent that was executed by the Class 9 holders that's Exhibit 59 done in satisfaction of these plan provisions?
A I'd say it's consistent with these. They could elect to receive it or not, but this was, you know, did it under this provision and they were entitled to elect to take lesser treatment, if that's what they agree to.
Q Okay. Can you describe for the Court why you believe that the Class 9 claim holders are receiving less-favorable treatment under -- as a result of this settlement agreement than they would otherwise be entitled to under the plan?
A Well, they would be entitled to receive payments in front of any payments that would be made to Class 10. In addition, they would have been entitled to receive a pro rata distribution of the $800,000 that was paid to Mr. Daugherty, and they agreed to waive those provisions.
Q Okay. Is it your understanding that HMIT is also accepting less favorable treatment than it might otherwise receive if it pursued and succeeded in the prosecution of its claim?
A I suppose, ultimately, if everything was resolved, that they could have gotten a Class 10 interest that wasn't structured along the lines of the settlement agreement. So the settlement agreement takes some of that structure and what arguably would be value away from them, and this is the amount that they've agreed to have as their allowed claim, as structured by the settlement agreement.

Q And is it your understanding that under the settlement agreement HMIT has disavowed any rights under the Claimant Trust Agreement?

A Under the Claimant Trust Agreement, yes. They have rights under the settlement agreement to receive distributions, and those will ultimately come from the Indemnity Trust as we wind down the Claimant Trust.

Q And did HMIT also agree that it would not be a Claimant Trust beneficiary under the Claimant Trust?

A Yes. And that's very important to us because we have seen lots of litigation, lots of emails, trying to use these types of structures just to create claims, even when there's literally no basis for it. I should -- well, I'll control myself.

Q Yeah. We can stop there.

MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, I have no further questions at this time.

THE COURT: All right. We're going to figure out, are we taking a bathroom break or a short lunch break. I'll poll the audience and then I'll decide. Do people want to take maybe a 30 to 45-minute lunch break, or just a bathroom break and keep going?

THE WITNESS: Thirty minutes.

THE COURT: I'll say -- are you going to have any further examination?

MR. PHILLIPS: I'm going to maybe ask one question, just to bring it up. It's already been -- but one question.

THE COURT: Okay. And then what about Dugaboy and Daugherty? Guesstimate how much examination you'll have.

MR. YORK: Fifteen minutes, maybe.

MR. LANG: Twenty minutes or so.

THE COURT: Why don't we take a five-minute bathroom break, --

MR. PHILLIPS: Sure.

THE COURT: -- and then we'll at least finish this witness.

MR. PHILLIPS: Perfect.

THE COURT: All right?

MR. PHILLIPS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE CLERK: All rise.

(A recess ensued from 12:07 p.m. until 12:15 p.m.)

THE CLERK: All rise.

THE COURT: Please be seated.

(Pause.)

THE COURT: All right. Can I get some help rounding people up?

(Pause.)

THE COURT: All right. We're missing -- okay. We're going back on the record in Highland Capital. We still have Mr. Seery on the witness stand. Mr. Phillips, you had examination. You said one question.

MR. PHILLIPS: I did, Your Honor. And I meant it.

THE COURT: Okay.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. PHILLIPS:

Q Could you look at Exhibit 118, please?

A You said 118?

Q Yes, sir.

A Certainly.

Q Did the calculation of the Class 10 claim amount of $336,940,230.58, is that the result of applying the full value to the Highland or Highland Claimant Trust of the HMIT note receivable?

A Apologies, because I can't read this because it's too small, but I can answer the question.

THE COURT: Would you like this?

THE WITNESS: I think I can answer the question without it.

THE COURT: Okay.

THE WITNESS: The -- what we used was the petition date capital account.

BY MR. PHILLIPS:

Q Correct.

A And just like every other claim in bankruptcy, fixed at the petition date. And what we subtracted from that petition date was the petition date amount principal and interest of that HMIT note which was owed to Highland Capital.

Q Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. That was one question. All right. Counsel?

MR. YORK: Thank you, Your Honor. Get it organized here.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. YORK:

Q Good afternoon, Mr. Seery.

A Good afternoon.

Q Would you take a look at Exhibit 1 in Daugherty's witness and exhibit binder? It's the settlement agreement between Highland and Mr. Daugherty, I believe.

A Yes, I have it.

Q All right. And can you confirm that is the settlement agreement that Highland and Mr. Daugherty entered into in connection with the claims Mr. Daugherty asserted in the bankruptcy?

A It appears to be, yes.

Q Would you turn to Section 9, then, which is on Page #11, starts on Page #11?

A Yes.
Q And that relates to a reserved claim that Mr. Daugherty had as part of his proof of claim against Highland in the bankruptcy, correct?
A That's correct.
Q And would you agree with me that the second line of Section 9 there of the settlement agreement describes that claim as a contingent unliquidated claim against the Debtor?
A I would not agree with you on that, no.
Q Why not?
A Because it says, Daugherty contends --
Q Ah. Daugherty contends.
A -- he has a contingent unliquidated claim against the Debtor.
Q Okay. Well, why don't you then turn with me to Daugherty Exhibit #2, which is the -- which is the -- Highland's adversary complaint that was filed against Mr. Daugherty on I believe May 2nd of 2025. Correct?
A I don't recall the specific date and it's blurred at the top. So if you say so, I'll accept that.
Q All right. And if you look at Paragraph 1, the third line, there's a sentence there that says, All of Mr. Daugherty's claims were settled except his unliquidated contingent claim that the Debtor has a continuing and indefinite obligation to make him whole if a tax refund he apparently received for tax year 2008 on account of his partnership interest is ever successfully challenged by the IRS.

Did I read that correctly?

A You did read that correctly, yes.

Q All right. This reserved claim under the settlement agreement is a Class 8 unsecured claim, correct?

A It is the claim that he asserted and that we initially classed under Class 8 in a fixed amount for a tax refund which is on his statement that he got that he claims he's entitled to more, which would be unsecured as of the petition date. I believe the amount on his payment statement from 2009 is $1.475 million.

Q All right.

THE COURT: Could you pull the microphone closer to you?

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Good.

MR. YORK: All right.

BY MR. YORK:

Q And, again, my question is pretty simple. And it's a Class 8 unsecured claim, right?

A It's not a Class 8. It was in Class 8. It's been objected to.

Q Right.
A So it is not in a class now at all. We seek to disallow it in its entirety, or, at worst, subordinate it to all creditor claims.
Q Understood. But it has been asserted as a Class 8 general unsecured claim, right?
A He asserted it as that, yes.
Q Okay. And is it fair to say that in the adversary complaint, if you go to Page -- I'm sorry, Paragraph 4 -- Highland alleges that: However, even if Mr. Daugherty's claim is not disallowed in its entire -- I think that should be entirety. Right?
A It should be, yes.
Q It remains contingent on the outcome of the 2008 audit. Correct? Did I read that correctly?
A You did read that correctly, yes.
Q And the next sentence says, It is unclear when, how, or if the 2008 audit will finally be resolved. Correct?
A Correct.
Q And in fact, if you go to, then, Page #7 of the complaint and you look at Footnote 6, at the very end of that footnote it indicates that Highland has an understanding that the resolution may not be expected until approximately 2029. Is that correct?
A The litig... I can't read it because it's small, but the litigation may not be resolved. The IRS has already issued a final determination on the audit.

Q How do you know that?

A I was advised that by another partner.

Q Who?

A Kurt Plumer.

Q Have you seen the FPAA that was issued by the IRS?

A No, I have not.

Q Have you asked for it?

A Yes.

Q You did, personally?

A My lawyers did.

Q Your lawyers did?

A Yes.

Q Okay. But you -- but you did not, right? Just to be clear.

A No, I did not. My lawyers, acting at my direction, did.

Q Asked the tax matters partner for Highland for that information?

A Asked Mr. Daugherty.

Q Asked Mr. --

A I think asked you, I'm sorry.

Q Oh, asked me for that information?

A Yes.

Q Well, so tell me, why is Mr. Daugherty -- first off, do you know if Mr. Daugherty has received the FPAA?

A I don't know.
Q Okay. Do you know if anybody else has received an FPAA?
A I was told there was a final determination. I don't know if they've actually received an FPAA. But I do know that Mr. Daugherty has produced a document where the IRS has requested additional information for him. Since they hadn't done that for 17 years, I suspect that they've reached a final determination of the audit.
Q All right. So you don't know whether an FPAA has actually been issued?
A I --
Q True?
A I don't know. And for the Court's benefit, that's a Final Partnership something Determination.
Q Okay. What -- where --
THE COURT: F-A --
THE WITNESS: F-P-P -- I think it's --
MR. YORK: F-P-A-A.
THE WITNESS: -- F-P-A-A.
THE COURT: Okay. The court reporter will no doubt ask, so good.
BY MR. YORK:
Q Tell me, where in the universe is it that -- is it Mr. Daugherty's obligation to provide Highland with the FPAA?

A I don't -- I don't think there's any such obligation that I've seen.
Q And in fact, the IRS audit is handled by the tax matters partner for Highland Capital, correct?
A The IRS audit for Highland Capital's -- from Highland Capital's position is handled by that. The IRS handles their side.
Q Right. From Highland's side. Okay. And that tax matters partner is doing that on behalf of Highland Capital, right?
A I think at this point it's doing it on behalf of the old Highland Capital, not Reorg Highland Capital. We don't have any liability with respect to it, nor do we have any visibility as to what's going on in the tax audit.
Q So even though, under the partnership agreement, that's the tax matters partner that's referred to, Highland Capital cannot compel that tax matters partner to provide that information to them, if an FPAA actually exists?
A I don't think so. That partnership agreement is the pre-effective date partnership agreement.
Q All right.
A The new Highland Reorg Debtor doesn't have these partners and is not a tax matter partner for those -- those audits.
Q So let's go back, then, to Paragraph 4 of the adversary complaint that was filed. And I want to look at the next sentence that Highland wrote there. It says: Moreover, if the claim is not disallowed, it will need to be estimated, after taking into account the likely outcome of the 2008 audit, including adjustments that result therefrom.

Did I read that correctly?

A You read that correctly.

Q Have -- has anyone at Highland conducted any analysis as of today to determine what Mr. Daugherty's potential liability would be from that IRS audit if that audit was completed today and all interest and penalties were assessed as of today?

A Yes.

Q How much?

A It would be $1.475 million, the amount of his prepetition claim in his proof of claim. Since it's unsecured, whatever happens with the IRS is not a concern of Highland. His claim is that he didn't get that amount as a refund. Either he got that amount or he got some -- some lower amount. It would be a petition -- prepetition-date amount. And under Texas law, he would be entitled to prejudgment interest from 2009 to the petition date at a rate of five percent.

Q Which would be how much?

A It would be approximately $2.2 million in aggregate.

Q Okay. And there would be -- you're saying there would be no penalties or any other -- any other interests or assessments that would -- Mr. Daugherty would be liable for that Highland would also then be liable for under that claim?

A No. There would not. It would not impact his claim against Highland. His claim against Highland is simply: I did not get this refund.

He got the refund. He's now claiming it might be adjusted. If the IRS otherwise has penalties, interest against him for his tax attributes somewhere between 2009 and 2019, that wouldn't be subject to his proof of claim and it wouldn't be the responsibility of Highland.

Q Even if Highland had promised at the time that that refund was made that it would -- it would make him whole with respect to any IRS audit whatsoever?

A It simply --

MR. MORRIS: Objection to the form of the question.

THE WITNESS: It simply didn't do that.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: Okay. Overruled.

THE WITNESS: We can -- you could litigate the claim, but that's just not what it says.

BY MR. YORK:

Q So you talked earlier about the Class 9 consent that was obtained, and no one from Highland reached out to Mr. Daugherty to try to seek his consent. Right?

A That's correct.

Q Why not?

A Because I didn't want to.

Q Why?
A Because Mr. Daugherty is an extremely difficult person to deal with. The last time I dealt with Mr. Daugherty on the phone with respect to anything, I had extreme difficulty and got sucked into a stalking lawsuit that I had to testify to that is a complete mess that I want nothing to do with. So originally my counsel said, have no communication with him. But with respect to this, we were objecting to his claim. We knew he would try to hold this up. You have tried to do that and demanded $20 million. So that's why we didn't reach out to you. We just paid the 9 and we have a fully-reserved amount on the 8.
Q You thought that the stalking case that you were pulled into was completely fabricated, didn't you?
A I thought that at the time. I'm not as sure anymore.
Q Oh, really?
A Yeah.
Q Okay. And you actually also told Mr. Daugherty that Mr. Ellington, who brought that case, was a complete liar and POS, right?
A I don't know if I used POS, but I do not think Mr. Ellington is an honest person.
MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, at some point I'm going to on relevance grounds. I think we've got a settlement agreement before the Court that we're trying to get approved today, not to take discovery on any other matters.

THE COURT: Okay. I'm going to overrule to the extent there was an objection, but I think it's appropriate to worry that we're straying down a road that is not relevant. So, --

MR. YORK: Understood.

THE COURT: -- reign it in.

MR. YORK: All right.

BY MR. YORK:

Q You'd agree that the -- under the terms of the proposed settlement, there will be some interim distributions will be made to the HMIT entities in cash totaling approximately $23 million. Correct?

A Not necessarily, no.

Q Why not?

A Because there's an initial distribution. I believe it's $10 million.

Q Yes.

A And then subsequent distributions are predicated on whether there are threats, either outstanding litigation or threats as defined in the agreement.

Q And so long as those threats don't occur, then those interim -- those additional interim distributions will be made, right?

A Yes. The Indemnity Trust would make those distributions at those times, and then I have to make -- it's a double trigger, because it has to be no threats and I have to determine that the Indemnity Trust had sufficient assets to meet its obligations for both actual and contingent indemnification obligations.

Q But at a minimum, the HMIT entities will receive at least $10 million?

A Yes.

Q On an interim basis?

A Yes.

Q All right. And you'd agree with me that, under the terms of the plan, the plan provides that the classes get paid in order of priority, correct?

A That's correct.

Q All right. And if you turn to Daugherty Exhibit 4, which is the confirmation order, at Page 45. And Subsection A there in the middle of that has a sentence that says: Accordingly, as the holders of the equity -- excuse me. Strike that. Let me start over. Are you there yet, Mr. --

A Now I am.

Q All right. Accordingly, as the holders of equity interests that are junior to the claims in Class 8 and Class 9 will not receive or retain under the plan on account of such junior claim interest in any property unless and until the claims in Class 8 and Class 9 are paid in full, plus applicable interest, --

Did I read all that correctly?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And the term "Claim" there is a capitalized term, right?

A Yes.

Q It's not -- it doesn't say allowed claims. It just says claims. Right?

A That's correct.

Q All right. All right. Now, if you'd turn with me to the Claimant Trust Agreement, which is Daugherty Exhibit 5, and go to Section 5(c). Excuse me. 5.1(c). I apologize.

A Yes.

Q And this is -- this is -- relates to the contingent trust interests associated with the Class 10 and Class 11 limited partnership interests in Highland, correct?

A Generally, yes.

Q All right. And you'd agree with me that, in the -- about four lines down, it says: The Claimant Trustee shall allocate to each holder of allowed Class 10-B and C limited partnership interests and each holder of allowed Class 11 Class A limited partnership interests a contingent trust interest equal to the ratio that the amount of each holder's allowed Class 10 or Class 11 interest bears to the total amount of the Class 11 or -- Class 10 or Class 11 interest, excuse me, as applicable under the plan.

Did I read all of that correctly?

A I believe you did, yes.

Q All right. And under the terms of the proposed settlement, the HMIT entities are getting an allowed Class 10 interest, correct?

A That's correct, yes.

Q All right. And then the next sentence goes on to say: The contingent trust interest shall not vest and the equity holder shall not have any rights under this agreement unless and until the Claimant Trustee files with the Bankruptcy Court a certification that all GUC beneficiaries have been paid indefeasibly in full, including, to the extent applicable, all accrued and unpaid postpetition interest consistent with the plan and all disputed claims have been resolved. The GUC Payment Certification.

Did I read that correctly?

A You did, except you used the article "The" before "contingent trust interest" at the start of the sentence.

Q Fair enough. And the GUC beneficiaries there would be the general unsecured creditor beneficiaries, correct?

A That's correct.

Q And this certification has not been issued yet by the Claimant Trustee in this bankruptcy, correct?

A That's correct.

Q In part because of Mr. Daugherty's remaining unresolved Class 8 claim, correct?
A In part, yes.
Q And also in part because of the remaining Class 9 claimant holders who still have money owed to them on their Class 9 claims?
A In part, yes.
Q Okay. Does the term of the proposed settlement agreement provide those Class 9 consent holders with releases from the HMIT entities?
A No.
Q It does not?
A No.
Q At all?
A No.
Q Even if they were in their capacity serving as board members for Highland Capital?
A Certain of the Class 9 holders are also on the Oversight Board. In their capacity as Oversight Board members, yes, they get -- they get broad releases. UBS, for example, is not. There are no releases in there for the two UBS entities.
Q Would you now -- you can set that binder aside. And if you'd turn with me to Exhibit 60 in the -- Highland's exhibit list.
A Six zero?

Q Yes, sir.
A Yes.
Q This is a copy of the tolling agreement extending objection deadline between -- that's on -- dated July 27th of 2022 between Mr. Daugherty and Highland Capital Management, LP and Highland Claimant Trust. Correct?
A Yes. That's what it appears to be, yes.
Q All right. If you would, go with me to Page 2 at the bottom. There is a Footnote #3. Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q And that footnote relates to, up above, a defined term called a "Reserved Claim," the Reserved Claim being what was discussed earlier in Mr. Daugherty's settlement agreement with Highland, right?
A That's correct, yes.
Q And it states in here that that Reserved Claim means "the contingent and unliquidated claim as referenced in Proof of Claim #205."
Did I read that portion of the footnote correctly?
A Yes.
Q All right. And it goes further to say that the amount listed there of 2.65 million three hundred -- two point six -- let me start ever. $2,650,353 is the amount estimated as of October 23, 2020. Correct?
A That's correct.

Q All right. It doesn't say it's -- anywhere in there that it's a fully -- it fully reserves that unliquidated contingent claim. Correct?

A In what you just read, no.

Q All right. And if you go to Page 1 -- or, I'm sorry, to Page 3, Paragraph 1, the covenant to reserve where Highland agrees to reserve $2,650,353 on account of the reserved claim, does it say anywhere in there that that is -- fully reserves that contingent unliquidated claim anywhere?

A It says exactly what it says. And you read it.

Q That's not my question. Does it say --

A I don't -- well, it says, Further agree to reserve $2.650 [million] on account of the reserved claim in disputed claim reserve.

Q All right. Does it say anywhere in there that that is the fully-reserved amount of that claim?

A Not in that sentence, no.

Q Thank you. All right.

MR. YORK: Your Honor, give me one second. Let me confer.

THE COURT: Okay.

(Pause.)

BY MR. YORK:

Q Mr. Seery, UBS is one of the consent holders, Class 9 consent holders related to the HMIT settlement. Correct?

A There are two UBS entities, UBS AG 66 and UBS Securities, LLC.

Q All right. Did either of those entities sit on the Unsecured Creditors' Committee in this bankruptcy?

A A UBS entity did. I'm not sure which of those did, or whether it was both with one counsel. I don't -- there's a UBS entity on that Creditors' Committee.

Q Is the -- are the members of the Unsecured Creditors' Committee within the definition of the Highland released parties under the proposed HMIT settlement? Do you know?

A I don't know. The members of the Creditors' Committee, I believe, have exculpation anyway, so I don't -- I don't -- I don't know if it captures the old members of the Creditors' Committee. I don't -- for example -- I don't think so. I don't -- I don't know.

MR. YORK: Pass the witness.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Lang?

THE WITNESS: Do you have a separate binder?

MR. LANG: No.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Will you be using Mr. Daugherty's binder?

MR. LANG: No.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. LANG:

Q All right, Mr. Seery. Just to be clear, the Class B and C

-- or the Class A interests and the -- of Highland under the plan, they have 99.5 percent of the -- Highland Capital Management. Correct?

A Could --

Q Sorry. The Class B and C --

A Limited partnership interest.

Q -- shareholder -- limited partnership interests were 99 point -- or, were .5 percent of Highland Capital Management?

A I -- I'm not trying to be difficult.

Q No, it's fine. It's a terrible -- terrible --

A I don't -- I just don't -- I don't understand your question. I apologize.

Q Okay. So, at the time of the petition, --

A Yes.

Q -- Hunter Mountain Investment Trust owned 99.5 percent of Highland Capital Management?

A It owned 99-1/2 percent of the limited partnership interest in Highland Capital Management.

Q And the remainder -- and HMIT has the Class 10 claims. Correct?

A You said something, the remainder? The --

Q Oh, sorry. The remaining interests are owned by the Class 11 claims under the plan.

A The remaining partnership interests are among those entities I testified earlier to, which are Dugaboy, Strand, --

Q And Okada?
A -- Mark Okada individually, and two Mark Okada and Pamela Okada trusts.
Q Okay. And the total assets in the estate right currently you testified are between $65 to $70 million?
A I -- off the top of my head, I don't recall, but it -- rough range, it could be in that general vicinity. That does not include the payments that have to be made to the 9s and expenses. So I believe there's documents in here that we could go through, if you like.
Q And I believe you testified that the remaining unpaid 9s are owed approximately $20 million?
A Approximately $20 million, yes.
Q Okay. And the plan does not say that the equity claims for Class 10 and 11 are to be determined by the capital account values of the limited partnership interests in the Debtor LP?
A That's correct. It says to set an amount. It doesn't tell you how to do the amount.
Q Okay. And under the settlement agreement, Class 10 interests will be allowed in the amount of $336,940,230.58?
A Approximately $336 million, yes.
Q $336 million. Fair. And this is the capital account balance as of -- HMIT's capital account balance as of the petition date, less, I believe, the HMIT note?

A That's correct. So that amount is the net amount.
Q The net? And do you know how the capital account balances were calculated --
A Yes.
Q -- on the petition date?
A Yes.
Q And how were they calculated?
A So, you take the 2018 year-end capital account amount, and then there's activity in the company that gets passed through through the partnership. The partnership agreement -- in this instance, the prepetition Debtor partnership agreement passed through profits and losses on a pro rata basis. There was activity in the first half of the year that affected that capital account. You can see that reflected in the year-end auditeds as well as the K-1 statement that -- for 2018 that was given to HMIT. That would be their 2018 year-end. That then, from an accounting perspective, was used and brought down to the petition date. And between the petition date and year-end 2019, there was additional capital activity, the biggest one of which was the reserve -- full reserve for the $50-plus million for the HMIT note. And so then you'll see the 2009 auditeds that are signed off by Mr. Waterhouse. And in those interim months, then you also see the gross amount of the partner capital each month in the monthly operating reports.

Q And correct me if I'm wrong, but I believe you testified that the capital account balances continued to go down after 2019. So you have the petition date, you have the next year, and did they continue to --

A I don't think I testified to that. What I testified to is that there was economic activity in 2019 that affected the year-end '18 to the petition date. And then from the petition date there was year-end activity -- there was activity from the petition date to year-end '19 that would affect the capital account as reflected in the 2018 auditeds -- they weren't auditeds -- 2018 tax returns signed off by Waterhouse. The biggest part of that activity was the application or the reserve for the Hunter Mountain Note.

Q And was there any activity after the 2019 tax return?

A There was postpetition activity in the partnership, certainly.

Q And did it reduce the capital accounts during those years?

A I assume it would have reduced all of the capital accounts pro rata.

Q Okay. And why'd you use the petition date as the date to determine the value of the capital accounts?

A Because this is bankruptcy and that's the date on which you fix all your claims and interests.

Q If you used -- have you ever used equity ownership percentages to determine the payment to the equity versus their capital account balances?

A In this case, or elsewhere?
Q Elsewhere.
A I think that's standard. I can't cite you a specific thing, but typically when a partnership liquidates or a partnership is sold, amounts get distributed pursuant to the capital accounts and -- and -- in up to amounts in the capital accounts.
Q You would agree, if you use the percentage of ownership, being 99.5 percent for Class 10 and the .5 percent for Class 11, would potentially leave money for the Class 11 creditors to recover?
A I don't think so. No, I don't agree with that.
Q Why do you say that?
A Because Class 11 is subordinated to Class 10.
Q Okay. So explain how, if $60 million exists and you pay $20 million to the Class 9, --
A Roughly. Yeah.
Q Rough. Just rough math.
A Okay.
Q That leaves $40 million.
A Okay.
Q Correct? And if the ownership interests or the allowed claim for HMIT was 99.5 percent, wouldn't that leave .5 percent of $40 million for the remaining creditors?

A That doesn't make any sense, because 99-1/2 percent of a senior thing means you get everything. So that Class 10 has to be paid in full before the 11.

In addition, there's already an agreed-upon amount on HCLOM for $10 million. So how do I give HCLOM $10 million and 99-1/2 percent to somebody else? There has to be numbers.

Q But to be clear, the plan does not say that the equity claims are determined on capital accounts. Correct?

A That's correct.

Q All right.

MR. LANG: No further questions.

THE COURT: All right. Any redirect?

MR. MORRIS: Just one moment, Your Honor.

(Pause.)

MR. MORRIS: We have no questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Any redirect from --

MR. PHILLIPS: No, Your Honor. Thank you.

THE COURT: -- the one question?

Okay. Thank you, Mr. Seery. You are excused from the witness box.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

(The witness steps down.)

THE COURT: Okay. I'm going to again take proposals. I can live with a 30-minute lunch break. I and my staff can. But it's easier for us than all of you. So do you all want to negotiate for more?

MR. MORRIS: I just wanted to let the Court know that, with that, the Movants rest. We're not -- we're not going to call anybody else.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: We reserve the right to cross-examine. We reserve the right to call rebuttal witnesses, including Ms. Deitsch-Perez and Mr. Dondero, depending on what testimony is elicited. So we reserve the right to call rebuttal witnesses. But we're not calling anybody further on our direct case, and we rest.

THE COURT: Okay. So let me --

MR. MORRIS: I'll let them --

THE COURT: -- follow up on that point.

MR. MORRIS: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: There had been a discussion of Mr. Patrick.

MR. MORRIS: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: Limited to one total hour. Thirty minutes collectively, Debtor and HMIT. Thirty minutes collectively, Dugaboy and Daugherty.

MR. MORRIS: You know what, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You're -- you're not asking --

MR. MORRIS: No, maybe I -- I forgot that you had told us we could do it, too. So let's take the lunch break, let us figure it out, we'll let you know when we come back.

THE COURT: Well, I'm clarifying because I'm deciding --

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- who gets to go first.

MR. MORRIS: Understood.

THE COURT: Each witness.

MR. MORRIS: Understood.

THE COURT: And I presume --

MR. MORRIS: Understood.

THE COURT: -- the Debtor/HMIT would go first.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: And then with regard to Dondero, --

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- you all would go first.

MR. MORRIS: So I withdraw what I said. Let us confer during the lunch break and we'll figure out who's going first, whether we do rest or whether we put Mr. Patrick on for a short direct.

THE COURT: Okay. Which leads me to our lunch break. Do people want to negotiate for more than 30 minutes? I don't want to make someone collapse if --

MR. MORRIS: Thirty minutes, or 1:30?

MR. PHILLIPS: 1:30.

MR. MORRIS: 1:30, Your Honor. It's nice and round.

MR. PHILLIPS: One clarification, Your Honor. Because I don't -- I don't -- if one side doesn't take the half hour, does that go over to the other side, or --

THE COURT: No.

MR. PHILLIPS: No?

THE COURT: I don't think -- I'm just giving --

MR. PHILLIPS: Great. Thank you.

THE COURT: And my law clerk said maybe I was confusing about that earlier today.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: One hour total, but 30 minutes each. And if one collective team doesn't use the whole 30 minutes, we're not --

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- giving it to the other side. Okay?

MR. PHILLIPS: That was my question.

MR. MORRIS: Understood, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And while I'll let you all discuss whatever you want, what I envisioned is you all would go first with Mr. Patrick, --

MR. MORRIS: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: -- and then Dugaboy and Daugherty would go first on Mr. Dondero. But if you all collectively think it makes sense to do something different, I'll hear.

MR. MORRIS: No. That makes sense, Your Honor.

MR. PHILLIPS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. So we'll come back at 1:30 --

MR. YORK: Yes.

THE COURT: -- and resume.

MR. YORK: Thank you so much.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

THE CLERK: All rise.

(A luncheon recess ensued from 12:51 p.m. until 1:33 p.m.)

THE CLERK: All rise.

THE COURT: Please be seated. All right. We're back on the record in the Highland Capital matter, the Rule 9019 motion for approval of a settlement. When we broke, we were waiting to talk about Mr. Patrick and Mr. Dondero as witnesses. Are they going -- is Patrick going to be your witness?

MR. MORRIS: No, Your Honor. We're going to reserve our 30 minutes for rebuttal.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

All right. I'll hear from the Objectors now.

(Pause.)

MR. YORK: Sorry, Your Honor. I didn't realize they were going to observe. So, --

THE COURT: Well, yes. If you understood what I was saying before the break, I presumed they might want to go first with Mr. Patrick, but it was -- you're the one who wanted him, so if they want to go second, they can go second.

MR. YORK: Well, --

THE COURT: Well, I say "you're." I'm sorry.

MR. LANG: No, it's okay.

THE COURT: Mr. Lang wanted to go --

MR. YORK: Yeah. So are we definitely doing Mark Patrick now?

MR. PHILLIPS: No.

MR. YORK: Oh, okay.

MR. PHILLIPS: We just rested.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: They can call whoever they want.

THE COURT: They have rested. If you don't want to go forward with any witnesses, you don't have to.

MR. YORK: Oh, we --

THE COURT: But you had wanted to go forward -- you wanted to question Patrick and I said, if he's going to be a witness, then Dondero should also be a witness. Okay? And at most an hour collectively for each witness. If you don't want to call either one of them, you don't have to call either one of them.

MR. LANG: We're going to. I think that they were just going to call Daugherty first. I didn't know if you had an order that you wanted to do this in.

THE COURT: Well, no. I don't care. I guess I don't care. Was Daugherty listed? I mean, --

MR. YORK: Yes.

THE COURT: I'm sorry. Did you say Daugherty or Dondero?

MR. LANG: Daugherty.

THE COURT: Okay. I'm sorry. So you want to call Daugherty?

MR. YORK: Yes.

THE COURT: And you listed him as a witness?

MR. YORK: Yes.

THE COURT: So you may call Daugherty.

MR. YORK: All right.

MR. MORRIS: Yes. I --

MR. YORK: We'll call Patrick Daugherty, then.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: I don't believe Dugaboy did, but --

MR. YORK: Right.

MR. MORRIS: -- if they -- if they want to call him, by all means.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: Yep.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Daugherty, if you could approach the witness box, I will swear you in. Please raise your right hand.

PATRICK DAUGHERTY, PATRICK DAUGHERTY'S WITNESS, SWORN

THE COURT: All right. Please be seated.

THE WITNESS: Oh, wow. A lot of water up here.

THE COURT: Plenty of water for everyone.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. YORK:

Q Good afternoon, Mr. Daugherty. Could you state your name for the record, please?

A Patrick H. Daugherty.

Q Mr. Daugherty, are you a creditor in the Highland Capital bankruptcy?

A Yes, I am.

Q All right. And would you turn to, in the Daugherty exhibit binder, turn to Exhibit 1, please?

A Yes.

Q And this is a settlement agreement between you and Highland Capital Management relating to claims -- your proof of claim that you made in this bankruptcy, correct?

A Yes.

Q And we looked earlier. You were in the courtroom for Mr. Seery's testimony, correct?

A I was.

Q All right. And we talked in Section 9 about the defined Reserved Claim in there. Do you remember that?

A I did.

Q All right. Can you describe what --

A I consider it the Compensation Claim, but yes.

Q Can you describe what the Reserved Claim is?

A Yeah. Basically, it, background, it dates back to the financial crisis of 2008, 2009. Highland was on the brink of filing for bankruptcy. We had a creditor bank led by Bank of America and Scotia, and we were in default. And so the banks came in, declared default, and basically put a limit or terminated our ability to pay cash bonuses. And that -- right after Lehman Brothers failed, so call it September 2008 and going into 2009.

And the problem with that is we were losing people right and left. We had about 22 senior-level guys. We were down -- and I say guys. I think there were some women, too. But we were down to about 12 people. And they were trying to stem the tide of people running out of the doors in order to save the value of Highland. We started the year at about $40 billion under management, and by that time, we were -- I think we were as low as $19 or $20 billion under management.

Hedge funds were rolling up. CLOs did fine. Private equity did fine. Retail funds were having problems. And separate accounts were okay. But we were definitely a firm in crisis and trying to hold on to people.

So the nature of this compensation claim, you know, every year, everybody except Dondero and Okada would get what's called a compensations and award letter. Because Dondero and Okada were really the only partners. I think you can kind of see that, given your experience. They were called the founding partners. They were the only ones that got true distributions from the firm annually. Guys like us, you know, the other 12 or so, we got cash bonuses and incentive comp and deferred comp. And, you know, obviously, cash compensation was a big part of our compensation, and they were prohibited from the banks from paying it.

So Dondero, with the help of Rick Swadley and some of the other tax people, I don't know if we used out outside firms or not, they came up with this scheme, if you will, where Highland was going to go and use whatever they came up with with the partnerships and whatnot and then generate a tax refund to the senior-level guys. As or in lieu of the cash bonuses that couldn't be paid, they were going to go make these elections and then we were going to get this money.

And if you look at our awards agreement, it says you're going to get x amount of money. And it's in the line that historically is the cash bonus.

Also, when we got like our email or whatever that year from Patrick Boyce, our CFO, he was like, Congratulations, your bonus this year was x. And it was whatever that amount was on your compensation and award letter.

Well, several of us had the same accountant, John Garvey, at Bland Garvey. Me, Joe Daugherty, and Davis Deadman. And we took this concept to our accountant and he's like, man, that's really precedent. And so you guys are going to have to basically protect yourselves from -- sorry, go ahead. Make your objection. I'm sure I'm --

MR. MORRIS: I just, I just don't remember what the question was at this point and he's testifying to --

THE WITNESS: Why I got this thing.

THE COURT: It was --

THE WITNESS: My apologies.

MR. MORRIS: -- to conversations and hearsay.

THE COURT: What is the --

MR. YORK: Let me ask a question and I'm going to try to --

THE COURT: -- proof of claim about, was the essence of the question.

MR. YORK: Yeah. Right.

THE COURT: So I sustain. We're getting a little narrative, shall we say.

THE WITNESS: My apologies.

MR. YORK: So, --

THE WITNESS: I'll tighten it up.

BY MR. YORK:

Q All right. So, Mr. Daugherty, what you were getting under this scheme, as you describe it, was a cash bonus that was masked as a refund, correct?

A Look, Highland paid for it however they're going to pay for it. They're the one who created whatever that they did. But for us, it was a cash bonus.
Q Okay.
A But given that I was -- what I was just alluding to, there were concerns about the tax impacts if the IRS didn't agree with Highland. And so what we did is we negotiated for and got from Dondero -- really, I mean, Jim ultimately made the decisions at Highland. He said, look, if you don't -- if this doesn't work, if it doesn't go through, we'll make you whole. And so we got that provision in the compensation and award letter that says if the actual refund deviates materially from the refund, then you'll get substitute compensation. And that was enough for us, --
Q And --
A -- and that's what led to this claim.
Q And was it your understanding that, in terms of making you whole, that was not just whatever you had to pay back for the refund, but also interest and penalties?
A Yeah.
MR. MORRIS: Objection. Leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.
THE WITNESS: That's fair enough.
BY MR. YORK:
Q What was your understanding as to what that 'make you whole' constituted?

A It was basically to put me and the others back in the position of getting to that number that was listed in the document. So if there were any interest, penalties, pullbacks from the IRS, then we would be made whole at that -- we'd get back the net of that number. However, if the IRS was fine with it, we wouldn't get anything.
Q So there's a chance, depending on how the IRS audit turns out, if the IRS says what Highland did was fine, then you don't owe the IRS anything, right?
A Yeah. That's been a critical thing, that I may not owe the IRS anything, and certainly I wouldn't expect Highland to give me anything.
Q And at that point, what's been reserved as your reserved claim would effectively at that point, from the IRS perspective, the IRS audit perspective, would be a zero dollar amount, right?
A Yeah. I mean, more so. I mean, Jim Seery offered to buy me out with an amount of the reserved claim. And I said, listen, I'm not looking for a windfall here. What I'm looking for is to be made whole, --
Q Right.
A -- it's my insurance policy on what I earned back in 2008, because the alternative is I will have ended up working for free in 2008, plus have to pay penalties and interest going forward that could wipe out my net worth.

Q All right.

A So I wanted the insurance policy aspect of it.

Q So you heard Mr. Seery's testimony earlier where he said the total amount you would owe was somewhere in the range of $1.4 to $1.5 million if there was --

A He's wrong about that, if that's what he said.

Q Why?

A At the time -- I think the number he was referencing was in our claim number that I filed back in, I want to say, October 2020. And the $1.45 million, what was in the compensation -- was the number in the compensation and awards letter.

The other number that I spoke about from the gallery out there was one point -- I don't know, whatever the interest -- whatever I guessed the interest might be. And then I didn't have anything for penalties. So, at that particular time, took those numbers and said, okay, if the IRS says no way on all this, this is what I'd have to pay, not including penalties.

Q All right. So you've seen today and you listened to the testimony about the footnote in Highland's adversary complaint against you in which they say that the resolution may not be until 2029 of this IRS audit?

A That's correct. I've heard that.

Q All right.
A I've seen it and heard it.
Q All right. As you've sat here today, have you done any calculation back of the napkin to try to estimate what your potential exposure would be to the IRS in terms of interest and penalties as a result of that audit dispute if it wasn't resolved until 2029?
A Yeah. I listened to the judge. I went and ran '33 because that was a number that was just thrown out. At '33, if it's 2033, it's $7.4 million, and if it's 2029 it's $5.7 million.
Q What sort of financial impact would that have on you?
A The latter would pretty much wipe me out. I'm sorry. The former would -- the $5.7 million would wipe me out. The latter would cause me to file for bankruptcy.
Q Okay. Mr. Seery also discussed his -- that he had heard through the grapevine that the IRS audit had been resolved. Has anyone from Highland ever told you that the IRS audit is resolved?
A No one's told me that from anywhere, anyhow, anyway.
Q Have you had a conver... have you had -- so nobody at all, right?
A No one at all.
Q Have you -- did you have a conversation recently with Kurt Plumer over it?

A I did. I had lunch with him at Hillstone.
Q Did he mention it at all?
A No.
Q All right. Could you turn with me to, in your exhibit binder, Exhibit 8, please?
A Yeah.
Q All right. Can you just identify for us what this document is?
A This is a letter I got from the IRS dated November 20th, 2024, basically telling me that the case is open and I may owe money.
Q And specifically, if we look at the first paragraph, it says, "Why You're Receiving This Letter," in bold, right?
A It does.
Q And then below that it says: We might have to adjust your tax return based on our examination of the Highland Capital Management listed above.
Did I read that part correctly?
A Yes.
Q And so is it your understanding that your -- that this is related to the IRS audit of Highland?
A That is my understanding.
Q And that your tax return, your personal tax return may be adjusted as a result of that?
A Mine and my wife's.

Q Which would mean you're subject to interests and penalties as well?
A As is she.
Q Okay. And is this the only letter you've ever received from the IRS?
A No.
Q Related to the Highland Capital Management audit?
A No.
Q All right. Do you receive these periodically?
A Yes. The initial one came I want to say about five months after we filed the returns in two thousand -- it was for the calendar year 2008, so it was April 15th, 2009, I want to say. Maybe it was -- I think the first one came around October, late October 2009.
Q And --
A Like this. I can't -- I don't remember it verbatim.
Q Is this the last communication you have received from the IRS relating to Highland's IRS audit?
A This was it. Yeah.
Q Okay. Has anyone from the IRS ever told you that an FPAA has been issued --
A No.
Q -- with respect to the Highland's audit?
A No. I don't even know what that -- I didn't even know what that was.

Q And you've never received an FPAA from the IRS, right?
A I have not.
Q And you've never -- nobody else has ever sent you an FPAA related to the Highland audit, right?
A No.
MR. MORRIS: I'm being kind, but this is just --
THE COURT: It's leading.
MR. MORRIS: -- testifying from the podium.
THE COURT: Sustained.
THE WITNESS: Yeah.
BY MR. YORK:
Q All right. Mr. Daugherty, would you turn -- we'll switch topics real quick to the tolling agreement. Would you turn in Volume 1 of the Highland exhibits to Exhibit 60, please?
A Volume 1, and then which one, I'm sorry?
Q Exhibit 60.
A Yeah. Yes, I'm there.
Q Why did you enter into -- well, back up. Strike that. Start over. This is the tolling agreement extending a claim objection deadline between you and Highland Capital and the Highland Claimant Trust as of July 27th, 2022, correct?
A That is correct.
Q And is it your signature on Page 6 or 7 of the document on the left-hand side?
A It appears to be, yes.

Q All right. Why did you enter in this tolling agreement? Why did you enter into --

A I'm sorry, what was your question?

Q Why did you enter into this tolling agreement?

A Jim Seery had reached out to me in 2022 and said that they had a problem with -- the Court had an objection deadline that was running and that was somewhat inconsistent with the settlement agreement that we had just gotten approved in early March of 2022 that said they couldn't object, they being Highland, object to the legitimacy or amount of my compensation claim.

So he said, look, you know, we're in a little bit of a predicament here. We can go to the Court or we can try and work this out. And I'm like, hey, I'm fine to work it out. I don't want the estate to be burdened or any way. So we went back and forth on the document, and ultimately I felt that it was the right thing to do. The spirit of our settlement was, you know, I -- they couldn't -- they couldn't challenge this part of my claim, but the quid pro quo was I'm not going to be able to beat them out on a technicality by running in here, saying, ah, the objection deadline, you know, expired.

So his solution seemed to be a reasonable one. And we worked with their counsel, I think Demo and to some degree Morris, to work that out for them.

Q How did the estimate come about in Footnote 3?

A I don't know. Nobody ever asked me about it. There was no -- Mr. Morris is right, there was no negotiation about it. Because, frankly, I didn't see that as my problem. They had something to fulfill pursuant to the plan. And there was no back and forth on that reserve amount with Seery whatsoever. He just said, This is what we're doing and, you know, we're going to put this -- and my perception is I didn't have any right to challenge it other than what was in my settlement agreement. And I looked at that as a one-time right to go and seek an estimate, and I didn't want to do it that early in the process.

Q Would you take a look with me at the last recital that's on Page 3 of the document? All right. It says, --

A Oh. You're going to make me read. All right.

Q It says: Whereas, solely to avoid the expense, inconvenience, and uncertainty associated with litigation, and without any party admitting liability, fault, or wrongdoing, or releasing or waiving any rights or defenses with respect to the reserved claim, the parties desire to enter into this agreement to extend the claim objection deadline solely with respect to the reserved claim to January 11th, 2023 at 5:00 p.m. Central Time, defined as the Objection Deadline.

Did I read that part correctly?

A You did.

Q What was your understanding of this recital provision being put in here?

A Well, I think I just kind of summarized it. There was a problem that the parties didn't, you know, fully recognize could occur that would give me a windfall, and so this was to kind of solve that on an interim basis until we got to a final resolution on this tax refund thing.
I mean, the honest truth, God -- Judge. Not God, Judge. But the honest-to-God's truth is Seery and I had a very good relationship, and we were going back and forth, and his view was that this thing could get resolved in 2022.
Q Did you have an understanding as to whether or not you were reserving all rights with respect to your reserved claim under the terms of the tolling agreement?
A Absolutely I did. Both in emails and in the document.
Q All right.
MR. YORK: Pass the witness.
THE COURT: All right. Any cross? I'm assuming Dugaboy did not have questions. And, Mr. Daugherty, I should have --
MR. LANG: No, we do not.
THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. Cross?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MORRIS:
Q Good afternoon, Mr. Daugherty. Take your time.
A How are you, Mr. Morris?

Q Good. I just have a few questions. You have been paid in full on your Class 9 claim, correct?
A Evidently, yes.
Q And that Class 9 claim was for $3.7 million, correct?
A I believe it was $3.75 million.
Q Thank you for the clarification. Do you recall how many payments you received that resulted in your receipt of $3.75 million?
A I don't.
Q When you received those payments, did you tell Mr. Seery -- did you send it back to Mr. Seery out of any concern that your Class 8 claim has not been resolved?
A No.
Q When you received those payments, did you object to Mr. Seery or to anybody else that it was improper for the other Class 9 holders to receive the payments when your Class 8 claim had not been resolved?
A I had no idea what they were receiving.
Q Did you have any reason to believe that you were receiving a benefit that the other Class 9 claim holders were not receiving?
A Again, I had no idea what they were receiving, so I can't compare the two.
Q Okay. But it is true that you accepted without protest your Class 9 payments, even though your Class 8 claim had not been resolved, correct?

A I think that's accurate.
Q Okay. I think you mentioned in your proof of claim it had $1.4 million; is that right?
A Again, I'm cuffing it. If you could grab it, I'll -- I want to say it was -- the proof of claim had two components, as I mentioned. There was a, as I mentioned, there was the compensation award amount from my compensation letter of like $1.475 million.
Q Uh-huh.
A Don't quote me on that, but close enough.
Q Approximate.
A And then an interest component that would take me up to that particular time if the IRS reversed it.
Q Okay.
A But no penalties were included.
Q And that approximately $1.45 million, that's money that you received back in 2009?
A I didn't get that full amount in 2009. That was -- I don't want to broaden this up too much, but many times what was promised was not what was delivered. So I got a lesser amount from the IRS.
Q How much less did you receive?
A I want to say, on a net basis, it was just under $1.2 million.

Q Okay. And so it's true that you've had the benefit of the $1.2 million for 15 years now?
A When you say the benefit, what do you mean?
Q It went into your pocket 15 years ago.
A Yeah, but it's a contingent liability I have back to the IRS, so I can't say that it's, you know, not without reservations.
Q But you've had possession of that million and a half dollars now for 15 years, correct?
A Right. And with it comes an obligation --
Q Okay.
A -- contingent back to the IRS.
Q Your claim is a prepetition claim; is that right?
A What do you mean by my claim? Are you talking about the compensation one?
Q Yes.
A Yeah. I mean, that -- that contractual obligation originated in, well, yeah, February 2009.
Q It's not an administrative claim, right?
A I don't believe so, no.
Q It's just -- it's just a claim that existed prior to the petition date. Fair?
A That is fair.
Q Okay. With respect to the reserve, you did agree to that amount of the reserve, fair?

A I did not. I mean, I -- I signed the document, but I did not agree to that amount.
Q Well, --
A I did not negotiate for it or anything like that.
Q Well, but if you turn to Exhibit 60 that you just looked at, --
A sure.
Q -- and you go towards the end of the document, that is your signature on the first Page 7, right?
A Yeah. I've already admitted that.
Q And Paragraph 1 of the agreement that you signed specifically set the reserve at the amount set forth in Paragraph 1, correct?
A That much is true.
Q Okay. And you --
A You just said, did I agree to it, and I'm like, it was in the document.
Q It's in the agreement that you signed, correct?
A For sure.
Q Okay. And you've never asked for that amount to be adjusted, correct?
A I've spoken many times to Mr. Seery and told him that it will need to be adjusted upward as years go by. We've had quite a dialogue along those lines.
Q Okay. But he's never agreed to do that, correct?

A He said when the time comes, we'll figure out -- listen, we had a very collaborative relationship up until like the last year. And so it was like, hey, I'm not going to press you. You don't -- he's fighting off Dondero right and left. You know, and I'm like, I don't want to get in the middle of all this. You go do what you've got to do. We'll both sit tight. In fact, there was dialogue to that very effect.

Q Uh-huh.

A And so this was just all part of sitting tight, thinking that the right thing would be done when we got final analysis to this.

Q Okay. So would you just agree with me that, since signing this agreement, you haven't come to court to seek an adjustment --

A No.

Q -- of the reserve?

A I did not want to be a burden.

Q Okay. And since signing this agreement back in 2022, you and Mr. Seery have not come to an agreement on any adjustment to the reserve, correct?

A We have not.

Q Okay. Do you believe that you have claims against Highland's employees?

MR. YORK: I'm going to object on relevance grounds. Also, outside the scope.

THE COURT: What is the relevance?

MR. MORRIS: We're going to get to the $20 million demand in a moment. I'm laying the foundation. But we have anybody on anybody --

THE COURT: But what's the $20 million demand?

MR. MORRIS: I'll get to it in a moment.

THE WITNESS: There's --

THE COURT: I can't figure out if --

MR. MORRIS: I can make a proffer if you'd like.

THE COURT: -- that's relevant.

MR. MORRIS: I can make a proffer, Your Honor. I'll tell you. I'll tell you right now.

On June 5th, Mr. York called me and said that Mr. Daugherty asserts that he has claims against the Highland employees, and if Highland didn't pay him $20 million he was going to sue them, and he was going to file this objection together with a petition in the Supreme Court opposing Highland's request to stay the issuance of a mandate in the Fifth Circuit.

MR. YORK: First off, if Mr. Morris is going to become a witness, we've got a problem here. Secondly, any sort of communications between us would be 408. And third, it's not relevant to the issue we're here on today.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: My response to that, Your Honor?

THE COURT: All right. I'm going to allow a little latitude, --

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- but I'm still unclear --

MR. MORRIS: It's about -- it's about three questions.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: It's about three questions.

THE COURT: You may proceed.

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q Do you believe you have claims against Highland's employees?

A Me personally, no.

Q Okay. Do you -- did you authorize your lawyer to call me and to demand $20 million in exchange for a release and your standing down from filing any objection to this motion?

A I'm not aware that that ever happened. Nobody demanded anything of you.

Q Really?

A Yeah.

Q Do you know that your lawyer used the number $20 million to me?

A Oh, I've read the emails back and forth between you.

Q So why don't you explain to Judge Jernigan what your understanding is as to what your lawyer meant when used $20 million to me.

A I can't say for sure what he meant, but I can tell you from my perspective what I understood.

Q What did you understand?

A I have another entity that I picked up in the settlement with Highland called the Highland Employee Retention Asset Fund. And again, pursuant to the settlement agreement, I mean -- I guess supposedly, I guess, when I think about it, I do have claims individually, because it's with me, that agreement.

But it said that Highland had to turn over all the books and records of the HERA fund. And Mr. Morris was on many of those emails. And they had turned over some of the books and records, but they didn't turn over any of the books and records that implicated Thomas Surgent and David Klos in defrauding HERA in allocating Highland's expenses when they were litigating me, against me, back to HERA.

So I do have a settlement agreement with Highland and these employees, but Highland Employee Retention Assets needs their books and records. And we've made it very clear to you on numerous emails where you, you know, kind of muscled up on us and said this is all you're going to get and tough if you don't like it or whatever.

And so the deeper we get into this, we did get discovery from others, we found that Highland's been withholding material information.

So as it relates to -- I mean, you're doing that little squeaky thing, and I think he's a fantastic lawyer, but the reality is you guys have created some damages to HERA that you may be accountable for. Your clients, not you.

Q Okay. In the four years since we signed the settlement agreement, you've never asserted a breach of contract claim, have you?

A Well, because we thought you were complying with it. So if you want to go into the details there, in 2022, we were -- asked for more information. 2023, we asked for more information. 2024, we asked for more information. And so those are continuing breaches.

Again, I -- I don't want to go to war with Highland. You're too damn good of an attorney, you're scaring me a little bit. But --

Q I don't want to.

A You know, listen. You know I think well of you.

Q I appreciate that.

A But, you know, I mean, I just wanted the information. I'm not looking to go to war with you guys. I got enough battles that I've got to fight. And so, you know, I guess a number was thrown out or whatever. I don't know the full context of it. But it wasn't -- it wasn't for this IRS compensation issue.

Q But what was the -- my last question. What was the $20 million demand for?

A Again, it's just a number. Y'all were having settlement negotiations. So, I mean, you work off of it.

Q All right.

MR. MORRIS: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

THE COURT: All right. Any redirect?

MR. PHILLIPS: I have no questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Okay.

MR. YORK: Apologies. I wanted to make sure.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. YORK: No redirect, Your Honor.

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT

THE COURT: Okay. If you've watched Highland hearings, you know the judge sometimes has questions. I am still trying to understand the 1.4, the 1.2, the 1.475. I understand broadly that, in essence, a cash bonus was negotiated back in early 2009, I think you said.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: After 2008. And so that's, in essence, what was contractually negotiated. But I understand there was a hook, if you will, we're calling it a contingency, whatever word you want to use, where if one day there was an IRS audit and I guess Highland had extra liability for 2008, that this

-- I don't know if I understood it or not.

THE WITNESS: Do you want me to try and guess what you're asking, or --

THE COURT: Try to guess what I'm asking. Again, I'm --

THE WITNESS: The liability -- so, Highland chose to use this tax scheme as a currency to pay us a cash bonus. From our perspective, we weren't stupid. We're like, well, okay, that's great, but if the IRS says --

THE COURT: Okay, I just want to know what -- you say you were contractually entitled to $1.4 million.

THE WITNESS: That's what I was supposed to get for that bonus year.

THE COURT: Okay. But there was a tax contingency, if you will, where -- that's where I want you to jump in.

THE WITNESS: So, Highland had a tax problem. They came up with this mechanism to use whatever they were doing with the IRS to create the cash to pay us a bonus. We looked at it and said, well, this looks fishy -- by the way, every year before that and after that, I've just gotten a cash bonus. But for this one year, when the banks are saying, no, no, no, we get this. And so we looked at this and said, look, this sounds fishy, but if you can't pull it off, we need to be made whole. I can't be in a situation where here I am in 2025 and I may have to pay $5, $6 million to the IRS for the pleasure of working at Highland.

THE COURT: Okay. See, that's where my disconnect is.

THE WITNESS: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: Because I thought this all turned on a Highland tax return.

THE WITNESS: Oh, no, no. So, Highland did the planning and the creation of the scheme, and I guess ultimately it was Highland's tax return, but it flowed through to us as pass-throughs. K-1s, what have you.

THE COURT: Right.

THE WITNESS: So I guess it's both.

THE COURT: Okay. You were a partner.

THE WITNESS: Well, that's debatable, too. That's debatable, too, because I had a --

THE COURT: Okay. I thought you weren't, but --

THE WITNESS: Well, I wasn't --

THE COURT: But you got -- okay. Let me just skip to, --

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- I guess, the important part. You did, you got paid? You said $1.2 million?

THE WITNESS: Yeah. I got a refund back from the IRS for around that amount. Slightly under $1.2 million.

THE COURT: So the contingency you are worried about that you think gives you a contingent claim against Highland is, what, the IRS comes back and says --

THE WITNESS: And they say, Give us that money back plus interest plus penalties or we're taking your house. And it's a very real threat, because this has gone on, as you've noted, forever. And I went from having a one-point-whatever bonus to possibly having to pay six, seven, eight, I don't know how long this lasts, million dollars back to the IRS for an election that was made by them. As a substitute for paying me a cash bonus the regular way, they did it this way. And that's why we put and negotiated for that term in the compensation agreement that said, if for whatever reason the actual refund is different, we get made whole.

THE COURT: Okay. I may be overthinking this, I do do that sometimes, but I'm still, I'm trying to understand why your claim would escalate up to, you know, you said maybe $5.7 million if, in 2029, this all plays out with the IRS.

THE WITNESS: That --

THE COURT: Because you've gotten the benefit of that money and --

THE WITNESS: Well, no, because if the IRS says --

THE COURT: -- return on that.

THE WITNESS: Sorry. I didn't mean to interrupt.

THE COURT: You know what I'm saying? So I'm trying to figure out why it would grow in the way that you're suggesting.

THE WITNESS: Can I respond?

THE COURT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: So I've gotten money that the IRS says is not mine. Right? And the IRS says --

THE COURT: And you've had the use of it.

THE WITNESS: Oh, yes.

THE COURT: You've presumably invested it and --

THE WITNESS: Well, no, I mean, you can't --

THE COURT: Well, you've had the ability to. Uh-huh.

THE WITNESS: But you don't want to take risk with something that's not yours, so you're kind of limited, right? But I have, I have that amount of money. Here's the problem, Your Honor, with that. If the IRS says, Give us back our money, here's the interest, here's the principal. Oh, by the way, if it's $7, $8 million, I can't -- I don't have that. I've got to file for bankruptcy in order to give the IRS back money that I'm having to pay them for the pleasure that I had of working for Highland in 2008 when I helped save the company and create a lot of the assets that paid all these people in the room. MGM Studios, Trussway.

THE COURT: Okay.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE COURT: Yeah. We are going beyond this.

THE WITNESS: Fair enough.

THE COURT: I was just, I'm zeroing in on this because I'm trying to figure out, I mean, it matters to me if that reserve is likely fair enough, the reserve I'm told you agreed to is fair enough. And I'm having trouble figuring out, I mean, if you've had the use of this money for 17 years or whatever that is, why you would get this extra interest add-on that you're -- $5.7 million or whatever it would be. You know, $3 million more.

THE WITNESS: Can I answer that question?

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

THE WITNESS: Because the IRS didn't look at it as my money. They looked at it as their money. And so if you look at the plain language of the compensation award letter, if the actual amount deviates from the amount that was granted, then Highland was going to give me substitute compensation to make me whole. Making me whole includes the penalties and the interest that I would owe the IRS. Because if you look at it any other way, I had to pay money to work at Highland.

THE COURT: Do I have that letter in my evidence?

THE WITNESS: You should. Drew?

THE COURT: Do I? Maybe I'll just cut this off and look at the letter.

MR. YORK: It's at Daugherty 2, and it's at the back of --

THE WITNESS: There's multiple letters, but this is one of them.

THE COURT: The letter that you say this claim stems from.

THE WITNESS: Sure.

THE COURT: I'll just cut it off and look at that.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, you can tell her where it is.

MR. YORK: So I think it's at the back of the statement on PD-2. It's at the last page, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Which one?

MR. YORK: P -- Daugherty 2.

THE COURT: Oh, 2? I've got emails.

THE WITNESS: P-2? I don't think so.

THE COURT: Okay. We can move on.

MR. YORK: That's fine. We'll work this out.

THE COURT: Before we're done here today, I want to look at the letter to better understand how the claim could grow substantially to --

MR. YORK: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- $5.7 million by 2029. Okay. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You're excused.

THE WITNESS: Oh, I found -- I just found it and then I closed it.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, you can --

THE WITNESS: My bad.

THE COURT: -- call my attention to it when you find it.

THE WITNESS: All right.

(The witness steps down.)

THE COURT: All right. Your next witness?

MR. YORK: I believe we're calling Mark Patrick.

THE COURT: All right, Mr. Patrick. All right. Please raise your right hand.

MARK PATRICK, DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST'S WITNESS, SWORN

THE COURT: All right. Please be seated.

And, Courtney, you're going to start the clock going. I show 2:12. I don't know if my clock's right.

You may proceed.

MR. LANG: And, Your Honor, may I hand the witness -- this is from Mr. Morris' opening. May I use this as Exhibit 3?

THE COURT: Oh, okay. You're talking about the back page of his PowerPoint?

MR. LANG: Yes. Org chart.

THE COURT: Yes. I've got it in front of me. And for the record, I'm going to put this PowerPoint, even though it's not an exhibit per se, as a demonstrative aid in the file for this matter. And so it's the last item of the Highland PowerPoint. All right.

MR. LANG: Yes.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. LANG:

Q Mr. Patrick, does this Hunter Mountain Investment Trust org chart that I just handed you accurately reflect the structure of the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ownership today?

A Just give me a few moments to review.

Q Sure.

MR. LEWIS: Your Honor, I had mentioned early on that we object to this whole line of questioning because it's outside the scope of the objection of Dugaboy. And I don't want to interrupt, but I want to make sure that my objection is continuing, because this has nothing to do with the objection presented by Dugaboy.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. PHILLIPS: So we object to the question.

THE COURT: Okay. So the record will reflect basically a running objection from Hunter Mountain?

MR. PHILLIPS: We would appreciate that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. In light of the failure of Dugaboy to disclose Mark Patrick as a witness, as well as the failure to challenge in a written objection his authority. Okay. So I recognized that this was quite a persuasive objection, but given the magnitude, I would say, of what is going on here, potentially a settlement that could come very close to ending this long-running plan implementation process, I'm erring, if it's an error, I'm erring on the side of allowing this. All right. But you have a running objection that the record will reflect if one day there is an appeal.

MR. MORRIS: And, Your Honor, the Highland Claimant Trust and the Highland Litigation Subtrust and Highland Capital Management, LP join Mr. Phillips' objection.

THE COURT: Okay. Understood.

MR. PHILLIPS: Thank you very much, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

BY MR. LANG:

Q Mr. Patrick, have you had time to study this Hunter Mountain Investment Trust org chart?

A Yes, I have.

Q And does this accurately show the ownership structure for Hunter Mountain Investment Trust today?

A I'm not sure, without reviewing the underlying corporate documents on some of these entities that you have listed here.

Q Did you help prepare this chart?

A No.

Q No? Okay. So Hunter Mountain Investment Trust is owned by Beacon Mountain, LLC, correct?

A Yes.

Q And Beacon Mountain, LLC is owned by CLO Holdco, LLC, correct?

A Correct.
Q And CLO Holdco, LLC is owned by CLO Holdco, Limited?
A That's correct.
Q And CLO Holdco, Limited is owned by Charitable DAF Fund, LP?
A Correct.
Q And Charitable DAF Fund 1, LP is owned by CDMC FAD, LLC?
A The ultimate beneficial owner is DFW Charitable Foundation. To my -- to the best of my recollection, I would say that appears accurate. I'm just not a hundred percent.
Q Okay. And --
A But I am a hundred percent that DFW Charitable Foundation is the ultimate beneficial owner. And I'm a hundred percent that Dugaboy Investment Trust has no interest in it. And I'm also a hundred percent that The Dallas Foundation or any --
MR. LANG: Judge, I haven't asked --
THE WITNESS: -- or any other nonprofit has any --
MR. LANG: -- any of these questions.
THE COURT: Okay. There's an objection, nonresponsive. I sustain.
BY MR. LANG:
Q Mr. Patrick, before December of 2024, Charitable DAF Fund, LP was owned by Charitable DAF Holdco, correct?
A (Pause.) I'm just waiting for a relevancy. I don't understand how that's relevant to my authority --

THE COURT: Okay. You're not allowed to make a relevancy objection. Okay.

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, I think the problem is that, if I could, we have made an objection. And our objection, our running objection is founded on relevancy and founded on improper process. So I would like to just tell the Court, and so my client representative can hear it, that the fact that I'm not standing up every time there's a problematic question, --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. PHILLIPS: -- because every question is problematic, my objection is being maintained to every question that's being asked.

THE COURT: Okay. You understand that, right?

THE WITNESS: I --

THE COURT: There's a running relevancy objection. You're the witness. You can't make the objection. But it's on the record for whatever use it might have down the road.

MR. PHILLIPS: I have objected to every question that's coming in connection with this line of questioning on the basis of relevance.

THE COURT: I got it. I think we all have it.

MR. PHILLIPS: I'm just --

MR. LANG: Understood.

THE COURT: Yes. And you're thinking he's eating into your 30 minutes?

MR. LANG: Yes.

THE COURT: Okay. We've got it.

THE CLERK: I stopped the time.

MR. LANG: So -- thank you.

THE COURT: Did you stop the time for a minute?

THE CLERK: Yes, I did.

MR. LANG: Thank you.

THE COURT: Okay.

BY MR. LANG:

Q So, to my question, before December of 2024, Charitable DAF Fund, LP was owned by Charitable DAF Holdco, correct? Charitable DAF Holdco, Limited?

A And where is that on the chart?

Q I'm asking, before December of 2024, Charitable DAF Fund, LP was owned by Charitable DAF Holdco, Limited.

A Can you show me a corporate document so I know the precise corporation you're referring to?

Q You're the -- you are the manager of -- or the control person of CDHGP Limited, correct?

A Again, I'd have to refresh my recollection, but I am the control person over CDMC.

Q Okay. And CDMC --

A As well as Charitable DAF Fund. I'll represent that to you.

Q Okay. Was there a transaction in December of 2024 where Charitable DAF Holdco, Limited sold its interest or transferred its interest in Charitable DAF Fund, LP to CDMC FAD, LLC?
A I know you're trying to help other litigation and --
MR. PHILLIPS: Mark.
THE COURT: Okay. Nonresponsive.
THE WITNESS: Your Honor, he's using your time to fish for other litigation to support that --
THE COURT: Okay. Okay. We have a running objection to relevance. I'm going to say that one more time. Okay. Just answer the question as best you can.
THE WITNESS: I'd have to review the corporate documents to refresh my recollection for that time period.
BY MR. LANG:
Q Up until December of 2024, Charitable DAF Fund, LP was owned 100 percent by Charitable DAF Holdco, Limited, wasn't it?
A I don't know what entity you're referring to without a refreshment of corporate documents of that entity. There could be a lot of entities called that.
Q You're aware that there is a proceeding in the Caymans investigating the December 2024 transaction that sold -- where Charitable DAF Holdco, Limited sold its interest in -- and or transferred its interest in Charitable DAF Fund, LP to CDMC FAD, LLC?

A There are several parts to that question. So the answer is no.

Q Are you aware of a proceeding pending in the Caymans involving Charitable DAF Holdco, Limited?

A Again, I don't know what entity you're referring to. Show me a -- show me a corporate document.

MR. LANG: Your Honor, this was on the Foundation's exhibit list. We cross-designated any document designated as an exhibit by any other party in this case. And I'd like to hand this to the witness.

MR. MORRIS: Which exhibit is it?

THE COURT: Which is -- yes.

MR. LANG: It was on the -- it was on the DAF -- or, the Foundation's exhibit list.

MR. MORRIS: They haven't been admitted into evidence and they've withdrawn their objection. We object, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes, they've not been admitted.

MR. LANG: Okay. Well, can I --

MR. PHILLIPS: We object to that, Your Honor. We object to any witness --

MR. LANG: We cross-designated every --

THE COURT: I already discussed at the beginning what we were admitting and that was not disclosed.

MR. LANG: Okay.

THE COURT: As I recall, I said you've only designated the plan and settlement agreement, and the answer was yes.

MR. LANG: Okay.

BY MR. LANG:

Q And we're aware that the Joint Official -- are you aware that there is a Joint Official Liquidator appointed over a Charitable DAF entity in the Cayman Islands?

MR. PHILLIPS: Objection to form.

THE WITNESS: Again, without more specific --

THE COURT: Overruled. Yes.

THE WITNESS: -- specificity, there could be a thousand different actions that you're referring to, in my mind.

BY MR. LANG:

Q Are you aware that the Joint Official Liquidators in the Caymans are investigating transactions involving Charitable DAF Fund, LP and Charitable DAF Holdco, Limited?

A Again, again, I don't specifically know what you're referring to.

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, may I -- excuse me. I don't know that my running objection includes an objection to form for each of the questions. This objection is to form of the questions about, quote, --

THE COURT: What's wrong with the form?

MR. PHILLIPS: -- investigation.

THE COURT: What is wrong with the form of that question? I'm not clear.

MR. PHILLIPS: My objection to form is that the question is an open-ended question with an undefined term, investigation.

THE COURT: Overruled. I don't think that's a vague term. So you may answer.

THE WITNESS: If you show me some document, some complaint or something, I'll be very happy to verify whatever questions related to that. But just giving me verbal words of entities and names and actions, I don't know precisely what you are talking about.

BY MR. LANG:

Q Mr. Patrick, who set up the entities in the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust org chart that is sitting in front of you?

A I'm sorry. Repeat the question?

Q Who set up the various entities that are in the org chart that is on your -- on the stand?

MR. PHILLIPS: Objection to form. Set up. What does that mean?

THE WITNESS: It -- yeah, it's very --

THE COURT: I think we know what it means. Creating, perhaps.

BY MR. LANG:
Q Created?
A Who? Are you asking if I created it?
Q Did you participate in creating them?
A Did I participate? In which ones?
Q CDMC FAD, LLC.
A What do you mean by participate?
Q Were you involved in creating -- did you initiate the creation of CDMC FAD, LLC?
A Lawyers were.
Q Did you engage in any capacity on behalf of any entity? Were you involved in engaging the lawyers to set up CDMC FAD, LLC?
A Yes, I engaged lawyers to set up entities.
MR. LANG: Objection. Nonresponsive.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. LANG: Did you --
THE COURT: He asked about this one particular entity, I think.
BY MR. LANG:
Q Did you --
A Which entity, again, did you ask?
Q CDMC FAD, LLC.
A Yes, I believe I hired a lawyer.

Q And when did CDMC FAD, LLC become a hundred percent owner of Charitable DAF Fund, LP?

A Around the end of March of 2025. I believe.

Q And were you involved in the transaction between -- in which CDMC FAD, LLC obtained a hundred percent interest in Charitable DAF Fund, LP?

A What do you mean by involved? How?

THE COURT: Okay. I can see what's happening here or I have an impression of what's happening here. I feel like you're slowing down this process where I've given 30 minutes to this lawyer. Okay? And I feel like you're feigning confusion. I don't mean to be insulting, but that's how it comes across. Okay? So I need you to speed up your answers and not be confused about things you shouldn't be confused about. Okay?

THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE COURT: I feel like it's late 1980s Dondi. Does anyone know what I mean by that? Okay. We've been there, done that, in the federal courts, and we don't like the looking at -- you're not looking up at the ceiling. That's what they did in Dondi. Confusion. Delay. Okay?

So I don't mean to chastise you. I'm just telling you that you're going to make us be here a lot longer, and nobody wants that, because I will give him extra time for this. Okay?

THE WITNESS: Understood.

THE COURT: Thank you.

BY MR. LANG:

Q Okay. So you were involved in the transaction in which CDMC FAD, LLC acquired 100 percent ownership interest in Charitable DAF Fund, LP in or around March of 2025, correct?

A Correct.

Q Who did CDMC FAD, LLC obtain its interests in Charitable DAF Fund, LP from in March of 2025?

A From an -- from an entity called Charitable DAF Holdco, Ltd.

Q Charitable DAF Holdco, Ltd., the entity that I asked about earlier, correct?

A Of the same name.

Q Yes. And Charitable DAF Holdco, Ltd. has had Joint Liquidated -- Liquidators, Joint Official Liquidators appointed over it in the Cayman Islands, correct?

A Yes.

Q And those Joint Official Liquidators were appointed over Charitable DAF Holdco, Limited in or around May 6th, 2025?

A In May is what I recall.

MR. LANG: Your Honor, we'll pass the witness.

THE COURT: All right. Do we have any questions?

MR. YORK: No questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Any cross?

MR. MORRIS: Just briefly, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q Mr. Patrick, do you know who initiated the proceedings to get the appointment of the Joint Official Liquidators in the Cayman Islands?

A The director and myself, we initially filed for a voluntary joint liquidation in May.

Q And did there come a time when the Cayman court appointed the Joint Official Liquidators?

A Yes.

Q Do you know who asked the court to appoint the Joint Official Liquidators?

A We did, as well as other -- it was an agreement with the participation holders of that entity.

Q And who are the participation holders of that entity?

A It was the DFW Charitable Foundation as a 51 percent holder as well as the Highland Dallas Foundation, Highland Santa Barbara Foundation, and the Highland Kansas City Foundation.

Q And those three foundations that you just mentioned, do you know who controls them?

A Jim Dondero.

Q Is it your understanding that Mr. Dondero was funding the litigation in the Cayman Islands?

A Yes.
Q The Joint Official Liquidators, are you aware of any statement that they've ever made that you are not authorized to act on behalf of any of the HMIT entities?
A Yeah, they've never made a statement that I'm not authorized to act under any of those entities.
Q Okay. Did you receive a letter last night that was purportedly authored by the Joint Official Liquidators?
A Yes.
Q Did you review that letter?
A Yes.
Q Did that letter refer to today's hearing?
A Yes.
Q Are you aware of the Joint Official Liquidators making any appearance in this proceeding?
A No, I'm not aware they made any appearance in this proceeding.
Q Based on your recollection of the contents of that letter, did the Joint Official Liquidators challenge your authority to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities?
A No, they did not, because there's no ownership interest.
Q Okay. And what do you mean by that?
A The entity in liquidation owns nothing. And the DFW Charitable Foundation is the ultimate beneficial owner.

Q Are you aware that The Dallas Foundation filed an objection to the settlement agreement on behalf of Empower Dallas Foundation, the Okada Family Foundation, and Crown Global?

A Yes.

Q Are you aware that that objection was withdrawn?

A Yes.

Q Was the withdrawal of that objection the product of negotiations that your counsel had with lawyers for The Dallas Foundation and Crown Global?

A Yes, it was.

Q Did The Dallas Foundation or Crown Global require you to surrender your control position of the HMIT entities as a condition to the withdrawal of their objection?

A To give up my control? No.

Q They didn't ask you to do that, did they?

A No. No.

Q You are the control person for each of the HMIT entities that are party to the settlement agreement, correct?

A That is correct.

Q Are you aware of any requirement in any of the governance documents --

MR. CURRY: Your Honor, I'm not questioning, but I'm going to object to the line of questioning here about what was asked and what was not received into negotiations, because, frankly, you're getting an imperfect picture there. And I don't think it should be misrepresented. The communications didn't happen with Mr. Patrick.

THE COURT: Okay. I don't know if that objection was a confidential settlement communications.

MR. CURRY: It's a combination of foundation and that he's going into confidential settlement discussions.

MR. MORRIS: Your Honor, it's a very simple question. I'll ask it again.

THE COURT: Okay. We'll let --

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q To the best of best of your knowledge, Mr. Patrick, did The Dallas Foundation or any of the entities on whose behalf it filed its objection require you to surrender your position as the control person of the HMIT entities in exchange for the withdrawal of their objection?

A No, they did not.

Q Thank you. Are you aware -- are you familiar with the governance documents for the HMIT entities?

A Yes, I am.

Q Are you aware of any restriction on your ability to act on behalf of those HMIT entities with respect to -- withdrawn. Are you required to obtain the consent of anyone in order to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities?

A No, I am not. I'm the sole authority and control person for that entity.
Q And do you believe that you're entering into the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities in good faith?
A Yes, I do.
Q Have you received legal counsel before entering into the agreement?
A Yes, I have.
Q Do you believe that you've negotiated the best terms that you could get on behalf of the HMIT entities?
A Yes, I do.
Q Do you believe that you received the information that you believed you required in order to make an informed decision before you entered into the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities?
A Yes, I did.

MR. MORRIS: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Phillips, anything from you?

MR. PHILLIPS: No questions.

THE COURT: Okay. Any redirect?

MR. LANG: Briefly.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. LANG: Your Honor, because they mentioned the letter of last night from Grant Thornton, the Liquidators, I'm going to offer that into evidence as the letter that we talked about this morning. But Mr. Morris directly asked him if he reviewed it and asked him questions about it.

THE COURT: Response?

MR. MORRIS: No objection, Your Honor. Go right ahead.

THE COURT: I'll admit it.

MR. LANG: This is --

THE COURT: Do I have it in my notebook?

MR. LANG: -- Dugaboy --

THE COURT: Okay.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. LANG:

Q Mr. Patrick, I've handed you --

THE COURT: We're going to call this Dugaboy 3?

MR. LANG: Dugaboy 3.

THE COURT: Okay.

(Dugaboy Investment Trust's Exhibit 3 is admitted into evidence.)

BY MR. LANG:

Q Mr. Patrick, I've handed you a letter. It's from Grant Thornton dated June 24th, 2025. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q And is this a true and correct copy of the letter that you received or that you reviewed from the Joint Liquidators that you referred to in your answers to Mr. Morris' questions?

A Well, it's a PDF. I mean, I'm assuming it's from the Official Liquidators.

Q But this is the letter you were referring to in your testimony a few minutes ago?

A Yes.

Q And do you see on the second paragraph it says that, on May 6th, 2025, the Grand Court of Cayman Islands Financial Services Division appointed Margot MacInnis and Sandipan Bhowmik, each of Grant Thornton Special Services (Cayman) Limited, as the Joint Official Liquidators of the company. Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q And do you see on the second page, it says: Since our appointment, we have been diligently investigating these transactions, including a corporate transaction that occurred in or around December 2024 where the company transferred a hundred percent of its interest in the Fund to CDMC FAD, LLC, which resulted in the company being the sole member of CDM and subsequent redemptions of the company's interests in CDM.

Do you see that?

A Yes.

Q Is that your understanding of what is happening in the Caymans right now, is investigating these transactions?

A Correct.

MR. LANG: Pass the witness.

MR. MORRIS: May I just have that letter, please?

THE COURT: Any recross?

MR. MORRIS: Yeah, just real brief.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q None of the transactions that you were just asked about has anything to do with any of the HMIT entities, correct?

A That's absolutely correct.

Q Okay. And now that we have the letter in the record, if you could look at the third paragraph. Do you see --

A Yeah.

Q Do you see it refers to the Highland Dallas Foundation, Highland Santa Barbara Foundation, and Highland Kansas City Foundation?

A Yes.

Q Are those the three entities that you referred to earlier that are, to the best of your understanding, controlled by Mr. Dondero?

A Yes.

Q Okay. And this is the letter that you said you reviewed and concluded that the Joint Official Liquidators weren't challenging your authority to enter into the agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities; do I have that right?

A Yes. Yes, you do.

MR. MORRIS: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. I have a question or two.

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT

THE COURT: And again, I apologize if I sounded harsh earlier. I recognize different people present different ways when they testify. It just appeared to me that maybe we were slowing things down unnecessarily. All right?

THE WITNESS: I apologize, too. I'm just a little emotionally upset they're using this proceeding for a benefit someplace else.

THE COURT: Okay. My question, very general question: Do you think this settlement is fair and equitable as far as HMIT is concerned?

THE WITNESS: Absolutely.

THE COURT: And could you tell me why?

THE WITNESS: Yeah. There was no obvious pathway for HMIT to, in my mind, to receive the residual interest of the bankruptcy estate without a settlement with the Debtor. Otherwise, it just seemed to me that it would go on forever. And then I balanced that against the existing litigation and the probability of the outcome weighted against the costs, and determined that it made sense from HMIT's perspective to enter into the settlement agreement.

THE COURT: Okay. And you understand that, as part of this, you're giving up some litigation claims that have been waged now for a couple of years or more?

THE WITNESS: That is correct, but I'm also receiving the Kirschner Litigation, which I did negotiate to receive.

THE COURT: Okay. And there was a note that the estate -- I've heard it called at some point the $57 million note that HMIT owed Highland, a December 2015 note -- that basically gets credited against the capital account. You understand that?

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

THE COURT: Okay. And then you understand that if I approve this deal, I'm not sure why there's going to be $500,000 to HMIT and then also another $10 million to HMIT, but subsequent payments could get held up if there are litigation threats to the Highland Claimant Trust. You understand that, correct?

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

THE COURT: Okay. I just, I have to ask. I'm confused about what's going on here. I thought that -- well, let me just ask this: Would you consider yourself crossways with Mr. Dondero now?

THE WITNESS: No, but I'll answer the question. Upon advice of counsel, I quit Skyview Group. And upon advice of counsel, I terminated the back office services that Skyview Group was providing to the DAF.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, you said you're getting maybe a little emotional because of other litigation. I'm just trying -- I don't understand what all that other --

THE WITNESS: Unrelated -- well, unrelated to that. They're clearly trying to use this forum to benefit their Cayman actions. They hired U.S. counsel called Reed Smith, and they've been begging for an organization chart to issue a variety of frivolous lawsuits against the operating DAF entities. So I do apologize, but that's a little upsetting to me because I know we're going to -- that I've just fed them a list of targets in another unrelated matter.

THE COURT: Okay. Reed Smith. Here we go again with -- they've made an appearance for Mr. Seery in this litigation.

MR. MORRIS: Exactly. And we have raised that issue.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: And I'm surprised to hear that they think they still have the ability to do this. But we will pursue that later.

THE COURT: Okay. All right. I had nothing further. Thank you, Mr. Patrick.

(The witness steps down.)

THE COURT: All right. So where are we now? I said that, again, just trying to balance the playing field, if Dugaboy was given the ability to question Mr. Patrick, then I would allow I guess you want to call it rebuttal in the form of the Debtor, Reorganized Debtor/Claimant to call Mr. Dondero. Do you choose to call him?

MR. MORRIS: I'm not.

THE COURT: Oh, and I guess I'll allow you, --

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- if you want to put on your client representative, Mr. Lang.

MR. LANG: We call Jim Dondero.

THE COURT: All right. Yes, we are timing.

Please raise your right hand, sir, Mr. Dondero.

JAMES "JIM" DONDERO, DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST'S WITNESS, SWORN

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. The time is running.

THE WITNESS: Thank you for the time.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. LANG:

Q Mr. Dondero, do you claim that Mr. Patrick lost authority to enter into the 9019 settlement -- or, the settlement agreement that's the subject of the 9019 motion today?

A Yes.

Q And when do you claim Mr. Patrick lost authority to enter into that settlement agreement?

A I think it's best if I give a timeline. He left Sky -- can I give a --

MR. PHILLIPS: Objection, Your Honor. Nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Overruled. He can give a timeline.

THE WITNESS: He left Skyview in October, November, walked out the door, never talked to anybody again, never talked to the charities again except through counsel. Never collected severance, anything else. Just walked out the door.

As part of Skyview's review of what he'd been working on and what was the nature and what might have been happening, they discovered numerous abnormalities. They discovered--

THE COURT: Do we have an objection?

MR. MORRIS: We do. We're not going to use this opportunity to smear Mr. Patrick. If the notion is that the breach of the ability to act with authority occurred in May, he should start his timeline in May.

THE COURT: Well, I assumed he was just giving background to explain.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: So I'll overrule.

THE WITNESS: Thank you. I'm going to just give you a little bit of background. Everything that I'm stating is in the public record. I won't do anything to besmirch Mark Patrick. It's all in the public record. It's all in the Cayman pleadings. But there was affidavits regarding embezzlements by vendors where he would request overbilling and the money sent to his house.

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, we're talking about documents outside the scope, not identified, not listed. Objection.

THE WITNESS: It's all --

MR. PHILLIPS: This is not a timeline.

THE COURT: This --

THE WITNESS: It's --

THE COURT: Sustained. We don't have anything in the record. This is --

THE WITNESS: Okay. It's all in the public arena. And so is the insider trading.

MR. PHILLIPS: Objection, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: So, --

THE COURT: Okay. I sustain.

THE WITNESS: Okay. All right.

And then, yeah, and then there was monies missing. There were large amounts of monies missing from the estate. There was unexplained $16 million of expenses in '23.

MR. PHILLIPS: Objection, Your Honor. They're --

THE COURT: Okay. Explain the relevance, Mr. Lang.

MR. LANG: I thought he was just giving a background.

THE COURT: It's getting rather --

THE WITNESS: Okay, Your Honor. Well, --

THE COURT: -- colorful, shall we say. All right?

THE WITNESS: Okay. Without giving specifics regarding the embezzlement or --

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor?

MR. MORRIS: We move to strike, Your Honor.

MR. PHILLIPS: We move to strike all of this.

MR. MORRIS: We move to strike all of this.

THE COURT: Okay. I grant. We don't have any evidence of embezzlement.

THE WITNESS: Okay. All right. Without detailing any of the bad acts that we -- that it looked like happened from the investigation, we took all the bad acts and all the investigations and we gave them to the three underlying charities. Let's remember the DAF is a legacy charity I set up 15 years ago, or actually, Mark Patrick did the documentation back when he was a loyal employee. And it was three -- around $300 million and about $600 million of liability, I mean, legal claims and other things that were meant to be a family legacy, where the donations would help the community. We've given out more than $50 million over the years. And the recognition would help our various companies or our families. That's what it was. Okay?

Went to the three underlying charities who were the beneficiaries of the DAF as it existed: Santa Barbara, Dallas Foundation, Kansas City. These are large charities that have been around for a hundred years. I don't control them by any form or fashion. As a matter of fact, the Hunts are $4 billion out of the $6 billion in Kansas City. I think I'm a hundred million or whatever. The DAF was a hundred million. I think the Hunts would be disturbed to hear that I control it.

Anyway, so all those charities were beneficiaries. And so we went to them with all the investigative results. And at first, they tried to verify, they tried to have an audience with Mark Patrick. They wanted details. They wanted what -- financials. They wanted to know what was happening. And nothing was forthcoming from Mark Patrick. He didn't think he owed them any fiduciary responsibilities.

MR. PHILLIPS: Objection. Hearsay.

THE WITNESS: No, that's --

THE COURT: What is the out-of-court statement? I'm not sure.

MR. MORRIS: Mark Patrick thinks that he doesn't owe any fiduciary duties.

MR. PHILLIPS: They did an investigation. They tried to do x. They tried to do y.

THE COURT: Oh, okay. Technically not hearsay, but I think we're getting --

THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE COURT: -- a little far beyond the subject matter. So if we could reign it in, please.

THE WITNESS: Okay. In February, they were noted, they were notified, or, in particular, Dallas Foundation was notified that their Empower subsidiary, which owned a hundred percent of the HMIT interests that we were talking about, was transferred to an undisclosed company for a million dollars. Without any transparency, without any understanding of who the new owner was, they filed for receivership in Cayman. To the best of the charity's knowledge and based on all the documentation --

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, objection.

THE COURT: Okay. Let me try to understand the relevance. Do you think I opened this up by asking if there was a falling out essentially between you and Patrick? Is that why you're going into this? Or --

THE WITNESS: No, no, no. No. The falling-out is much bigger than this. But I'm just saying the day receivership was filed was the day Mark Patrick lost authority. And I think anybody would look at it that way. It was for liquidation in the Cayman --

THE COURT: Okay. That's his view and we'll either see the --

THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE COURT: -- documents that support that or not.

THE WITNESS: All right. So, your -- yes. Because the question was when do I think he lost authority. I -- you could make the argument he lost it a lot sooner, because for months beforehand the charities had written him letters saying they wanted their assets distributed in kind, they lost faith in --

THE COURT: Okay.

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

MR. PHILLIPS: Again, Your Honor, objection.

THE COURT: This is hearsay. Okay. I sustain.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Well, they did.

So, eventually, and it takes a lot to get four little old ladies at different charities to get together and agree to file a charity in liquidation, but they did in the Caymans. Okay? And then lo and behold, the response from Mark Patrick was, ha-ha, there are no assets there anymore, I moved them all to my living room --

MR. PHILLIPS: Move to strike, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: -- at DFW.

MR. PHILLIPS: There's no evidence in the record of this. There was no evidence of any statement. Move to strike.

THE COURT: There's not, right?

THE WITNESS: Well, no, there is, because what Mark Patrick --

THE COURT: Sustained. I don't have it.

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, there is no evidence of any of this.

THE WITNESS: Well, Mark Patrick's testimony, he said -- he said that our receivership was right after his receivership. He had liquidated and taken all the assets out from Dallas, Santa Barbara, and whatever, and moved it all to his charity. So when we tried -- when the poor charities in Texas in the U.S. tried to file for liquidation, his response was ha-ha. And there were no assets there, you know, because he had already filed --

MR. PHILLIPS: Objection.

THE WITNESS: He -- he --

THE COURT: Okay, I've sustained the objection to the ha-ha. Okay.

THE WITNESS: Okay. But he had, he had filed --

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, please, move to strike.

THE COURT: Okay. Let's strike everything after that last question. Ask your next question.

MR. LANG: I don't remember what the first question was.

BY MR. LANG:

Q What happened -- or, what's your understanding of the proceedings in the Caymans?

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, objection. Form. Understanding of the proceedings in the Caymans?

MR. LANG: His understanding is, I mean, his understanding. What's his endgame?

THE COURT: All right. I sustain.

MR. LANG: Okay.

THE WITNESS: The Cayman Islands --

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor?

MR. LANG: Hold --

THE COURT: I sustained, so --

THE WITNESS: Oh, sustained. Sorry. Okay.

BY MR. LANG:

Q What is your endgame with respect to your objection over the authority of Mr. Patrick to enter into the settlement agreement that is subject of the 9019?

A The three charities in the U.S. are affected materially. Dallas Foundation can't make payroll as of October. Dallas Foundation --

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, I'll object to this testimony. The Dallas Foundation has withdrawn its objection on behalf of -- Dallas Foundation appearing on behalf of Empower, the Okada Family Foundation, and Crown Global. The Dallas Foundation is no longer a party here and did not even object in its -- an individual capacity. Object.

THE COURT: I sustain the objection. They had an objection. They withdrew it.

Moreover, as I announced early on today, I was really questioning their standing to weigh in.

So in light of all of that, I'm not going to allow testimony regarding the impact there has been on Dallas Foundation as a result of something Mark Patrick may have done. Okay?

THE WITNESS: Okay. I can answer it differently.

THE COURT: Well, wait for your question. Okay.

BY MR. LANG:

Q Well, what -- what is the --

A What is my goal?

Q Well, yes, what is your goal?

THE COURT: Okay. Yes. Why are you objecting? Why is Dugaboy objecting? How about that?

MR. LANG: Safely.

THE WITNESS: Safely. Without stating where the assets are or might be, they are not with the three charities they were with a year ago. They have zero. And I would like to get those assets back.

(Pause.)

THE COURT: Okay. Go ahead. I have a couple of questions, but maybe you'll hit on them.

MR. LANG: Oh.

BY MR. LANG:

Q Mr. Dondero, are you asking the Court to -- are you objecting to the settlement agreement that is the subject of the 9019, asking the Court to allow the Joint Liquidators in the Caymans to weigh in on the settlement agreement?

A Yes. Or described a little differently, there's no irreparable harm --

MR. PHILLIPS: Objection. Nonresponsive.

BY MR. LANG:

Q Well, let me ask you this: Are you asking --

THE COURT: Let him answer.

MR. LANG: Yes.

THE COURT: Go ahead and answer.

BY MR. LANG:

Q Go ahead.

A There's no irreparable harm for a bit of delay to get to the bottom of where the assets are and what bad deeds have occurred.

Q Is that the reason why you're objecting, is to delay this for 45 days or so?

A Well, I believe the HMIT million-dollar transaction in February was a steal. I believe it was a stolen asset that he -- Mark Patrick's trying to monetize. And I don't believe it's monetized at nearly its fair value. And so I believe that it needs to be reviewed.

Q Are you asking the Court to -- are you objecting simply to allow the Liquidators in the Caymans time to review this transaction and the settlement agreement?

A Yes. There needs to be more time.

Q Okay.

MR. LANG: I'll pass the witness.

THE COURT: All right. Cross?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q Good afternoon, Mr. Dondero.

A How's it going?

Q Okay. You referred to the three underlying charities as being The Dallas Foundation, The Highland Santa Barbara Foundation, and The Highland Kansas City Foundation. Do I have that right?

A The three are The Dallas Foundation, Santa Barbara, Kansas City. There's a holding company or there's an entity below it, below each one that I'm on the board of, but it's separate and distinct from the overall charity.

Q Okay. But the ones that are separate and distinct that have the Highland name, --

A Yes.

Q -- those are the ones that you control, correct?

A No. I'm on the board. There's three or four people on the board.

Q Okay. But --

A But we don't control. Otherwise, you know, we would have not recommended the settlement.

Q Does the Hunt family make their contributions to The Dallas Foundation, The Santa Barbara Foundation, and The Kansas City Foundation, or do they make them to The Highland Dallas Foundation, The Highland Santa Barbara Foundation, and The Highland Kansas City Foundation?

A Most families do it through DAF, so they probably have their own -- they're just involved with Kansas City, as far as I know. I don't know if they're involved in any of these others. But they probably have a Hunt Kansas City.

Q But the ones with the Highland name are the ones who initiated the proceeding in the Cayman Islands to get the Joint Official Liquidators appointed over this entity down there, right?

A Yes, I believe so.

Q And you personally funded that litigation, correct?

A The charities can't make payroll.

Q And the charities, did you tell the charities what's happening here?

A Yes. They're aware.

Q When did you tell the charities what's happening here?

A They've known it for weeks.

Q And they haven't filed any objection in this court, correct?

A They thought it was best for Dallas to file it.

Q And Dallas settled; isn't that right?

A To the surprise of all the other charities.

Q Okay. So today, there's actually no charity who is objecting to the settlement agreement, correct?

A Because it was -- she got bludgeoned in depositions over the weekend and it happened last night and nobody was aware of it.
Q I didn't bludgeon anybody.
A Well, --
Q I don't bludgeon people.
A She switched course after a Sunday full-day deposition or half-day deposition.
Q Okay. So the charities that you speak of aren't objecting, correct?
A Well, if we had more time. We only had six hours' notice that Dallas fell away. I think they probably would object.
Q And you say -- you began to have concerns about Mark Patrick going all the way back to 2023, right?
A 2023? A little bit, yeah.
Q And then you had real concerns in 2024, right?
A Yeah. I mean, he's an odd duck, but he was really odd towards the end.
Q Did you file a declara... is one of those public documents you mentioned in the Cayman Islands, that's your affidavit, right?
A I believe so.
Q Do you want to grab Binder 3 of 3?
A Sure.

Q And turn to Exhibit 119?
A Yes.
Q Okay. And this is the declara... this is the affidavit that you filed in the Cayman Islands?
A Yes.
Q And if you turn to Page 4, in Paragraph 25 you begin to recite events concerning Mark Patrick that concerned you, correct?
A Yes. I'm glad you're bringing this into evidence.
Q Yes. And in the two years since you started having concerns, has anybody sued Mark Patrick for breach of fiduciary duty?
A No.
Q Have you recommended to any of these charities: Mark Patrick is doing wrong, let's go sue him?
A We were unaware on 90 percent of it until he left.
Q You were aware of everything that's in your declaration. It says in 2023, you have notice of these emails. Right? And you did an investigation in 2024, correct?
A Yes. But it took a while to get the affidavits from third parties.
Q You had the whole investigation done in 2024 and nobody sued Mark Patrick, right?
A We didn't sue him. Correct.
Q You're just mad that you lost control. Isn't that right?

A No.
Q Turn to Paragraph 33, please. You accuse Mr. Patrick of misusing material nonpublic inside information. Is that right?
A Yes.
Q What material nonpublic inside information did he abuse?
A I wasn't involved in the specifics. My understanding is that he had an awareness of a tender or some financial transaction and then was providing inside information to attorneys and then had them do something. But I don't -- I don't know the specifics.
Q Sir, under oath, in this affidavit that you submitted to the Cayman Islands, you accuse Mark Patrick of obtaining and abusing material nonpublic inside information. Can you just tell Judge Jernigan what you had in mind?
A Whatever it says I have in mind. I'm just saying I didn't remember the specifics. I can read it, though, if you'd like me to read it.
Q Well, was it something about a put option?
A Yes.
Q Did he tell The Dallas Foundation that it had a put option? Does that refresh your recollection?
A I don't remember the details.
Q Do you remember who the counterparty was to the put option?

A Counterparty. One of the mutual funds.
Q Does it refresh your recollection that it was the Dugaboy?
A No.
Q Do you remember, sir?
A I don't remember.
Q I'm going to try. I'm going to try and refresh your recollection. Do you remember that Mark Patrick suggested to The Dallas Foundation that it could recover millions of dollars if it simply exercised the put option with Dugaboy?
A My recollection is it was a mutual fund, and it wasn't millions of dollars, but it would disrupt the transaction that was already in place. That's my recollection.
Q Okay.
A And I don't see Dugaboy anywhere in here, by the way.
Q I know. I was wondering if you could just -- I asked you, but it doesn't sound like you know specifically what the material nonpublic --
A Well, --
Q -- inside information is that you accused Mr. Patrick of abusing at that time.
A I know it's been reported. We can get you the details.
Q Okay. You, in fact, acted on behalf of HMIT, didn't you?
A Who is HMIT?
Q Apologies. You personally -- there's no question in your mind that Mark Patrick is the Administrator at HMIT, correct?

A I'm sorry, I'm drawing a blank on HMIT. What is HMIT?
Q I apologize. Hunter Mountain Investment Trust.
A Oh. Okay.
Q I'm calling it HMIT.
A Okay. All right. Sorry.
Q I probably not saying it clearly. I apologize. H-M-I-T. HMIT, that's what I call it. Is there something better that you prefer?
A No, that's fine. Yeah.
Q Okay. So HMIT. Mark Patrick is the Administrator at HMIT, right?
A I believe his status, his dirty hands, I believe he's trying to monetize a stolen asset.
MR. PHILLIPS: Objection, Your Honor. Nonresponsive.
THE COURT: Sustained.
THE WITNESS: No, I -- I saw it. I don't agree --
MR. PHILLIPS: Objection, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. PHILLIPS: Move to strike.
THE COURT: Granted.
THE WITNESS: I do not agree.
BY MR. MORRIS:
Q Okay. Has he -- he was at one time the Administrator. You would agree with that, right?
A Yes.

Q And did he stop becoming the Administrator in your mind when the Joint Official Liquidators were appointed?
A Yes. I believe.
Q Okay. So, in your mind, that's when it happened?
Can you describe for the Court the relationship between the entity in the Cayman Islands and HMIT?
A The entity in the Cayman Island, as far as we knew, was the org structure that all the assets were either in or controlled by in the organizational structure before all the HGEQ things that you went over earlier with Mark Patrick.
Q Okay. I'm not asking -- it's my fault. Do you believe the entity in the Cayman Islands controls HMIT?
A HMIT was one of the assets that were owned by the charities until it was moved for a million dollar to who know who.
Q And do you know how many layers there are between the Cayman Islands entity and HMIT?
A I do not.
Q Is it fair to -- in your view, do you believe that the Cayman Islands entity had a direct -- withdrawn. Do you believe that the Cayman Islands entity had an indirect ownership interest in HMIT?
A We believed it was direct.
Q Direct. So it was the owner?
A Well, it was -- it was the direct before it got moved in February.

Q Hasn't Beacon always been the owner of -- the beneficial owner of HMIT?
A Then it was Beacon that was moved. There was -- charities were notified in February that, for $1 million, the HMIT was sold to an undisclosed, unknown person.
Q Do you believe that the entity in the Cayman Islands ever had the ability to control Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?
A Yeah. It was an asset in the portfolio.
Q And do you believe that that gives it the right to control HMIT?
A Yes. I think the Liquidators will prove that. I think they can go back in time on bad acts and bad behavior and they can regroup assets to their rightful owners.
Q So your concern here is not with corporate authority, it's with the bad acts. Is that fair?
A Well, no. I think you lose your corporate authority when you're fiducially irresponsible or commit corporate crimes.
Q Okay. But you've never -- you've never brought a lawsuit accusing him of that. Fair?
A I think you'll see a litany of stuff come out of the Cayman Islands.
MR. PHILLIPS: Objection. Nonresponsive.
MR. MORRIS: I'm sure we might someday.
THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. But, no. But I have not, no.

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q Yeah. But you personally, have you ever been the Administrator of Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?

A Not that I'm aware of.

Q Have you ever had any role whatsoever with respect to the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?

A Not that I -- not that I recall.

Q Okay. Do you recall last December we were here on some litigation concerning HCLOM's scheduled claim?

A You have to give me more of a clue.

Q Remember HCLOM had that $10 million scheduled claim and Highland had filed a bad faith motion and we were all here in court and we wound up settling that matter and HCLOM got a Class 10 interest for $10 million?

A Yes, I vaguely remember that.

Q Okay. And you were here and you were representing HCLOM, right?

A Okay. I don't remember specifics, but, yes, go ahead.

Q Okay. And do you recall that Highland required Hunter Mountain Investment Trust's consent as part of the transaction?

A Vaguely.

Q And you personally authorized that consent back in December, didn't you?

A No.
Q Who did?
A Whoever would have spoke for HMIT at the time.
Q Okay. Let's take a look at Exhibit 68, please.
A So, Binder 2?
Q Yes, please.
A Sorry, this says Pat Daugherty. This is 1 of 3. This one. Okay. Did you say 68?
Q Yes.
A It's not in here, either. 68.
Q So you see that's an order of the Court?
A Yes.
Q And this resolves HCLOM's claim? Take your time.
A I'll leave it in case someone else needs it. Okay.
Q And do you see on the last page of the document there's an electronic signature by Deborah Deitsch-Perez at the Stinson firm as counsel for Hunter Mountain Investment Trust and Dugaboy Investment Trust? Do you see that?
A I'm sorry. I went to the very last page with Mark and I. Is there another page? Oh, okay. Yes. Okay.
Q So you see Stinson has signed both on behalf of you personally and HCLOM, and at the bottom, Stinson and Ms. Deitsch-Perez has also signed on behalf of Hunter Mountain Investment Trust and the Dugaboy Investment Trust? Do you see that?

A Yes. But then it's separate on 69, right?
Q Yeah. We're just looking at 68.
A Okay.
Q Do you know who authorized Ms. Deitsch-Perez to sign her name and tell the Court that the Dugaboy Investment Trust had approved this form of order both as to form and substance? Who acted on behalf of Dugaboy?
A I have no idea. I hope she keeps it straight when she's signing stuff.
Q Well, on whose behalf are you here today?
A Dugaboy's.
Q And are you a representative of Dugaboy?
A Representative? I'm primary beneficiary until I pass.
Q And who's the trustee of Dugaboy?
A I believe it's my sister at the moment.
Q Does she know you're here today testifying on behalf of Dugaboy?
A She knows I'm in court. I didn't -- I wasn't specific.
Q Did you talk to her about the Dugaboy -- does she -- does she even know about the Dugaboy objection?
A I don't know.
Q Okay. So how about Hunter Mountain Investment Trust? Do you know who authorized Ms. Deitsch-Perez to sign this document on behalf of Hunter Mountain Investment Trust?
A When was this? In December or January?

Q Yeah.
A I'm assuming -- I'm assuming Mark Patrick.
Q Late December.
A I'm assuming Mark Patrick. But I don't know.
Q Did you hear about a week later that Mr. Phillips called your lawyer and accused her of signing this document without authority from Hunter Mountain Investment Trust's authorized representative, Mr. Patrick?
A In hindsight, he's been in on it for a while, so --
Q What do you mean, he's been in on it for a while?
A I think he knows the plan Mark Patrick's been putting in place for quite a while.
Q But this document was signed without his knowledge or consent; isn't that right?
A I don't know.
Q And you had to sign a new agreement with Mark Patrick as the authorized representative of HMIT. Didn't you do that, sir?
A I don't know.
Q Okay. Let's take a look at guess I guess probably Exhibit 69. So this is an intercreditor and participation agreement. Do you see that?
A Yes.
Q And it's dated January 10th, 2025, correct?
A Yes.

Q And even though you -- even though Skyview had completed this investigation in which it was alleged that Mr. Patrick misused material nonpublic inside information and he had terminated his relationship with Skyview, you still entered into this agreement with him as the authorized representative of HMIT, correct?

A Those were different work streams, you know, so they were -- but yes.

MR. PHILLIPS: Objection. Nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q That is -- that is your signature on the last page, correct?

A Yeah. I mean, --

Q It's a simple question. That's your signature, right?

A Yes.

Q And you understood that you were signing an agreement with Mark Patrick, correct?

A Yes.

Q And you signed this agreement in order to avoid Mr. Phillips filing a motion in this court for reconsideration of an order that she signed not knowing that Hunter Mountain had given its consent without authority. Isn't that right?

A No, I had no -- none of that --

Q So what's your memory? Why do you think you entered into this agreement?

A Because the lawyers put it in front of me as a finished product from what had been going on recently.
Q And you had no understanding of what it was?
A Not with the innuendo and agenda that you were describing. No. I mean, I just -- I knew what it generally involved. That's it.
Q But you would agree with me that you entered into an agreement knowing that Mark Patrick was signing on behalf of Hunter Mountain, correct?
A Yes.
Q I mean, it's right below your name, right?
A Yes.
Q You couldn't have missed it.
A Yes. That part, I'll agree with.
Q Okay. And you signed the agreement with Mark acting as the authorized agent and representative of Hunter Mountain, notwithstanding all of the bad acts that you supposedly were aware of at the time. Correct?
A Object to aware of at the time. They were all coming together in parallel work paths.
THE COURT: Okay.
MR. PHILLIPS: Object. Nonresponsive.
THE COURT: Sustained. Like I told Mr. Patrick, the witness does not get to object.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

BY MR. MORRIS:

Q And just to close the loop, Mr. Dondero, you fully funded The Dallas Foundation's objection, correct?

A And I made additional donations so that they could pursue bad actors and get their money back.

Q You funded the litigation so that The Dallas Foundation could pursue their objection, correct?

A I made additional donations so that they could get some assets back so that they could be a charity again and make donations.

Q Do you get a tax deduction for that donation?

A Yes.

Q Okay. That's nice.

Let's just finish up with the Joint Official Liquidators. Have you spoken to them?

A I do not believe so.

Q Has anybody acting on your behalf spoken with the Joint Official Liquidators?

A I don't know. I think the Joint Official Liquidators are an accounting firm. I think they're Grant Thornton. I think people have spoken to the attorneys down there, but I don't know -- I haven't spoken to Grant Thornton and I don't know if anybody else has.

Q Okay. Did you see the letter that your counsel marked as the exhibit, the one that was sent last night?

A I've not heard it -- I've not read it, but I've heard you guys read it today.
Q Yeah. Are you aware of the Joint Official Liquidators saying at any time that they didn't believe Mark Patrick had the authority to enter into the settlement agreement on behalf of the HMIT entities?
A I have not.
Q Okay.
MR. MORRIS: No further questions, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. Mr. Phillips?
MR. PHILLIPS: Yeah.
THE COURT: Wait. What are we at timewise?
THE CLERK: So their 30 minutes is over. If you intended to give them 30 minutes for Patrick and --
THE COURT: Yes. Yes. They collectively got 30 minutes.
THE CLERK: For both of those --
THE COURT: Yes.
THE CLERK: -- witnesses. Okay. Yes, they're out.
THE COURT: How much did Mr. Morris use?
THE CLERK: Well, I don't know. I just was --
THE COURT: No, no, no, no. 30 minutes for each side for each Patrick and Dondero.
MR. MORRIS: About eight minutes.

THE CLERK: Yes. Mr. Morris -- I think Mr. Phillips may have asked one question, but Mr. Morris mostly -- 30 minutes.

THE COURT: No. On this witness, Phillips hadn't gone.

THE CLERK: No, not this witness.

THE COURT: Okay. That's all I care about, this witness.

THE CLERK: I don't know this witness.

THE COURT: Okay. Do you have a question, Mr. Phillips?

THE CLERK: I was doing 30 minutes for the total.

THE COURT: No, no, no, no, no.

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, I can resolve this. I can resolve this. We have no questions.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. Where are we? Mr. Lang, any redirect?

MR. LANG: I'm not sure.

THE COURT: Okay.

THE WITNESS: The last one.

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, the witness is telling the lawyer what question to ask.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. LANG: I believe I've already asked, which is the endgame.

THE COURT: Okay. Just let's move on. Anything else? What was the question?

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. LANG:

Q Mr. Dondero, what are you looking to accomplish through this objection?

MR. PHILLIPS: Asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained. Sustained. He did. He was asked and answered.

BY MR. LANG:

Q The endgame in general.

MR. PHILLIPS: Asked and answered.

THE COURT: Answered and answered. Move on.

THE WITNESS: No, no. No, I haven't. No, I --

MR. PHILLIPS: Asked and answered. Move to strike.

THE COURT: You asked him this on your direct earlier.

MR. LANG: I did.

THE WITNESS: But, in general, regarding the --

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor?

THE WITNESS: Not just this.

THE COURT: Sustained. Ask another question.

MR. LANG: I don't have any more questions.

THE COURT: Okay. I have a question.

EXAMINATION BY THE COURT

THE COURT: Here is something that I want to understand. What I have before me is whether a settlement with Hunter Mountain, a settlement between the Highland entities, the Claimant Trust, the Subtrusts, and the Hunter Mountain entities, seven of them, is fair and equitable, is in the best interest of the estate. If you were the director, the manager, the representative of Hunter Mountain estate, what would your answer be?

THE WITNESS: It's not in the ZIP Code.

THE COURT: It's not in the ZIP Code?

THE WITNESS: Of fair. Yes.

THE COURT: Okay. Why do you think it's not in the ZIP Code of fair?

THE WITNESS: Okay. We filed in Delaware on a $100 million judgment. Pachulski was our counsel. They told us --

THE COURT: I know all this.

THE WITNESS: It just --

THE COURT: I'm talking about the settlement in front of me right now.

THE WITNESS: -- we'd be in and out in three months, right? We got liquidated instead. We got liquidated for over $850 million, which not enough people talk about. Okay? It would've been $950 million if Seery had done a good job, but it was $850 million we got liquidated for. Okay? The POCs were pumped up. People who supposedly had no claim, all of a sudden, $300 million.

There's $700 million missing or misallocated from the estate. Okay? There was -- all the original creditors, all the original creditors sold 99 percent of their interest for $160 million. The Farallon and Stonehill went to the beach. There was enough money on the balance sheet. Seery could have given them the $160 million and tossed us the keys. Instead, he had relations, deep relations, undisclosed business relationships with Farallon and Stonehill, --

THE COURT: Okay. I do want you to know --

THE WITNESS: No, but --

THE COURT: -- I've read all this many times.

THE WITNESS: Okay. But so -- so these --

THE COURT: I promise I read every piece of paper submitted.

THE WITNESS: Okay. So, so he sold the POCs to them, and it's been -- they've tripled their money in two and a half years. The professional fees have been $300-odd million. There's interrelationships between all the professionals -- Farallon, Stonehill, Grosvenor, the Hellman & Friedman guys, the Millennium guys who took whatever. All this stuff has to come out.

We're on the edge of a giant RICO case eventually. We're -- that's -- we're on the edge of a giant RICO case. And they should not be giving up their rights for $10, $20 million.

It's crazy for them to give up their rights at Dallas Foundation for 10 or 20 million bucks.

There's $700 million missing. All the original creditors sold for $160 million. The estate was sold for over $850 million. Where'd all the money go? Where'd all the money go and why? You know.

We get updates quarterly, once in a while, well, this much went out to this law firm, this much went out to this, whatever, but no one looks at the gross amount and where'd all the money go? And why? Why did it have to -- why did it have to go down like that? Why do we have to fire --

THE COURT: Okay. I know you have an objection.

THE WITNESS: -- all the employees?

THE COURT: This is narrative.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah. And --

THE COURT: I understand all --

MR. MORRIS: -- I'm not going to cross-examine him, but this is -- this is not accurate.

THE COURT: I understand all of these arguments. You know, I --

THE WITNESS: But I'm just --

THE COURT: Your lawyers at least know, if you don't know, that we wrote a 100-plus-page opinion on the motion of Hunter Mountain to sue for all of this. Okay? So I promise I've heard this and looked at it. But right now, Hunter

Mountain, through Mark Patrick, you question his authority, but they are ready to lay down their swords and not pursue that motion for leave to sue based on the claims trading, and --

THE WITNESS: Have you seen all the insider trading, Farallon, Stonehill? Have you seen the trading and claims on insider information? Have you seen all that stuff?

THE COURT: I've seen the allegations but I --

THE WITNESS: Well, why would you release all those people right now before the RICO?

THE COURT: So I -- Dugaboy -- you've been asked what is your goal? Dugaboy a .18 limited partnership interest --

THE WITNESS: Correct.

THE COURT: -- that is subordinated to Hunter Mountain. I'm just trying to understand the scenario where it makes sense to keep fighting for years to come.

THE WITNESS: Well, RICO transcends this, right? I mean, RICO brings everybody in. Until we get --

THE COURT: Okay. You think it's -- and my question, why is this not fair and equitable and in the best interest of the estate, you think it's better to litigate several more years and maybe have a chance, you know, --

THE WITNESS: At $600 mill. At $600 million.

THE COURT: -- Hunter Mountain would have a chance to --

THE WITNESS: $600 million. Yes.

THE COURT: Okay.

THE WITNESS: Versus $20 million now. But you have to remember, it's all part of -- you have to pay attention to this Mark Patrick stuff.

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor?

THE COURT: Okay. Yes. I asked my question. I'm trying to understand why Dugaboy, why its position is this is not fair and equitable and in the best interest and in the range of reasonableness. Those are the buzz words that a judge has to focus on.

THE WITNESS: It's not fair to the charities. I still think no one's ever seen --

THE COURT: The charities aren't parties here.

THE WITNESS: Not yet. Give them a little time. They just heard about the settlement yesterday.

THE COURT: Well, isn't that what the Cayman Islands is all about? What I do doesn't necessarily affect what's happening there.

THE WITNESS: Well, no, but you're saying they're not here today. If you delayed this three weeks, they'd be here. It's just a couple --

THE COURT: They were here and they chose to withdraw.

THE WITNESS: One. One. Just one charity. But the others, if you give them some time, they'll be here.

THE COURT: Okay. Okay. I think you've answered my question, your theory of how this should play out and how you want it to play out. Okay. All right.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE COURT: That's all. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Thank you for the time.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

(The witness steps down.)

THE COURT: All right. I think that concludes our evidence, correct?

MR. YORK: Yes, Your Honor. At least from Daugherty and --

THE COURT: Okay. The Objectors rest. Any rebuttal?

MR. PHILLIPS: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. YORK: Your Honor, would it be okay if we took a five-minute comfort break?

THE COURT: Yes. We may as well turn it into a 10-minute break because that's what's going to happen. All right. We'll be back at 3:40.

THE CLERK: All rise.

(A recess ensued from 3:30 p.m. until 3:44 p.m.)

THE CLERK: All rise.

THE COURT: Please be seated. We're back on the record in Highland Capital. I will hear closing arguments. And I dangled something out there before lunch and I've never heard any follow-up. I guess no agreement with Daugherty could be reached on the reserve?

MR. YORK: Haven't had that conversation, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You didn't have that conversation? Oh, well. Why didn't you have that conversation?

MR. YORK: We were, during the lunch break, working busily to prepare the rebuttal to Mr. Seery's testimony, --

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

MR. YORK: -- Your Honor. And so --

THE COURT: Okay. You told me you'd talk about it.

MR. MORRIS: May I proceed, Your Honor?

THE COURT: I guess I don't matter. Do I not matter when I suggest something like that?

Okay. Go ahead.

CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF THE CLAIMANT TRUST

MR. MORRIS: Good afternoon, Your Honor. John Morris; Pachulski, Stang, Ziehl & Jones; for Highland Capital Management, LP and the Highland Claimant Trust and on behalf of the Highland Litigation Subtrust.

I know that we've got Bob Loigman in the courtroom, but I know that -- at least I hope he joins me in this closing argument. I suspect he does.

I don't want to be too long here, Your Honor. We don't have a high burden. This is a 9019 motion, for goodness' sakes. I've never been involved in such a contentious 9019 motion in my life. We had three depositions on Friday. We had two on Sunday. I think we had two on Monday. For a 9019, I've had one witness sit multiple times.

It's been an extraordinary experience. But at the end of the day, nobody's really challenging the settlement agreement. You've got people challenging, you know, the Cayman Islands. You've got people challenging, is it -- you know, can you jam it in under the plan? We're not jamming anything under the plan. We're following the plan provisions.

Nobody's challenging the bona fides of the motion. Nobody is challenging whether it's the product of good-faith, arm's-length negotiations.

You heard Mr. Seery testify at length about the process. You've got 55 different documents in the record proving that this agreement is the product of arm's-length, good-faith negotiations between parties represented by sophisticated counsel that resulted from an exchange of information, an exchange of proposals, back and forth, and here we are.

It's also in the best interests of the estate. Really not challenged by anybody. Nobody is contending that Highland is getting a raw deal here. Nobody. And the proof that Highland is getting fair consideration and that this settlement is in the best interest of the Claimant Trust and its stakeholders, it's obvious we are terminating costly, wasteful, and I dare say frivolous litigation. We are disposing of several illiquid assets. We are getting litigation protections that will inure to the benefit of the released parties, the Highland release parties and it will, we believe, provide the protection that we deserve.

It's not just releases. It's covenants not to sue. It's all kinds of bells and whistles in there. Substantial benefits to the estate. And so nobody's really objecting to that.

Nobody's really objecting to the fairness of the settlement to the HMIT parties except for Mr. Dondero, and he's just mad that peace is breaking out. He's just mad because he's not going to be able to litigate anymore. It's not relevant to a 9019 motion. But even if it was, it's ridiculous. It's just ridiculous.

The settlement is fair and reasonable and in the best interest of the creditors. It's the product of good-faith, arm's-length negotiations. And on that alone, it should be approved.

We've had a lot of testimony today about Mark Patrick's authority. The only actual evidence that concerns Mark Patrick's authority are the exhibits in the binder and Jim Seery's testimony about the diligence that he did. And the exhibits in the binder all prove that Mark Patrick has the authority to act and bind the HMIT entities to the settlement agreement. It's Paragraph 7 of the HMIT trust agreement itself.

Did the objecting parties point you to one single document to support their speculative argument, because it's not anything more than that, that somehow Mark Patrick isn't authorized to do this? There is not a scintilla of evidence that Mark Patrick is not authorized to do this.

And if Your Honor had any concerns about Mr. Patrick, I think he answered them at the end. That he understood exactly what the terms of the agreement are. That he had a reasonable opportunity to consult with counsel and to negotiate. That he knows exactly what he's doing on behalf of these entities. That he believes the best path forward from the HMIT entities is to grab the value today instead of letting it waste.

We welcome Mr. Patrick to the table. It makes a lot of sense. We've been trying to get to this point forever.

Mr. Daugherty. You know, I have no gripes with Mr. Daugherty. I don't know quite what's motivating him these days, but he admitted and the evidence is clear that when he was a Class 9 claim holder, I forget if it's two or three or four occasions, he accepted $3.7 million in multiple payments, without any concern at all as to whether or not it violated the plan, even though his Class 8 claim had remained unresolved.

He didn't send the money back. He didn't say, Mr. Seery, you can't do this because it violates the plan. He knowingly and willingly accepted the benefits of being a Class 9 claim holder. And now he comes and objects on the basis that somehow it's not fair to him as a Class 8 holder? This is what we call estoppel. Right?

I wasn't in a position to really make the argument because I didn't quite understand it until today. Like, how does he come in today and say you can't do this, Your Honor? You can't allow Class 9 and 10 to get a nickel until he's done, when he himself has accepted millions of dollars before his claim is resolved? That doesn't sound right to me. And I don't think the Court should accept that argument.

Just quickly, because I don't want to give it any weight, frankly, but this whole business of the Cayman Islands and the JOLs, the only facts Your Honor has to take into account are that they were appointed before this motion was filed. They've never appeared here. They've never objected. And there is no evidence in the record to suggest, let alone to prove, that the JOLs contend that Mark Patrick does not have the authority to enter into the settlement on behalf of the HMIT entities. There's no evidence of any kind.

What you need to know and need to remember, though, is that whole proceeding in the Cayman Islands is being brought on behalf of not The Kansas City Foundation or The Dallas Foundation, but The Highland Kansas City Foundation, The Highland Dallas. It's Mr. Dondero, and he's funding it, and it says it in Paragraph I think 47 or 48 of his declaration. He's funding all of that. And he funded The Dallas Foundation's objection here.

And that's why he's upset, because they settled last night without telling him because they didn't want any part of this, Your Honor. That's the truth. That's why they're not here. And they, right, they're the people who suggested that maybe something untoward happened and maybe someday -- because this is the way their objection is characterized. Complete speculation.

If you go back and look at the objection, it's someday, somebody might do something and might someday set it aside. That wasn't a proper basis at the time, but we know that Mark Patrick remains in control of the HMIT entities today because nobody has told the Court otherwise. And we know that The Dallas Foundation has withdrawn its objection. As I asked Mr. Patrick, have you been, you know, removed or clipped or terminated or in any way restricted in your capacity as the Administrator and control person of the HMIT entities as a result of the settlement, and the answer was no.

There's nothing to see here, Your Honor, except the opportunity for the Highland Claimant Trust and its affiliated entities in moving this case forward in an enormously positive and constructive direction.

We have the opportunity today to put to rest a lot of pending litigation. We have the opportunity today to put to rest a lot of future potential litigation that undoubtedly would have come to pass had these entities remained under the indirect control of Mr. Dondero, because we know that that was the case.

If you remember, Your Honor, we sat here two years ago, June 8th, 2023, on the evidentiary hearing on Hunter Mountain's motion for leave to bring the claims trading case. And if Your Honor will remember, Mr. Patrick at that time was forced to admit that the entirety of that case came in from Mr. Dondero, that he had no knowledge of any facts that related to anything.

I would ask Your Honor to go and compare The Dallas Foundation's objection with Mr. Dondero's declaration that he filed in the Cayman Islands. I'm not going to say they're verbatim, but they are largely, largely the same. This is just Jim Dondero being Jim Dondero, and that is not a basis to overrule or deny the motion under Rule 9019.

It's a product of good faith negotiations, it is clearly in the best interests of the estate, and we respectfully request that as soon as possible Your Honor grant motion.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Any closing from the Movant, Co-Movant?

MR. PHILLIPS: Your Honor, thank you very much. Louis M. Phillips on behalf of the --

THE COURT: I don't know if you're the Co-Movant. You're a party to the proposed settlement.

MR. PHILLIPS: I'm not a Co-Movant.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. PHILLIPS: I'm a party to the settlement.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. PHILLIPS: I didn't quite make it to that status to be a Co-Movant.

CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF THE HUNTER MOUNTAIN ENTITIES

MR. PHILLIPS: But anyway, we appreciate the Court's time. We appreciate the Court's attention. This was, as the evidence established, we provided and were provided an immense amount of information.

Much of the information, certainly the information about Mr. Patrick's control of the HMIT entities, was provided by us. It was reviewed by Mr. Seery. And Mr. Seery made a very strong case for the amount of diligence he did on our side of the equation. It's not nearly as relevant to Your Honor's decision about whether to approve the settlement whether we got a good deal or not, but the deal we got, we think, is very fair.

The deal we got was negotiated with counsel, with businesspeople who are very sophisticated. We have agreed on the methodology and of the calculation of our Class 10 claim. The Debtor and the Debtor estate or the Claimant Trust or whoever held the HMIT note got full value for the HMIT note. Any additional value from the HMIT note would come back to HMIT. The Kirschner Litigation would be for the benefit of HMIT. The Dugaboy Note would be for the benefit of HMIT.

All of that is being put into a package and is being resolved, affiliated, administered in a very effective and efficient manner. We are getting some money. We appreciate. We tried to get more. We couldn't. They tried to pay less. We made a deal.

So, Your Honor, I echo and thank Mr. Morris for all of his comments. I appreciate counsel being involved here today. We think this is a fair and equitable settlement. There is no question under 9019 that this settlement should be approved. And the suggestion that this Court should allow itself to just be a vehicle for continued litigation, when we have analyzed it, perhaps from a different perspective, and made the decision that it is time to make our deal now, it is time to take HMIT out of the litigation picture and into the fold of a party in interest of a fixed claim with fixed treatment that's different from the plan, authorized by the plan. And we appreciate it.

Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. All right. Mr. Loigman, we didn't mean to ignore you.

CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF MARC S. KIRSCHNER, LITIGATION TRUSTEE

MR. LOIGMAN: Thank you, Your Honor. Robert Loigman, Quinn Emanuel. You didn't ignore me. Louis was just quicker to jump up than I was.

And I step up solely because you asked whether the Co-Movant had anything to add. And we have nothing further to add to what Mr. Morris said. We agree with it wholly. We think this is a fair and complete settlement, and we would ask that the Court approve the settlement under the 9019 motion.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. LOIGMAN: Thank You, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. The Objectors?

MR. MORRIS: Your Honor?

THE COURT: Oh.

MR. MORRIS: Just to clarify, the motion was made under 9019 and Section 363. I just don't want that to get lost. That's all.

THE COURT: Okay. 363, use of property. Okay.

The Objectors?

CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF PATRICK DAUGHERTY

MR. YORK: Thank you, Your Honor. I'll be very brief.

I certainly appreciate that the Court desires to have this bankruptcy wrapped up, given how long it's gone on now, for six -- approximately six years in this court. The fact of the matter is that the settlement agreement that Highland proposes to enter into with Hunter Mountain Investment Trust entities violates the express terms of the plan, the confirmation order, and the Claimant Trust Agreement.

And they have not pointed to any language in there or to argue otherwise. Their only argument has been that they've set a reserve aside. And there's no provision in any of those documents that provides that that's an excuse for them to violate the express terms of the confirmation order, the plan, or the Claimant Trust Agreement, including specifically the language that Class 10 claims are not to receive or retain anything under the plan on account of their interest unless and until the Class 8 and Class 9 claims are paid in full plus applicable interest. And --

THE COURT: I really want to understand that argument. Mr. Seery correctly testified that, pretty much in every Chapter 11 plan we see, there's a disputed claim reserve. Well, I guess unless we have really unsophisticated creditors who don't insist on that. But we had sophisticated creditors. So why doesn't that mechanism, which I would call tried and true, we see it in most cases, why doesn't that resolve this issue you're raising?

MR. YORK: Well, --

THE COURT: And I focused in more than maybe I needed to about the nature of Mr. Daugherty's remaining claim, his Class 8 claim. What was the scope? What's the maximum amount it could be? When might it be resolved? Because I think we have a tried-and-true mechanism that addresses his concerns. Tell me why it doesn't.

MR. YORK: Well, --

THE COURT: Really, I want to understand what you think I'm missing.

MR. YORK: Well, so I think twofold, Your Honor. The first is that the dispute reserve that exists normally would be for whatever the amount of the disputed claim is. And here we're dealing with, as both sides have acknowledged, a claim that they at best could estimate, but they don't know for certain, given all of the machinations that could come out of the IRS audit.

And secondly, specifically with respect to the confirmation order, if it had said that the net 10 and 11 claims could be paid as long as the allowed 8 and 9 claims were paid, then the dispute reserve would provide that protection. But that's not what the language in the confirmation order says. It says claims, not allowed claims. And therefore it's referring to all claims, including disputed claims. And --

THE COURT: But we have a disputed claim reserve. Okay. We have a disputed claim reserve.

MR. YORK: There is, yes, there is a reserve.

THE COURT: So is it your argument that I can't approve a settlement like this until Mr. Daugherty's claim has been resolved with certainty, which might be in 2033 or whatever? I can't keep a bankruptcy estate open, allowing administrative expenses to continue to accrue, because of one contingent unliquidated claim that may never even develop.

MR. YORK: Your Honor, I appreciate the Court's frustration with that, but that's the way that the documents are written in terms of the confirmation order. And so it's an --

THE COURT: So the disputed claim reserve is meaningless?

MR. YORK: No, it is not -- a disputed claim reserve exists, but it does not, under the terms of the confirmation order, in terms of allowing the payment of Class 10 and Class 11 claims, those can't be done until the Class 8 claims are resolved.

THE COURT: You would have -- just a moment -- you would have me keep this estate open for as long as it takes, 2033, whatever, without allowing Class 10 and Class 11 theoretically to get anything?

MR. YORK: At least under --

THE COURT: Let's just let the -- with all respect to Mr. Seery, he's charging a handsome amount. It was agreed to or approved by the Court. Let's just let him continue accruing until 2033 because of Mr. Daugherty's prospect of the IRS saying you owe $1.4 million plus interest and penalties, when he's gotten the use of that all? Help me. This doesn't make sense to me.

MR. YORK: Sure. One way this could be solved is that the payments to -- the cash payments, for example, that are to be made to the HMIT entities, under the proposed settlement could be held in abeyance until the resolution of the Class 8 claim. The Court could modify the proposed settlement based on that. That's one way to deal with the issue, for example.

THE COURT: Do what? Hold it in abeyance?

MR. YORK: Yes. For -- the payments to be made to the Hunter Mountain Investment Trust under the proposed settlement could be -- could be done in accordance with the terms of the confirmation order. We'll just hold those payments until such time.

THE COURT: We who? Put it in the Court Registry?

MR. YORK: Or --

THE COURT: Where it will earn 0.18 percent?

MR. YORK: No. No. It can remain within the Claimant Trust until the time at which the Class 8 claim is finally and fully resolved.

THE COURT: Okay. Meanwhile, I've approved the extension of the Trusts for one year, with Dugaboy saying, we don't think this should happen again and again and again. We reserve our rights. That's not a good solution.

MR. YORK: Your Honor, I understand the Court's frustration, but this is the terms of the plan and the confirmation order that were entered. Highland needs to follow it.

THE COURT: Okay. What about the estoppel argument that I heard Mr. Morris make?

MR. YORK: Well, sure. So, the first time they raise it is here today. And the one thing that -- the difference is that allowing this settlement to go forward is an effective liquidation of the estate versus where things are now, in which any payments that were made is not an effective liquidation. It doesn't expose anyone that would have priority to Class 10 with respect to anything that happens in the future from, you know, not having sufficient funds to deal with it. That's all.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. YORK: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. All right. Mr. Lang?

CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST

MR. LANG: I'll be brief. Your Honor, there are three issues that we've raised. One is the capital account balance being used for the claim for the Class 10 holders. The plan does not specify that the capital account balance is to be used. Allowing the $336 million claim to Class 10 ensures that Class 11 will not ever receive a dime. That's guaranteed.

Alternatively, upon the satisfaction of the Class 9, the $20 million approximately owed to Class 9, the holders of HMIT should receive 99.5 percent of the total residual. We think that would be a more fair outcome to the Class 11 claimants.

THE COURT: Wait, say again?

MR. LANG: That, so, of total assets, $70 million approximately, $20 million is owed to Class 9.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. LANG: Of the remainder from that, HMIT should receive 99.5 percent of those assets, whatever they are, the value, rather than a $336 million claim. That was the objection.

THE COURT: But I didn't get any evidence of a separate way of competing -- of doing that. I heard credible testimony from Mr. Seery about why he used the math he used and I didn't hear any countervailing evidence of, wait, this is a more fair, realistic way of computing it. And what I did hear is the .5 percent limited partnership interest of Dugaboy is subordinated in its payment rights under the limited partnership agreement of Highland.

MR. LANG: It's subordinated under the plan, but yes, the plan does not say to use --

THE COURT: Under the partnership agreement is the reason the plan did it, is what I've been presented.

MR. LANG: I believe Mr. Seery -- and I could be wrong -- I think I heard him say that he has used the other method, but I could have misheard him in the testimony.

THE COURT: Well, that's not what I heard. I heard him emphasizing the fact that the Class 8 interests, including that of Dugaboy, are subordinated with regard to payment rights under the Highland partnership agreement. And so that's why he didn't think it made sense to just apply percentages.

MR. LANG: That's what he testified to.

THE COURT: So I'm just -- anyway, I'm just trying to figure out what the countervailing evidence is here to suggest his methodology is wrong.

MR. LANG: I believe the partner -- or, the plan says that the Class 10, when the GUC certification is a Class 10, and the Class 11 received pro rata, it doesn't specify the account balance is to be used as the number to determine what they receive.

THE COURT: Okay. You want to point out what you are focused on?

MR. LANG: I believe it's under Treatment.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. LANG: Section --

THE COURT: I don't want to hunt. I want you to tell me what the language is that you think is supportive of that.

MR. LANG: And the second -- I guess the secondary issue that we probably should just get to is the release. We think it's broad, and just Dugaboy and Dondero are carved out. And Mr. Morris did send me a proposal last -- yesterday evening that I haven't gotten to. But that is an objection that we have, is just to make sure that the -- that nobody can argue that the release covers any claim Dugaboy might have, if any.

THE COURT: Okay. I think many hours ago I remember this being mentioned. I guess it was a little bit more broad than just -- I think it was Highland employees. I don't know.

What is the agreement, Mr. Morris, if you're awake there, on --

MR. MORRIS: I am awake, Your Honor. Apologies.

THE COURT: Okay. I didn't mean to be flippant.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: I get punchy and --

MR. MORRIS: That's okay. With respect to the release?

THE COURT: Right.

MR. MORRIS: We don't have an agreement. We have an agreement -- well, I sent a proposal last night, but it didn't get responded to. If they want to accept that proposal, that's terrific.

THE COURT: Okay. I don't know what the agreement says. Are you saying you want to accept what they proposed last night?

MR. LANG: No, I have edits to it. I just couldn't -- I was tied up on another filing last night. I have not been able to get to it today.

THE COURT: Okay. I'm going to make a ruling today. Okay? If it means y'all sit here in the courtroom a while, fine. But just like all of you, I have a mountain of other stuff waiting for me, so I really want to rule today. So, --

MR. LANG: Understood.

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. LANG: Maybe we can work on it as soon as I'm done and I can get back to 'em --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. LANG: -- and get back to you.

Your Honor, the -- it's on Page 23 of the plan. It talks about the Class 10 and Class 11, where the partnership interests, that their treatment, they shall receive as pro rata share of the contingent Claimant Trust interests. And all we're asking is that be used or applied as a 99.5/.5 distribution.

(Pause.)

THE COURT: I'm sorry. Go ahead.

MR. LANG: Oh, sorry. I thought you were looking for it.

And the last issue is authority. The only point of the authority argument, Your Honor, is that the Joint Administrators were appointed down in the Caymans to investigate the transaction that moved basically the entire ownership, because it's owned a hundred percent down to HMIT, out. They're investigating the transactions. They have not stipulated to authority. They're looking at everything. They've requested a 45-day delay on this motion. And that's all that -- not even asking to deny the 9019. They were just asking time to basically bless this transaction so that nobody could come back and make an issue of it. But I understand your desire to rule today.

THE COURT: Okay. Any rebuttal?

MR. MORRIS: Yeah, briefly, Your Honor.

REBUTTAL CLOSING ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF THE CLAIMANT TRUST

MR. MORRIS: I just want to point the Court to two provisions of the operative documents that I think --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: -- will resolve even further the issues that we've presented today.

The Claimant Trust Agreement -- and I apologize, I don't know if the whole document is in evidence, but I will respectfully suggest to the Court that the Claimant Trust Agreement provides in Article 5, Section 5.1(c), --

THE COURT: Okay. Let me catch up.

MR. MORRIS: Yes.

(Counsel confer.)

THE COURT: It's not Debtor's Exhibit 5.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: Daugherty's Exhibit 5?

MR. MORRIS: It's Daugherty Exhibit 5?

MR. YORK: Yes.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. YORK: So we have a full copy at Daugherty --

THE COURT: I've got it. Daugherty's Exhibit 5.

MR. MORRIS: Okay. So if you could just go to Page 27, Your Honor. And this is in response to Mr. Lang's argument about the calculation of the allowed claim. You'll see it deals with contingent trust interests. And the very last sentence says the equity trust --

THE COURT: Wait. What page again?

MR. MORRIS: 27.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: Do you see Section C in the middle is Contingent Trust Interests?

THE COURT: No.

THE CLERK: It's 26 of the Claimant Trust Agreement, 27 of the --

THE COURT: Ah, it's 26. Yes. On the bottom, it's 26; on the top, it's 27 of 38.

MR. MORRIS: Okay.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: And at the end of Section C, it says explicitly: The equity trust interests distributed to allowed holders of Class A limited partnership interests -- that's Dugaboy --

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. MORRIS: -- shall be subordinated to the equity interests distributed to the allowed holders of Class B and C. That's Hunter Mountain. Okay?

So the trust agreement provides for exactly what we're doing here. Dugaboy is in fact subordinated to HMIT. It doesn't get paid until HMIT gets paid in full. And Mr. Seery I think compellingly testified as to the reasonable calculation that he did based on very objective numbers to determine each respective limited partner's capital account.

With respect to Mr. Daugherty, the plan, which is on the docket at 1943, has a definition of Disputed Claim Reserve. And it states, among other things, that the amount of the disputed claim upon which the disputed claim --

THE COURT: Give me the page number.

MR. MORRIS: I apologize, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I've got it right in front of me.

MR. MORRIS: It's Page 7 of the plan.

THE COURT: Okay. All right. I'm there. The Defined Term.

MR. MORRIS: So the Defined Term "Disputed Claim, Claims Reserve Amount" in the middle says: The amount of the disputed claim upon which the disputed claims reserve is calculated shall be -- they've got an A and then a B -- the amount agreed to by the holder of the disputed claim and the Claimant Trustee or Reorganized Debtor, as applicable. And then it says D: Or is otherwise ordered by the Bankruptcy Court, including an estimated -- an order estimating the disputed claim.

And that last provision is vital, Your Honor, because that is the hook upon which you can always hang your hat when you decide that we are not going to wait until 2023 [sic] when the IRS audit may be resolved, because you have the ability, as ordered by the Bankruptcy Court, including estimating the amount of the disputed claim. Which is one of the causes of action that we've asserted in the complaint. It's either to subordinate -- actually, it's to disallow, to subordinate, or to estimate. Because this case does have to end, Your Honor. We actually think he should be bound by the definition in B.

It is an agreed-upon amount.

I've heard the testimony from Mr. Daugherty that there was no negotiation, but he didn't deny that he signed a document that is called an agreement that sets forth the disputed claim amount. And that is an agreement, and I think that satisfies that definition. And even if it didn't, at some point this case has to end.

Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

All right. Well, it's been a long day and even a longer case. I think a lot of people were on the receiving end of a little bit of my grumpiness at times today, and I apologize for that.

I always feel compelled to say to the lawyers and parties when I rule from the bench that I can assure you it's not knee-jerk. I can assure you my law clerk and I have read every piece of paper submitted. And we come in here I think well-prepared and we just want to listen to the evidence to see if it supports -- who it supports. So I am going to rule from the bench.

I first want to make clear that with regard to the motion before the Court, the motion which was filed May 19th at Docket Entry 4216, pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and Bankruptcy Code Section 363, the Court is being asked to approve a very broad settlement that is between what are defined as the HMIT entities, seven entities in all; Hunter Mountain Investment Trust; as well as Beacon Mountain, LLC; Rand Advisors, LLC; Rand PE Fund 1, LP; Rand PE Fund Management, LLC; Atlas IDF, LP; and Atlas IDF GP, PLLC. So this proposed compromise and settlement is between all of those Hunter Mountain entities as well as the Reorganized Debtor, the Highland Claimant Trust, the Highland Litigation Subtrust, and the Highland Indemnity Trust.

I first will note that notice has been fulsome, reasonable under the circumstances, to provide due process to anyone affected by the proposed compromise.

The Court would note that the legal standard is a very well-known and established legal standard here. Among other things, the Court is to look at whether the settlement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interest of the estate; whether it would appear reasonable business judgment has been exercised; is the compromise and settlement within the range of reasonableness?

And this involves looking at, among other things, the probability of success in the litigation -- that would be all the various litigation involving HMIT, if it were to go forward; the complexity and likely duration of further litigation and attendant expense, inconvenience, and delay; and all other factors bearing on the wisdom of the compromise. We know that's Cajun Electric, Jackson Brewing, Foster

Mortgage, among other cases. I probably left out AWECO.

Anyway, applying all of those legal standards here, I do think the evidence was very thorough in showing that the compromise is a product of good faith and arm's-length negotiations. Indeed, it was almost shocking to this Court when I saw the motion, having the history I have with all of the contested issues, adversary proceedings that have transpired over the past few years between Hunter Mountain and the Debtor.

I do think the evidence is that it's fair and equitable and in the best interest of the estate and within the range of reasonableness, given due regard for all of the expense, delay, and likelihood of success.

I'll just briefly recount that, as noted early today, there was an Exhibit B attached to the 9019 motion that listed nine unresolved pending pieces of litigation that the Highland entities are embroiled in. Two of those are now gone. This was filed May 8th, and as of January 25th, they're gone. So seven pieces of litigation, of which two will go entirely away if I approve this settlement. The Kirschner adversary claims against Hunter Mountain will go away.

We have very little, very little, relatively speaking, left in this bankruptcy case to resolve if I approve this settlement. That alone is very, very significant. Again, we have large shall I say issues with Hunter Mountain. Highland says Hunter Mountain owes the Highland entities something like $57.69 million on a note that Hunter Mountain is payor on dated December 21st, 2015.

The flip side of that is that Hunter Mountain was sued by Kirschner in the Kirschner action on various claims, including this $57 million note. We have had Hunter Mountain file multiple motions for leave to sue Highland, the Claimant Trust, Mr. Seery. And those have been denied, but are in appeal status or remand status or some further litigation status.

And again, we have numerous issues. Hunter Mountain having sought valuation. The Court denied that. It's on appeal.

So, so much goes away, so much further litigation goes away and we make a monumental step in ending this long-running case if I approve this settlement.

Now, on the flip side of this, I know that Dugaboy, through the voice of Mr. Dondero today, expressed that Hunter Mountain is, I forget the words he used, but not -- this isn't close to being fair and equitable as far as he was concerned for Hunter Mountain. That Hunter Mountain, in addition to being through with litigation in this bankruptcy-land, would be paid $500,000 within five days. They would also be paid separately $10 million as an initial distribution, with the hope of two more $6.5 million distributions in '27 and '28.

And it would get a note, which I think has $24 million -- I think it was less than that, $17 or $18 million left on it, perhaps, on which Dugaboy is a maker. The debtor is one of the two payees. The Debtor gives up its rights in that note.

It looks like Hunter Mountain is getting a lot. And again, the way this estate has been liquidated, there is money that can flow to it as a Class 10 equity here, as the evidence has shown.

So I am approving the settlement. I am specifically overruling the remaining objections of both Dugaboy and Mr. Daugherty.

As far as Mr. Daugherty's argument that the settlement violates the absolute priority rule or violates the terms of the plan or the confirmation order or the trust agreement by, putting words in his mouth, skipping over the full payment of whatever his Class 8 claim is going to be and allowing a subordinate class, Class 10, to get paid, I have flipped and studied the wording of the plan and the confirmation order and the defined term for Disputed Reserve. And I referred to a disputed reserve as a tried-and-true provision in Chapter 11 plans. I think it does what needs to happen for precisely this kind of situation, that as long as an appropriate amount is being held in reserve, and the Court can decide what is an appropriate amount, we don't have to hold up a bankruptcy estate for years and years.

So the disputed claim reserve is what allows me to find this is fair and equitable and this isn't some sort of violation of the absolute priority rule. I think this is precisely the reason the disputed claim reserve mechanism is in place, so that we can get on with the business of getting more people paid sooner.

And based on the evidence I've heard, it is an appropriate amount, I think. We're doing a lot of crystal-balling, what may or may not ever happen when, but I think, based on all the persuasive evidence I've heard, the Daugherty objection should be overruled.

As far as Dugaboy, I, as noted, am overruling that objection. I didn't have any persuasive evidence, solid evidence to show me that Mark Patrick doesn't have appropriate corporate governance authority to enter into this settlement agreement.

I realize there's a lot swirling around in the Cayman Islands, and that's going to play out however it plays out. But as of today, I don't have any evidence that he doesn't have authority currently to enter into the settlement. And it speaks volumes that The Foundation backed down. It would seem that they have been convinced that the lack-of-authority argument was not one they wanted to press today. So that is overruled.

I feel like we have all seen this movie many times before.

I wanted to understand, perhaps I went deeper than I needed to, I know Mr. Phillips thinks I went deeper than I needed in hearing some of the testimony from Mr. Patrick and Mr. Dondero, but I'm just trying to understand what's happening here. Why people who were so lockstep and friendly for years of this case suddenly, when we're right on the brink of maybe the case being put to bed -- I'm optimistic; it's not quite that close -- all of a sudden they're at loggerheads.

And so how many times have I seen this over the years, whether it's a breakdown in business and personal relationships, Mr. Daugherty, Mr. Terry, Grant Scott, now Mark Patrick? I'm probably leaving out someone. I don't know. I feel like I'm watching the same movie. Okay, now these two have parted ways. Now these two have parted ways.

And then, as I recall, when Grant Scott withdrew his objection to the HarbourVest settlement all these years ago, 2020, 2021, which he had been lodging for Charitable DAF, I think it was, --

MR. MORRIS: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: -- then what happens? Well, I think Mark Patrick came in to work or replace Grant Scott, and then a bunch of people ended up getting sued in a different court regarding the settlement I approved, the HarbourVest settlement I approved.

So why am I saying this? I just, I'm trying to understand things I'll never understand. I wanted to maybe hear something that would make me better understand what's happened now between Hunter Mountain, Mark Patrick, and Dondero and Dugaboy, because it sure seems like they were on the same team for many years. But it was very likely irrelevant, as Mr. Phillips kept getting up and down and saying. I just was seeing if it would lead to something relevant that would bear on the wisdom of this compromise, since that's one of my other legal standards. I'm supposed to consider all factors that might bear on the wisdom of the compromise. And so I guess that's where I was going in allowing all of that to come in.

All right. Well, while everyone is not thrilled with this compromise and settlement, I heartily congratulate the human beings that made it happen, and they know who they are. Maybe I do, maybe I don't. But I think it's rather amazing. And I hope that we are not coming to court for hearings in 2032. I don't know who among us will be alive. I'm not going to be alive by then. Certain people might cheer if that's the case. But I congratulate the human beings who made this happen. And you know who you are. Maybe I do, maybe I don't, but I congratulate you.

All right. So I reserve the right to supplement or amend this oral bench ruling in a more fulsome written order. I am asking Mr. Morris and his team to be the scriveners on that order. And obviously, you're going to run it by the other lawyers here who participated today.

Is there anything else before we wrap it up?

MR. MORRIS: Just one other thing, Your Honor. And I greatly appreciate your comments.

When we draft the order, are we authorized to say that this settlement is approved not only pursuant to 9019 but to 363? Because there are asset sales that are part of this. We moved under that provision, and I didn't hear Your Honor reference that, --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MORRIS: -- but we would like to include that in the order.

THE COURT: You may. And that is precisely why I said I reserve the right to supplement or amend, because many times I get out of here and look at this transcript and, ooh, I forgot to say whatever.

MR. MORRIS: Yeah.

THE COURT: So I meant to say that and I didn't, so you may add that.

MR. MORRIS: And I assume all Your Honor wants is a fairly simple form of order that incorporates --

THE COURT: I do not want a 40-page order.

MR. MORRIS: Right.

THE COURT: Okay?

MR. MORRIS: Just an order that incorporates your comments on the record, and to the extent that Your Honor wants to amend that, you'll do so at your leisure?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MORRIS: Perfect.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MORRIS: Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you all. We're adjourned.

MR. PHILLIPS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE CLERK: All rise.

APPELLANT'S AMENDED DESIGNATION OF ITEMS TO BE INCLUDED IN THE RECORD ON APPEAL AND STATEMENT OF THE ISSUES PRESENTED

Pursuant to Fed. R. Bankr. P. 8009(a) and Docket No. 4366, Appellant Patrick Daugherty ("Daugherty") hereby submits his amended designation of items to be included in the record on appeal and statement of issues to be presented in connection with his appeal from the Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement Between the Highland Entities and the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket

[1] Highland's last four digits of its taxpayer identification number are (8357). The headquarters and service address for Highland is 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1850, Dallas, TX 75201.

No. 4297] (the "HMIT Settlement Order").[2] See Notice of Appeal [Docket No. 4310, as amended at Docket No. 4327].

Statement of Issues on Appeal

1. Whether the Bankruptcy Court erred in its approval of the HMIT Settlement Order [Docket No. 4297], which permits payment to Class 10 creditors before all Class 8 and Class 9 claims have been paid in full when the plain language of the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. [Dkt. 1808], the Court's Confirmation Order [Dkt. 1943] and the Claimant Trust Agreement [Dkt. 3817-4] require full payment plus applicable interest to all Class 8 and Class 9 creditors before any Class 10 or Class 11 claims can vest.

2. Whether the Bankruptcy Court abused its discretion by approving the HMIT Settlement Order [Docket No. 4297] when the settlement is not fair, reasonable, or in the best interests of the estate as the Debtor, through its principals, is forgoing the recovery of millions in material value to the estate in exchange for, inter alia, self-serving releases of its principals.

Designation of Record

Daugherty respectfully designates the following items to be included in the appellate record pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 8009(a):

000001 1. Amended Notice of Appeal for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj11 [Dkt. 4327].

000011 2. Notice of Appeal for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj11 [Dkt. 4310].

000022 3. The Judgment Order or Decree appealed from: Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement Between the Highland Entities and the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 4297].

000026 4. Docket Sheet for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj1 kept by the Bankruptcy Clerk.

5. Documents listed below for Bankruptcy Case No. 19-34054-sgj11:

[2] Unless otherwise defined herein, all capitalized terms shall have the meaning ascribed to them in the HMIT Settlement Order.

In Re:	§
Highland Capital Management, L.P.	§	Case No.: 19−34054−sgj11
	§	Chapter No.: 11
Debtor(s)	§

Dear Andrew York:

The above referenced case has been reviewed as part of the Clerk's Office continuing effort to identify cases that are deficient for specific documents. Our review indicates that this case requires:

- ☐ Interim Report
- ☐ Trustee's Final Account
- ☐ Trustee's Final Report
- ☐ 341 Meeting Minute Sheet and Exempt Property Report
- ☐ Report of Trustee in No−Asset Case and Application for Closing
- ☐ Motion to Dismiss debtor's Failure to Attend 341 Meeting
- ☑ Other: Please amend the notice of appeal to clarify the appellees verses interested parties.

Please electronically file the requested documents, provide a specific date for which this information will be provided to the Court, or provide information as to why this case should remain open. Failure to respond within 48 hours from the date of this letter may result in the Court setting a status conference to determine why the document(s) has not been filed or the matter may be denied for want of prosecution.

HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.,[1]	§	Case No. 19-34054-sgj11
Reorganized Debtor.	§

ORDER PURSUANT TO BANKRUPTCY RULE 9019 AND 11 U.S.C. § 363 APPROVING SETTLEMENT BETWEEN THE HIGHLAND ENTITIES AND THE HMIT ENTITIES AND AUTHORIZING ACTIONS CONSISTENT THEREWITH

This matter having come before the Court on the Motion for Entry of an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement with the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 4216] (the "Motion")[2] filed by Highland Capital Management, L.P., the reorganized debtor (the "Debtor" or "Highland") in the above-captioned chapter 11 case (the "Bankruptcy Case"), the Highland Claimant Trust (the "Claimant

[1] The last four digits of the Reorganized Debtor's taxpayer identification number are 8357. The headquarters and service address for the Highland is 100 Crescent Court, Suite 1850, Dallas, TX 75201.

Trust"), and the Highland Litigation Sub-Trust (the "Litigation Sub-Trust," and together with Highland and the Claimant Trust, the "Movants"); and the Court having jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 157 and 1334 as well as the retention of jurisdiction provisions of the Plan; and the Court having found that this is a core proceeding pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2); and venue in this District being proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1408 and 1409; and the Court having considered (a) the Motion, (b) Patrick Daugherty's Objection to Motion for Entry of an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement with the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 4229] (the "Daugherty Objection") filed by Patrick Daugherty, (c) the Preliminary Objection of the Dugaboy Investment Trust to the Motion for Entry of an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement with the HMIT Entities [Docket No. 4230] (the "Dugaboy Objection," and together with the Daugherty Objection, the "Objections"), filed by The Dugaboy Investment Trust, (d) the Objection of the Dallas Foundation and Crown Global Life Insurance Ltd. to Motion for Entry of an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement with the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Docket No. 4231] (the "Charitable Foundation Objection"), filed by The Dallas Foundation (the "Dallas Foundation") (on behalf of Empower Dallas Foundation ("EDF") and The Okada Family Foundation ("Okada Family"), and Crown Global Life Insurance, Ltd., not individually, but solely in respect of Segregated Accounts 30218 and 30219 ("Crown"), (e) the evidence admitted into the record during the hearing on the Motion on June 25, 2025 (the "Hearing") in support of, and in opposition to, the Motion, including the Court's assessment of the witnesses' credibility, and (f) all arguments heard at the Hearing in connection therewith; and the Court having found that the legal and factual bases set forth in the Motion establish sufficient cause for the relief granted herein; and adequate notice of the Motion having been given; and after due deliberation and good cause appearing therefor,

THE COURT HEREBY FINDS THAT:

1. The Court's findings of fact and conclusions of law set forth on the record at the conclusion of the Hearing are incorporated by reference except as supplemented in this Order, and as may be further supplemented by the Court.

2. Entry into the Settlement Agreement is an appropriate exercise of the Movants' business judgment.

3. The Settlement Agreement is fair, reasonable, and in the best interests of each of the Highland Entities and their creditors and constituents.

4. The Settlement Agreement was negotiated and entered into by the Highland Entities and the HMIT Entities without collusion or fraud, in good faith, and was the product of arm's- length negotiations.

5. The HMIT Entities are not "insiders" or "affiliates" of Highland as those terms are defined in Bankruptcy Code sections 101(31) and 101(2).

6. The HMIT Entities entered into the Settlement Agreement, are acquiring the Transferred Claims and Dugaboy Note in good faith, and have proceeded with all aspects of the Settlement Agreement in good faith, and have received fair value in consideration of their entry into the Settlement Agreement.

7. The Transferred Claims and Dugaboy Note are property of the estate, and the Highland Entities' sale of those assets free and clear of all liens and encumbrances but otherwise subject to the Settlement Agreement is a proper exercise of their business judgment.

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED THAT:

8. The Motion is GRANTED.

9. As stated on the record during the Hearing, The Charitable Foundation Objection is withdrawn with prejudice.

10. All other Objections to the Motion are overruled.

11. The Settlement Agreement attached as Exhibit 1 to the Demo Declaration is approved in all respects pursuant to Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure and section 363(b) of the Bankruptcy Code.

12. HMIT's Class 10 Interest is Allowed in the amount of $336,940,230.58.

13. The HMIT Entities, as good faith purchasers of Estate assets in the Settlement, are entitled to the protections contained in section 363(m) of the Bankruptcy Code.

14. The Highland Entities and their agents are authorized to take any and all actions necessary or desirable to implement the Settlement Agreement without further notice or further Court approval.

15. Notwithstanding anything in the Settlement Agreement to the contrary, none of the Dallas Foundation, EDF, Okada Family, or Crown (collectively, the "Foundation Parties") are or will be included in the definitions of "HMIT Releasors" or "Highland Releasors." For the avoidance of doubt, however, any attempt by the Foundation Parties to assert a Claim against a HMIT Released Party by, through, or under, including derivatively, a Highland Entity, or against a Highland Released Party by, through, or under, including derivatively, a HMIT Entity is barred by this Order and the Settlement Agreement.

16. The Court shall retain jurisdiction to hear and determine all matters arising from or related to the implementation, interpretation, or enforcement of this Order.

NOTICE REGARDING THE RECORD FOR A BANKRUPTCY APPEAL

Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 8009 prescribes the deadlines for filing the designations of items to be included in the record, requires copies to be submitted to the bankruptcy clerk to prepare the record, and directs all parties to "take any other action necessary to enable the clerk to assemble and transmit the record." Fed.R.Bankr.P. 8009(g). The purpose of this notice is to provide guidance on the local application of this rule.

DESIGNATION OF THE RECORD

- If you are the appellant, when designating items for inclusion in the record,
  - ♦ list the following items first, in this order: (1) the notice of appeal, (2) the judgment, order, or decree appealed from, (3) any opinion, findings of fact, and conclusions of law of the bankruptcy court, and (4) the docket sheet;
  - ♦ then list the other items to be included, leaving for the end of your list any sealed documents, any exhibits, and any transcripts.
- If you are the appellee, cross−appellant, or cross−appellee and are designating additional items,
  - ♦ list the following items first, in this order: (1) any notice of cross−appeal, (2) any judgment, order, or decree appealed from that the appellant has not designated, and (3) any opinion, findings of fact, and conclusions of law of the bankruptcy court that the appellant has not designated;
  - ♦ then list the other items to be included, leaving for the end of your list any sealed documents , any exhibits, and any transcripts.
- All parties designating items to be included in the record on appeal must
  - ♦ for each item, specify the document number shown on the docket sheet. If an item does not have a document number, specify the date the item was filed.

- ♦ If you have designated a transcript that has not been filed, order it immediately by contacting the presiding bankruptcy judge's courtroom deputy or following the instructions at http://www.txnb.uscourts.gov/transcript−and−tape−orders.

ASSEMBLY OF THE RECORD

Within 14 days of filing your designation of the record, pursuant to Rule 8009, submit to the bankruptcy clerk any item that is not available in the ECF system, using this procedure:

- Enclose sealed items and non−documentary items (e.g., removable media) in 8.5" x 11" envelopes.
- Copy all other items in PDF files to a removable storage device (e.g., USB drives, DVDs, etc.), organized in the sequence in which they were designated. Limit files to 5.0 MB in size and do not include color.
- Save copies of court exhibits in PDF files to a removable storage device, organized in the sequence in which they are designated. Limit files to 5.0 MB in size and do not include color. (Use a separate removable storage device for each hearing.)
- Label any submission with the case caption and bankruptcy court case and/or adversary proceeding number.

TRANSMITTAL OF THE RECORD

- The bankruptcy clerk will electronically transmit the record to the district clerk. The parties must provide a paper copy of the record, if required.

REQUIREMENTS REGARDING PAPER RECORD

- If the district judge requires a paper copy, the district clerk will notify you that you are required to provide a copy of the items in your designation to the bankruptcy clerk, for quality review.
- If you are notified to provide a paper copy, organize the record according to the volumes maintained in the district court's ECF system.
- Even if a paper copy is not required when an appeal is entered on the docket, the district judge or the district clerk may later notify you that a paper copy is required for the use of the district judge or the court of appeals.

ATTORNEYS FOR DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST

IN THE UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF TEXAS
DALLAS DIVISION

In re:	§	Chapter 11
HIGHLAND CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, L.P.	§	Case No. 19-34054-sgj-11
Reorganized Debtor.	§

PRELIMINARY OBJECTION OF THE DUGABOY INVESTMENT TRUST TO THE MOTION FOR ENTRY OF AN ORDER PURSUANT TO BANKRUPTCY RULE 9019 AND 11 U.S.C. § 363 APPROVING SETTLEMENT WITH THE HMIT ENTITIES

COMES NOW, the Dugaboy Investment Trust ("Dugaboy") and submits this Preliminary Objection (the "Objection") to the Motion for Entry of an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 9019 and 11 U.S.C. § 363 Approving Settlement with the HMIT Entities and Authorizing Actions Consistent Therewith [Dkt. No. 4216] (the "Settlement Motion"), and in support thereof, respectfully states as follows:

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

1. The Settlement Motion seeks approval of a settlement agreement between Highland Capital Management, L.P. ("Highland"), the Highland Claimant Trust, the Highland Litigation Sub-Trust, and the Highland Indemnity Trust (collectively, the "Highland Entities"), on the one hand, and Hunter Mountain Investment Trust ("HMIT") and related entities (the "HMIT Entities") on the other (the "Settlement Agreement"). On June 6, 2025, Dugaboy retained the undersigned counsel to represent it with respect to the Settlement Motion. The undersigned promptly requested a brief two-week extension of the Settlement Motion's objection deadline. Counsel for the Highland Entities declined any extension. As such, Dugaboy files this Objection to preserve its rights, and expressly reserves the right to supplement this Objection after conducting discovery of the issues relevant to the Settlement Motion.

2. If the Court grants the Settlement Motion, it will approve a wide-ranging compromise that would significantly alter the confirmed Plan (as defined below). Specifically, the Settlement Motion attempts to elevate distributions to certain equity interests (Class 10) above the remaining creditors and provides for accelerated distributions ahead of those creditor[s].[1] Such a distribution is a clear violation of the terms of the Plan and its implementation documents, including the Claimant Trust Agreement. For this reason alone, the Court should deny the Settlement Motion.

3. Additionally, the Settlement Motion is devoid of information sufficient to allow the Court or other parties in interest to determine whether the proposed Settlement Agreement meets the standards for approval, including evidence to support the distribution of any assets to the holders of any equity interests, including the HMIT Entities, and evidence to support the allowance of HMIT's Class 10 interest in the amount of $336,940,230.58. As a result, Dugaboy intends to serve discovery upon the Highland Entities to obtain the evidence relating to these and other issues set forth in the Settlement Motion.

[1] It is not clear from the Settlement Motion the total number of remaining, unpaid claimants. In footnote 3 of the Settlement Motion, the Highland Entities represent that if the Settlement Motion is granted, the only "unresolved claim" is the claim of Patrick Daugherty. Since the Settlement Motion proposes making distributions to only the holder of a Class 10 Equity Interest, it implies that the only "unresolved claim" (maybe the only unpaid claim) is held by Mr. Daugherty.

4. Finally, the Settlement Agreement's currently drafted mutual release provisions are vague and overly broad. Out of an abundance of caution, Dugaboy objects to any language that explicitly or implicitly attempts to impose a release of any of its claims or the claims of any affiliates, including James Dondero ("Dondero"), against any Highland Entity (as that term is defined in the Settlement Agreement) or any HMIT Entity (as that term is defined in the Settlement Agreement). For these reasons, as further detailed below, the Settlement Motion should be denied.

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

5. The Debtor commenced the above-captioned case (the "Bankruptcy Case") in the District of Delaware on October 16, 2019. The Bankruptcy Case was subsequently transferred to this Court. On February 22, 2021, this Court entered the Order (I) Confirming the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) and (II) Granting Related Relief [Docket No. 1943], which confirmed the Fifth Amended Plan of Reorganization of Highland Capital Management, L.P. (as Modified) [Docket No. 1943-1] (the "Plan"). The Plan went effective on August 11, 2021 [Docket No. 2700] (the "Effective Date").

6. On the Effective Date, in accordance with the Plan: (a) Highland established the Claimant Trust for the benefit of the Claimant Trust Beneficiaries; (b) Highland established Litigation Sub-Trust for the benefit of the Claimant Trust as the "Litigation Sub-Trust Beneficiary"; (c) the Class B/C Interests and the Class A Interests in Highland were extinguished; (d) holders of allowed Class 10 interests, consisting of Class B/C Interests, would receive contingent and unvested Class 10 Interests if and when their claims or interests were allowed in amounts determined under the Plan; (e) holders of allowed Class 11 interests, consisting of the Class A Interests, would receive contingent and unvested Class 11 Interests if and when their claims or interests were allowed in amounts under the Plan; (f) James P. Seery, Jr., was appointed the Claimant Trustee of the Claimant Trust; and (g) Marc Kirschner was appointed the Litigation Trustee of the Litigation Sub-Trust.

7. Subsequently, on or about August 16, 2021, the Claimant Trust, as grantor through the Claimant Trustee (Mr. Seery), established the Indemnity Trust for the benefit of the "Trust Indemnified Parties."[2] In general terms the "Trust Indemnified Parties" and "Beneficiaries" of the Indemnity Trust are (a) the "Indemnified Parties" identified in Sec. 8.2 of the Claimant Trust Agreement, (b) the "Indemnified Parties" identified in Sec. 8.2 of the Litigation Sub-Trust and (c) the "Covered Persons" under Sec. 10 of the Reorganized Limited Partnership Agreement of Highland. Mr. Seery appointed himself the Indemnity Trust Administrator for the Indemnity Trust and is generally responsible for managing the Indemnity Trust.[3]

8. Prior to the filing of the Settlement Motion, neither the Class 10 Interests held by HMIT nor any of the Class 11 Interests, including those held by Dugaboy, have been Allowed (as defined in the Plan). The Settlement Motion, however, proposes to alter this state of affairs with an agreement to allow HMIT's Class 10 Interests and to authorize distribution of funds and assets to HMIT by the Claimant Trust or by other entities for the benefit of the Claimant Trust. The proposed distributions being made by the Claimant Trust, or for the benefit of the Claimant Trust, are being effectuated, apparently, prior to payment in full of all holders of claims.

[2] According to the Settlement Agreement, the Indemnity Trust Agreement has been amended at least two times, most recently "effective as of [April 28], 2025." See, Settlement Agreement, p.5 (definition of "Indemnity Trust Agreement"). Upon information and belief, the Second Amendments to the Indemnity Trust Agreement have not been provided to Dugaboy.

[3] The Settlement Agreement was signed for the Highland Entities by Mr. Kirschner as the Litigation Trustee for the Litigation Sub-Trust and Mr. Seery as (a) the Chief Executive Officer of Highland, (b) the Claimant Trustee for the Claimant Trust and (c) the Indemnity Trust Administrator for the Indemnity Trust.

INITIAL OBJECTIONS

A. The Settlement Agreement Violates the Terms of the Plan and the Claimant Trust Agreement

9. The Claimant Trust Agreement has explicit requirements that must be met prior to the distribution of funds or assets to any Equity Trust Certificate holders. Sec. 5.1(c) of the Claimant Trust Agreement provides:

> (c) Contingent Trust Interests. On the date hereof, or on the date such Interest becomes Allowed under the Plan, the Claimant Trust shall issue Contingent Interests to Holders of Allowed Class 10 Class B/C Limited Partnership Interests and Holders of Allowed Class 11 Class A Limited Partnership Interests (collectively, the "Equity Holders"). The Claimant Trustee shall allocate to each Holder of Allowed Class 10 Class B/C Limited Partnership Interests and each Holder of Allowed Class 11 Class A Limited Partnership Interests a Contingent Trust Interest equal to the ratio that the amount of each Holder's Allowed Class 10 or Class 11 Interest bears to the total amount of the Allowed Class 10 or Class 11 Interests, as applicable, under the Plan. Contingent Trust Interests shall not vest, and the Equity Holders shall not have any rights under this Agreement, unless and until the Claimant Trustee files with the Bankruptcy Court a certification that all GUC Beneficiaries have been paid indefeasibly in full, including, to the extent applicable, all accrued and unpaid post-petition interest consistent with the Plan and all Disputed Claims have been resolved (the "GUC Payment Certification"). Equity Holders will only be deemed "Beneficiaries" under this Agreement upon the filing of a GUC Payment Certification with the Bankruptcy Court, at which time the Contingent Trust Interests will vest and be deemed "Equity Trust Interests." The Equity Trust Interests shall be subordinated in right and priority to Subordinated Trust Interests, and distributions on account thereof shall only be made if and when Subordinated Beneficiaries have been repaid in full on account of such Subordinated Beneficiary's Allowed Subordinated Claim, in accordance with the terms of the Plan, the Confirmation Order, and this Agreement. The Equity Trust Interests distributed to Allowed Holders of Class A Limited Partnership Interests shall be subordinated to the Equity Trust Interests distributed to Allowed Holders of Class B/C Limited Partnership Interests.

10. Before the Holders of Class 10 or Class 11 Interests are entitled to receive any distribution of property, the Claimant Trustee is required to file with the Court the "GUC Payment Certification" (as defined in Section 5.1(c) of the Claimant Trust Agreement). As of the filing of the Settlement Motion, the GUC Payment Certification had not been filed. So, based on the express terms of the Claimant Trust Agreement, no distribution can be made to the HMIT Entities based on its Class 10 Interests.

11. The Settlement Agreement, however, includes an agreement between the Highland Entities and the HMIT Entities as to the allowed amount of HMIT's Class 10 Interest: $336,940,230.58. And Section 4(b) of the Settlement Agreement provides that, notwithstanding the allowance of HMIT's Class 10 Interest, it shall not be a "Claimant Trust Beneficiary" or a "Beneficiary" under the Claimant Trust Agreement.

12. In an apparent attempt to subvert the prohibition against making distributions to the HMIT Entities, the Settlement Agreement proposes to have distributions made by entities under the control of the Claimant Trust or the Claimant Trustee to the HMIT Entities. For example:

- Highland, which is wholly owned, directly and indirectly, by the Claimant Trust, is making a $500,000 payment to the HMIT Entities;[4]
- the Indemnity Trust, which was created by the Claimant Trust for the benefit of the Indemnified Parties identified in the Claimant Trust, the Litigation Trust and the Highland limited partnership agreement is making a series of payments in an amount not less than $23 million (and could be more if any funds remain in the Indemnity Trust on April 1, 2029) to be applied to HMIT's allowed Class 10 Equity Interest;
- the Litigation Trust, the sole beneficiary of which is the Claimant Trust, is transferring to the HMIT Entities the "Kirschner Claims";[5] and
- "The Highland Entities" (the specific Highland Entity is not disclosed in the Settlement Motion or Settlement Agreement) is transferring to HMIT the Dugaboy Note. After the Dugaboy Note is valued, the value is to be applied to HMIT's Class 10 Interest.

13. All, or substantially all, of the payments and transfers of property are being made by or for the benefit of the Claimant Trust to reduce the HMIT Entities' Class 10 Equity Interests

[4] The Settlement Agreement is silent as to how this payment is to be applied by HMIT. Will it be applied to HMIT's Class 10 Interest?

[5] The Settlement Agreement is silent as to the value of the "Kirschner Claims" or how such value it to be applied by HMIT. Once again, will the value attributed to the "Kirschner Claims" be applied to HMIT's Class 10 Interest?

in violation of the express terms of the Claimant Trust Agreement and Plan. As such, the Settlement Motion should be denied.

B. There is Insufficient Evidence to Support Approval of the Settlement Agreement

14. The Highland Entities are proposing a settlement with the HMIT Entities that violates the Plan, the Claimant Trust Agreement and the Confirmation Order. As a result, Dugaboy requires discovery relating to a number of relevant issues, including but not limited to:

- Has the Claimant Trust paid all the creditors, including the Class 9 subordinated creditors, in full?
- Is the Debtor solvent and capable of paying all the creditors, including the Class 9 subordinated creditors, in full?
- If the Debtor has not paid all creditors in full, does it have adequate funds and resources to pay all creditors in full?
- What is the basis of the Claimant Trustee's agreement to allow the Class 10 Equity Interest of HMIT in the amount of $336,940,230.58?
- What is the basis of the Claimant Trustee's assertion in Footnote 3 as to the amount of the Class 11 Equity Interests?
- What value is being attributed to the Kirschner Claims, and will such value be applied to HMIT's Class 10 Equity Interest?

15. The forgoing factual issues are not exhaustive but illustrate a sampling of the types of open factual issues left unaddressed by the Settlement Motion. Dugaboy intends to serve discovery on the Highland Entities with regard to the Settlement Motion. Because the Highland Entities have failed to provide sufficient evidence to support approval of the Settlement Agreement, the Court should deny the Settlement Motion.

C. The Releases Contained in the Settlement Agreement are Vague and Overly Broad

16. Finally, the Settlement Motion contains vague and overly broad mutual release provisions. Out of an abundance of caution, Dugaboy objects to any language that explicitly or implicitly attempts to impose a release of any of its claims or the claims of any affiliate, including

Mr. Dondero, of any Highland Entity (as that term is defined in the Settlement Agreement) or any HMIT Entity (as that term is defined in the Settlement Agreement).

RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

17. In the event the Court grants Dugaboy's motion to extend the response deadline to the Settlement Motion, Dugaboy reserves its rights to supplement this Objection. Further, Dugaboy reserves its rights to supplement this Objection as a result of evidence that will be obtained in discovery.

WHEREFORE, PREMISES CONSIDERED, Dugaboy prays that the Court enter an order (a) denying the Settlement Motion, and (b) granting Dugaboy such other and further relief to which it is entitled.
