Fishers ranked 4th best place to live last year, not in top 100 this year

John Tuohy

Indianapolis Star USA TODAY NETWORK

At first glance it appears to be a remarkable decline, a possible indicator of severe suburban decay or a hidden menace that makes residency suddenly intolerable.

Fishers, which was ranked fourth on the Best Places to Live in the U.S. list last year by Livability.com, didn't crack the top 100 in its 2025 annual survey.

To add insult to intrigue, its neighbor and friendly rival, Carmel, was ranked second in this year's survey following a first-place ranking last year.

Carmel promptly touted its achievement in a news release, as cities do when they rank high in one of the many "best of" lists now abundant in email queues across America.

"Carmel is the only city in Indiana to receive a top-tier ranking. The City of Bloomington was included in the Top 100," Carmel noted.

Fishers, left off the list, was silent, where usually it, too, would be tooting its horn.

So what happened? How could a city drop out of sight so quickly? Was it the unpopular new roundabout at 96th Street and Allisonville Road? A sudden crime wave or severe spike in unemployment?

Or was there some major methodology malfunction in Livability's data collection?

None of the above.

Livability's Editor-in-Chief Amanda Ellis said a decision was made this year to include just one city - the higher-scoring one - if two closely ranked cities are near each other, especially if they are in the top 10. In this case, Carmel's 872 livability rating nudged out Fishers, so Carmel went on the scoreboard, and Fishers jettisoned into the ether.

Both Carmel and Fishers still have the data to back up being great places to live, but we selected the higher scoring of the two this year to recognize via the list -that was Carmel," Ellis said in an email. "Your region certainly has a lot to offer in general!"

Where Livability would have ranked Fishers

Livability's ranking weighs eight key categories — economy, housing and cost of living, amenities, transportation, environment, safety and education - using data from several government and private sources, and issues a numerical ranking to cities with populations between 75,000 and 500,000.

Fishers score of 864 was 10 points behind Camel, which would have placed it third on the list had the new rule not been applied.

Ellis said the change was to spread recognition geographically and avoid clusters of cities.

"So that our final group of cities represents different parts of the country vs. super heavy representation of a handful of states or metro areas," Ellis wrote.

Other cities that were left off the list despite high scores were Allen, Texas, and Plano, Texas, near first-ranked Flower Mound in the Dallas suburbs. And Chesapeake, Virginia, which didn't make the list because nearby Virginia Beach ranked higher.

Last year, Fishers scored 864, behind Carmel, Cary, North Carolina and Columbia, Maryland.

"This Indy suburb offers high-quality health care, some of the best schools in the state, an incredibly low crime rate, and a variety of amenities for both young professionals and families," last year's survey reported of Fishers. "The city's commitment to being a healthy place to live and work is evident."

Both Fishers and Carmel routinely rank high in such quality of life and economic health compilations and ballyhoo them as part of their sales pitches to new residents and businesses.

The city of Fishers home page boasts that the suburb "consistently earns national and regional accolades for its safety, livability, and innovation." With one click a visitor can find a list of publications in which it scores high, with links going back several years. Last year Fishers was listed in the top 10 by five different publications.

Carmel does the same. Fishers officials did not respond to a request for comment Friday.

Carmel was topped this year only by Flower Mound. Others in the top five were Sugarland, Texas,, at No. 2, Naperville, Illinois, and Roswell, Georgia.

The Bible is God's Word

Billy Graham Columnist

Q: Is the Bible written in sequence? I know that the Old Testament is about God, and the New Testament is about Jesus. I've read the four gospels but noticed how often Jesus quotes from the Old Testament. It makes me want to read the Old Testament, but the few times I've tried, it has been hard to stay with it. Is there a key that helps explain each book? - B.S.

A: The Bible is God's Word from beginning to end. Jesus said, "I am the Alpha and the Omega, the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End" (Revelation 22:13, HCSB). The central message of the Bible is Jesus Christ, and it is primarily concerned with the story of man's redemption as it is in Jesus Christ. If we read Scripture and miss the story of salvation, we've missed its message and its meaning.

In Genesis, Jesus is the Seed of the Woman. In Exodus, He is the Passover Lamb. In Leviticus, He is the atoning Sacrifice. In Numbers, the Smitten Rock. In Deuteronomy, the Prophet. In Joshua, the Captain of the Lord's hosts. In Judges, the Deliverer. In Ruth, the Heavenly Kinsman. In the six books of Kings, the Promised King. In Nehemiah, the Restorer of the nation. In Esther, the Advocate. In Job, my Redeemer. In Psalms, my Strength. In Proverbs, my Pattern. In Ecclesiastes, my Goal. In the Song of Solomon, my Satisfier. In the prophets, the Coming Prince of Peace. In the gospels, He is the Christ who came to seek and to save the lost. In Acts, He is Christ risen. In the epistles, He is Christ exalted. In Revelation, He is Christ returning and reigning.

The message of the Bible is the story of salvation through Jesus.

Nothing will help us grow spiritually more than spending time alone with God every day, reading His Word, obeying His Word, and spending time in prayer.

Today is Monday, May 12, the 132nd day of 2025. There are 233 days left in the year. On this date in:

1780: Under siege for more than a month, American forces suffered their worst defeat of the Revolutionary War when they surrendered Charleston. South Carolina, to the British.

1932: The body of toddler Charles Lindbergh Jr., son of the famous aviator, was discovered near the family's estate. He had been kidnapped from his bedroom March 1, and a ransom of $50,000 had been paid. Richard Hauptmann was later arrested and convicted of the crime, then executed.

1933: As part of President Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal, the Federal Emergency Relief Administration was created to combat unemployment during the Great Depression. By the end of 1935, it had employed more than 20 million people.

1941: Konrad Zuse unveiled the world's first programmable computer, the Z3 machine, which used a binary system. Programs were fed to the computer on rolls of punched film.

1942: A German U-boat torpedoed and sank a U.S. tanker in the mouth of the Mississippi River, killing more than two dozen sailors. 1963: A relatively unknown Bob Dylan walked off the set of "The Ed Sullivan Show" because CBS censors objected to the song he planned to perform, "Talkin' John Birch Paranoid Blues, critical of the ultraconservative John Birch Society and its tendency to make claims of Communist conspiracies.

1965: The uncrewed Soviet spacecraft Luna 5 crashed into the moon. It was intended to become the first craft to successfully navigate a soft landing, but a problem with a gyroscope caused the craft to lose control. 1968: Protesters began arriving in Washington, D.C., as part of the Poor People's Campaign developed by Martin Luther King Jr. and other civil rights leaders. King was assassinated a month before the event, but people came by the thousands to advocate for America's poor. The demonstration lasted six weeks, with some participants setting up a shantytown known as Resurrection City.

1975: The American freighter SS Mayaguez and its 39 crew members were captured by the Khmer Rouge off the coast of Cambodia. Two days later, American forces attacked the island where the crew was believed to be held hostage, though it was later discovered the crew were in the process of being released. U.S. casualties included 38 killed and three Marines later executed when left behind on the island.

1982: A Spanish priest, the Rev. Juan María Fernández y Krohn, attempted to kill Pope John Paul II in Fatima, Portugal. The assailant stabbed the pope with a bayonet, but the assassination attempt was unsuccessful. Fernández y Krohn was excommunicated and convicted of attempted murder, sentenced to more than six years in prison. The pope had been visiting the city's shrine to give thanks for surviving another assassination attempt a year earlier, when he was shot by Mehmet Ali Agca.
